e. On transfer with notice—Liability of transferor—For amount of discount—Evidence.—Deft. was a shareholder in a co., of which some of the capital stock subscribed for had not been taken up. These shares were offered to the stockbrokers at 60c. in the dollar, & deft. took some of them. Pltf. agreed to purchase deft.'s shares at 67½c. in the dollar, & the following transfer was executed: "For value received, S. transfers & assigns to C. 14 shares, on each of which has been paid $500, amounting to the sum of $7,000, in the capital stock of the N. Co." etc. Pltf. sued deft. to recover the difference:—Held: evidence was admissible to show that at the time of the sale pltf. was told that these shares had been issued at 60c., so that they were paid up in full only as between the directors & the shareholders; for this was evidence to show what was the subject matter of the contract, & that the transfer was not the concluded bargain between the parties; & pltf. could not recover.—CLARK v. SANFORD (1875), 25 C. P. 256.—CAN.

f. On transfer without notice—Liability of transferee—To execution creditor of company.—Certain shares in a co. incorporated by letters patent were issued, & allotted by a resolution passed at a special general meeting of the shareholders to themselves in proportion to the number of shares held by them at that time at 40 per cent discount deducted from their nominal value & scrip was issued for them as fully-paid. G. was allotted 9 shares which were subsequently assigned to applt. for value as fully-paid:—Held: a person purchasing shares in good faith without notice from an original shareholder as shares fully-paid is not liable to an execution creditor of the co. whose execution has been returned nulla bona for the amount unpaid upon the shares.—MCCRACKEN v. MCINTYRE (1877), 1 S. C. R. 479.—CAN.

g. — — — To company—Estoppel.—A portion of the shares in a joint-stock co., purporting on the face of their certificates to be of a certain par value & paid up, were allotted to three promoters. One of them sold part of his allotment at a discount & had them transferred by the co. direct to the purchasers, who were not aware that the shares were not fully-paid:—Held: in an action by the co., the purchasers were not liable for the discount on such shares, inasmuch as the co. were bound by their statement in the certificates that the shares were "fully-paid & non-assessable."—*KETTLE RIVER MINES, LTD. v. h. Position of holder—Where title derived from purchaser without notice—Not liable as contributory.—Twenty shares in a limited co. were originally allotted to A. as fully-paid, partly for work done & partly for work to be done for the co. The agreement under which the shares were so allotted was not registered as required by Act VI of 1882, s. 28. A sold 3 of these shares to D., who had no notice that they were not fully-paid. D. sold the 3 shares to G. who was the managing director of the co. The co. was wound up by the ct. At the date of the winding up, G. was holder of the 3 shares. In settling the list of contributories, the ct. ordered G.'s name to be placed on the list in respect of the 3 shares:—

1846. ———.]—A co. issued shares at a discount. In respect thereof a contract, in which the numbers of the shares were specified, was registered with the Registrar of Joint Stock Cos. A shareholder subsequently purchased shares in the open market, & the co. issued to him certificates, in which it was stated that the shares were fully paid up. The shares so purchased were part of the shares issued by the co. at a discount. The shareholder was aware that the co. had issued shares at a discount. He did not, however, search the register of joint-stock cos., & in fact, had no notice that the shares purchased by him had been improperly issued. In the winding up of the co. it was sought to place him on the list of contributories in respect of the shares:—Held: the shareholder, in omitting to search the register, had not been guilty of gross or culpable negligence, & consequently he ought not to be settled on the list.—Re NEW CHILE GOLD MINING CO., LTD. (1892), 68 L. 1847. ——— Original allottee—Nominee of vendor.]—In 1867 R. agreed to sell three shares in a ship to A. for £246 to be paid in cash. Afterwards, at the request of A., R. agreed to accept, in lieu of cash, 24 fully paid-up £10 shares in a co. to which A. represented he was entitled. A. had agreed with the co. to sell to them for cash some shares belonging to him in a vessel, & the co. owed him money on other transactions. Afterwards A. agreed to accept, instead of cash, an allotment of fully paid-up shares in the co. He requested the co. to allot 24 of these shares direct to R., & this the co. did, entering the shares in their register in the name of R. as fully paid up by A.'s order in the co. No payment in cash was made for the shares, & no contract for payment otherwise than in cash was registered under 1867 Act, s. 25. R. afterwards applied to the co. for a certificate of the shares, & a certificate was given to him, which stated that the shares had been paid up in full. R. did not inquire of the co. as to how the payment had been made. The co. being in liquidation, the liquidator claimed payment of the full amount of the shares from R.:—Held: (1) as there was no registered agreement, the shares had not been paid for in cash, for at no moment of time was there a debt on the one side which could be set-off against a debt on the other; (2) R. was not a transferee but the original allottee of the shares, & took them with constructive notice of the arrangement between A. & the co.—Re NEWPORT & SOUTH WALES SHIPOWNERS' CO., LTD., ROWLAND'S CASE (1880), 42 L. 1848. Transferee officer of company.]—An agreement was entered into between an English manufacturing co. & a French co. that the French co. should render to the English co. certain services, that in consideration of those services the English co. should transfer to the French co. or their nominees 1,000 shares of £10 each in the English co. to be credited as fully paid up, with a provision that before they were issued the English co. should procure the agreement to be registered. The services were rendered & the 1,000 shares were allotted, as to 800 to the French co. & as to 200 to S., a nominee & a director of the French co. S. transferred the 200 shares to H., one of the directors of the English co., who afterwards transferred 100 of them to B., another of the directors. The agreement between the two cos. was never registered; but B. & H. deposed that the directors had given their solr. directions to register it, & that, until after the co. had been ordered to be wound up, they believed that it had been registered. Certificates for the 1,000 shares had been issued stating them to be fully paid up:—Held: the liquidator was not estopped from requiring B. & H. to pay calls as holders of shares on which nothing had been paid in cash, for that S., B., & H., knew all along that the shares had not been paid up in cash.—Re LONDON CELLULOID CO. (1888), 39 Ch. This contract, through the neglect of an agent, was never registered, but 300 shares, purporting to be fully paid up were issued to R. & 623 to H. Of these 623 shares, 450 were ultimately transferred, some through the hands of other transferees without notice from H., to R., & 134 to B. R. was chairman, & B. was solr. of the co. from its formation:—Held: such of the 623 shares as came to the hands of R. through transferees without notice, must be treated as fully paid up, & the fact that R. & B. were officers of the co. made no difference as to their title.—Re STAPLEFORD COLLIERY CO., BARROW'S CASE (1880), 14 Ch. 1850. Partner in transferee firm director of company—No actual notice.]—C. K. & Co., a partnership firm, agreed to sell a ship to a co. for £1,500 & to take £1,000 in fully-paid shares. The transaction was carried out by the firm mortgaging the ship for £1,000, paying the money to the co., & then transferring the ship to the co. subject to the mtge. at the price of £500. The £1,000 was paid before any shares had been allotted. E., who was a promoter of the co., applied the money, without the knowledge or authority of the firm,

Held: G. was not liable as a contributory, for though G. was a managing director of the co., & as such must have known that the shares had been in paying 5s. per share payable on application on 4,000 shares for which he had applied. These shares, numbered 791 to 4790, were allotted to him & entered in the register with only 5s. paid. Subsequently K., one of the partners, became a director of the co., & 1,000 of E.'s shares were transferred to the firm. A certificate was issued by the co. to the firm that these shares, numbered 891 to 1890, were fully paid. The certificate was signed by two directors, of whom K. was one. The co. was being wound up compulsorily, & the liquidator put the firm on the list of contributories for 15s. on each of 1,000 shares:—Held: K. had no actual knowledge of the transaction & had not acted in collusion with E., & in that state of his knowledge the fact that he was a director & signed the certificate did not affect either him or his firm with notice of the facts or prevent them from relying on the estoppel created against the co. by the certificate.

The liquidator alleged that this gentleman "knew, or ought to have known," that the co. was a bubble; & proposed to make a call upon him of £30 for each of his shares:—Held: the liquidator was wrong, the shareholder having done all that could legitimately be demanded of him under his contract.—*WATERHOUSE v. 1855. Amount credited under compromise of action with third party.—(1) F. was the holder of fifty shares in the co., which had been issued before the 1867 Act came into operation, & on each of which £14 was unpaid. In 1868, W. brought an action against the co., which was compromised upon the terms that the co. should pay to W. £3,200, & should credit F. with £700 in respect of his shares so as to make them fully paid-up shares. The arrangement was carried out & certificates for fully paid-up shares were issued to F. The co. was afterwards wound up:—Held: there had been payment in full of the amount due upon F.'s shares, & therefore he was not a contributory.

c. Issue to creditor of firm—Subsequently converted into company—In satisfaction of interest in firm assets.]—H. & others, interested as creditors & otherwise in a struggling firm, agreed to purchase the latter's assets & form a co. to carry on its business, & they severally subscribed for stock in the proposed co. to an amount representing the value of the business. A power of attorney was given to one of the parties to purchase the assets, which was done, payment being made by the discount of a note for $2,000 made by H. & indorsed by another of the parties. The co. having been formed, the assets were transferred & the note was retired by a note of the co. for $4,000 indorsed by H., which he afterwards had to pay. H. also, or a co. of which he was manager, advanced money to a considerable amount for the co., which eventually went into liquidation. After the co. was formed, in pursuance of the original agreement between the parties, stock was issued to each of them as fully-paid according to the amounts for which they respectively subscribed, having made no profits whatever & being still in want of money, it was arranged with the consent of all parties interested that new £1 shares should be issued & the bonus of £25 satisfied or extinguished by the allotment of twenty of the new £1 shares considered as fully paid:—Held: it was ultra vires for the co. to make the charge on future net profits a charge on capital & a present debt & to issue shares fully paid up in satisfaction of the debt so created, the charge being exclusively on income.

1862. Issue to subscribers to memorandum.—Nine persons bought a moiety of a colliery from P. for £10,000 & the ten, after working it for some time, agreed to form a co. for carrying it on, & a co. was accordingly registered, the memorandum of assocn. of which was subscribed by the owners of the colliery for numbers of shares proportioned to their respective interests; the nominal amount of shares subscribed for being £20,000. The memorandum stated nothing as to the shares being treated as paid-up shares, but the arts. provided that all the shares subscribed for in the memorandum should be treated as fully paid up. The colliery was made over to the co., but no other payment was made by any of the subscribers of the memorandum. No other shares than those subscribed for by the memorandum were ever allotted:—Held: the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn. were not liable as contributories, for that the shares must be taken as having been fully paid up by the handing over the colliery.—Re BAGLAN HALL COLLIERY CO. (1870), 5 Ch. e. Issue to ordinary subscriber — In satisfaction of novated contract.—To render future services & assign doubtful assets—Resulting in fraud on company.—After a person has subscribed in the ordinary manner for shares in a co. incorporated by letters patent under Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 30, & they had been allotted to him, it is not competent for the co. to release him from his liability to pay for the shares in cash, by entering into an agreement, even under seal, to issue to him fully-paid & non-assessable shares in consideration of his covenants to do something in the future. When such an agreement included, with such covenants, a transfer of assets of doubtful value, but the circumstances surrounding the agreement were such as to make it a fraud upon the co., it was held void, & it was ordered that the subscribers for the shares should be settled upon the list of contributories in the winding up of the co. for the full amount of their shares.—Re JONES & MOORE ELECTRIC CO., JONES & MOORE'S CASE (1909), 18 Man. L. R. 549; 10 W. L. R. 210.—CAN.

f. Issue to promoter — In satisfaction of interest in business & patent rights—Sufficiency of value.—One of the objects for which a co. was established was to adopt a contract made between a promoter & the co., whereby the co. agreed to allot to the promoter 3,500 fully-paid shares in consideration of an assignment of the benefit of certain options, businesses, & patent rights, & an undertaking to discharge the preliminary expenses of the co. The agreement was adopted & registered pursuant to Companies Act, 1867, s. 25, & the shares allotted to the promoter & his nominees. The options, businesses, & patent rights were of no value. On the winding up of the co. the liquidator contended that there was no real consideration for the agreement, & that the allottees were liable to pay the full amount of the shares:—Held: the promoter & his nominees were entitled to hold the shares as fully-paid.—Re LEINSTER CONTRACT CORPN., LTD., [1902] 1 I. g. Issue to vendor — In satisfaction of interest in business—Necessity for registration of contract.—A person who had sold a paper mill to a limited co. formed for the purpose of acquiring it & carrying on the business for the sum of £12,000 agreed to take £8,500 of the price in fully-paid shares of the co. This agreement appeared in the minutes of the directors of the co. & was carried out by the issue of shares to the vendor but was never filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies. The co. having become insolvent & gone into liquidation, the liquidators proposed to place the vendor in the list of contributories in respect of the shares so issued & still held by him with liability to the amount of the uncalled capital effecting to them. The vendor maintained that the shares must be treated as fully-paid, & that no liability attached to him in respect of them:—Held: he must be placed on the list of contributories with liability as contended for by the liquidators.—COUSTONHOLM PAPER MILLS CO., LTD. h. — — — Defective adoption of contract by company—Cured by benefit accruing therefrom over long period.—On Aug. 5, 1904, the promoters of a co. entered into an agreement with a trustee for the proposed co., whereby it was agreed that 105 fully-paid vendors' shares should be issued to the promoters. On Nov. 15, 1904, the co. was registered. On Nov. 22, 1904, at the first meeting, certain persons as directors purported to adopt the promoters' agreement. On Nov. 1, 1906, a general meeting adopted the promoters' agreement & authorised the issue of the vendors' shares which were accordingly issued in Dec. In terms of the arts. of assocn. no one at this meeting was qualified to vote as a shareholder:—Held: although the meeting of Nov. 1 was not a properly constituted shareholders' meeting, yet as the shares were issued for valuable consideration, & as for six years the co. had availed itself of the benefits accruing under the contract & the vendors carried out their part of the agreement, the shares must be taken to be fully-paid shares under Act 25 of 1892, s. 95.—Ex p. MUTUAL HOUSE & LAND ASSOCN., LTD. 1865. — Shares allotted under contract—Subsequent cancellation of allotment & issue of fresh shares.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that the qualification of every director should be the holding, in his own right of shares of the co. of the nominal value of £100, & that the office of director should be vacated if he ceased to hold the requisite amount of shares, or did not acquire the same within two months after election or appointment. The first directors of the co. were appointed in June, 1889, but none of them acquired any shares in the co. until Oct. 1889, when shares were allotted to some of the directors, & to the vendor to the co., who was also managing director. On Oct. 28 a contract was entered into by the co. for the issue of fully paid-up shares to the vendor in satisfaction of his purchase-money, which was duly registered, & on Nov. 20, a previous allotment of shares to the vendor was cancelled, & a new allotment of fully paid-up shares was made to him. The co. was ordered to be wound up, & the vendor to the co. was settled by the chief clerk on the list of contributories as a holder of the shares on which nothing had been paid up:—Held: the allotment to the vendor was intended to be an allotment of fully paid-up shares, & the co. could not sever the transaction by ratifying the allotment of shares, & refusing to ratify the contract & the registration thereof by which the shares would be rendered fully paid-up.—*Re STAFFORDSHIRE GAS & COKE CO., LTD., Ex p. 1869. Law not changed.]—1867 Act, s. 25, has not altered the law with regard to the question of what is a good payment for shares. The memorandum of assocn. of a co. formed for the purpose of purchasing & carrying on the business of C. was subscribed by him for 2,500 shares, which were of £1 each. It was also subscribed by other persons, by which the number taken amounted to 6,265 out of a total capital of 7,500 shares; & the co. could only issue fresh shares by special resolution. The arts. of assocn. stated that an agreement had been prepared between C. & the co. for the sale of the business to the latter for £5,000, of which one-half was to be in fully paid-up shares of the co. This agreement was executed shortly after the registration of the memorandum & arts. of assocn. & was filed with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. As between C. & the co. the shares for which he signed the memorandum were treated as being the fully paid-up shares which he took as part of the purchase-money, & he was debited in the books with £2,500 due on the shares, & credited with £5,000 as the price of the business:—Held: C. was entitled to treat the shares for which he subscribed the memorandum as the same shares as those for which he sold his business, & the shares were paid for in cash within the meaning of 1867 Act, s. 25.—Re LIMEHOUSE WORKS CO., COATES' CASE (1873), L. 1874 i. Set off—In settlement of account.]—Appl. was a director of a co. at the time when the co. was desirous of erecting some machinery on the mine. With that object in view the directors, at an informal meeting, arranged that the co.'s capital should be increased by the issue of new shares, part of which were to be fully-paid & part contributing. It was also arranged between applt. & his co-directors that applt. should purchase the machinery, paying for it partly in cash & the balance by promissory notes, & that on the issue of the fresh capital he might apply for certain contributing shares, the money he advanced in payment of the machinery to be applied in payment of the shares & calls as they became due. This arrangement, both as to the issue of fresh capital & the purchase of machinery, was carried out, & on the new capital being issued, applt. applied for 200 contributing shares. In making such application he authorised the directors to debit against his credit with the co. the sum required on application, & any sums which should become due for calls. Under these circumstances applt.

contended that he had paid up the whole amount due upon the shares he held. A power of attorney was given to one of the parties to purchase the assets, which was done, payment being made by the discount of a note for $2,000 made by H., & indorsed by another of the parties. The co. having been formed, the assets were transferred, & the note was retired by a note of the co. for $4,000, indorsed by H., which he afterwards had to pay. 1890. Articles of association—Provision for further agreement—Vendor to receive fully-paid shares.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a mining co. it was provided that the co. should, immediately after incorporation, enter into an agreement with the vendor of the mine for the purchase of the mine; the price to be £2,000 in cash, & 3,200 fully paid-up shares to be allotted to the vendor or his nominees. The arts. were signed by the vendor & six other persons, & were duly registered. The directors allotted the 3,200 shares to the vendor or his nominees, & for a short time worked the mine, but no further agreement was made with the vendor. The co. was then ordered to be wound up. A firm to whom ten of the vendor's shares were allotted had requested that they might be registered in the name of one of the members of the firm, which was done; & he was afterwards placed on the list as a contributory in respect of ten shares not fully paid up:—Held: the arts. of assocn. did not constitute a contract in writing between the vendor & the co. within went into liquidation. After the co. was formed in pursuance of the original agreement between the parties, stock was issued to each of them as fully-paid according to the amounts for which they respectively subscribed, & in the winding-up proceedings they were respectively placed on the list of contributories for the total amount of said stock:—Held: as all the proceedings were in good faith, & there was no misrepresentation of material facts, & as H. & S. had paid full value for their shares, the agreement by which they received them as fully-paid was valid, & the order making them contributories should be rescinded.—*HOOD v. q. Credit given by vendor — In respect of purchase price.]—Where there is a sum of money in the hands of the vendor to a co. specifically appropriated to the payment of the subscribers' shares in the co., & the co. gives credit for that amount to the vendor, & gets credit for that amount of the purchase-money, the shares are paid for "in cash" within New South Wales Companies Act, s. 57, which is identical with the English Companies Act, 1867, s. 25. s. Substantial services rendered to company—Under express or implied contract with company.]—The holding of shares in a co., registered under Law 5 of 1874, involves an obligation to pay to the co. the full amount of the nominal value of those shares. Such obligation to pay may, under Volksraad Resolution, Art. 856 of Aug. 16, 1893, be satisfied by services rendered to the co.; but such services must be real & not illusory, & the award for them must represent an honest & not a collusive decision on the part of the co. Services performed in connection with the formation or promotion of a co. on instructions received from the promoters & rendered for remuneration, the persons performing them looking for payment, not to the persons instructing them, but to the co. when formed, are, if the co. takes the benefit of them, services rendered "for the benefit of the co.," which can be paid for by the issue of shares as fully paid up. But services not rendered under any express or implied contract for remuneration or rendered by a person who did not primarily look to the co.

for payment, even though the co. may indirectly benefit thereby, are not such services & cannot be paid for by the issue of shares as fully-paid.—Re ROSEMOUNT GOLD MINING SYNDICATE, LTD. (IN LIQUIDATION), [1905] T. H. 169.—S. AF.

1891. — Memorandum signed by all vendors—Partly-paid shares allotted in proportion to interest in business.]—There may be a sufficient "contract in writing" for the issue of shares, as partially or fully paid up, within 1867 Act, s. 25, contained in the arts. of assocn. themselves.

In 1870, a co. was formed for the purpose, as stated in the memorandum of assocn. of purchasing the interests of the persons then engaged in working a certain mine. These persons, one of whom was R., subscribed the memorandum for the whole number of shares, of £10 each, into which the capital of the co. was divided. By one of the arts. of assocn. it was agreed that each share should be credited with £7 per share as paid up thereon, & that in consideration thereof the interest of the persons respectively, who were interested in the mine in proportion to the number of shares for which they had respectively signed the memorandum, should be transferred to the co. The mine was handed over to the co. & the memorandum & arts. were duly registered. R. subscribed the memorandum for ninety shares, which were duly allotted to him. Each of these shares was credited in the share register of the co. with £7 per share as paid up thereon. No cash payment had been made in respect of the £7 per share, the remaining £3 per share had been called up, & paid. The co. was subsequently ordered to be wound up, at which time R. remained on the register for 75 of these shares, having sold the rest:—Held: he was not liable as a contributory to the extent of £7 per share on these 75 shares, as the arts. of assocn. constituted a sufficient contract in writing between the vendors of the mine & the co. within 1867 Act, s. 25.—Re APPLE-TREEWICK LEAD MINING CO. (1874), L. F., who was already a member of the co., subscribed for some of the bonds, & bonus shares of equal nominal value were allotted to him & registered in his name as paid-up shares. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: the arts. of assocn. did not constitute a contract in writing within 1867 Act, s. 25, & the requirements of that sect. had not been complied with, & F. was liable as a contributory in respect of his bonus shares.—Re MALAGA LEAD

The arts. contained a clause providing that all the original shares should be considered fully paid-up shares; & a clause empowering the directors to purchase property for the co. with paid-up shares. All the original shares, except one share retained by each of the subscribers of the memorandum, were allotted, as fully paid-up shares, to the vendor of a concession for working guano, in pursuance of a contract made by him with one of the promoters of the co.; but this contract was not registered. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: the arts. of assocn. did not constitute a contract within 1867 Act, s. 25, & the holder of vendor's shares, who took them with notice of the circumstances under which they were allotted, was liable to calls to the full nominal amount of the shares.—Re CARIBBEAN CO., CRICKMER'S CASE (1875), 10 Ch. W. applied to applts. to become directors, which they agreed to do upon his promising to transfer to them fully paid-up shares to qualify them. They acted as directors, & adopted the agreement for sale. The number of shares requisite for the qualification of a director was five, but after the completion of the purchase thirty paid-up shares were, by the direction of W., allotted to each of applts. & they were entered on the register as holders each of thirty paid-up shares, & received certificates to that effect. An order was afterwards made for winding up the co. :—Held : applts., as to the shares allotted to them, stood in the same position as if those shares had been allotted to W. & transferred to them by him; & as there was no contract between them & the co. that they would take shares independently of their accepting certificates stating them to be the holders of these fully paid-up shares, they could not be placed on the list of contributories as holders of unpaid shares, & the order of the Master of the Rolls was discharged without prejudice to any application that might be made against them under 1862 Act, s. 165, or otherwise, on the ground that they had entered into a corrupt bargain with W.—Re WESTERN OF CANADA OIL, LANDS & WORKS Co., CARLING, HESPELER & WALSH'S CASES (1875), 1 Ch. Subsequently another agreement was filed whereby, in consideration of the vendors agreeing to give the co. immediate possession of "the lands & premises situate in the mining district of Millwood, in Cape Colony, more particularly mentioned & referred to in" the unfiled agreement, the co. agreed to allot to the vendors, or their nominees, 22,500 fully-paid shares of 10s. each. This agreement made no mention of the shares upon each of which 8s. was to be deemed paid:—Held: (1) in the winding up of the co., the agreements filed were sufficient under sect. 25 to enable the 22,500 shares allotted in pursuance thereof to be treated as fully paid, for the later agreement sufficiently showed the consideration which the shareholder was to give for the fully-paid shares & it did not signify that it omitted to state that there were also other shares passing for the same consideration.

(2) Semble: (WRIGHT, J.) if no sufficient contract within 1867 Act had been filed before the issue of the shares, the statement in the certificates that the shares issued to M. & D. A co. formed under 1862 Act was carried on for some years as a private co., all the shares which were issued being in the hands of a limited number of shareholders. It was then decided to throw the co. open to the public, but before doing so, the co. passed resolutions to allot a certain number of shares as fully paid to the directors & original shareholders. Accordingly, a contract was executed between the co. & the shareholders, & registered under 1867 Act, s. 25, by which it was agreed that those shares should be allotted to the directors & shareholders in consideration of their past services & expenses in forming the co. & establishing the business; & on the registration of this contract the shares were allotted as agreed. The co. proved unsuccessful & was wound up. The liquidator placed the directors & original shareholders on the list of contributories for the shares so allotted as unpaid shares:—Held: on the evidence no payment either in money or money's worth had been made for the shares, & the directors & shareholders must be held liable for the full nominal value of the shares.

Of the remaining 1,900 shares, each of the six shipowners was to take 300 fully-paid shares for his own benefit, & 100 fully-paid shares were to be placed in the joint names of three of them, who, eventually, on the formation of the co., became directors, to be applied in rewarding persons who should bring business to the co. The co. was incorporated, & the only shareholders were the vendors & the six shipowners. In order to give effect to the above arrangement, an agreement was entered into between the vendors & the co. whereby the vendors purported to sell their business & patent rights to the co. for £25,000, as to £3,000 in cash & as to £22,000 by the allotment to the vendors or their nominees of 2,200 fully-paid shares, & this agreement was duly registered. Of these 2,200 shares, 300 were allotted to the vendors, & on the nomination of the vendors, the remaining 1,900 were allotted, as to 100 to the three directors jointly for the purpose above mentioned, & as to 1,800 to the three directors & the other three shipowners in equal shares for their own benefit, the whole of the 2,200 shares being so allotted as fully paid. Upon a summons by the liquidator in the winding up of the co. against the three directors to render them liable as contributories for payment of the full amount of all the shares allotted to them:—Held: the directors could 1928. Evidence of—Appropriation of purchase-money for purpose of stamp duty.]—(1) Although a limited co. cannot release a shareholder from the obligation to pay for his shares either in money or money's worth, & cannot therefore issue its shares at a discount, it can, provided the contract is duly registered under 1867 Act, s. 25, buy property at any price it thinks fit, & can pay for such property in fully paid-up shares; & the transaction will be valid & binding upon its creditors if the co. has acted in it honestly & not colourably, & has not been so imposed upon by the vendor as to be entitled to be relieved from its bargain.

(2) In an agreement by a co. for the purchase of property by the issue of fully paid-up shares, a clause appropriating purchase-money to various items of the property for the purposes of stamp duty does not prove that those items were taken as actually representing the values thus attributed to them.

(3) Where fully-paid shares are allotted to vendors under a contract registered under 1867 Act, s. 25, as part of the price of the property purchased, it is not illegal for the vendors to make a profit, & the ct. will not go behind the contract & inquire whether the consideration represents the full value against which the shares are issued, unless the contract itself is impeached or the consideration appears on the face of the contract to be insufficient, or colourable, or illusory.—Re WRAGG, LTD., [1897] 1 Ch. 796; 66 L. 1933. — Agreement to allot sealed on day of registration—Agreement filed following day.—F., the promoter of a co., signed the memorandum of assocn. of a co., & twenty qualification shares were allotted to him. By an agreement, dated Jan. 21, 1888, the co. agreed to allot to each of the promoters seventy fully paid-up shares. On Jan. 25, the co. was registered, F. being appointed the managing director. The co.'s seal was affixed to the agreement, but there was no evidence on what day the seal was so affixed. On Jan. 26, 1888, the agreement was filed with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Companies under 1867 Act, s. 25. The twenty shares were not allotted to F. until Apr. 6, 1888, but the seventy shares purported to be issued on Jan. 25, 1888, the date of the incorporation of the co., the share certificate bearing that date. In Aug. 1890, resolutions were passed for winding up the co. voluntarily, & F.'s name was placed upon the list of contributories in respect of eighty-seven shares, being the twenty original shares & sixty-seven of the seventy shares on the ground that he had paid nothing upon them. On summons, by the liquidators, to have F.'s name settled upon the list of contributories in respect of eighty-seven shares :—Held : (1) as to the twenty shares, the burden was upon F. to show that he had paid the amount due upon them, & he had not shown that he had discharged that duty; (2) as to the sixty-seven shares, the agreement being signed on Jan. 21, before the co. was incorporated, was not a binding agreement within 1867 Act, s. 25; (3) the presumption was that the agreement was sealed & delivered by the co. on Jan. 25, after the co. was incorporated, & that was the date of it; (4) though the agreement was not registered until Jan. 26, the delivery & filing were substantially contemporaneous, & the agreement was a binding agreement, & F. held the sixty-seven shares as fully paid up.—Re ANGLO-COLONIAL SYNDICATE, LTD. (1891), 65 L. On the following day the directors met in London, in the belief that all the documents had been registered, & the vendor nominated the allottees of his paid-up shares, & the directors, resolved that they should be allotted accordingly. 1940. Agreement not mentioned in prospectus—Agreement bonâ fide & for good consideration.]—A syndicate was formed for the purchase of a coal mine from A., with a view to forming a co. to take the mine. The mine was accordingly agreed to be conveyed by A. to B., who was to establish a co. for taking over the mine, in consideration of £66,000, of which £42,000 were to be in paid-up shares of the intended co. The memorandum of assocn. stated that the capital was to be £200,000 in 20,000 shares of £10 each. The arts. of assocn. stated that the mine belonged to the persons named in the schedule of an agreement to be executed immediately after the registrations of the arts., & that 15,000 paid up shares were to be allotted to them in the proportions mentioned in the schedule. Soon afterwards B. declared himself a trustee for the co., & subsequently to this the agreement referred to in the arts. was executed, & by it B. declared that he had entered into the agreement for the purchase of the mine on behalf of the persons named in the schedule, being A. the members of the syndicate & their nominees, & that they declared they held the mine in trust for the co.; & that 15,000 paid up shares were to be allotted to them in the proportions therein mentioned. This agreement was registered under Cos. 1867 Act, s. 25. A., besides the shares representing the purchase-money of the mine, purchased 3,520 from one of the members of the syndicate, & other persons. The directors issued a large number of debentures on the security of the property of the co., but no other shares were issued except those 15,000 paid up shares. The co. having become insolvent & gone into liquidation the liquidators proposed to place the vendor on the list of contributories in respect of shares so issued & held by him with liability to the amount of the uncalled capital effeering to them. The vendor maintained that the shares must be treated as fully paid up &

& that on each of them the full amount had been paid. No money had in fact been paid upon the shares, which were issued from the co. direct to applt., but he did not know this & believed the representation that they were fully-paid shares. An order having been made to wind up the co., applt. was placed on the list of contributories:—Held: since the co. had obtained the loan by a representation that the shares were fully paid, which applt. believed & acted upon, the co. & the liquidator were estopped from alleging that the shares were not fully paid & applt. was entitled to have his name removed from the list of contributories.—*BLOOMENTHAL v. The co. issued certificates of these shares as fully paid-up shares. Some of them were afterwards transferred for value to a person who had no notice of any irregularity in their issue, & took them as fully paid up on the faith of the certificates. The co. having been ordered to be wound up, the official liquidator sought to make the transferee liable as the holder of shares on which nothing had been paid:—Held: as against a transferee who took the shares without notice that they had not been paid up in cash, the co. was estopped by the certificates from saying they had not been so paid up, & the official liquidator was in the same position.—Re BRITISH FARMERS' PURE LINSEED CAKE CO. (1878), 7 Ch. 1953. ——— Transfer by vendor to company.]

—A co., not registered under 1867 Act, issued shares as fully paid up, & also certificates of those shares describing them as fully paid up, & made the annual returns giving them the same description. The co. entered into a contract with G. to purchase from him a mill & machinery in Nottingham, part payment for which was to be made to G. in "fully paid-up shares." They were not, in fact, paid up, & there was no contract with respect to them such as is required by 1867 Act, s. 25. G., who was really the vendor of this mill & machinery, & promoter & managing director of the co., received the shares. He was himself at the same time making a contract with B. for the purchase of other landed property in another county, Cornwall, & B. agreed to accept a part of the purchase-money in fully paid-up shares of the co. B. had just before bought this Cornwall property from N., & B.'s purchase-money for it was paid to N. through B.'s solr., who also acted, in the conveyance, for N. The conveyance was made, not by N. to B. & then by B. to G., but, at B.'s desire, was made direct from N. to G., & 200 shares held by G. were handed over to N., who swore that he only received them as trustee for B. N.'s name was entered on the register of the co. as the holder of the shares, & he once sent a proxy to G. to vote at a general meeting, describing himself therein as a shareholder in the co. The certificates of the shares were given to B. himself. The co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: (1) under the circumstances N. was not liable to be placed on the list of contributories in respect of the 200 shares; (LORD CAIRNS, C.) (2) in a matter of this kind the official liquidator was not entitled, when putting in force 1867 Act, s. 25, to disregard the actual transactions that have taken place between the parties; (3) if shares are taken in the course of business for valuable consideration, on the person who asserts that he who took the shares had notice that they were not actually paid up, lies the burden of proof of that notice; (4) 1867 Act, s. 25, applies to a co. generally, & not to its liquidation alone; (LORD BLACKBURN) (5) effect of the share certificate by way of estoppel discussed (see No. 1795, ante).—*BURKINSHAW v. No contract in writing in respect to the shares was filed with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. as required by 1867 Act, s. 25, & accordingly, in the winding up of the co., A. was held liable as contributory in respect of the shares as unpaid shares:—Held: A. was entitled to prove in the winding-up against the co. for damages in respect of their breach of contract in not issuing to him fully paid-up shares.—GREAT AUSTRALIAN GOLD MINING CO., Ex p. The 6,500 shares were duly allotted to J. under the contract. 1994. After repeal of 1867 Act, s. 25.]—Notwithstanding the repeal of the above section by Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 33, the ct. has, in a case in which no contract as required by sect. 25 has been filed with respect to shares issued before the repeal, power under Companies Act, 1898 (c. 26), s. 1, to give relief by ordering the filing of a contract or a memorandum in lieu of a contract, which shall operate in relation to the shares as if a contract had been duly filed before their issue.

ii. The Application.

1996. How made—Whether by motion or summons.]—The judge to whom the Companies (Winding-up) business is assigned has jurisdiction under Companies Act, 1898 (c. 26), to grant relief for non-compliance with 1867 Act, s. 25, in cases where no order has been made to wind up the co., but it is more convenient that applications for such relief should be made to the judges of the Ch. Div., exercising their ordinary Chancery jurisdiction. Where, however, such applications are made to the judge to whom the winding-up business is assigned the notices of motion should not be entitled “Companies (Winding-up).”

The jurisdiction given by 1898 Act, is a jurisdiction which ought as a rule to be exercised in ct., & not in chambers.—Re CONCESSIONS ACQUISITIONS SYNDICATE, LTD. (1898), 68 L. J. Ch. 49; 79 L. T. 666; 5 Mans. 348.

1997. ——An application under the Companies Act, 1898 (c. 26), s. 1, for leave to file a contract or a memorandum in lieu of a contract, may be made either by motion or summons, but preferably by summons, & if by summons it should be heard in open ct. & not in chambers, following the better practice on applications to rectify the register of shareholders. The application, if made by shareholders, may be made by some only, & not necessarily by all, of the shareholders affected.

Where a memorandum in lieu of a contract is approved by the ct. & ordered to be filed with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. under sub-sect. 4, it is not necessary to file a copy of the order as well as the memorandum, but the memorandum should state on the face of it that it has been approved by the ct. & directed to be filed by the order.

carrying on a business, for specified numbers of shares amounting in the aggregate to 750 shares. On Mar. 3, 1893, the co. was incorporated. The total capital consisted of 1,000 shares, of which 750 were mentioned in the memorandum, & 118 had been issued & paid for in cash, leaving a balance of 132 shares. The memorandum & arts. referred to an agreement between the signatories & the co. for the sale of the business to the co., & this agreement was executed on Mar. 4, 1893. It referred to the 750 shares, & stated that they were to be fully-paid shares. On Mar. 22 it was filed under the Cos. Acts, & on Apr. 15 the 750 shares were allotted to the signatories. The signatories were advised that they were liable to pay for the 750 shares in cash, & applied to the ct. for liberty to file a memorandum stating that the shares were issued to them as part of the consideration for the assignment of the business:—Held: (1) the 750 shares must be taken to have been issued at the date of the registration of the co.; (2) the fact that the shares were identified, in the sense that the parties intended the shares referred to in the agreement & allotted to the subscribers to be the same as those for which they signed the memorandum, was not sufficient to enable the ct. to allow a memorandum to be filed; (3) there was no co. in existence at the date of their signature, so there could not then be a contract to pay for these shares otherwise than in cash, & there could not be a subsequent contract for that purpose.—Re TIMMINS (EBENEZER) & SONS, LTD., [1902] 1 Ch. 238; 71 L. Subsequently the agreements were filed. The co. moved for an order that the two filed contracts should operate as if they had been filed at or before the issue of the shares:—Held: as the contracts were actually on the file, an order could not well be made under Companies Act, 1898 (c. 26), s. 1 (1), that the same contracts should be filed; & the case came under sect. 1 (4), & a memorandum must be filed in accordance with that sect.—Re LUCKY GUSS, LTD. (1898), 79 L. a. Omission to file contract—Failure to repudiate on knowledge of liability—Acquiescence.]—K., a director of the co., made an advance to it in consideration of his receiving certain security, & in addition, 150 fully paid-up shares. This amount becoming due, & the co. not being in a position to pay it, it was agreed between K. & the co. that the loan should be renewed & a further advance made, & that K. should receive, in addition to the security he held, a further lot of 300 fully paid-up shares. By its memorandum of assocn. it was provided that 3,000 fully paid-up shares should be allotted to the vendors of the claim, or promoters of the co. K. thought his 450 shares were part of these; but what he actually got was what purported to be fully paid-up bonus shares, of an issue subsequent to the original shares. No agreement in writing had been filed, under Cos. Act, 1892, s. 34, with reference to these 450 shares. In his capacity of director K. attended a meeting of directors, at which a legal opinion was read advising that the kind of shares he held might be subject to a liability. On July 4, 1899, K. attended another meeting of directors, & offered to forego a sum of £242 if that amount was to go against any liability he might incur in respect of those shares. The co. was subsequently wound up, & it was only on the day that the winding-up resolution was confirmed, Sept. 25, 1899, that he first attempted to repudiate the shares.

He was placed on the list of contributories, & a call made:—Held: as K. knew on July 4, 1899, if not earlier, that the shares issued to him were not fully paid-up shares, & that it was possible a liability to pay calls attached in respect of them, & as he had taken no steps to repudiate them, or have his name taken off the shareholders' register, until after the winding up, he must be taken to have assented to the transaction as it stood, & therefore he was liable as a contributory.—*Re BELL HILL GOLD-MINING & SLUICING CO., LTD. Supplementary contract filed before allotment—Original contract not in allottee's possession—Stamped copies of both agreements & office copy order to be filed.]—Prior to the incorporation of a co., the promoter, on behalf of the intended co., entered into an agreement with the vendor for the purchase of certain patents. By this agreement the promoter undertook to pay all promotion expenses, in consideration of which he was to be entitled to have fully-paid shares in the co. allotted to him to the extent of 10 per cent. of the subscribed capital for the time being. This agreement was not filed. Shortly after the incorporation of the co. a supplemental agreement was entered into between the promoter & the co. by which the co. adopted the former agreement & agreed to allot to the promoter certain fully-paid shares, & also from time to time further fully-paid shares according to the amount of fresh capital subscribed, which shares were to be accepted by him in satisfaction of the shares agreed to be allotted to him by the first agreement. In pursuance of the second agreement, which was duly filed, the shares were allotted to the promoter. The co. subsequently went into liquidation, & the liquidator settled the promoter on the list of contributories in respect of the shares, there being no sufficient contract filed to satisfy 1867 Act, s. 25. On an application by the promoter for relief under Companies Act, 1898 (c. 26), s. 1:—Held: (1) the promoter was entitled to the relief asked, & as the original agreements were not in his possession, he must file with the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. copies of both agreements, which must first be properly stamped, together with an office copy of the order on the present application, & (2) must pay the official receiver's costs of the application.—Re MAYS' METALS SEPARATING SYNDICATE, LTD., SMITHSON'S CASE (1898), 68 L. Afterwards, at a special general meeting of the co., it was resolved that the trust should be annulled, & the shares transferred to the secretary, to be held by him at the disposal of the board. The directors then proceeded to make calls on the registered shares:—Held: (1) the directors were primarily liable in respect of the shares subscribed for in trust for the co., as any other trustee would be, although they might be entitled to indemnity from their cestuis que trust; (2) it was the duty of the directors to make the calls in respect of all such shares, equally with the calls on the registered shares, & the ct. would compel the directors to put all the shareholders on an equal footing according to their proportions, with respect to the calls to be made upon them.—PRESTON v. Even if under the

(3) There is no inherent power in the directors of a co., apart from the provisions of the arts. of assocn., to refuse to register a proper transfer of shares.—Re NATIONAL PROVINCIAL MARINE INSURANCE Co., GILBERT'S CASE (1870), 5 Ch. App. 559; 39 L. J. Ch. 837; 23 L. T. 341; 18 W. R. 938. L. J.

No provision was made as to the service of notice upon the representatives of a deceased member. After the death of a member, the co. made a call upon his shares, & gave notice thereof through the post by letter addressed to him, which did not reach his exors., who did not know that he had been a member, & was returned to the co. marked "Gone away":—Held: under the circumstances the call had been properly made, & there had been sufficient notice of the

It provided also for the appointment of a managing director, "to whom shall be delegated the special management of the business of the society." The directors passed a resolution, ordering a call, payable in two payments on days specified, & directing the secretary to notify the stockholders according to the Act. A notice signed by the managing director "by order," was published, & a circular signed by him sent to each shareholder, in which the place of payment was mentioned; but there was no meeting of directors between the passing of the resolution & the day named for payment. 2043. Directors voting not validly appointed.]

Under 1856 Act, seven persons, including defts., signed the memorandum & arts. of assocn. for an intended co., the capital of which was to be £12,000 in 240 shares, & which was thereupon duly registered. By the arts., the number of directors was to be five, of whom three were to be a quorum; & the first directors were to be determined on by the subscribers. At a meeting of three of the subscribers, defts. not being present, five persons, including defts., were appointed directors, & one of defts. afterwards acted as a director, & was present at a meeting of shareholders approving of the resolution & appointment. Before seventy shares were taken, the three directors made a call, defts. not being present at the meeting, nor afterwards assenting to the resolution:—Held: the co. could not sue them for the call upon their shares, the directors not having been duly appointed.

They did not, however, formally subscribe for the stock. A draft upon the firm for the first call was accepted & paid, as arranged with one of defts. The directors made a call, which deft. resisted on the ground that it was an invalid act, as the directors had been illegally appointed. At a meeting at which two directors only were present, a resolution was passed authorising a call. This resolution was subsequently confirmed at a meeting at which the necessary quorum was present. Less than 21 days' notice, required by the co.'s arts. of assocn. was given of the call. At another meeting of the directors a resolution was passed that, if any shareholder did not pay his call by a certain day, his shares should be forfeited. A shareholder not having so paid his call, his shares were forfeited:—Held: the call was validly made, the forfeiture was valid, & the shareholder could only be required to pay the amount of the call.—Re PHOSPHATE OF LIME CO., LTD., AUSTIN'S CASE (1871), 24 L. 2048. —.]—Where the arts. of assocn. of a co. provide that "the business of the co. shall be conducted by not less than" a specified number of directors, the words are imperative, not merely directory: consequently a call made or a forfeiture of shares declared by less than the specified number of directors is invalid.

The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. provided by art. 35 that "the business of the co. should be conducted by not less than five nor more than seven directors"; also that the office of director should be vacated on bkpcy. or insolvency, & that "the directors might determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business." The arts. named six persons only as directors, of whom B. was one. These directors fixed three of their number as a quorum. In Oct., 1877, the number of directors being then reduced by death to five, B. became insolvent, & therefore disqualified as a director. In Nov. the co. passed, at an ordinary meeting, a resolution altering art. 35 by substituting "three" directors for "five." This resolution was admitted to be invalid as not having been passed in accordance with the arts. In Dec. the four remaining directors made a call. B. having made default in payment of this call, as well as a former call made prior to his insolvency, the same directors passed a resolution declaring his shares forfeited. The co. afterwards passed a resolution for a voluntary winding up, in the course of which it turned out that there were surplus assets available for division among the shareholders:—Held: the second call & the forfeiture, having been made & declared by four directors only, were invalid; & therefore, B. was entitled, on payment of his calls to the liquidator, to be treated as a shareholder, & to participate in the surplus assets accordingly.—Re ALMA SPINNING CO., BOTTOMLEY'S CASE (1880), 16 Ch. 2049. —.]—By the arts. of assocn. of pltf. limited co., in liquidation, it was provided that the board of directors should consist of not less than three or more than seven directors. Calls were to be made by the board of directors. If any casual vacancy occurred in the office of directors, it might be filled up by the board of directors. Any member whose shares had been declared forfeited was notwithstanding to be liable to pay all calls owing upon such shares at the time of the forfeiture, & the interest, if any, thereon. If any member did not pay the amount of any call for which he was liable, it was provided that he should pay interest for the same from the day appointed for the payment thereof to the time of actual payment, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum. Deft. was a director of pltf. co. & a shareholder in it to a large extent. At a meeting of directors held on Nov. 7, 1882, a call of £1 per share was made, payable on Dec. 6. Before Dec. 19, 1882, by the resignation of some of the directors, their number was reduced to two, of whom deft. was one. At a meeting held on Dec. 19, 1882, these two, deft. being in the chair, elected three other directors, & the board thus constituted passed a resolution that notice be sent to shareholders who had not paid the call, that, in default of its payment by Dec. 30, their shares would be liable to forfeiture. They also made a second call of £1 per share, payable on Jan. 20, 1883. At a meeting of the same directors held on Jan. 3, 1883, deft. in the chair, it was resolved that the shares on which the first call had not been paid should be forfeited. Amongst the names of the shareholders in arrear that of deft. was included. Upon an action to recover the amount of the said two calls & interest upon them from the day on which they respectively became payable, at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, till provided that "no call or calls shall exceed the sum of one pound per share, & there shall be an interval of one month between the making of any calls," & two calls had been made at one meeting but with an interval of a month between the time for payment of the calls:—Held: there had been a contravention of the rules.—HODGSON v. FERMOY EXTENDED GOLD MINING CO. (1866), 3 W. W. & A'B. 70.—AUS.

d. —.]—Pltfs.' Act of incorporation enabled the directors to make calls at such times as they might deem requisite, provided that successive calls should be made at intervals of not less than two months between such calls, that no such call should exceed 10 per cent, & that thirty days' notice should be given of every such call. A resolution was passed by which a call was made of 10 per cent, payable on Mar. 1, & it was thereby further resolved that a further call of 10 per cent be made payable on Sept. 1:—Held: clearly not a call of 20 per cent but two calls of 10 per cent each; & the fact of the second call being illegal did not invalidate the first call, because contained in the same resolution.—*UNION FIRE INSURANCE CO. v. At a meeting of directors they resolved to make a fifth call of 2s. 6d. payable on Jan. 1, 1908, & a sixth call of 2s. 6d. payable on Mar. 31, 1908. A shareholder, having declined to pay on the ground that the resolution was truly a call for 5s. & therefore invalid, the ct. repelled the objection, holding that there were two separate calls, each for 2s. 6d.—*UNIVERSAL CORPN., LTD. v. f. Must state time & place for payment of call.]—Deft. signed an agreement to take shares in a co. which was being formed. Subsequently payment or judgment:—Held: (1) the two directors who were alone in office at the commencement of the meeting held on Dec. 19, not being sufficient in number to form a properly constituted board, although sufficient to form a quorum of a properly constituted board, had no power to act so as to increase the number of directors, or to make a call, as between the co. & the ordinary shareholders; (2) as deft. was a director, in the chair, & assisted in passing the resolutions for the second call & for the forfeiture of the shares on the non-payment of the first call, deft. was estopped from disputing the validity of such resolutions, & was liable to pay the amount of the calls; (3) the second call was "owing" immediately after it was made, & therefore deft. was liable to pay it, although in fact his shares had been forfeited before the day appointed for the payment of such second call; (4) deft. was liable to pay interest at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum upon the first call from the day upon which it became payable up to the date of forfeiture, but he was not liable to pay any interest on the second call because his shares had been forfeited before the day for payment of such second call had arrived.—*FAURE ELECTRIC ACCUMULATOR CO., LTD. v. 2050. Necessity for signature of minute.—(1) By the arts. of assocn. of a joint-stock co. a call was to be deemed to have been made at the time when the resolution authorising it was passed; but notice of it was to be given to every shareholder, notifying that it had been made, & in any action for a call it should be sufficient to prove that deft. was holder of the shares, & that such notice had been given, & should not be necessary to prove any other matter. Further it was provided that minutes should be made of all resolutions of directors, & any such minutes, if signed by any person purporting to be chairman of any meeting of directors, should be receivable in evidence without further proof. The minute of the resolution for a call was not signed, but at a subsequent meeting a minute was signed, not by the same chairman, confirming the former one. In an action for a call, this second minute being the only evidence that the call was made:—Held: the arts. did not dispense with proof of the call, & the proof was not sufficient.

It did not appear upon the evidence that the notice had not come to his hands:—Held: the notice was well served within 11 & 12 Vict. c. 45, s. 108.—*Re DIRECT EXETER, PLYMOUTH & DEVONPORT RY. o. — A call was made by the directors of pltf. bank. By the resolution providing for the calls, the mailing of a circular to each of the shareholders was made an essential part of the notice. The cashier swore that circulars had been prepared, printed in part, & that it was the duty of the junior clerk to fill them up & mail them. The clerk swore that he had filled them up & mailed them, but, on cross-examination, said he had not read the print, & did not know what it was about. Deft. did not deny that he had received a circular. The ct. having power to draw inferences of fact as a jury, found that notices had been mailed in sufficient time.—*BANK OF LIVERPOOL v. There was not any affirmative evidence that it was not communicated by him to his co-partner:—Held: such notice was insufficient, as "not less than thirty days' notice" was required; & the mailing of a notice on June 27, requiring a call to be paid on July 27, was not in time; otherwise the notice was sufficiently established.—NATIONAL INSURANCE CO. v. EGLESON (1881), 29 Gr. 406.—CAN.

q. — The Act under which the calls sued for were made provided that thirty days' notice of every call should be given. The post-office closed at 7.30 p.m., but the letter could not have been obtained on that evening without personal application to the postmaster. s. — Shareholder secretary of company.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that notice of calls be given by one advertisement, to be inserted in one or more of the leading newspapers fourteen days at least before the call is to take place. In an action against deft. for the amount of a call & interest thereon, evidence was given that deft., who was both secretary of the co. & a shareholder, had signed the notice of the call sent to the other shareholders, but it was not shown that any advertisement had been inserted in newspapers:—Held: deft. had received sufficient notice of the call.—SUGAR LOAF MINING CO. v. PILE (1874), 4 Q. S. C. R. 62.—AUS.

t. — By advertisement.]—An action was brought for calls from a shareholder of a co. The deed of settlement provided that calls should be made "at such times & places as the directors may determine by one or more advertisement or advertisements in one or more of the daily newspapers published at S. & at M. respectively." The calls were made by one advertisement in a S. newspaper & a M. newspaper, & the advertisements in these papers fixed one day for payment of the calls at S. & another for payment of the calls at M. On demurrer to a plea setting up as a defence that "no time" was fixed because two different times had been fixed, & that different times could not be fixed for S. & M.:—Held: the advertisements had been given in compliance with the deed.—*MELBOURNE & NEWCASTLE MINING CO. v. Rule 29 provided that "any shareholder whose shares had been forfeited shall notwithstanding be liable to pay to the co. all calls owing on such shares at the time of forfeiture." A call was made on June 14, payable in equal instalments upon July 21 & Aug. 23 following. On June 28, before the date when notice of the call required to be given to the shareholders, the shares of a member of the co. were forfeited in respect of non-payment of former calls. He received no notice of call of June 14 until Aug. 13, when a circular intimating it was sent to him:—Held: he was liable for this call notwithstanding the want of statutory notice, since that having ceased to be a shareholder, before the time for giving notice had expired, he was not entitled to that notice; his liability to pay the call arose under Rule 29 without notice.—*FERGUSON v. h. — No liability till condition fulfilled.]—The project of the establishment of a co., for the purpose of carrying on building operations, involved the acquisition of the works of an existing co., & the extension of the business by providing additional capital, buildings & machinery, the holders of stock in the existing co. to surrender the same & accept stock in the new concern, the capital stock of which was fixed at $100,000 & the paid up capital at $50,000. A subscription list was opened, & was signed by a number of persons for an amount something less than the paid up capital. A committee of subscribers to the new stock was appointed to act with the directors of the co. with a view to the immediate commencement of operations, & a call of 25 per cent on the stock was made & was paid by 27 out of 49 subscribers. After certain liabilities had been incurred for machinery, materials, etc., the project was abandoned, & a petition was filed to have the persons who paid the call made upon the stock made contributories in winding-up proceedings:—Held: the stock subscriptions being conditional upon an arrangement for the union of the two bodies going through as a whole, & the project having fallen through, there was a failure of consideration, & there was nothing to prevent the subscribers who paid the call from recovering back the amounts paid by them; the payment of the call, under the circumstances, did not waive the condition.—Re VICTOR WOOD WORKS, LTD. (1909), 43 N. S. R. 368; 7 E. L. R. 55.—CAN.

k. Sufficiency of evidence of liability.]—By the Act incorporating a co. it is provided that in an action against a shareholder for calls, a certificate under the seal of the co., & purporting to be signed by one of their officers, to the effect that debt. is a shareholder, that such calls have been made, & that so much is due by him, shall be received in all cts. of law as prima facie evidence to that effect. The certificate put in evidence on the trial certified that debt. was the holder of fifty shares, that certain calls had been made, & that he was indebted to the co. in a sum named, being the amount of the calls:—Held: the certificate was not evidence against debt., in the absence of other evidence that debt. was a shareholder of the co.—STADACONA INSURANCE CO. v. 2068 i. General rule.]—The registered holder of shares has a right of action against his transferee to recover calls paid by him in respect of such shares although the transferee may have parted with the shares before such calls were payable, & the transferee

By one of the rules of the co. no transfer of shares was to be valid unless all calls then due upon the shares were first paid by the transferor:—Held: (1) the conduct of the directors amounted to an acknowledgment of the validity of the transfer, & H. was entitled to a first charge upon the shares upon payment of the call made subsequently to the transfer; (2) the co. could not declare such shares forfeited on the refusal of the transferee to satisfy such demand, though he was only a mtgee. of the shares; (3) the co. had a lien upon the shares in respect of unpaid calls in priority to the assignees of S., who had become bkpt.—WATSON v. EALES (1857), 23 Beav. 294; 26 L. J. Ch. 361; 28 L. T. O. S. 243; 3 Jur. N. S. 53; 53 E. R. 115.

2072. Transferor made liable as past member—Transferee discharged by liquidator.]—Deft., a contributory who was the holder of shares in a co., was unable to pay the calls. Pltf., who was the original holder of the shares, had transferred them within a period of one year from the winding-up of the co. to deft., & he had been placed on the list of contributories class B. & compelled to pay in consequence of the non-payment by deft. Deft. had been discharged by the liquidator:—Held: pltf. was rightly placed on the list of contributories, & deft. was bound to indemnify him for all payments made in consequence of his non-fulfilment of his liabilities.—ROBERTS v. 2074. Sale to jobber—Resale to transferee—Privity of contract.]—Pltfs. instructed their brokers to sell forty shares in a joint-stock co., & those shares were sold accordingly by them to M., another broker. M. afterwards sold them again on the Stock Exchange, & in accordance with the practice of that body, deft. was, a few days afterwards, named to pltfs. as the purchaser, the practice being that on the arrival of a certain day termed "the name day," the name of the last purchaser is given to the broker of the original vendor, & inserted in the transfer deed. A deed of transfer was then prepared & executed by pltfs., a blank being left for the amount of the consideration; the blank was afterwards filled up with £145, the price at which deft. bought, & that sum was paid to pltfs., who received the difference between that & £202 10s. from their immediate purchaser, & the transfer with the share certificates was sent to deft. The co. was shortly afterwards wound up. Deft. never executed has in turn the same right of action against his transferee.—THOMPSON v. DAUNT (1889), 10 N. S. W. L. R. 132; 5 N. S. W. W. N. 127.—AUS.

s. Transferor continuing as registered holder—Transferee not recognised by company.]—A., a subscriber for five shares in the D. & D. Ry. Co., in Feb. 1836, executed a parliamentary con-

the transfer, nor registered himself as a shareholder, & pltf. had been compelled to pay two calls on the shares, one of the calls being made on the day on which deft., in ignorance of the fact, instructed his broker to buy. The bill was filed for specific performance of the contract as stated in the deed of transfer:—Held: (1) there was a privity of contract between the parties, founded on the usage of the Stock Exchange; (2) deft. could not be treated as having bought in ignorance of a call, of which he, or at least his brokers, must have had previous notice; (3) as pltf., instead of stating the actual transaction, prayed for specific performance of a contract which was never, in fact, entered into, the bill must be dismissed without prejudice to any other that might be filed.—*HAWKINS v. 2075. ———.]—Pltf., a holder of forty shares in a public co., agreed, through his brokers on the Stock Exchange, to sell that number to a jobber for £202 10s. Deft. subsequently directed his broker to buy 100 shares, & in accordance with the custom of the Stock Exchange the name of deft. was passed to the pltf.'s brokers as the purchaser of the forty shares. Pltf. executed a transfer deed of the shares to deft., the consideration afterwards inserted by pltf.'s brokers being £145, which was the price deft. had agreed to pay. Deft. paid to pltf. the £145, & received the deed & the share certificates, the difference between the £145 & £202 10s. being paid by the jobber. Deft. never executed the deed, or registered the transfer, or repudiated the sale, & the co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: there was a contract between pltf. & deft., entitling pltf. to indemnity by deft.—HAWKINS v. MALTBY (1869), 4 Ch. App. 200; 38 L. J. Ch. 313; 20 L. T. 335; 17 W. R. 557, L. C.

2076. ———.]—A. bought of a jobber on the Stock Exchange shares in a co., & afterwards, the co. having in the meantime stopped payment, B. sold to another jobber on the Stock Exchange shares in the same co. at a lower price for the same settling day. On the name day A.'s name was given to B. as the purchaser of B.'s shares; B. executed a transfer of the shares to A., & delivered the transfer & certificates to A.'s broker, who paid him the price for which A. purchased the shares; A. afterwards repaid his own broker, & took away the transfer & certificates, but did not execute the transfer, & it was never registered:—Held: A. was liable to indemnify B. against all consequences flowing from the ownership of the shares subsequent to the execution of the transfer, & this liability arose from the nature of A.'s original contract, according to the custom of the Stock Exchange, by which the buyer or seller of shares undertakes to buy or sell from or to the person whose name is given to him on the name day.—*HODGKINSON v. tract, covenanting for himself, his exors., administrators, & assigns, to pay the amount of the shares he subscribed for, & afterwards, in May 1836, sold his shares & assigned his scrip to B. In the Aug. of that year 6 & 7 Will. IV, c. 132, was passed, incorporating the subscribers into a co., but A. continued as the registered proprietor of their shares in the books of the co., & B. never claimed any rights as such assignee, & was never recognised as such by the co.:—Held: A. continued liable for the amount of calls on foot of the said five shares,

Deft.'s purchase of shares was made before May 10, at a substantial price; on that day the co. stopped payment & pltf.'s shares were sold on the 16th at a discount exceeding the nominal value, that is, the amount paid up on the shares. Up to the 10th a transfer of the shares might have been registered without difficulty, but after that day the directors refused to register transfers.

Two calls having been made on the ten shares, which pltf. as registered holder had been compelled to pay, he brought an action against deft. to recover the amount, alleging a contract by deft. to purchase the shares of pltf. & to indemnify pltf. against calls:—Held: (KELLY, C.B., & FIGOTT, B.) deft. had contracted as alleged, & he was therefore liable to repay to pltf. the calls so paid by him, & the declaration was rightly framed; (CHANNEL & CLEASBY, B.B.) no such contract existed as alleged, & therefore, without deciding that pltf. had no remedy at law against deft., pltf. could not recover upon the declaration as framed.—DAVIS v. HAYCOCK (1869), L. R. 4 Exch. 373; 38 L. J. Ex. 155; 20 L. T. 954.

Exchange, though without any express authority of deft. The co. stopped payment on May 10, & on May 11 a petition was presented, & an order of the Ct. of Ch. for winding up the co. was afterwards made. On May 18, deft. refused to accept the shares, & pltf. was afterwards compelled to pay a call as the registered holder of the shares, upon which he brought an action against deft. for not indemnifying him against the calls:—Held: deft. was bound by the acceptance of the transfer by the brokers on his behalf & payment of the price, & a contract then arose between pltf. & deft., by which deft. was bound to indemnify pltf.—BOWRING v. SHEPHERD (1871), L. R. 6 Q. B. 309; 40 L. J. Q. B. 129; 24 L. T. 721; 19 W. R. 852, Ex. Ch.

2079. ———.]—B. bought of a jobber on the Stock Exchange shares in a co. for the next account day, which was the 27th of April. On May 10, which was the day on which the co. stopped payment, F. sold shares in the co. to a jobber on the Stock Exchange for cash, & the name of B. was passed to F.'s broker as the ultimate purchaser in the usual course of the Stock Exchange. F. executed a transfer to B., who paid the purchase money, & received the transfer & certificates, but did not execute the transfer, which was never registered. The co. was wound up & F. was placed on the list of contributories, & compelled to pay calls. On bill filed by F. to obtain repayment from B. of the amount of the calls & for an indemnity:—Held: the case came within the principle of Hodgkinson v. Kelly, No. 2076, ante, & decree made in favour of pltf. with costs.—FENWICK v. BUCK (1871), 24 L. T. 274; 19 W. R. 597.

2080. ———. Purchaser's name passed as transferee without authority.]—A. authorised his broker to sell shares in a co.; B. authorised the same broker to buy shares in the same co. A sold-note was sent to A. upon which B.'s name appeared as purchaser, & a transfer was executed by A. & the purchase money paid to him. B. did not authorise the jobber to insert his name as a purchaser, & his name was not placed upon the register. The co. being wound up A.'s name was placed upon the list of contributories:—Held: B. must indemnify A. for all liability upon the shares subsequent to the transfer.

The co. was wound up in June, 1866, & A. filed a bill for indemnity in Nov. following but withdrew it in consequence of the decisions. Subsequently these decisions were not maintained:—Held: pltf. in now filing his bill was not debarred from relief on the ground of delay.—PENDER v. FOX (1872), 20 W. R. 966.

2081. ———. Name of infant passed as transferee—Liability of jobber.]—A jobber or dealer in shares on the Stock Exchange contracted to purchase pltf.'s shares in a co., & gave in to pltf.'s brokers a ticket with the name of the intended transferee, which had been passed on to him. After the execution of the transfer it was discovered that the transferee was an infant, of which neither party was previously aware, & pltf. became liable for calls. In a suit by pltf. against the jobber, seeking to make him liable to indemnify him in respect of the shares:—Held: as by the usage of the Stock Exchange the jobber was, in the absence of fraud, discharged from liability when he had given the name of the transferee & paid for the shares, & as he had given all the further information required by the vendor, the suit against him could not be sustained.—*RENNIE v. A transfer to L. was executed by pltf., but on discovery of L. being an infant, the transfer was never registered. 2083. ———. Subsequent rescission & compromise—Liability of purchaser.]—Deft. purchased, through his broker, 300 shares in a joint-stock co., & gave directions that they should be transferred into the name of his son, G. On the same day pltf. instructed his broker to sell 100 shares in the co., & they were bought by deft.'s broker, on his account, through a jobber in the ordinary way, & were transferred to G., & were registered in his name. At that time G. was an infant, of which fact pltf. was not aware. Soon afterwards the co. was wound up voluntarily, & G. then brought an action by his father, as next friend, against pltf., who was an auditor of the co., charging him with fraud in selling the shares, knowing that the co. was in an insolvent condition, & claiming damages. The action was compromised on the terms that all charges of fraud should be withdrawn, & that the purchase money should be repaid to G. The liquidators, on discovering that G. was an infant, substituted the name of the pltf. for his as a contributory of the co. Pltf. then filed a bill against deft., charging that he was the real purchaser of the shares, & that pltf. was not aware of that fact when he entered into the compromise with G., & claiming to be indemnified by

Semble: liability to creditors of the co. is not of itself sufficient to make a person a "contributory" within that Act.—ANGAS'S CASE (1849), 1 De G. & Sm. 560; 63 E. R. 1194; sub nom. Re NORTH OF ENGLAND JOINT-STOCK BANKING CO., Ex p. ANGAS, 12 L. T. O. S. 346; 13 Jur. 76.

bind their separate estates, placed the married woman on the list of contributories in her own right, so as to bind her separate estate.—Re LEEDS BANKING CO., MATTHEWMAN'S CASE (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 781; 36 L. J. Ch. 90; 15 L. T. 266; 12 Jur. N. S. 982; 15 W. R. 146.

It turned out that the shares were purchased in I.'s name by her aunt, who died, leaving by her will all her property to I. to her separate use. At their request, they paid the call into the bank, not to the liquidators' general account, but to one entitled as a security account, to await the decision of the House of Lords. The liquidators then made a call of £3 per share, without providing for interest on unpaid calls. An order having been made some time afterwards continuing the winding-up under supervision, the liquidators took out a summons to enforce payment of the unpaid calls with interest at 10 per cent.:—Held: the liquidators had power to make the call of £3 per share, the arts. referring to calls by directors only, & the unpaid calls were chargeable with interest at 5 per cent. only, under Civil Procedure Act, 1833 (c. 42), s. 28.—Re WELSH FLANNEL & TWEED CO. (1875), L. An Act of Parliament was subsequently passed, 3 & 4 Vict., c. xxvi., to enable the co. "to sue & be sued in the name of any one of these directors, or their secretary, & to raise money for carrying on their works." This Act provided "that all actions, suits, etc. to be commenced, instituted, prosecuted, etc. by or against the co., upon any contract, covenant, or agreement then made, or thereafter to be made, to or with the co., or to or with any person or persons in trust for the co., should & lawfully might be commenced, instituted, etc., by or against the secretary for the time being, or by & against any one of the elected directors for the time being, as nominal pltf. or deft., etc. whether deft. in any suit, etc., to be brought by the co., should be a proprietor in the co. or not":—Held: an action of debt for calls against a member of the co. was properly brought on the deed in the name of the secretary.—SKINNER v. 2112. Procedure under R. S. C., Ord. 14—Leave to defend—Disputed liability of underwriter—On agreement between underwriter & promoter.]—An action by a gold mining co. against a shareholder to recover sum due from him in respect of shares & calls. The claim was for £700 for allotment of 4s. per share, on 1,000 shares in the co. allotted to deft. as member at his request, & for two calls of 5s. each on 1,000 shares of which deft. was alleged to be holder. The defence was that by an agreement between deft. & W., a promoter of the co., deft. was to underwrite 1,000 shares at 4s. a share, that is to be liable for such amount in the event of the public not taking shares to the amount of £50,000, but with a proviso that this agreement should not be binding unless shares to the amount of £50,000 should be so underwritten. Only 5,000 shares were applied for by the public, & it was sought to make deft. liable on his agreement. The case for the co. was that the co. could not be affected by the agreement with "a promoter," the co. having been afterwards registered & incorporated. On that ground the co. sought to obtain summary jurisdiction against deft., but the judge at chambers had given him leave to defend unconditionally against which the co. appealed:—Held: there was a serious question to be tried in the cause as to the agreement & the liability of the co. upon it, & the order would be upheld & the appeal dismissed.—IRONCLAD (AUSTRALIA) GOLD MINING CO. v. the receipt of which was duly acknowledged, with the co. for registration. The directors, in the exercise of a discretion given by the arts. of assocn., decided not to register the shares until they had satisfied themselves as to the responsibility of the transferee, & while the necessary investigations were being made the co. went into voluntary liquidation, the shares still standing in deft.'s name. As a defence to an action by the liquidator of the co. for calls upon these shares, deft. pleaded that she had transferred them before the winding up, & that the co. had been guilty of unnecessary delay in not registering the transfer:—Held: as the evidence obtained by the directors as to the responsibility of the transferee would have justified them in refusing to register the transfer, the plea of unreasonable delay was no defence to the action.—*UNION DEBENTURE CO. v. B., a shareholder in the co., attended a general meeting on Apr. 23, & moved its adjournment till May 9, 1856. Circulars were sent to each of the shareholders giving notice of the adjourned meeting, but it was not advertised in the newspapers. B. attended the adjourned meeting, at which a call of 15s. per share was carried. Several shareholders paid this call. B. refused to pay the call, & in Feb. 1857, transferred his shares to F., but the directors refused to accept the transfer, or to put F. upon the register, while the call due from B. remained unpaid:—Semle: B., who had taken no steps to dispute the call from May, 1856, till Feb. 1857, could not now take advantage of any irregularity in the constitution of the adjourned meeting, from its not having been advertised, to avoid payment of the call.—Re BRITISH SUGAR REFINING CO. Three directors of a co., being liable as contributories for the amount unpaid on their shares, & also as guarantors in respect of a guarantee to a bank, a creditor of the co., & no calls having been made, it was resolved at a directors' meeting at which those three directors were present, that "in order to reduce the balance due to the bank it is recommended that the directors do pay up the amount of their shares." At the date of this resolution the co. was insolvent. The three directors paid to, & took a receipt from, a person calling himself the "pro-secretary" of the co., the secretary having refused to receive them, sums equal in amount to the amount due on their shares, which sums the "pro-secretary" paid to the co.'s general account with the bank. Upon an application by the liquidator that the three directors might be settled on the list of contributories in respect of the amount unpaid on their shares:—Held: the payments made by the directors in respect of the calls were made bona fide & not in breach of their duty towards the other shareholders, & must therefore be allowed them.—Re WINCHAM SHIPBUILDING, BOILER & SALT Co. POOLE, JACKSON, & WHYTE'S CASE (1878), 9 Ch. 2144. Exercise of power—Only by directors validly appointed.]—(1) There must be properly appointed directors to make a call or to declare a forfeiture of shares.

A declaration of forfeiture for non-payment of a call of shares in a co. registered in Victoria under 27 Vict. No. 228, was made on June 18, 1869, by a resolution of the board of directors, consisting of a quorum of three, H., B., & A., who had been elected, with two others, at a quarterly general meeting of the co. held on Apr. 14, 1869; which meeting had been convened by advertisement, published on Apr. 8, 10 & 13, for the election of a full board of directors. It appeared that H. & A. had been previously elected directors on Jan. 14, 1867, had not retired from office as provided by the rules of the co. but had continued to act as directors up to Apr. 14, 1869:—Held: the said meeting of Apr. 14, 1869, having been held without due notice thereof, according to the rules of the co. passed under 27 Vict. No. 228, & of the business to be transacted thereat, the election of a full board of directors thereby was invalid, & consequently the subsequent declaration of forfeiture of June 18, 1869, was also invalid. Even if H. & A. had before that election legally held office, they could not thereafter act under their former title, for the election of a full board, though valid, necessarily involved the retirement of those, if any, who up to that time had legally held the office of director.

2145. — Conditions of articles must be strictly complied with.]—Where the directors of a co. to which the regulations contained in 1862 Act, Table A, are applicable, put in force against a shareholder the penalties imposed by Table A for non-payment of calls by forfeiting his shares, every one of the conditions precedent prescribed by Table A must be strictly & literally complied with.

By Table A, art. 6, interest "from the day appointed for payment" to the time of actual payment is payable on calls in arrear; by art. 17 a notice may be served by the directors requiring payment of such calls, together with interest; &, on non-compliance, the directors may, by art. 19E, pass a resolution forfeiting the shares in respect of which such notice has been given:—Held: a resolution of forfeiture, founded on non-compliance with a notice requiring payment of the calls with interest "from the date of the call" was invalid.

By Table A, art. 4, every shareholder is liable to pay calls made by the directors "at the times & places appointed by the directors":—Semble: the time for payment of the call cannot be fixed by a verbal direction to the secretary, but must be fixed by a formal resolution of the directors.—*JOHNSON v. 2147. — While moratorium in force—Invalid.]—A call upon shares which is payable on a date falling within the moratorium proclaimed under Postponement of Payments Act, 1914 (c. 11), is a debt within the moratorium, & consequently a resolution of the directors of the co. purporting to forfeit the shares for non-payment of the call during the currency of the moratorium is invalid. 2148. Loss of right to forfeit—Judgment recovered for calls.]—By the provisions in the deed of a joint-stock co., power was given to the directors to bring actions to recover the amount of any call that might remain unpaid or to declare the shares forfeited. The directors commenced an action & recovered judgment for the amount of two calls. The judgments were not satisfied, & the directors afterwards declared the shares 2144 i. Exercise of power—Only by directors validly appointed.]—The directors who had not paid the calls on their shares at the expiration of fourteen days from the time when they were made payable ceased to be shareholders, & ceased to be directors; & the subsequent payment of their calls did not reinstate them as directors. At the meetings of directors at which calls were made there was not a sufficient quorum of directors who had paid previous calls within fourteen days of the time when they were made payable, but 400 shares held by a shareholder were forfeited for non-payment of those calls, & sold. On action by the shareholder to recover the shares, or in the alternative for damages:—Held: the calls were badly made & pltf.'s shares could not, in the absence of any provision in the arts. validating the acts of the de facto as distinguished from de jure directors, be legally forfeited.—HADDOW v. DUKE CO. NO LIABILITY (1892), 18 V. L. R. 155.—AUS.

*n. — Rule authorising forfeiture invalid.]—*Pltf., a shareholder in a co., registered under Act No. 228, assented to a rule under which shares might be forfeited by directors for non-payment of calls & was a witness to affixing the co.'s seal to it. Shares of other shareholders were afterwards to his knowledge forfeited under the rule. Subsequently his own shares were forfeited under the rule for non-payment of a call of which owing to an accident he had not received notice though notice had been given as required by the rule. In a suit against the co. to set aside the forfeiture & recover the shares:—Held: Act No. 228 did not authorise the making of any rule for forfeiting shares & pltf. was not estopped from impeaching the validity of the rule in question.—NOLAN v. FREEHOLD UNITED QUARTZ MINING CO. (1870), 1 V. R. 168.—AUS.

*p. — Notice to shareholder.]—*The arts. of assocn. of a mining co. provided that the directors might declare forfeited any share upon which any call was in arrear, provided that notice of the intention to forfeit was given by advertisement & the call remained unpaid at the then next or any other meeting of directors. Calls being in arrear, notice was advertised by the cos. of the intention to forfeit "unless all calls be paid on or before Thursday, June 31." Thursday was in fact July 1:—Held: the notice was insufficient as fixing an impossible day, & forfeiture set aside.—WOOD v. FREEHOLD UNITED QUARTZ MINING CO. (1870), 1 V. R. 168.—AUS.

Pltf. subscribed for shares in the co., paying 10 per cent at the time, & agreeing to pay 15 per cent in 30 days, & 25 per cent in 60 days. He made no payment, except the 10 per cent, & some years afterwards, without notice to him, the directors assumed to forfeit the shares & to sell them to other shareholders who knew the circumstances:—Held: even assuming the bye-law to be valid, the forfeiture without special call or notice to pltf. was illegal, & he was entitled to the shares.—*FOX v. One of the arts. of assocn. provided that a certain sum in respect of each of the ordinary shares in the initial capital of the co. would be reserve capital, incapable of being called up, except in the event of a winding up, & that a special resolution was to be passed to that effect under the 1879 Act. Such resolution was not validly passed. 2164. — In respect of what debts—Bills not yet due—Given in renewal of dishonoured acceptances.]—The arts. of assocn. of a joint-stock bank provided that the bank should have a paramount lien on the shares of any shareholder for all moneys due to them from him, & that they might decline to register any transfer whilst the transferring shareholder was indebted to them. A shareholder being unable to meet certain bills of exchange accepted by him & held by the bank, the bank took from him renewed bills for the same amount. Before the renewed bills arrived at maturity the shareholder transferred his shares, but the bank declined to register the transfer:—Held: the renewed bills, though they suspended the remedy, did not discharge the antecedent debt, & consequently the bank had a lien on the shares & were not bound to register the transfer.—Re LONDON, BIRMINGHAM & SOUTH STAFFORDSHIRE BANKING Co., LTD. (1865), 34 Beav. 332; 5 New Rep. 351; 34 L. The fact was unknown to the co., & the director continued to act & to receive his fees as director. He was subsequently re-elected to office in the ordinary course on his supposed retirement by rotation:—Held: although the director, during the period between his vacating his office & his re-election, had rendered services to the co. which had been accepted by them, yet, inasmuch as it was impossible for the ct. to believe that the co. would ever have requested him to render these services had they been aware of the true state of the facts, the ct. could not imply a request for these services on the part of the co. from the mere fact of their ignorant acceptance of them, & accordingly the services rendered did not amount to a legal consideration for the fees paid for them, & the co. were therefore entitled to recover these fees as money had & received, & had a lien on shares for those moneys.—Re BODEGA Co., LTD., [1904] 1 Ch. 276; 73 L. Art. 23 provided that the board might sell the shares for the purpose of enforcing the lien, & might also by a resolution to that effect, forfeit the shares subject to such lien. The holder of fully paid shares brought an action against the co. & its directors asking for a declaration, in effect, that his fully paid shares were not subject to the power of forfeiture for debts on the ground that it was ultra vires & illegal. There had been no threat to forfeit pltf.'s shares:—Held: (1) pltf. was not premature in coming to the ct., as his rights had already been invaded & his property damaged; (2) under this power the forfeiture for debts due from a member generally, as distinct from those due from him as a contributory, would amount to an illegal reduction of capital; (3) the lien being an equitable charge in the nature of a mtge., the power to forfeit pltf.'s shares, on his failure to redeem on a seven days' notice, was a clog on the equity of redemption & as such invalid & ultra vires & pltf. was therefore entitled to the declaration claimed.—*HOPKINSON v. Clause 98 empowered the directors to lend the funds of the co., or give credit, with or without security, & provided that no advances without security should be made or credit given to any director:—Held: the lien given by clause 15 was a security within clause 98, & a loan might be made to a director without any other security than the lien, if the board considered his shares to be of sufficient value.—Re NATIONAL BANK OF WALES, LTD., [1899] 2 Ch. 629; 15 T. —A co. by one of its arts. provided that it should have a lien for all debts & liabilities of any member to the co. "upon all shares, not being fully paid, held by such member." The co., by way of purchase-money for the property acquired by it, allotted fully paid shares to Z., a nominee of the vendor to the co. Z. also applied for & had allotted to him shares not paid up. He was the only holder of fully paid up shares. At his death he was indebted to the co. in arrears of calls on the unpaid shares, but his assets were insufficient to pay the arrears. Thereupon the co., by special resolution under 1862 Act, s. 50, altered the above art. by omitting therefrom the words "not being fully paid," thus creating a lien on Z.'s fully paid shares:—Held: the co. had power to alter its arts. by extending its lien to fully paid shares.—*ALLEN v. A shareholder deposited his share certificates with a bank as security for the balance due & to become due on his current account, & the bank gave the co. notice of the deposit. p. As between company & assignees of shareholder.]—The claimant A. made a proposal through R. to be a subscriber for fifty shares in a bank then being constituted. His proposal was accepted. Subsequently R. instructed the bank's agents that the shares were to be divided as to ten to A. & ten each to four persons named of whom R. was one. These instructions were carried out, R. obtaining a certificate for ten shares. Two years later R. wrote to A.: "I hereby renounce & give up to you the ten shares, etc., which I have held for your behoof."

A year later R. assigned his ten shares to L.'s trustees to whom he was indebted, but under the declaration that on payment of the sums due to the trust the shares should be reconveyed to R. This assignment was duly intimated to the bank; & L.'s trustees were ignorant of A.'s connection with the shares. R. was at the time indebted to the bank. In a process of multiplepointing:—Held: the bank were entitled to retain the shares of stock standing in R.'s name in satisfaction of the debts due to them by the stockholder; & as between A. & L.'s trustees, the intimated assignment in security was preferable to the right

q. Shares held by trustee—Provision in articles for lien on debts due by holder of shares—Meaning of "holder."]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. bore that the co. should have a lien on shares for debts due to it by "the holder" of the shares. A shareholder in security for debts due by him to two banks, transferred to nominees of the banks certain shares of which he was the registered holder, & they were registered in the commencement of the bkpcy. of two partners, some shares in the bank stood in the name of A., one of the two. The shares were in fact partnership property, though the bank did not know that any one but A. was interested in them. The partners owed the bank a large debt for moneys advanced to them. The whole of this debt had been contracted since the shares, which were originally the property of A. alone, had become partnership property:—Held: the bank's security was on the joint estate, & they could only prove against that estate for the balance of their debt after deducting the value of the shares.—*Re COLLIE, Ex p. One of the trustees was a partner in a firm which subsequently went into liquidation, being then indebted to the co.:—Held: the shares were acquired, & the trustees were registered as shareholders, subject to the conditions & provisions of the arts., & the bank was therefore entitled in respect of the debt of the firm to a lien on the shares paramount to any claim by the cestuis que trust under the settlement.—*NEW LONDON & BRAZILIAN BANK v. Shares held by trustee—No lien for debt due by beneficiary.—Upon the hearing of a bkpcy. petition presented by a limited co. it appeared that the debtor had obtained judgment against one of the registered shareholders of the co., declaring that he was a trustee of some of his shares for the debtor. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that the co. should "have a first & paramount lien on all shares for all moneys due to the co. from the registered holder thereof, or other persons for the time being entitled thereto as against the co.":—Held: as the co. were not bound to recognise trusts of their shares, the debtor was not a person "entitled to the shares as against the co.," & consequently, they had no lien upon the shares for the debt due to them from him, & were not "secured creditors" of the debtor within the meaning of Bkpcy. Art. 9 of the arts. of assocn. provided that no person should be recognised by the co. as holding any share upon any trust, & art. 12 provided that the co. should have a first & paramount lien & charge on all partly paid shares:—Held: the co. was wrong in asserting a lien against the beneficiaries, & it must account for the proceeds of sale of the shares & for the dividends which had been applied towards the satisfaction of the debt.—*MACKERETH v. SUB-SECT. 5.—LOSS OF LIEN.

2184. By conduct of company—Transfers registered—Transferees treated as registered proprietors.—A joint-stock co., defts. in an action upon certain debenture bonds, sought to set off the amount of calls due from pltf., the obligee of the bonds, upon shares in their co., under the following circumstances:—The amounts of the debentures were therein expressed to be made payable to pltf., his exors., administrators, or assigns. Pltf. transferred the debentures to C. & S., on whose behalf the action was really brought. Defts. registered the transfers & issued certificates of registration to the transferees, stating that they had been entered as "registered proprietors" of the debentures in question. Neither C. nor S. had any notice, when the debentures were transferred, that defts. had or would claim any right of set-off against the debentures. Previously to the falling due of the debentures, pltf. became indebted to defts. in various sums for calls due upon shares held by him in defts.' co. from the date of its coming into existence. Subsequently to the accruing due of part of such calls defts.' secretary wrote a letter to the transferees acknowledging them to be the owners of the debentures, & requesting time for payment, & defts. accepted two of the debentures in payment of calls due from the transferees as shareholders in defts.' co. Defts. also paid interest names of the banks' nominees; & he also purchased certain other shares & registered them in the names of the same nominees. After the shareholder's death his estates were sequestrated. The banks having recovered payment of the debts due to them from other securities were prepared to transfer the shares in question to the trustee in the sequestration whereupon the co. claimed a lien over the shares in respect of a debt due to it by deceased:—Held: "holder" in the arts. of assocn. meant "registered holder," & as deceased was not the registered holder of the shares the co. had no lien

r. By conduct of company—Taking & discounting promissory note.—Shares not fully paid up stood in the name of deft.'s wife, but pltf. recovered judgment against deft. his wife & the co., declaring that the said shares were the absolute property of deft. & available under execution in satisfaction of pltf.'s judgment. At that time a note given to the co. for the balance due on the shares was held by the bank in which it had been discounted; but, before the time of the seizure of the shares by the sheriff, that note had fallen due & had been taken up by the co.:—Held: at the time of the recovery of the last-mentioned judgment, there was no debt due from deft. or his wife to the co. for which the co. could then have set up a lien, & it was not estopped by the judgment from setting up the lien as soon as it had taken up the note; & the right to the lien had not been waived or lost by the taking & discounting of a promissory note for the debt for which the lien was

The arts. of assocn. of debts' co. provided that the co. should have a lien upon the shares or debentures of any member indebted to the co., & should be entitled to sell the same & apply the proceeds in discharge of his debt. On a special case raising the question whether debts were entitled in equity to set off the calls due to them from pltf. as against the transferees:—Held: they were not so entitled, on the ground that the terms of the debentures & the arts. of assocn. appeared to contemplate the transfer of the debentures free from all claims against the original holder, & that debts, by their subsequent conduct, had recognised & dealt with the transferees as absolute owners of the debentures transferred to them.—*HIGGS v. The holder of certain debentures, who was also a shareholder, transferred his debentures in Aug., 1865, & the transferees were registered as the proprietors of the debentures, & received certificates to that effect from the co. In 1866 & 1867 calls were made on the shares held by the transferor, which were unpaid. In Dec. 1867, the co. fell into difficulties, & applied to the transferees of the debentures to renew them for a period of three years:—Held: the co. had precluded themselves by their conduct from setting up their lien for unpaid calls as against the transferees.—*Re NORTHERN ASSAM TEA CO., Ex p. s. — Omission to comply with provisions of statute.—D., who was the holder of paid-up shares in the capital stock of debt. co., made a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors, at a time when he was indebted to debt. co. By the bye-laws of debt. co., they were entitled to a charge on D.'s shares as security for this indebtedness. Debt. co. lodged with the assignees proof of their claim against the estate of D., at the full amount of his indebtedness, but made no reference to their security. Pltfs. bought the shares, with other assets, from the assignees, & brought this action to compel debts. to register pltfs. in debts' books as holders of the shares free from the claim of debts. Debts. had received from the assignees a dividend upon their claim. Pltfs. contended that debts. by proving their claim for the full amount without placing a value on their security, by voting at meetings in respect of the claim so proved, & by accepting a dividend in respect thereof, had irrevocably elected to rank on the estate & to give up their security:—Held: having regard to Assignments Act, ss. 29 & 31, the English bkpcy. rule is not in force in Manitoba; & debts. could not be considered to have elected to abandon their security by their failure to value it.—*Box v. so cancelled, extinguished & declared to be forfeited, or so to be sold or disposed of as aforesaid." A holder of 1,000 shares being indebted to the bank for cash advances, a notice, dated May 30, 1837, was given to the shareholder, that unless he redeemed the 1,000 shares by payment of the balance of his account with the bank on or before June 13, the directors would on that day proceed, under the clause of the deed of assocn., to cancel & extinguish, & declare his shares forfeited, & to place the value of the shares on that day to the credit of his account with the bank. The balance not being paid, the directors by a resolution declared the shares to be cancelled & forfeited, & it appearing to them that the value of the shares on that day was £10,000, it was resolved that credit should be given to the proprietor for that amount in his account.

A bill was filed to set aside the cancellation. From the evidence it appeared that the market price of shares, on June 13, slightly exceeded the price allowed by the directors, but the evidence proved that, if the 1,000 shares had been carried into the market, the price would have been reduced greatly below the amount allowed by the directors:—Held: the directors placing themselves by the cancellation in the situation both of vendors & purchasers, were bound to allow the highest market price, which could be obtained for the shares, without speculating on what might be the effect of throwing the 1,000 shares into the market, & the cancellation was declared to be void & was set aside.—*STUBBS v. Director—Disapproving policy of majority of board—No intention of facilitating ultra vires policy.—J. was a director & shareholder in a co. which had become embarrassed, & he was desirous of having it wound up. The majority of the directors, however, negatived a motion for having it wound up & entered into an arrangement with S. for the purpose of bringing its affairs into a more prosperous state. By this arrangement S. was to have a number of shares transferred to him or his nominees, & was to have powers & privileges which it was a breach of duty to give him. J. did not, in his capacity of director, concur in or assent to this arrangement, but he transferred all his shares to a nominee of S., & agreed with S. to pay a certain sum in addition upon being released from all liability in respect of a certain demand against the co. The consent of the directors to transfers was not requisite. The Ct. was satisfied, on the evidence, that J. made the transfer not to facilitate the arrangements between the other directors & S., but to escape from the co., & there was nothing to show that the transferee was a trustee for the co.:—Held: the transfer was valid, & not liable to be impeached in equity.—Re LONDON & COUNTY ASSURANCE CO., JESSOPP'S CASE (1858), 2 De G. & J. 638; 27 L. 2203. — Knowledge of transferor.]—The arts. of a co. enabled the board of directors to appoint committees of their own number & to delegate to any such committee all or any of the powers of the board. Transfers of shares were to be effected only by instruments executed both by the transferor & transferee, & were not to be made without the approval of the board, which had an absolute discretion as to accepting a transfer. On Nov. 2, 1874, the board appointed B. a committee with all the powers of the board. On Dec. 24, 1874, a board meeting was held, at which only B. & the secretary were present. At this meeting transfers, which had on the previous day been executed by X. & Y. to various persons of 1519 shares standing in the joint names of X. & Y., were approved & the transferees placed on the register. B. deposed that all formalities had been waived & there was no evidence whether the transfers had been executed by the transferees. On the same day a general meeting of shareholders was held, at which resolutions were passed for a voluntary winding-up of the co., & the transfer of its business to a new co., each shareholder in the old co. taking the same number of shares in the new, & this was confirmed by a meeting of Jan. 15, 1875. At neither of these meetings did the transferors vote in respect of the shares transferred, but several of the transferees did, & the transferees were registered as shareholders in the new co. It did not appear that the old co. was insolvent, but it was considered desirable to reconstitute it. In Mar. 1877, a petition was presented by some of the transferees for the compulsory winding-up of the old co., upon which an order was made on Mar. 17. The transferees were placed on the list of contributories. In 1881 some creditors, pursuant to leave given, applied in the name of the official liquidator to put X. & Y. on a supplemental list of contributories of the old co. for the 1,519 shares, & if not then on a B. list as past members. The application was refused:—Held: (1) the fact that the transferors knew that the co. was on the eve of being wound up voluntarily did not take away their power of transferring their shares, & the transfers of the 1,519 shares were not invalid on that ground; (2) a committee of the board of directors need not consist of more than one person, & B. had authority to approve the transfers; (3) it was not to be inferred in the absence of express evidence that the transfers had not been executed by the transferees; (4) if they had not been so executed they were not a nullity but only irregular, & after they had been acted upon & treated as valid for so long a period they could not be impeached; therefore, X. & Y. could not be placed on the list of contributories as present members.—Re TAURINE Co. (1883), 25 Ch. g. Transfer restricted by agreements.]—The letters-patent under the Ontario Cos. R. subsequently purchased shares in the railway at a higher price, in the place of those contracted for, & pltf. paid him the difference, after notice from deft. not to make the payment:—Held: (1) the payment by pltf. before a transfer was tendered to deft., was a payment in his own error, & which he was not entitled to recover against deft., in an action for money paid to his use; (2) a letter, written by deft. to pltf., requesting all further communications to be made to his attorney, did not dispense with a tender of the transfer.

Up to that time what was done was merely to solicit subscriptions to a fund which, when created to a sufficient sum, would then become, as distinguished from specific sums under the individual control of the respective subscribers, a fund controllable by the body of subscribers; & only upon the fund passing into the control of the body of subscribers was there a syndicate, interests or shares in which became capable of being sold.—BRITANNIA COLLIERIES v. Value of shares ascertained by arbitration—Arbitration abortive.]—By agreement between the parties which was for the sale of the shares of a lumber co., appl. had a contractual right to insist on a deduction equal to the value of the deficiency of assets delivered, such value being determined by arbitration. An arbitration was held; but it became abortive:—Held: when the agreed method of fixing the value became impossible, it was the duty of the ct. to decide that which the parties had originally intended should be decided by a domestic tribunal.—CAMERON v. a. Liability of broker—As intermediate transferee.]—A sharebroker purchased shares in a bank for a client, who requested that the shares should be transferred to three other persons named by her. The sharebroker applied to the bank to have the shares so transferred, but the bank refused, on the ground that, as one transfer for all the shares had been executed by the holder, it would be necessary to transfer the shares into the name of one person, who could apply to have the new scrip issued in the three different lots, so that the holder could transfer to the owners of the shares. At the bank's suggestion & request, the shareholder allowed the shares to be transferred into his name for the purposes of retransfer only:—Held: the broker had agreed to become a member of the co., & after registration, his name was rightly put on the list of contributories.—Re MERCANTILE BANK (IN LIQUIDATION), Ex p. BAGLEY (1894), 20 V. After the sale pltf. paid certain calls due on the shares, & brought an action against defts. to recover the amount so paid:—Held: although defts. had bought the shares acting as brokers & as agents for an undisclosed principal, they were personally liable to indemnify pltf. for his liability on the shares.—WILCOX v. 2213. Sale on Stock Exchange—Transfer direct from vendor to purchaser—Privity.]—(1) If A. sells shares in a co. to a member of the Stock Exchange & B. buys shares in the same co. at a different price from another member of the Stock Exchange, & on the name-day B.'s name is given to A. as the purchaser of A.'s shares, & A. executes a transfer of his shares to B. & B. accepts the transfer, & pays to A. the price for which B. originally bought the shares, the transaction constitutes a contract between A. & B. for the sale & purchase of the shares, which a Ct. of Equity will compel B. specifically to perform.

(2) Where the arts. of assocn. of a co. require transfer of shares to be executed by both parties, the Ct. has no power under 1862 Act, ss. 35, 98, to rectify the register by removing the name of a transferor unless the transfer has been executed by the transferee.

Shares in a joint-stock co. were sold in the usual course of business on the Stock Exchange a few hours before the failure of the co. The transfer was executed by the vendor but not by the purchaser & was never registered. Upon an application by the vendor to have the purchaser's name substituted for his own on the list of contributories in the winding-up of the co.:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction under the circumstances to rectify the register.

The consideration was stated in the transfer to be only the sum of 5s. & the transfer was brought to the co. for registration without any notice of the agreement between the pltf. & B. The co. refused to register on the ground that pltf. was indebted to them, but on its being established after an interval of eighteen months that pltf. was not so indebted, the co. registered the transfer. In an action against the co. for wrongfully refusing to register, pltf. sought to recover as damages the loss in the market value of the shares between the time when the transfer was brought to the co. to be registered & the time when it was in fact registered:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover only nominal damages, as the contract between the pltf. & B. was a special one, of which the co. had had no notice & the ordinary contract on the sale of registered shares was only that the seller should give to the purchaser a valid transfer & do all required to enable the purchaser to be registered as member in respect of such shares, the duty of the purchaser, which has not been altered by sect. 26 of 1867 Act, being to get himself registered as such member.—*SKINNER v. 2221. — Scrip certificates.]—A contract to deliver shares in a joint-stock co. does not require the actual delivery of scrip certificates, which are the mere indicia of property; but the party contracting to deliver the shares sufficiently performs his engagement when he places the other in the position of being the legal owner of them.—HUNT v. GUNN (1862), 13 C. B. N. S. 226; 1 New Rep. 28; 7 L. T. 277; 143 E. R. 90.

2222. — Duty of vendor not to hinder registration.]—A person who executes a transfer of shares thereby comes under an implied obligation not to hinder the transferee from obtaining registration, & this applies to a case where the transfer is originally made in blank by the transferor & subsequently filled in by a bonâ fide holder for value, in whose favour it is binding by estoppel against the transferor.

The measure of damages for the breach of such obligation is the difference between the value of the shares at the time when in the ordinary course they would but for the delay caused by the transferor have been registered in the name of the transferee, & their value at the time when the transferee's right to registration is established; in estimating which all the material circumstances affecting the selling value of the shares must be taken into account.

W. executed a blank transfer of shares, & placed it, together with the share certificate, in the hands of H. for the purpose of raising money under circumstances which the ct. held to estop W. from denying that he had given to H. the necessary authority. H. applied to pltf., who made a small advance out of his own money, which was afterwards repaid, & also at H.'s request borrowed £700, for H.'s use, from a bank, on the deposit of the blank transfer & share certificate & on pltf.'s personal security, H. undertaking to indemnify pltf. & to repay to him the £700 within fifteen days. The loan not having been repaid, the bank, with a view to realise the security, filled up the blank transfer with pltf.'s name as transferee, & sent it to the co. for registration. W. thereupon gave notice that he disputed the validity of the transfer, thus preventing pltf. from dealing with the shares, which had since fallen in value. Pltf. brought this action claiming damages against W. Since the commencement of the action pltf. had repaid the £700 to the bank:—Held: W., in preventing the registration of pltf.'s name as transferee, had committed a breach of his implied obligation arising out of the transfer, & pltf. was in a position to claim damages for that breach.—HOOPER v. HERTS, [1906] 1 Ch. 549; 75 L. J. Ch. 253; 94 L. T. 324; 54 W. R. 350; 50 Sol. Jo. 271; 13 Mans. 85, C. A.

2223. — Issue of new shares before registration of transfer—Application for shares by vendor.]—Pltf., through his brokers, purchased ten shares in a co. on the Stock Exchange from deft. A transfer was duly executed & left for registration. Before it was registered an issue of new shares in respect of original ones was made, with fourteen days for shareholders to accept or refuse. Deft., whose name was still on the register for the ten shares sold to pltf., applied for ten new shares in respect of them, & they were allotted to him. Pltf. did not become aware of the issue of the new shares till after the expiration of the fourteen days, & he then applied to deft. to hand over to him the ten new shares, which deft. refused to do:—Held: deft. was a trustee for the ten new shares for pltf.—STEWART v. LUPTON (1874), 22 W. R. 855.

2224. — Dividend declared after sale & before execution of transfer—In respect of period anterior to sale.]—Shares of a co. were sold by auction on Aug. 1, & a deposit was paid. By the conditions of sale, the purchase was to be completed on Aug. 29, which accordingly was done & the transfers signed. The conditions of sale were silent as to dividends, & in the meanwhile, on Aug. 24, a dividend was declared in respect of a period antecedent to the sale by auction:—Held: the dividend belonged to the purchaser.—BLACK v. HOMERSHAM (1878), 4 Ex. D. 24; 48 L. J. Q. B. 79; 39 L. T. 671; 27 W. R. 171.

2225. — Reorganisation of company before registration of transfer—Application for shares by vendor.]—Pltf., who was a shareholder in a co., purchased further shares in the co. from deft. & the transfers were duly executed & handed to pltf. Shortly afterwards, & before the transfers were lodged with the co. for registration, resolutions were passed to wind up voluntarily & reconstruct the co. A new co. was accordingly formed, the shares in which were to be offered ratably to the shareholders in the old co., each share being credited with 18s. paid up & 2s. unpaid. The 2s. was to be paid by instalments. Pltf. then sent the transfers for registration to the liquidator of the old co., but he refused to register them except upon payment of 1s. a share, being the amount payable at that time on the shares in the new co. Pltf. delayed making the payment, & the transfers were not registered. Deft. applied for the shares in the new co., & paid to the liquidator the sum due on the shares, & received an allotment:—Held: deft. was a trustee of the shares in the new co. for pltf. & on the facts there was no equity to deprive pltf. of his rights as cestui que trust.—ROONEY v. STANTON (1900), 17 T. L. R. 28, C. A.

brokers as the purchaser, & a transfer to M. executed by C. was sent to M.'s brokers & accepted by them. The purchase-money was paid by M. to his broker on May 15. The certificates were afterwards sent to M., & he retained both them & the transfer, though he refused to execute the latter, & expressed a wish to his broker to repudiate the shares. He, however, gave no notice to C. of repudiation till long afterwards. C. was placed on the list of contributories of the co., & had to pay calls, & he filed a bill against M. for indemnity:—Held: if M. ever had any right to repudiate the shares he was too late in doing so. The repudiation, if it was to have any effect, ought to have been made almost immediately.—CRABB v. MILLER (1871), 24 L. T. 892; 19 W. R. 882, L. J.J.

2228. — Delay by brokers.]—A. having instructed his brokers, B. & Co., to purchase shares in the O. Bank, received from them a bought note stating the purchase of shares from C. a jobber, but, according to the usual practice on the Stock Exchange, not specifying the registered number of the purchased shares. Between the date of purchase & the settling day the bank stopped payment & proceedings were taken to wind it up. A.'s solrs. thereupon wrote to B. & Co. repudiating the contract for purchase contained in the bought note, on the ground that the contract was illegal & void, being in contravention of 30 & 31 Vict. c. 29, & giving notice that if they completed it it would be at their own risk. On the same day A. wrote a private letter to B. calling attention to the formal letter " & I wish you clearly to understand that whatever position you may have to assume with regard to them (the shares) I consider myself fully bound to support you." The name of A. as the purchaser of the shares was returned to C. by B. & Co. & on receiving a transfer & the share certificates the money was paid by them to the transferor's brokers. A. refused to execute the transfer, & returned it to B. & Co., in whose possession it remained, without, for some time, any intimation to the vendor that A. repudiated the transaction:—Held: as the liability of C. (the jobber) in respect of the shares had ceased on the acceptance of the transfer by B. & Co. it followed that A. though he had not executed the transfer, had in the circumstances, & by not definitely repudiating the authority given to B. & Co., as his agents, become equitable owner of the shares, & bound to indemnify the vendor against all loss & liability in respect of them.—*LORING v. 2229. Duty of vendor to obtain.]—Pltf. agreed to purchase of deft. shares in a mining co. established under a deed of settlement, & sent a form of transfer to deft. for his execution. The deed required that, on transfer of shares, the intended proprietor should be approved of by the directors. Deft. executed & returned the transfer & sent also a certificate, according to the provisions of the deed, verifying deft.'s title to the shares. Pltf. on receiving the transfer, paid for the shares; but, before such payment, the directors passed a resolution, unknown to pltf. till after the payment, stating that deft. had commenced an action against the co., & that no transfer of shares standing in his name should be allowed while such action was pending. The directors never objected to pltf. as a proprietor; & deft. denied their power to stay a transfer on the ground above stated. While the transfer was suspended, shares fell in the market, & pltf. brought assumpsit for money had & received, to recover back the purchase money:—Held: (1) the action lay; for deft., as vendor, was bound to obtain the assent of the directors, & do all that was necessary to vest the shares in pltf.; (2) the fact of their having fallen in value was no objection to pltf.'s rescinding the contract, since he had never had the shares at all, & therefore had received no part of the consideration for his purchase; (3) although deft. might be entitled to a return of the certificate & instrument of transfer, these were only collateral to the contract & subject-matter of the sale, & restoration of them was not a condition precedent to pltf.'s right of bringing this action. Semble: "money had & received" will lie to recover back the price of shares in a co. where the directors refuse to accept the transfer.—*WILKINSON v. 2230. — Refusal by purchaser to accept transfer—When action for money paid lies.]—Pltf. authorised certain brokers upon the Stock Exchange to purchase for him, to be paid for on the account day, twenty shares in the Royal British Bank. They accordingly bought such shares of defts. Before the account day arrived the Royal British Bank stopped payment, whereupon pltf. gave notice to his brokers that he would not take the shares. Deft. himself had contracted with other stockbrokers for the purchase of twenty shares, & these brokers procured transfers of the shares & the certificate, which on the account day deft. tendered to pltf.'s brokers, who paid for them & received them, & then tendered them to pltf., who, under pressure of an action, received & paid for them. By the rules of the Royal British Bank, proprietors of shares might, with the consent of the directors, transfer their shares, & the broker of one of the sellers of the shares requested such consent, which the directors refused to give.—Held: under these circumstances pltf. was not entitled to bring an action against deft. for the price of the shares.—*STRAY v. 2231. — Whether sanction compelled.]— Every contract for the sale of shares in a joint-stock co., the directors of which have the right of approving or rejecting a proposed transferee, must be regarded as conditional on their approval being given, & in default of that approval, the contract must be treated as rescinded.

A shareholder agreed to sell shares in a co. by the deed of settlement of which the right of transfer was subject to the approval of the board of directors; the purchaser paid the money, but, before any transfer of the shares was made, the ct. ordered the co. to be wound up. Subsequently the vendor & purchaser executed a deed transferring the shares to the purchaser. The official liquidator, acting on behalf of the directors, declined to approve of the purchase or recognise the transfer; the vendor was put on the list of contributories, & a call was made; & the purchaser brought an action to recover the purchase-money. Upon a bill by the vendor, against the purchaser, to compel specific performance:—Held: the ct. could not interfere with the discretion of the official liquidator, & as the co. did not choose to accept the purchaser as a shareholder, specific performance of the contract could not be decreed. A. purchased shares, & executed some of the acts required to constitute him a member of the co.; but left one of these acts unexecuted:—Held: the execution of these acts was a duty cast on the purchaser for the benefit of the co., & his non-execution of one of them, did not enable him, as respected the co., to retire from his contract.

(2) A joint-stock co. had declared dividends, which, as it afterwards appeared, were not warranted by the real condition of the co. The law agent of the co. who was also a member of it, when applied to for information, mentioned these dividends as proofs of the flourishing state of the co. The person to whom he so mentioned them became afterwards a purchaser of the shares:—Held: he could not relieve himself from his contract on account of these representations; the law agent of the co. was not its agent to bind it in such matters; nor could he bind it as a partner, for a joint-stock co. is not, like an ordinary partnership, bound by the acts of any individual member of it.

Deft. was a stock-broker & a member of the London Stock Exchange. He had acted as stockbroker to pltf. prior to Apr. 1910, carrying through various transactions for him. In Apr. 1910, pltf., acting under deft.'s advice, instructed deft. to buy 600 shares in a certain co. Deft. sent to pltf. a contract note in the ordinary form purporting to show that the shares had been purchased for pltf. at the price therein stated. The total amount debited against pltf. included a charge for the services of deft. as broker. Pltf. did not immediately take up the shares, & deft. purported to carry them over from account to account on pltf.'s behalf, charging a contango rate, which was stated to include deft.'s remuneration for his services as broker in effecting the continuations. After the professed purchase of the shares they gradually fell in value, & pltf. paid the differences. Ultimately, however, deft. advised him to take up the shares, & in pursuance of such advice pltf. in Dec. 1910, took a transfer of the shares & paid the price to deft., & continued to hold the shares as the only registered proprietor thereof. In 1915, pltf. heard rumours which aroused his suspicions, & his solrs. wrote to deft. asking for the name of the jobber from whom he bought the shares. Failing to get a satisfactory answer, pltf. commenced an action in which he claimed rescission of the contract & a return by deft. of all moneys received by him from pltf. upon pltf. retransferring the shares to deft. It was proved that deft. had never purchased any of the shares for pltf. The shares which were transferred to pltf. were part of an allotment made to deft. as promoter of the co. Deft. never disclosed to pltf. his real position in dealing with him, but always professed to act as his broker:—

Held: pltf. was entitled to have the whole transaction set aside.

See, generally, SPECIFIC PERFORMANCE.

2255. Grounds for granting or refusing—Against vendor—Rise in price.]—One is bound by bond to transfer £300 East India Stock before Sept. 30 then next. Though the stock was much risen, deft. decreed to transfer the £300 stock in specie, & to account for all dividends from the time that it ought to have been transferred.—GARDENER v. PULLEN & PHILLIPS (1700), 2 Vern. 394; 23 E. R. 853.

It has been long since decided that you cannot have a bill for the specific performance of an agreement to transfer a certain quantity of stock. But, in my opinion, there is not any sort of analogy between a quantity of 3 per cents. or any other indorsed blank transfers executed by them to a stockbroker as margin to cover a loan with which the stockbroker was to purchase certain other shares for pltf. The stockbroker deposited the share certificates with a bank as security for a loan. He did not purchase any shares for pltf. but sent them contract notes, purporting to have done so. He then absconded & was adjudicated bkpt. Pltf. on discovering the fraud gave notice to the bank that they were owners of the shares. The bank after this notice filled up the transfers & were registered in the books of the co.:—Held: pltf. having delivered to the stockbroker the share certificates with the indorsed blank transfers were estopped from asserting their ownership against the bank, who had taken them bonâ fide for value without notice, express or implied, of pltf.'s title.—WATERHOUSE v. BANK OF IRELAND (1891), 29 L. R. Ir. 384.—IR.

PART III. SECT. 23, SUB-SECT. 2.—C. (e) ii.

m. Grounds for granting or refusing—Against vendor.]—The action was brought for specific performance of an agreement alleged to have been stock of that description (which is always to be had by any person who chooses to apply for it in the market), & a certain number of railway shares of a particular description; which railway shares are limited in number & which, as has been observed, are not always to be had in the market (SHADWELL, V.-C.).—DUNCUFT v. ALBRECHT (1841), 12 Sim. 189; 59 E. R. 1104.

2258. — Subsequent gift of shares to volunteer.—The doctrine that a volunteer cannot hold property, which has been conveyed by way of gift, as against the prior equity of a purchaser for value from the person by whom the conveyance was made, applies to a contract for the sale of shares of a co.—GRAHAM v. O'CONNOR (1895), 73 L. T. 712; 12 T. L. R. 93; on appeal (1896), 12 T. L. R. 297, C. A.

2260. — Against purchaser.—J. agreed to purchase fifty shares in a railway co. at ten guineas a share, the same being a premium of £8 a share, the sum of £2 10s. having been paid for calls. G., pltf., afterwards delivered to the broker fifteen of the shares, upon which such calls had been made, when he refused to accept them, & asked for a return of the purchase-money from the broker, which they declined on the ground that the calls had already been paid on the fifteen shares, but not on the remaining 35. By a deed of assignment, pltf. had transferred the 35 shares to J. but he not being registered pltf. was obliged to pay £361 in respect of calls, & deft. refused other shares as a substitute for the fifteen:—Held: the representative of J.—now deceased—was bound specifically to perform the contract by taking fifty shares, & paying the amount of calls which had been paid by pltf.—GRISEWOOD v. JUSTICE (1849), 13 L. T. O. S. 22.

2261. — Purchaser nominee of third party.—A transfer of shares from W. to K. was negotiated through the intervention of third parties. The deed of transfer recited a contract by K. to purchase 105 shares at £5 per share, & the receipt of the purchase-money was acknowledged, but not indorsed. W. executed the transfer with the understanding that K. was purchasing for himself, & that the money was to be paid within a year, the shares being in the meantime deposited as security. K. executed the transfer at the request of S., & upon the representation that the money had been paid, & that K. would be merely a holder in trust for S.; W. was not a party to the representations made by S.; & except by executing the transfer K. had entered into no contract, & had given no authority for the purchase of the shares. The purchase-money was not paid. Upon a bill for specific performance by W.:—Held: K. was bound by the contract, & liable to pay for the shares so transferred to him.—WILSON v. KEATING (1859), 4 De G. & J. 588; 7 W. R. 635; 45 E. R. 228, L. C. & L. JJ.

2263. — Winding-up order made after action brought.—Pltfs., who were stock & share dealers, having contracted to buy certain shares in a co. standing in A.'s name, agreed to sell the same to deft.'s broker, but the name of deft. was not given at the time of such agreement for sale. On the settling day following the agreement for sale, deft.'s name was given to pltfs., & the money for the shares also paid to them. The transfer was executed by A., but deft. refused to execute it, alleging that he never intended to take the shares into his own name, & that his broker had, without his authority, given his name to pltfs. in order that it might be inserted in the transfer. Pltfs. filed a bill against deft. for a specific performance of their contract with his broker; but before the cause came to a hearing an order was made to wind up the co. under the supervision of the ct.:—Held: notwithstanding such order, pltfs. were entitled to a decree against defts. for specific performance.—PAINE v. HUTCHINSON (1868), 3 Ch. App. 388; 37 L. J. Ch. 485; 18 L. T. 380; 16 W. R. 553, L. JJ.; affg. (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 257.

2264. — Failure to prove identity of shares—Winding-up order before action brought.—Pltf., on May 6, 1864, sold some shares in a co. to deft., but they were not registered in his name, or that of a nominee for him. The co. was ordered to be wound up. Pltf. then filed a bill against deft. praying a decree for the specific performance of the agreement for the sale of the shares; the due registration of them in the name of deft. or his nominee; the rectification—if necessary—of the register of members of the co.; the execution by deft. of a proper indemnity to pltf. in respect of the shares; & that deft. might be ordered to pay the costs of the suit. Pltf. did not, at the hearing, succeed in proving the identity of the shares sold by him to deft. in respect of which he sought relief by his bill:—Held: the case was not one of specific performance at all, & under all the circumstances of it, the bill must be dismissed with costs.—MORRISH v. was brought in 1913, & in explanation of the delay pltf. stated that deceased had contended that the organisation was not complete till the property was paid for & the transaction of pur-

2267. — Sale by purchaser—Transfer to sub-purchaser executed by vendor—Action against purchaser.]—F. purchased at public auction railway shares not fully paid up, of which S. was the registered proprietor: he paid his purchase-money, but before he executed the transfer, sold them by public auction to C. S. executed a transfer to C. who declined to accept, or to put himself on the register of the co. Calls were made, which F. refused to pay. C. became insolvent. On a bill filed by S. against F. for specific performance, to which C. was not made a party, reference was made to the master as to pltf.'s title. The master reported that S. could not make a good title by reason of his having executed the transfer to C.

iii. Damages.

2269. Measure of damages—General rule.]—I have, therefore, to consider what is the measure of damage in the case of a contract for the sale of shares. I do not think on the cases which have been cited to me that there is any real doubt as to the measure of damage in such a case. Generally speaking, it is the difference between the contract price of the shares & their market price at the time when they ought to have been delivered. Of course, there may be, & probably are, exceptions to the general rule, & one of these exceptions is, I think, this—that where a purchaser, forbears to exercise his rights at the vendor's request & for the vendor's convenience, the vendor may have to pay, not the difference between the contract price & the market price on the day when the shares ought to have been delivered, but the difference between the contract price & the market price at the time when the purchaser, by notice or otherwise, withdraws the forbearance which he has been exercising. Of course, there is another possibility—namely, that the contract has by mutual consent been varied so as to alter the date on which the shares ought to have been delivered; but that is not any real exception to the rule, for even in that case one has to consider when, according to the terms of the contract as so altered, the shares ought to be delivered, & that is the day which will fix the measure of damage (PARKER, J.).—Re SCHWABACHER, STERN v. SCHWABACHER, KORITSCHONER'S CLAIM, No. 2279, post.

2272. — — —.]—Deft. purchased scrip

railway shares of pltf. at 25s. premium on Oct. 20; but the scrips were not issued until Oct. 24. On Oct. 21 the shares fell to 14s. premium. At six in the evening of that day, deft. gave notice to pltf., that he should not take the shares. On Oct. 22 the shares had fallen to 8s. premium, & continued to fall until Dec. 6, when pltf., after notice to deft., sold them at 17s. discount. In an action for not accepting or paying for the shares:—Held: the measure of damages was the difference in the price of the shares between Oct. 20 and Oct. 22.—POTT v. FLATHER (1847), 5 Ry. & Can. Cas. 85; 16 L. J. Q. B. 366; 11 Jur. 735.

2273. — — —.]—B. having entered into a contract with A. to purchase of him certain railway shares, which were about to be created, wrote a letter, saying that in consequence of some alleged misrepresentation, he should consider the sale null & void. A. denied the misrepresentation & insisted on the performance of the contract; & after the shares were created, on Aug. 24, sent notice to B. of their being ready to be assigned to him. B. on that day wrote that he should consider the sale null & void on the ground of misrepresentation. The shares were, on Oct. 20 following, formally tendered to B. the price having fallen in the meantime, & B. refused to accept them. In an action for non-performance of the contract:—Held: it was properly left to the jury to say whether the repudiation of the shares on Aug. 24 was sufficiently distinct & final; & they were right in giving as damages the difference between the contract price & the price which the shares fetched in the market on Oct. 20.—BARNED v. HAMILTON (1841), 2 Ry. & Can. Cas. 624; 10 L. J. C. P. 287.

2274. — Non-delivery by vendor.]—In an action for the non-delivery of shares on a given day, pursuant to contract, the proper measure of damages is the difference between the contract price & the market price on the day when the contract was broken.—SHAW v. HOLLAND (1846), 15 M. & W. 136; 4 Ry. & Can. Cas. 150; 15 L. J. Ex. 87; 6 L. T. O. S. 435; 10 Jur. 100; 153 E. R. 794.

D. Time for Completion.

2276. Whether reasonable—Admissibility of evidence—Rules of Stock Exchange.]—In an action for not accepting railway shares sold at L., issue being joined on the readiness & willingness of pltf. to transfer them to deft.:—Held: the rules of the Stock Exchange at L., as to the time of transferring shares, which were acted on by all the brokers there, & seen by deft., neither he nor pltf. being a broker, were admissible as evidence of the reasonableness of the time for the completion of the contract.

Where a contract is repudiated, & the article resold within a reasonable time from the repudiation, the measure of damages is the difference between the price of the article at the time of the contract & of the resale.—STEWART v. CAUTY (1841), 8 M. & W. 160; 2 Ry. & Can. Cas. 616; 10 L. J. Ex. 348; 5 Jur. 411; 151 E. R. 992.

2277. Delay—Certificate sent for sub-division—Unreasonable.]—Where a contract for the sale of shares did not fix the time for the delivery of chase closed:—Held: the agreement to transfer the shares was proved & sufficient corroborative evidence of

it given, & it was one capable of enforcement specifically.—MCGREGOR v. CURRY (1914), 81 O. L. R. 261; 20

them:—Held: the time for delivery could not depend upon circumstances which were unknown to the buyer, & delay in tendering the shares arising from the seller having sent his certificate to England for sub-division, as this circumstance was unknown to the buyer, was unreasonable & justified the buyer in refusing to accept the shares. Such delay was mora, assuming the law of mora to be applicable.—DE WAAL v. ADLER (1886), 12 App. Cas. 141; 56 L. J. P. C. 25; 3 T. L. R. 188, P. C.

2279. Agreement to carry over—Death of vendor.]—(1) Where a vendor & a purchaser of shares in a co. agree that the shares shall remain unpaid for, & shall be “carried over” on an account delivered on certain days called account or pay days, subject to payment of a stated percentage by the purchaser, & to a payment by the vendor or the purchaser—as the case may be—of the difference between the price of the shares on the last account day, & their price on the day when the account is delivered: the vendor having died during the currency of this arrangement:—Held: the day for completing the contract was the first account day following the death of the vendor, unless such day had been altered by agreement between the parties or at the request or to suit the convenience of one of them.

(2) Specific performance of such an agreement will not subsequently be granted at the suit of the purchaser where the shares can be obtained in the market.

(3) Damages for breach of such an agreement will not be given where the contract price of the shares exceeded their value on the day for completion.

In the afternoon of the same day, deft. signed a memorandum, that he had bought of pltf. fifty shares in the co., at £10 a share; which memorandum was handed to pltf.:—Held: it required an agreement stamp.—*KNIGHT v. SUB-SECT. 3.—THE TRANSFER.

A. What amounts to a Transfer.

2282. Renunciation in favour of nominee.]—Letters of renunciation of bonus shares in favour of a nominee & of acceptance by that nominee do not, in the absence of special provisions to the contrary, amount to a “transfer” of shares so as to fall within & be subject to the arts. of assocn. of the co. dealing with the transfer of shares of shareholders already registered.—Re POOL SHIPPING CO., LTD., [1920] 1 Ch. 251; 89 L. J. Ch. 111; 122 L. T. 338; 36 T. L. R. 53; 64 Sol. Jo. 115.

2283. Surrender & allotment.]—W. agreed to be a director of a co., & qualification shares were allotted to him. Shortly afterwards, on his desiring to have nothing to do with the co. he received back from the co. the amount he had paid on his shares, an entry was made in the register of members that his shares were cancelled, & shares bearing the same numbers were allotted to two other persons, who paid for them in cash. The co. had more than enough shares apart from these to satisfy the applications of these two persons. The arts. provided forms in which transfers of shares should be made, & that surrenders might be made on terms agreed upon. The co. having gone into liquidation:—Held: there had been no effectual surrender or transfer of W.'s shares, & he was liable as a contributory.—Re COMPANIES GUARDIAN SOCIETY, WALLSCOURT'S (LORD) CASE (1899), 7 Mans. 235.

B. Mode of Transfer.

2284. BOS* (1871), L. R. 5 H. L. 176; 40 L. J. Ch. 655; 24 L. T. 641, H. L.; affg. S. C. sub nom. Re GENERAL CO. FOR PROMOTION OF LAND CREDIT (1870), 5 Ch. App. 363, L. J. Annotations:—*Mentd. n. Liability to duty—Transfer of shares—Company registered in England.]—Pltf., an Auckland sharebroker, acting upon instructions received from deft., purchased shares in a co., registered in England but not registered in the colony, from the registered owner in England. The co. had a registered office in the colony where it was doing business. Pltf. received the scrip & a transfer of the shares signed by the English shareholder, but with the date of the execution, the name of the transferee, & the amount of the consideration left in blank. The transfer was entered in the colonial register in the name of the English shareholder:—Held: the transfer was void, as not complying with the provisions of Stamp Act, 1882.—REID v. MCCORQUODALE (1894), 12 N. Z. L. R. 400.—N.Z.

o. — Effect of non-compliance with Stamp Act, 1882.]—Stamp Act, 1882, does not vitiate & render void a contract for the sale of shares in the performance of which a blank transfer, void under Stamp Act, 1882, has been given, & the transferee is liable to indemnify the transferor against calls. A purchaser, in accepting without objection a blank transfer, void under above Act, does not waive his right to a valid transfer, but dispenses with the delivery of such a transfer till he asks for it.—HAMILTON v. HULL, FENWICK v. HULL (1900), 19 N. Z. L. R. 49.—N.Z.

deposited with B., his stockbroker, the certificates of shares in a limited co., & executed a blank transfer to secure the balance of his current account. The arts. of the co. required that transfers of shares should be made by deed. Shortly afterwards B. filled up the blank transfer with the name of L. as transferee, & deposited the shares with L. as security for money borrowed, as he alleged, in pursuance of the general directions of A. Later on B. closed A.'s account & sold the shares. L., who was willing that the purchase should be completed applied to the co. to register the transfer to himself. In the meanwhile A., who had disputed B.'s account, had given the co. notice not to register. L. now moved, under 1862 Act, s. 65, to rectify the register by inserting his name. On production of the transfer it appeared that it contained no seal or wafer in the place of a seal, but only a mark on the paper of the place where the seal ought to be. The transfer was witnessed by B.'s clerk as having been signed, sealed, & delivered by A., but the attesting witness did not make any affidavit, & the evidence of A. & B. as to whether A. put his finger on the seal or not was contradictory:—Held: no order could be made on the motion; L. could have no right to be registered unless A. were estopped from denying that the transfer to L. was good, & this estoppel could only arise if the document delivered to L. were prima facie complete; it was not complete in the absence of a seal unless it was shown that it had been sealed, & for this the evidence was insufficient.—Re BALKIS CONSOLIDATED CO., LTD. (1888), 58 L. 2293. — Company acting as agents of purchaser—Execution by transferee.]—I., a resident in Smyrna, who employed a co. as his agents, directed them to buy shares in the co. for him. On May 2 they bought shares from M., who executed a transfer to I. on May 4, & left it at the co.'s office on the 7th. The next meeting of the directors was on the 10th; the co. stopped payment on the 11th, & a winding-up petition was presented on the 12th, on which an order was made. I. had signified to the co. his approval of the purchase, but, being in Smyrna, had not executed the transfer, & it had not been registered. An order having been made for rectifying the register by removing the name of M., it was proved on appeal, that although the arts. of assocn. did not prescribe any particular form of transfer, it had been the uniform practice of the co. to have shares transferred by deed executed both by transferor & transferee:—Held: (1) the directors were justified in not registering a transfer where the transfer deed had not been executed by the transferee; there had therefore been no default or unnecessary delay by the co. within 1862 Act, s. 35; & the name of M. could not be removed from the register; (2) the first duty of the co. as agents of the purchaser was to procure his execution of the transfer & until such execution they could not put him on the register.—Re IMPERIAL MERCANTILE CREDIT ASSOCN., MARINO'S

C. agreed to hold the shares upon the trusts expressed. The shares were afterwards transferred by A. to C. by deed, but the deed of settlement required a notice of all proposed transfers to be left at the office of the directors, which was not done. The assignment not having been registered when the first

A subsequent dividend was received by C., & paid over by him to A., who appropriated it as he had done with the former dividend:—Held: A. had ceased to be owner of the shares & was not properly included in the list of contributories. Seemle: non-compliance with the formal conditions required by the deed of settlement of a co. for transfer of the shares, does not vitiate a transfer by a shareholder.—Re TIPPERARY JOINT STOCK BANK,

2294. — Directors.]—A co. had incurred considerable losses, & unless credit was taken for the value of the goodwill, so much of the capital had been lost that the directors ought, according to the deed of settlement, to have dissolved the co. Reference was made to an accountant, whose report showed heavy losses, & recommended a change. Meetings of the co. were held, at which the accounts of the co. were shown; but this report was not mentioned to the shareholders. The existing directors all transferred their shares to other persons, who became directors. One of the existing directors agreed to transfer his shares to one of the new directors, payment being postponed, & to some extent contingent. A deed of transfer was executed by both. The transfer was entered on the register of transfers of the co. & returned to the Joint Stock Cos. Registry Office. The transferee did not execute a deed of covenant as required by the deed of settlement. By that deed the approval by the directors of a transferee was required, & a certificate of such approval was to be given. No certificate could be found, but there was evidence that such a certificate had been given, but that it was not signed at a meeting, & that two of the directors who signed it were interested in the transfer. A meeting of the co. was held on the day of the transfer, & another a year afterwards. A year after that the co. was wound up:—Held: (1) under the circumstances, the transfer was made bonâ fide, & the transferor was not a contributory; (2) the non-production of the report was not a ground for impeaching the transaction for fraud; (3) a director, though interested in it, was competent to approve of a transfer; (4) it was the duty of the directors to compel execution of a deed of covenant by the transferee, & the transferee could not be affected by their neglect, though both he & the transferor were directors; (5) the shareholders must have been aware of the transfer, & might have objected at the meetings if they did object; & the irregularities of the transfer could not be taken advantage of after the lapse of several years.

2298. —.]—On the formation of a co., their deed of settlement contained certain rules & regulations for the transfer of shares, one of which was, that every erasure or other alteration which should have been made by the directors in the share register book should, as between the co. & the last proprietor, be conclusive on such proprietor as to the title to the shares. There were also various provisions in the deed, framed for the purpose of preventing any fraud or improper transfer of shares, which it was the duty of the officer of the co. to see carried into effect. C., a proprietor of shares in the co., in the character or an exor., deposited the same with the secretary, for the purpose of his registering them in O.'s name; the secretary, instead of so doing, sold the shares to B., & received the purchase-money, & procured the erasure required by the deed to be made in the register book of the co., but the other regulations required by the deed to be observed on a transfer of shares were not complied with. The secretary having absconded, C. filed his bill against the chairman & secretary for the time being, pursuant to a clause in the deed, providing that those parties should sue & be sued on behalf of the co., seeking compensation against the co. in the nature of damages, in respect of the loss sustained by pltf., & a declaration of the ct. to that effect:—Held: on demurrer, filed by the two defts., the demurrer was good for want of equity, on the ground that the transfer, not being in accordance with the requisitions of the deed of settlement, did not bind the co.—DUNCAN v. t. Under sequestration order — Failure to complete title to shares—Cannot displace transferee duly entered on register.]—A person executed a transfer of railway shares & a year after his estates were sequestrated. After the sequestration the transfer was duly recorded by the transferee in the railway co.'s register of transfers. Many years after the registration of the transfer, the trustee in the sequestration, who had not taken the steps to complete his title by Companies Clauses Consolidation (Scotland) Act, 1845 (c. 17), s. 19, raised an action of reduction & reclamation against the transferee & the railway co. in which he claimed the shares on the ground that in virtue of the Act & warrant of confirmation in his favour, which the bankrupt statute declared to be equivalent to an intimated assignation, the shares vested in him at the date of the sequestration:—Held: the time criterion of the completion of a title upon a transfer of shares in a public co. was not a bare intimation to the co. but the reception of the transferee partner of the co. according to the forms prescribed by the statute, & therefore although the trustee at the date of sequestration was in a position to complete a title to the shares he had never complied with the statutory forms, he could not now displace the transferee who had been duly entered in the co.'s register as the holder of the shares.—MORRISON v. 2304. Notice of intended transfer—Notice not given—Transfer approved by board.]—In 1859, B., who was a director of a co. formed under 1844 Act, sold all his shares to M., the purchase-money not to be paid if the co. was wound up within two years. The co.'s deed of settlement required, on a transfer of shares, a previous notice to the directors; a certificate of approval by them of the transfer; also that the transferee should execute within a month, at the office of the co. or at such other place as the directors should reasonably require, a deed of covenant to abide by the rules of the co. The shares could be transferred only by deed of transfer executed by the transferor. Shortly before the sale of B.'s shares the directors had received an accountant's report of the state of the co.'s affairs, from which it appeared that eighty per cent. of the gross capital had been lost, but it appeared also that the goodwill & connection of the co. was of considerable value, either as a basis for further operations or on a transfer to another co. This report was not communicated to the shareholders. But there was a change of directors, B. & his co-directors transferring their shares to & retiring in favour of M. & others, who were also directors of a banking co. No formal notice of the intended transfer by B. was ever given, nor was any deed of covenant ever executed by or demanded of M. But B. executed a deed of transfer, & the transfer was subsequently approved by the new board of directors, M. himself being present, & notice of the transfer was sent to the registrar of joint-stock cos.:—Held: (1) the transfer was valid, though irregular; as M. & the other new directors had taken upon themselves to act, & were at various meetings recognised by the co. as directors, their consent to the transfer was, by 1844 Act, sect. 30, rendered a valid consent, although their qualification had been irregularly obtained, & it was a matter for the directors & no concern of B.'s whether the deed of covenant was or was not demanded of M.; (2) the transaction was not affected by the loss of capital, as the value of the goodwill might have turned the balance, if a proper estimate had been put upon it, & the goodwill was an asset of the co.; & whether the directors ought or not to have wound up the co. at that time, the transfer was not invalidated, since the co. was carried on for nearly two years afterwards.—*MURRAY v. Shortly after the passing of the above Act certain Bank of New Zealand shares were transferred to resps., who immediately transferred them to other persons. Both transfers were presented together to the bank for registration on July 13, 1894. The bank officials purported to accept & register the transfer to resps., but to reject the transfer from them. Neither transfer was approved by the directors or authorised in writing by the President, the then directors & President being abroad. On Sept. 6, 1894, resps. received new scrip in their names, & gave a receipt therefor. In Nov. 1894, the bank made a call, which it now sued for. Resps., as one defence, denied that they were shareholders when the call was made:—Held: even if the requirements of the statute could be waived, there was no waiver, & no facts existed which would estop resps. from setting up the provisions of the above sect.—*BANK OF NEW ZEALAND v. (c) Waiver of Non-Compliance.

2315. By universal disregard.]—In a joint-stock co. fifty shares belonging to the co. were transferred & accepted by the transferee, & an entry of the transaction was made in the share ledger of the co. By the deed of settlement certain formalities were to be complied with, without which it was declared that no transfer should have any force either at law or in equity. These formalities had been universally disregarded in the transactions of the co., & were not complied with in this case:—Held: there must be taken to have been an universal consent to disregard the provisions of the deed in this respect, & the transferee effectually became a shareholder as between himself & the shareholders generally.—Re VALE OF NEATH & SOUTH WALES BREWERY CO., Ex p. WALTERS (1850), 19 L. J. Ch. 501, L. C.; subsequent proceedings, sub nom. Re VALE OF NEATH & SOUTH WALES BREWERY CO., WALTERS' SECOND CASE, 3 De G. & Sm. 244.

2316. By transferee acting & being treated as member—Exercise of rights of membership.]—The owner of several shares in a steam-packet co. transferred two of them to his son, by a document which was not executed by the son, nor entered in the co.'s books, nor otherwise perfected according to the provisions of the deed of constitution. The son was not aware of the transfer. By a rule of the co. every proprietor was always entitled to a free passage by the co.'s vessels, & the son, on several occasions, obtained certificates from the co.'s office that he was a proprietor, which entitled him to a free passage; & he also signed each certificate, & the co.'s books in respect of these certificates as proprietor, & obtained a free passage accordingly, but he never received dividends, nor did any other act as a proprietor:—Held: the son was a contributory in respect of such two shares.—Re ST. GEORGE'S STEAM PACKET CO., MAGUIRE'S CASE (1849), 3 De G. & Sm. 31; 18 L. J. Ch. 256; 13 L. T. O. S. 342; 13 Jur. 673; 64 E. R. 367.

2317. — Receipt of dividends & notices.]—27 shares in a joint-stock trading co. were assigned by two shareholders to a purchaser in 1842. Notice thereof was given to the secretary in 1843, & he made an entry of the transfers in pencil in the share ledger of the co. The co. was dissolved in May, 1847, & in Aug. following the secretary perfected in ink the entry which he had so made in pencil; but other formalities required by the co.'s deed of settlement to render transfers of shares valid were not complied with. The purchaser, by letter, in 1843, requested that the dividend on his shares should be paid to a specified individual; & a dividend, which was the only dividend then payable, was paid accordingly. Notices of meetings & of other proceedings usually sent to shareholders were regularly sent to the purchaser; & in reply to one of such notices in 1845 the purchaser wrote to the secretary concurring in a proposal then made to sell the co.'s place of business, & therewith to pay its liabilities. That letter was recorded in the minutes of the meeting, at which a resolution to the proposed effect was come to:—Held: there was a complete agreement on the part of the purchaser to become a shareholder, & an acceptance of him, as such, by persons having the management of the affairs of the co., who were competent to act as they did; & the purchaser's name was properly placed upon the list of contributories.—Re VALE OF NEATH & SOUTH WALES BREWERY CO., GORDON'S CASE (1850), 3 De G. & Sm. 249; 64 E. The broker fraudulently filled up the blank with the numbers & description of other shares belonging to pltf., but in a different co., namely, that of defts., & passed the transfer as a genuine transfer to a purchaser. By the rules of defts.' co. it was necessary to produce certificates of the shares before a purchaser's name could be entered on the register as the holder of the shares. The certificates of the shares in question were kept by pltf. in a box in the broker's custody. The box was locked, & pltf. kept the key. The broker, however, managed to get a duplicate key & stole the certificates, & produced them with the transfer, & the name of the purchaser was registered. 2333. — Transfer indorsed on certificates—

Certificates left in hands of brokers—Priorities on fraudulent dealings by brokers.]—(1) A New York Co. issued to registered shareholders share certificates; each certificate being for ten shares, & on the back being a blank form of transfer, & a blank form of power of attorney to execute a surrender & cancellation of the certificate. The mode of transfer was as follows: the transfer & power of attorney were signed by the registered shareholder. When this blank transfer reached the hand of some holder who desired to be registered his name was filled in by himself or on his behalf, & the certificate was left with the co.; it was then cancelled, the transferee was registered, & a new certificate in his name was issued. In Aug. 1883, the brokers of deft. purchased for him on the market certain shares in the co. The certificates were permitted by deft. to remain with the brokers; who, in Nov. 1883, deposited them with plffs. as security for a large sum borrowed by them from the bank. On Dec. 11, following the bank re-delivered to the brokers the certificates for the shares on the ground that they were desirous of sending them in for registration, & on the same day the brokers filled in the name & address of deft. on the blank transfers & forms of surrender of the same certificates as the person in whose name the shares were to be registered. The new certificates were made out in deft.'s name, & were ready for issue on Dec. 20. The blank transfers on the back of these certificates were never signed by deft. On Dec. 11, when the brokers handed the certificates to the agents of the co. for registration, they received from them a receipt which they then sent to plffs., which receipt plffs. kept till the beginning of Feb. 1884, when having learnt that a member of the firm of brokers had absconded, they sent a clerk to the agents with the receipt, & obtained from them the new certificates for the shares which up to the commencement of the action remained in the possession.

Plffs. claimed a declaration that they were entitled to the shares:—Held: the case did not fall within the principle of estoppel, & deft. was the legal owner of the shares, & entitled to have the new certificates handed to him.

(2) No estoppel can be raised on a document inconsistent with the document itself.

(3) The right principle to adopt with reference to documents such as the certificates with blank transfers duly signed by the registered holders is that each prior holder confers on the bond fide holders for value of the certificates for the time being an authority to fill in the name of the transferee, & is estopped from denying such authority & to this extent, but no further, is estopped from denying the title of such holder for the time being.

(4) By delivery an inchoate legal title passes but a title by unregistered transfer is not equivalent to the legal estate in the shares or to the complete dominion over them.—COLONIAL BANK v. HEF. WORTH (1887), 36 Ch. D. 36; 56 L. J. Ch. 1089; 57 L. T. 148; 36 W. R. 259; 3 T. L. R. 650.

2334. — — — — —.]—The registered owner of shares in a New York co. held certificates which stated that the shares were held by him & were transferable in person or by attorney on the books of the co. only on the surrender & cancellation of the certificate by an indorsement thereof. The indorsement was in the form of a transfer for value received, blank in the names of the transferor & transferee with a power of attorney in blank to carry out the transfer. On the death of the owner his exors. obtained probate of his will, & in order that the shares might be registered in their own names signed as exors. the transfers on the back of each certificate, without filling up the blanks, & sent the certificates to their broker, who fraudulently deposited the certificates with a bank which took them bond fide & without notice as security for advances. The bank retained the certificates & took no steps to obtain registration. By the law of New York such a delivery of signed transfers by the registered owner of shares would estop him from setting up his title against a purchaser for value without notice. But neither on the New York nor on the London Stock Exchange are transfers so signed by exors. treated as being in order or received as sufficient security for advances, unless duly authenticated. The exors. having brought an action against the bank to establish their title to the certificates:—Held: since all the dealings with the certificates were transacted in England by persons domiciled there, the respective rights of the exors. & the bank must be determined by English law; the conduct of the exors. in delivering the transfers was consistent either with an intention to sell or pledge the shares or to have themselves registered as the owners, & therefore did not estop them from setting up their title as against the bank, for the bank ought to have inquired into the broker's authority.—*COLONIAL BANK v. 2335. ————.]—Pltf. purchased through stockbrokers, & paid for, a number of ordinary shares in a co. The certificates delivered by the vendor to the brokers bore on the back transfers signed in blank by the vendor as the registered holder. Pltf. left the certificates in the possession of his brokers, & on their advice consented to the shares remaining registered in the name of the vendor. Pltf. knew that certificates indorsed as these were, could be transferred to & registered in the name of another person without any act on the part of pltf. The brokers subsequently, without the knowledge or consent of pltf., deposited the certificates with deft. bank as security for advances made by the bank to them, & the shares were registered, at the request of the brokers, in the names of the bank's nominees. The brokers subsequently defaulted, owing a sum to deft. bank largely in excess of the value of the shares. Pltf. brought this action against deft. bank to recover the shares so deposited by the brokers with them:—Held: pltf. was estopped from claiming the certificates from deft. bank who had taken them in good faith & for value.—FULLER v. Position of transferee—As to title—Title derived through intermediate party.]—(1) The holder of 120 £20 shares in a co. having afterwards become entitled to sixty additional £2 shares, instructed his broker to sell the latter. The broker obtained from him blank transfers with stamps sufficient to pass the £20 shares, & filled in the blanks for the descriptions of the shares with those of the £20 shares, leaving the names of the transferees in blank. The shares were purchased by jobbers, the blanks for the names of the transferees remaining in blank, which appeared to be a common course of dealing. The jobbers afterwards sold them, & filled in the name of the ultimate purchaser:—Held: the transfer in blank was void, & the first-mentioned holder was entitled to have the shares delivered up, & their registration in the name of the purchaser restrained.

Q. inserted the date & his own name as transferee in the transfer:—Held: C. was in the position of an equitable mtgee. of the shares, & could only transfer to Q. such rights as he himself had against F.; the blank transfer when taken by Q. from C. conferred no legal authority upon him, & he had no authority from pltf. to insert his own name as transferee; &, on payment of £150 & interest, F. was entitled to have the shares re-transferred to him.

The purchaser pledged them with the I. P. L. & China Bank, & deposited with them the blank transfer. This bank applied to the National Bank without producing a letter from the pledgor to register their lien, & on its refusal sold the shares to pltf., & delivered to him the transfer, also in blank. Pltf. inserted his own name in the transfer, & requested the National Bank to register the shares in his name. C. brought an action against the bank to establish his right to be registered as the owner of the stock:—Held: the bank was guilty of negligence, under the circumstances in leaving the certificate outstanding, & by this negligence allowed A. to represent himself as the owner of the stock & therefore C. had a superior equity to the stock.—KELLY v. The arts. of the co. did not require a deed. The broker improperly deposited the blank transfer & certificate with deft. as security for his own debt. Deft. afterwards filled up the blank transfer with the date, consideration, & name of transferee, & sent it for registration to the office of the co., where it lay for more than a fortnight without being registered. The co. had then no notice of any invalidity in the transfer, & had no power under the arts. to refuse to register the transfer. Pltf. on discovering the facts brought this action to restrain registration & establish his title to the shares:—Held: deft. had acquired no title to the shares as against pltf.; &, therefore, deft. had no inchoate title which was capable of being treated as completed by registration according to the doctrine that an unconditional right to have a transfer registered may be equivalent to actual registration.—FOX v. The purchaser on receiving the transfers paid the purchase-money, & subsequently resold some of the shares & filled up the transfers with the names of the sub-purchasers & the dates of the sub-purchases. In the interval the original vendor had been adjudicated bkpt. & the co. on that account declined to register the transfers so filled up. On a bill filed by the original purchaser against bkpt.'s assignees they were ordered to transfer the shares. The co. was formed under 1844 Act, but the original purchaser, who was himself a transferee of the shares, had not been registered in respect of them:—Held: he was not

The liquidator of the co. proved for the amount of calls against deft.'s estate, but a part was paid, & pltf. having paid a sum in compromise of the money remaining due on the shares sued deft. for the amount:—Held: deft. was liable to indemnify pltf. against calls made after deft. had transferred his interest to M.; & the claim of pltf. was not provable under Bankruptcy Act, 1861 (c. 134), s. 153, & deft.'s deed therefore afforded no defence.—KELLOCK v. 2359. Whether dispensed with—Usual practice of company—Transfer registered.]—BARGATE v. SHORTRIDGE, No. 2378, post.

2360. —.]—By the deed of settlement & charter of a bank it was provided that, upon a transfer of shares taking place, seven days' previous notice in writing of the proposed transfer, specifying the various particulars, should be given to the directors before any transfer could be made & that after the consent of the directors had been given, the transfer should be executed & delivered to the secretary to be registered, whereupon a new certificate was to be delivered to the transferee. The co. had departed from this form, & the usual practice had been for the secretary to deliver out a blank form of transfer without any previous notice, & when returned, filled up & executed, it was registered, & new certificates handed to the transferee. Certain shareholders who had executed the transfer, but whose transfers had not been registered, objected to being placed upon the list of contributories, on the ground that the consent of the directors had been practically dispensed with in all previous transfers:—Held: although the seven days' notice had been waived for the sake of facilitating transfers, the consent of the directors was necessary, which consent was proved by the registry on the books of the co.; & consequently, the objecting shareholders were liable as contributories.—Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, Ex p. & refused to register the transfer until the call due on the partly-paid shares had been paid. In a petition for rectification of the register:—Held: the right of the transferee to be put on the register was not affected by the resolution passed subsequent to the date of the transfer, he was in the same position as on the date when the transfer was presented for registration, & he was entitled to be put on the register accordingly.—M'ARTHUR (W. & A.), LTD. c. Construction of articles—Restriction on transfer.]—The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. contained the following arts.: Art. 12. The directors may, after Dec. 31, 1888, without assigning any reason therefor, decline to register any successor to a deceased member other than a purchaser. Art. 13. The directors may from the commencement of the co., in like manner, decline to register any successor to a bkpt. member, or any transfers of shares to purchasers or others.

2362. — Director refusing to attend to form quorum.—The arts. of assocn. of a private co. provided that no share should be transferred to any person not already a member without the consent of the directors. There were two directors only, E. & P., E. being the chairman & having in that character a casting vote. The quorum necessary for the transaction of business was two. E. without first having obtained the consent of the board, executed transfers of some of his shares to persons not already members of the co., & sent the transfers to the co. for registration. P. purposely refused to attend board meetings summoned to consider the transfers in order to prevent a quorum being formed. On an application by the transferees under 1908 Act, s. 32:—Held: (1) the arts. did not require the directors' consent to be obtained before the execution of the transfers & the transfers therefore were not inoperative documents though they had no legal effect till the consent of the directors had been obtained & registration effected; (2) P. could not by wilfully refusing to attend board meetings prevent the transfers from being registered & the transferees under the circumstances were entitled to an order directing the co. to register the transfers.—Re COPAL VARNISH CO., LTD., [1917] 2 Ch. 349; 87 L. 2363. Whether condition waived — Delay in registration.—The directors of a co., by a clause in the arts. of assocn., had power to refuse to register any transfer to an irresponsible transferee:—Held: it being a condition precedent to the transfer, that the transferee should be a responsible person, undue delay in registering a transfer left for registration was no waiver of such condition.—Re JOINT STOCK DISCOUNT CO., SHIPMAN'S CASE (1868), L. Art. 14. If such declinature is made as above provided for, the co. shall be bound to purchase the shares in question at the price at which they were valued under sect. 61 of these arts. In an action brought by the widow & extrix. of a person who held certain partly paid-up shares against the co. for declarator that the co. were bound to register her as owner of the shares, the co. in defence founded on art. 12 as entitling them to decline to register the pursuer, but offered to find a purchaser of the shares at the valuation under art. 61. Pursuer maintained that art. 12 was qualified by art. 14, & that as the co. could not legally purchase the shares art. 12 was inoperative:—Held: art. 14 did not qualify art. 12 by a condition, but merely created an obligation which could not be enforced, & defenders were entitled under art. 12 to refuse to register the pursuer.—MOIR v. DUFF & Co. (1900), 2 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 265; 37 Sc. L. R. 985.—SCOT.

of the shares pro tanto in satisfaction of her jus relictæ provided she could be registered as a shareholder. The directors having refused to register the transfer in the widow's favour of one share which the exors. had executed, for the purpose of having the question determined, the widow raised an action against the directors for decree ordaining them to register the transfer. The widow was one of the original shareholders of the co. & was on the register as the holder of one share. Pursuer maintained that she was entitled to registration de plano under art. 37 as being "a person becoming entitled to a share or shares in consequence of the death of a member"; alternatively, if her rights depended on art. 33 pursuer maintained that she was entitled to registration in respect that the director's refusal to register was corrupt & fraudulent, & in any case that the valuation made by the directors under art. 113, at which valuation they found a purchaser, was far below the true value of the shares:—Held: (1) pursuer's rights were regulated by art. 33 & not by art. 37; (2) defenders in refusing to register pursuer's transfer had not acted corruptly or capriciously & their valuation of the shares was not unreasonable.—*STEWART v. (b) Exercise of Power.

i. In General.

2364. How to be exercised—With a view to securing proper transferees—Not for purposes of a compromise.—(1) By the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co., it was provided that a shareholder who wished to sell his shares must give notice to the directors, stating the name & address of the proposed transferee; that the directors should then take the matter into consideration, & signify their approval or disapproval of the transfer, & that in case of their approval the transfer might be completed. A., the lessor of mines held by the co., had a large claim for rent, & his son B. had also a large demand against the co. Dissensions having arisen in the co., a large body of shareholders wished to retire, & an arrangement was come to between them & the directors that they should be allowed to transfer their shares to B. & another person on paying £9,000 for the use of the co. This arrangement was carried out, & the shares were regularly transferred; & as a part of the same transaction, A. & B. executed deeds for releasing the retiring shareholders from all liability in respect of their demands:—Held: the power given to the directors of consenting to a transfer of shares was to be exercised with regard to the circumstances of each transfer, with a view to securing proper transferees, & could not be exercised for the purpose of carrying out a compromise, by which a body of dissatisfied shareholders were to be let out of the co.; the transfers in question were therefore not binding on the co., & the transferors were properly placed on the list of contributories.

At the trial it appeared that in July, 1847, deft. who was an original shareholder, agreed through a broker to sell his shares to T. The broker, in order to carry this sale into effect, went to the bank, & there delivered to one of the clerks a notice, dated Aug. 21, 1847, of deft.'s intention to sell his shares. The power conferred on the directors by the arts. of assocn. was a fiduciary power to be exercised for the benefit of the co., & could not be exercised until the question of each transfer together with the names of the transferor & the transferee was before them & they had an opportunity of considering each case.—Re NEW GREAT EASTERN SPINNING & WEAVING CO.,

Such a discretion though the terms are absolute, is in the nature of a trust, & therefore must not be exercised capriciously or unjustly where directors refuse on their cross-examination on their affidavits to give their reason for declining to register a transfer of shares the ct. may infer the true reasons for such refusal from the evidence before it.—Re SHAW & CO., LTD., HUGHES' CASE (1896), 21 V. co.'s deed of settlement were printed. One clause provided that no person should be registered as a shareholder without the consent of the board of directors, who might testify the same by a certificate signed by three directors, a form of which was given; another provided that, before such certificate should be given the price to be received for the shares proposed to be transferred should be sent in writing by the vendor to the board of directors; & the third provided that in case the board of directors should refuse their consent, they should, at the request of the holder, be obliged to purchase the shares. The broker, together with the notice, delivered to the clerk at the bank deft.'s certificate of his shares, & asked if the transfer would be allowed. The clerk went into an inner room, & came out, saying that the transfer would be accepted. On Aug. 25, T. paid deft. the price of the shares, & on the next day received a certificate signed by three directors, certifying that he was the proprietor of these shares, & that they stood in his name in "The Share Register Book." No consent to the transfer was ever given by a board of directors; but the certificate, which was not in the form prescribed by the above clause, was signed, first by the managing director, & afterwards by the two others, separately at their private residences. T. on receiving this certificate, signed a receipt which was delivered to & kept by the bank, in which T. stated that he was the holder of these shares, & that, having executed the deed of settlement he agreed to abide by the rules & regulations of the co. Soon afterwards the managing directors caused the transfer to be entered in "The Share Register Book." On Jan. 14, 1848, a board of directors was held, & by their direction an entry was made, declaring the transfer to T. null & void. For five or six years past all transfers of shares had been made in the same manner:—Held: there was no such consent to the transfer by "a board of directors," as required by the deed of settlement, & this irregular mode of transfer, though adopted for some years, was wholly ineffectual, & consequently deft. remained liable as a shareholder.

2377. — Substantial compliance—Notice of transfer signed instead of instrument of transfer.]—By a clause in the deed of settlement, shareholders were allowed to sell & transfer their shares with the consent of the directors, such consent to be testified by the managing directors signing their names in the margin of the instrument of transfer. This was not done, but across the notice to the directors of the vendor's intention to sell was written the word "transferred" signed by a director. The deed, which was executed in the place of the deed of settlement, was not signed by the purchaser, but in his name by a member of his family, who was in the habit of signing for him, but this was unknown to the directors; & the purchaser subsequently received regularly the dividends upon the shares. The deed of settlement contained a clause, that all sales & transfers of any shares not made conformably to the provisions of the deed of settlement, & according to the regulations of the directors, shall be invalid at law & in equity:—Held: all matters of substance having been complied with, & the deed, which was executed, being considered equivalent to an execution of the original deed by the purchaser, the purchaser was properly placed on the list of contributories. Semble: if any formalities have been wanting upon a sale & transfer of shares, either the seller or the purchaser has a right in this ct. as against the other to compel him to do all acts necessary; as to the seller, to relieve him from all liability as owner; as to the purchaser, to clothe him with the complete legal interest. Re NORTH OF ENGLAND JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., STRAFFON'S EXECUTORS' CASE (1852), 1 De G. 2378. — As against company—Signed by directors separately.]—The deed of settlement of a banking co. allowed shareholders to dispose of their shares upon obtaining "the consent of the board of directors," which was to be testified by "a certificate in writing, signed by three of the directors." During the whole time that the bank carried on business a managing director received the applications for sales of shares, consented, & signed the certificate of "consent," which was afterwards signed by two other directors, but was never signed by the three assembled as a board. S., a shareholder, had at various times, with such consents, sold his shares. The directors, under Country Bankers Act, 1826 (c. 46), made a return to that effect. The co. failed, & the directors passed a resolution declaring that there had been no valid transfer of the shares of S.:—Held: as between him & the co. the consents given by the directors, although informal & irregular, were valid, & they could not afterwards treat S. as a member of the co.—*BARGATE v. Afterwards an arrangement was made between the second co. & the directors of the first co. for rescinding the amalgamation, & the directors of the first co. thereupon elected several new directors, of whom A. was one, & at a meeting of directors at which A. was present a transfer of 200 shares out of A.'s name was sanctioned. The transfer was registered, & the co. was now being wound up. The arts. only gave the directors powers to refuse to sanction a transfer on condition of their getting some other transferee to take the shares at the market price. But at the time of A.'s transfer the shares were worse than valueless:—Held: (1) the transfer by A. was invalid, & he was properly placed on the list of contributories for the 200 shares; (2) the agreement with the corpn. amounted to a virtual dissolution of the co., after which the shares were incapable of being transferred.—Re ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE CO., ALLIN'S CASE (1873), L. (d) Refusal of Consent.

i. In General.

2388. What amounts to—Refusal to register—Whether disapproval within article avoiding disapproved transfers.—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that the directors might refuse to register a transfer of shares while the shareholder making the same was indebted to the co., or if they should consider the transferee an irresponsible person. It was also provided that persons becoming entitled to shares in consequence of the death, insolvency, or bkpcy. of a shareholder might be registered on the production of such evidence as might from time to time be required by the directors, & that any transfer or pretended transfer of shares not being approved by the directors should be absolutely void.

A holder of shares in the co. executed transfers of such shares to the nominees of a bank as a security for advances. The co. refused to register these transfers, on the ground that the transferor was indebted to the co. Subsequently, the transferor having filed a liquidation petition, a trustee in liquidation was duly appointed. Such trustee, with the consent of the bank & their nominees, applied to the directors of the co. to be registered as the owner of the shares, but they refused the application. The bank, though consenting to the trustee's registration, had never waived their security:—Held: the declining to register the transfers by the directors was not a disapproval of them so as to render them void within the meaning of the arts.; the trustee was not entitled to the shares within the meaning of the arts. so long as the transfers remained in force; & the trustee was not entitled to be registered, notwithstanding the consent of the transferees.—*Re CANNOCK & RUGELEY COLLIERY CO., Ex p. —(1) If directors in the fair & bonâ fide exercise of their powers under the co.'s contract, as managers of the co., & in circumstances which make it a reasonable act of management, resolve not to record future transfers which may seriously affect & alter the liability of the partners, the resolution will be effectual, & the directors in declining to record the transfers cannot be held to be in default within the meaning of sect. 35 of the 1862 Act. Before the commencement of the winding up, but after the stoppage, & after the publishing of a notice by the directors calling a special general meeting of the shareholders of the City of Glasgow Bank, for the purpose of passing a resolution to have the bank wound up by reason of its irretrievable insolvency; & after a resolution by the directors that they would not record any future transfers, one of four trustees whose names appeared as such on the bank register resigned his office of trusteeship under Trusts, S. Act, 1861 (c. 84), s. 1, with the consent of his co-trustees & the beneficiaries. A notarial copy of the resignation was sent the next day to the bank, but the directors refused to alter the register by affixing a note, or in any other way:—Held: the resignation was too late to exempt the trustee from personal liability.

(2) The trustee's resignation of his trusteeship alone would not terminate his liability. He ceased to be a trustee; but it remained for him to terminate his liability in respect of the bank by a transfer, or something equivalent to a transfer, of his shares (LORD CAIRNS, C.).

(3) After the issuing of the shareholders & the public of a circular calling a meeting, with a view to the necessary resolution for a voluntary winding up, it is too late for any shareholder to part with his shares, either to the co-partnership itself or to any other person (LORD SELBORNE).—Re CITY OF GLASGOW BANK, MITCHELL'S CASE (1879), 4 App. Cas. 548, 567; *sub nom. Such a discretion though the terms are absolute, is in the nature of a trust, & therefore must not be exercised capriciously or unjustly where directors refuse, on the cross-examination on their affidavits, to give their reason for declining to register a transfer of shares the ct. may infer the true reasons for such refusal from the evidence before it.—Re SHAW & CO., LTD., HUGHES' CASE (1896), 21 V. It was also provided that shares should be transferred only at the discretion of the directors:—Held: the directors might properly, in the exercise of their discretion, refuse to register a transfer of a share where the whole beneficial interest in the share was retained by the trans-

On Oct. 2, the co. suspended payment, & the directors knew that its insolvency was irretrievable. On Oct. 5, an extraordinary meeting of the co.'s shareholders was summoned by circular for Oct. 22, to pass a resolution to wind up the co. voluntarily, on account of its insolvency. On Oct. 11, the seller was informed that the co. had been the purchasers, they having the power to purchase their own stock by their arts. of copartnership. On Oct. 15, the co. refused to prepare a transfer of the stock to themselves; & on Oct. 18 they refused to register an unilateral deed of transfer which was delivered to them by a notary public. On Oct. 19, the shareholder presented a petition for rectification of the bank's register by the deletion of his name therefrom. On Oct. 22, the extraordinary resolution to wind up voluntarily was passed. The liquidators placed the shareholder's name on the list of contributories. In a question under 1862 Act, s. 35:—Held: (1) it would have been improper for the directors under the circumstances to have registered the transfer on Oct. 16, & therefore, the shareholder's name was rightly included in the list of contributories; (2) it was unnecessary in this case to decide whether the contract of sale was null & void under 30 & 31 Vict. c. 29; (3) applt. was liable as a contributory in the winding up of the co., & the directors had been guilty of no default or unnecessary delay within 1862 Act, s. 35, in refusing to execute the transfer of his shares.—*MITCHELL (NELSON) v. 2398 i. ——— Debt due & payable.—A limited co., incorporated under Companies Acts, has, at common law, a right of retention over the shares of a partner in security of debts due by him to the co. The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. bore that the co. should have a first & permanent lien on the shares of members for any debts due by them, & might refuse to register a transfer by such members. The trustee of a bkpt. shareholder, who owed the co. money, applied to be put upon the register of shareholders, in respect of the bkpt.'s shares, & founded on one of the arts. of assocn., which provided that any one becoming interested in a share in consequence of the bkpcy. of a shareholder might be registered:—Held: the co. had a lien over the shares in respect of the debt due to them, both at common law & under the arts., & were entitled to decline the application.—*SHARP (BELL'S TRUSTEE) v. 2399. ——— 1862 Act, Table A, art. 10—Application of clause—Transmission by devolution of law.—1862 Act, Sched. 1, Table A., art. 10 does not apply to persons claiming shares by transmission under art. 13 of the Table. Therefore, where a co. has adopted Table A. as its arts. of assocn., it cannot refuse to register the name of a trustee in bkpcy. of a shareholder on the ground that the shareholder is indebted to the co.—Re BENTHAM MILLS SPINNING Co. (1879), 11 Ch. 2400. ——— Indebtedness on any account.—The provision in 1862 Act, Sched. 1, Table A, art. 10—that “the co. may decline to register any transfer of shares made by a member who is indebted to them”—is not limited to cases where the member is indebted for calls or otherwise in respect of the particular share proposed to be transferred, but enables the co. to decline to register the transfer if the member is indebted to them on any account whatever.—Ex p. STRINGER (1882), 9 Q. B. D. 436.

See, now, 1908 Act, Table A, arts. 9, 20.

2401. Time for ascertaining.—(1) Under 1862 Act, s. 22, the right to transfer his shares is incident to every shareholder; &, therefore, a director-shareholder has as much right as any ordinary shareholder to transfer his shares & to have his transfer registered, unless he falls within a provision in the co.'s arts. of assocn. enabling the directors to refuse registration where the shareholder seeking to transfer is “indebted to the co. in respect of calls or otherwise”; & the ct. will, on an application by the director-shareholder under 1862 Act, s. 35, exercise its power of compelling registration provided there is no equity against him as director, such as having been party to a postponement of a call to enable him to get rid of his shares & so evade liability.

(2) Where the arts. of assocn. of a limited co. give the directors a discretion to refuse to register a transfer of shares by a shareholder if he is indebted to the co., the time at which it is to be ascertained whether he is indebted or not is when the transfer is sent to the proper officer of the co. for registration, & not when it subsequently comes before debtor, the terms of which are incompatible with its retention or which show an intention to waive it. Where an indebted shareholder applied to the co. for time & the indulgence was granted in consideration of his giving a promissory note & authorising certain shares, other than those on which there was such a lien, to be sold on default without the delay prescribed by the arts.:—Held: no limitation of the lien was thereby contemplated by either party, & a transfer by the indebted shareholder of the shares subject to the lien, without the approval of the directors, should be refused.—BANK OF AFRICA v. SALISBURY GOLD MINING Co., LTD. (1890), 11 N. L. 11. 41; (1891), 13 N. L. R. 94.—S. AF.

The transferee presented the transfer for registration, & according to the existing regulations of the co. was then entitled to be put on the register. Thereafter the co., by special resolution duly confirmed, & for the purpose of defeating this application altered the arts. of assocn. to the effect of giving the co. a lien on all shares registered a board-meeting for registration. Thus, where H., a shareholder, who was also a director, executed a transfer of his shares for value, & thereupon the transferee sent it in to the secretary of the co. for registration as required by the arts. of assocn., & shortly afterwards the transfer was submitted by the secretary to the directors at a board-meeting for registration, but the board declined to register it, & passed a resolution for a call:—Held: under the co.'s arts. of assocn. the directors had a discretion to refuse registration only where the shareholder seeking to transfer was "indebted to the co. in respect of calls or otherwise"; & as H. was not so indebted at the time his transfer was sent in to the secretary, they were bound to register, even though he was a director & was aware when he executed the transfer that a call was imminent.

(3) A resolution for a call, to be valid, must state not only the amount of the call, but also the time at which it is to be paid. Thus, where the directors of a co. passed a resolution for a call, & the resolution fixed the sum per share to be called up, but left the date at which it was to be paid in blank, & some time afterwards a resolution was passed fixing the date for payment, & notices of the call were sent to the shareholders:—Held: there was no proper call made until the second resolution fixing the date of payment, & the second resolution did not, in point of date, relate back to the first.—Re CAWLEY & Co. (1889), 42 Ch. D. 209; sub nom. Re CAWLEY & Co., LTD., Ex p. HALLETT, 58 L. J. Ch. 633; 61 L. T. 601; 37 W. R. 692; 5 T. L. R. 549; 1 Meg. 251, C. A.

in the name of a member for all calls due on any shares registered in the name of such member, & refused to register the transfer until the call due on the partly-paid shares had been paid. In a petition for rectification of the register:—Held: the right of the transferee to be put on the register was not affected by the resolution passed subsequent to the date of the transfer, & he was in the same position as on the date when the transfer was presented for registration, & he was entitled to be put on the register accordingly.—*M'ARTHUR (W. & A.), LTD. c. Transferee personally objectionable.]—Where directors of a co. are empowered by the arts. of assocn. to decline to register any transfer of shares not fully paid up, or any transfer of any shares to any person of whom they do not approve, or to enter the name of the transferee in the register of members in respect of the shares, such power will entitle them to decline to place on the register of shareholders the name of a person who, in consequence of the death of a member having shares not fully paid, has under the arts. been elected by the exor. as transferee of the shares in his stead, but of whom the directors do not

By their deed of settlement no shareholder was have more than twenty votes, however large the number of shares held, & the directors had power to approve or disapprove of any person proposed by a shareholder as a transferee of his shares. difference arose among the shareholders as to the management of the co., & pltf., who was a large shareholder, transferred some of his shares to one person for value, & other shares to another person as trustee for himself, in order to increase his voting power. The directors refused to approve of the transfers, not from any personal objection to the transferees, but on the ground that the transfers were colourable, & were intended to increase the votes of the transferor:—Held: (1) the co. was not a mere partnership, but came within the laws applicable to joint stock cos.; (2) the directors had no power to refuse a transfer, which was a right of property, except upon personal objection to the transferee.—*MOFFATT v. 2404. Membership of transferee contrary to interests of company—Confined to personal grounds.]—A power for directors to refuse to register transfers of shares if "in their opinion it is contrary to the interests of the co. that the proposed transferee should be a member thereof" only justifies a refusal to register upon grounds personal to the proposed transferee. It does not justify refusal to register transfers of single shares or shares in small numbers because the directors do not think it desirable to increase the number of shareholders, or because they think that the transfer is not bona fide, but that the transferee is the mere nominee of the transferor, & the transfer is made to increase the number of shareholders who will support him in a policy which approve.—AUSTRALIAN DEPOSIT & MORTGAGE BANK, LTD. v. ROBERTSON (1897), 22 V. L. R. 549.—AUS.

2403 i. Transferee undesirable as having interests in business or company of same nature—Member of rival company.]—A power given by regulations in absolute & general terms to directors of cos. to refuse to register a transfer of shares must be exercised with due regard to interests of shareholders of the co. & those of the transferee, & possibly also with due regard to interests of transferor & creditors of co. Where directors in exercise of such power have refused to register transfer of shares, on application by the transferee to rectify the register of co. will not set aside the decision of the directors if they have acted honestly & within their powers.

Arts. of a co. provided that the directors may decline to register transfer of shares except by operation of law:—Held: the directors had power to refuse to register a transfer of shares on ground that transferor was conducting a rival business to the co. & was stated to be actually desirous of purchasing co.'s business.—Re MONT DE PIETÉ LOAN & DEPOSIT Co., LTD., Ex p. ALEXANDER & AUR, [1907] V. L. R. 660.—AUS.

2403 ii. ———.]—The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. contained the following provisions: "The co. shall have a first & paramount lien upon the shares of each member for his debts, liabilities & engagements, solely or jointly with any other person, to or with the co. whether the period of the payment, fulfilment, or discharge thereof shall have actually arrived or not," etc. "The directors may decline to register any transfer of shares." There was also a power of sale to enforce the lien. A shareholder against whom the co. had an action pending applied to the co. to register a transfer of his shares. It was proved that the transferee was an active trade rival of the co., & that the transfer was dated subsequent to the initiation of the proceedings against the transferor. Also that the directors of a meeting fully discussed & considered the question of the respective rights & positions of the transferor & transferee, & refused to register the transfer. The directors opposed the application, on the ground that it would be inimical to the co.'s interests to register the transfer, & also that they had a lien over the shares pending the result of the litigation:—Held: the question of registration was one essentially for the directors; that they had acted honestly, & with excellent reason, & they had a right to refuse, at their discretion, to register any transfer of appct.'s shares until the determination of the pending litigation; & there was reasonable ground for supposing that appct. was under an existing liability within the meaning of the arts.—*Re MAXWELL, Ex p. iv. Where Article provides for Alternative Transferee.

2405. Alternative purchase of shares by company—Company without funds.—The deed of settlement of a joint-stock banking co. provided that no person should become a shareholder without the consent of the directors; & in case the board should refuse to consent to any transfer of shares, they should, at the request of the holder, be obliged to purchase the same out of the funds & on behalf of the co., at a price, in case the parties should not agree, to be fixed by arbitration. Pltf. contracted to sell his shares, but the board refused to consent to the transfer, & he then required the board to purchase them. Pltf.'s shares not being purchased for the co., he filed his bill to compel the co. to purchase the shares:—Held: (1) the fact that, at the time the application was made by pltf. to the board to purchase his shares out of the funds & on behalf of the co., & thenceforward, the co. had no funds applicable to the purchase of shares, was a defence to the equity of pltf., founded on the provisions of the deed to compel such purchase, & it did not follow from the absence of such funds of the co. that the board of directors was, under all circumstances, bound to adopt the alternative of permitting pltf. to transfer his shares to any other person; (2) the question whether the board were justified by the facts of the case in refusing either to permit the transfer of the shares or to purchase them for the co., was a question to be tried in equity.—TAFT v. HARRISON (1853), 10 Hare. 489; 68 E. R. 1020.

2406. Transfer to be approved if alternative transferee not found—Power of directors.—(1) The A. co. entered into an agreement with the M. corpn. that all its business should be transferred to the corpn., & that its shareholders should be entitled to shares in the corpn. in exchange for their shares in the co. But the co. was not formally dissolved or wound up. Afterwards the corpn., not being successful, was wound up voluntarily. A few days before the commencement of the winding up, the former directors of the A. co., in the name of the co., entered into an agreement with the corpn. for a retransfer of the principal part of the business of the co., & notice was given to the shareholders that the co. had resumed business. A board meeting of the former directors was held in the same month, in which they sanctioned a transfer by C., the solr. of the co., of 2,145 shares for a nominal consideration. By the arts. of the co. the directors had no power to reject a transfer unless they found a substituted transferee. The co. was afterwards wound up, & C.'s name was settled by the Master of the Rolls on the list of contributories in respect of those shares:—Held: (JAMES, L.J.), although the transfer was out & out, & therefore would have been valid if the co. had been a going concern, yet, the transfer of the business to the corpn. having been completed, the shares were no longer capable of being dealt with, & the transfer was invalid (MELLISH, L.J.), the co. not having been formally dissolved or wound up, the shares might still be dealt with, & the transfer was good.

(2) The deed of settlement of a co. provided that where a shareholder wished to transfer his shares he should leave notice at the office of the co., & the directors should consider the proposal, & signify their acceptance or rejection of the proposed transferee: & if they should reject the proposed transferee, & should not, within fourteen days, procure some other person to take the shares at the market price, the proposed transferee should be considered as approved by the directors, & should be entitled to take the transfer accordingly:—Held: (MELLISH, L.J.), the directors had not an absolute power to reject a proposed transferee; but could only do so if they could provide a substitute for him.—Re ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE Co., CHAPPELL'S CASE (1871), 6 Ch. 2411. Necessity for—Discretion of directors.]— which he took, together with his certificate of shares, to the co.'s office for registration. He left the transfer, but refused to leave the certificate for the inspection of the directors:—Held: the ct. would not, on motion under 1862 Act, s. 35, compel the co. to register the transfer, & the ct. refused a motion for that object with costs.

There was sufficient to justify the directors in requiring the document itself to be left for their inspection, I see nothing unreasonable in this requisition, & the Act gave them authority to make it (ROMILLY, M.R.).—Re EAST WHEAL MARTHA MINING CO. (1863), 33 Beav. 119; 2 New Rep. 543; 55 E. R., believing H. to be absolute owner of the shares, lent money to him upon the deposit of the certificates as security. No transfer was executed, & no notice of the transaction was given to the co. After R.'s death, the co. discovered the fraud of H. & gave notice to R.'s extrix. that H. held the shares as trustee. After this notice H. executed a transfer of the stock to the extrix.; & she then required the co. to register the transfer, & her name as proprietor of the stock, which they refused to do. Upon an application for a peremptory writ of mandamus to compel them to do so:—Held: the extrix. was not entitled to a mandamus, for that H. could not give a third person any title to the shares as against his cestuis que trust, in the absence of any fraud or misrepresentation on their part; & the fact that he was in possession of certificates which imported that he was absolute owner of the shares did not preclude the co. from setting up their right as against the bonâ fide mtgee. without notice.

g. Refusal to register transfer—Unless transferees approved of certain change in company's organisation—Transferees already members of company.]—One of the arts. of assocn. of the C. Co. provided that the board of directors might decline to register any transfer of shares, unless the transferees were approved by the Board. A shareholder, holding 423 shares, became insolvent, & his shares thereupon vested in the Official Assignee who sold them. The purchaser required the Official Assignee to transfer the shares into the names of two nominees, viz., 200 shares to the name of one nominee, & 223 shares to the name of the other. The Official Assignee executed the necessary transfer deeds & sent them to the co. with a request that the shares might be transferred accordingly. The proposed nominees were already members of the co. & registered holders of shares in it, & no objection was taken to them in their personal capacity. The directors, however, declined to approve of the transferees & to register the transfer, unless the transferees would pledge themselves to approve a certain change in the mode of remunerating the agents of the co. which the directors desired to effect, & which they believed would be very advantageous to the co. The transferees refused to pledge themselves in any way as to their future action & brought this suit to enforce registration of the transfer:—Held: the directors were bound to register the transfers.—*KAIKHOSRO MUNCHERJI HEERAMANECK v. G. now applied to the ct. for an order compelling the directors to register him as a shareholder. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided, inter alia, that any shareholder might, with the sanction of the board of directors, sell or dispose of & transfer all or any of his shares to any other person approved by the board who shall not be bound to assign any reason for the withholding of such sanction:—Held: G. was a transferee whose title was not complete, inasmuch as the requisite sanction to the transfer had not been obtained, & therefore, there was no privity between him & the directors of the co., & he had no right to complain.—Re BOMBAY FIRE INSURANCE CO., LTD., Ex p. GILBERT (1892), L. L. R. 16 Bom. 398.—IND.

B. thereupon paid the price & having received a transfer from A. presented it to the co. The co. refused to register B. as proprietor of the shares or pay him any dividends accruing on the shares. A. whose name remained on the register declined to receive from the co. the dividends accruing on the shares. In an action at the instance of B. against A.:—Held: (1) B. had the sole beneficial right, title, & interest in the shares & dividend thereon; (2) the shares were held by A. & his heirs, etc., for behoof of B. so long as A.'s name should remain on the shareholder's register, & B. continued to hold the beneficial interest therein, & also granted decree ordaining A. to make payment to B. of all dividends accruing on the shares.—*STEVENSON v. 2413. Effect of notice on certificate requiring production—No similar provision in articles.]—SOCIÉTÉ GÉNÉRALE DE PARIS v. WALKER, No. 2325, ante.

2414. — Similar provision in articles.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that “any members may transfer his shares, but any transfer must be left at the office of the co., accompanied by the certificate of the shares to be transferred & such other evidence as the directors may require to prove the title of the intending transferor.” Transfers of the co.’s shares did not necessarily have to be by deed. A certificate issued by the co. to a shareholder had the following note at the foot: “No transfer of the above shares will be registered without production of this certificate.” The shareholder transferred his shares for value to pltf., handing them the certificate with a transfer in which the name of the transferees was left blank. Subsequently the shareholder, by the production of a forged certificate for the shares, transferred them for value to R. & V., & that transfer was registered by the co. Subsequently pltf. filled in their transfer & presented it for registration, which was refused. In an action against the co. claiming (1) a declaration that pltf. were entitled to be placed on the register; (2) rectification of the register; & (3) alternatively, damages:—Held: when the transfer to R. & V. was put upon the register, those two persons had a completely executed transfer, whereas pltf. had at that time no more than an unexecuted authority, & therefore pltf. could not rely on a right of property to claim rectification of the register. The note appended to the certificate was a mere statement of fact as the co.’s practice, & was not a contract that they would not register a transfer without production of the certificate; & therefore the action failed.—GUY v. WATERLOW BROTHERS & LAYTON, LTD. (1909), 25 T. L. R. 515.

2415. — Production dispensed with—Certificate in hands of mortgagee—Liability of company to mortgagee.]—C., the registered holder of shares in debt. co., in May, 1903, deposited the certificate for the shares with pltf. as security for a loan, & executed a transfer to pltf. with the date left in blank. There was a note at the foot of the certificate: “without the production of this certificate no transfer of the shares mentioned therein can be registered.” C., who was in the employment of the co., in June, 1903, entered into an arrangement with the managing director & two of the officers of the co. for an advance to be made to him by the co., part of the arrangement being that he should sell his shares in the co., & that the proceeds of sale should be paid to the co. in part repayment of the loan. C. sold his shares to Y. for £90, & the money was paid by Y. to the co. C. lodged a transfer of the shares to Y. with the co. for registration without the certificate, but with a declaration that the certificate was held by a friend of his, but not “as a charge against any loan or other consideration.” C. was trusted by the directors, & they, acting in good faith, accepted his statement, & registered the transfer to Y., & issued a new certificate to him:—Held: on the facts, the co. had received the £90 with such knowledge & under such circumstances that they ought to be treated as having received it to the use of the plaintiff, & the plaintiff was entitled to recover it from the co.—*RAINFORD v. SUB-SECT. 7.—CERTIFICATION.

2417. Effect of—Estoppel of company.]—P., a shareholder in debts’ co., transferred his shares to a purchaser, & his share certificate was lodged with the co. to enable such purchaser to complete his title. P. subsequently purported to transfer a portion of the shares to another purchaser, who again sold, & executed a transfer of the shares to pltf. Such last-mentioned transfer was certificated by debts’ secretary in the manner usual upon the transfer of shares, by placing upon it the words “certificate lodged,” although no certificate was in fact lodged in respect of such transfer; & upon the faith of such “certification” pltf. paid the price of the shares. Debts. subsequently refusing to recognise pltf. as the owner of the shares, he brought his action to recover their value from debts.:—Held: such a “certification” could only be taken to amount to a representation by debts. that a document or documents had been lodged with them apparently in order, & showing prima facie that the transferor was entitled to the shares, i.e. either what purported to be a certificate that he was the registered owner of the shares, or what purported to be a certificate that some one else was such owner, accompanied by a document or documents purporting to transfer the shares from such person to the transferor; but such “certification” did not import a warranty of the transferor’s title or of the validity of such document or documents. It did not therefore estop debts. from impugning pltf.’s title on the ground of the invalidity of the transfer to pltf.’s transferor; pltf. could not therefore make a title to the shares against debts. by estoppel; & as no action would lie against debts. for a careless misrepresentation without fraud, pltf. could not recover.—*BISHOP v. Nor can the recognition by a managing director of such certification, or even the representation by him that the certification would be acted upon by the co. & entitle the transferee to be placed on the register, create such estoppel. A. then tendered to the co. a transfer from B. to himself duly executed, together with B.'s share certificate, but the co., having recently discovered that the certificate had been fraudulently obtained, refused to register the transfer:—Held: (1) although the certificate was not a warranty of title upon which A. could maintain an action at common law against the co., it estopped the co. from disputing A.'s right to be registered; the certificate is a representation intended to be shown to a purchaser at the time of a purchase, the effect of which is that the co. is estopped from denying its truth as against a purchaser, & must treat him as having a good title; (2) A.'s cause of action arose from the refusal of the co. to perform the duty of registering a transferee who had shown that the co. were estopped from denying to be a good title; (3) the measure of damages was the value of the shares at the time of the refusal to register.

(4) The directors of a co. are entitled to a reasonable time for the consideration of every transfer before they register it, although not expressly empowered in that behalf by the arts. of assocn.

A.'s name remained on the register. A. subsequently, while absent from New Zealand, was adjudged bkpt.; the official assignee without notice of the transfer or order paid calls, sold the shares, & afterwards, having had notice of both transfer & order, sold to C. the residue of the estate with the right to recover back the calls paid:—Held: shares under the Cos. Act do not pass simply by registration, but by registration of an instrument of transfer; the order implied that the transfer was to be represented, & that not having been done the co. were not in a position to rectify; there was no duty on the part of the co. to inform the official assignee of the transfer or order; & C. could not recover back the calls paid.—*SMITH v. —A co. incorporated under the Ontario Joint Stock Cos. Letters Patent Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 157, issued a certificate stating that a certain shareholder was entitled to 22 shares of the capital stock, as he in fact at the time was. The shares were not numbered or identified, but the certificate was numbered & contained the words "Transferable only on the books of the co. in person or by attorney on the surrender of this certificate." The shareholder assigned the shares to pltf. for value, & gave the certificate to him with an assignment indorsed thereon. Pltf. gave no notice to the co., & did not apply to be registered as a shareholder until several months had elapsed, & in the meantime the shareholder executed another transfer of the shares for value to an innocent transferee, who was registered by the co. as the holder 2425. — Whether at first meeting of directors—Objection by transferor.]—(1) H. held certain shares in a co. in trust for his wife, L., & without her consent or knowledge, executed a blank transfer of the shares, & gave the same to G. as security for a loan. On Nov. 23, 1901, G. sent the transfer, which he had filled in with his own name, & the certificate of the shares, to the offices of the co. for registration. On Nov. 26, the managing director of the co. saw H., who said that G. had no right to transfer the shares, & asked for postponement of the registration. On Nov. 27, a meeting of the directors was held, & these circumstances mentioned to the directors; but the transfer was not registered. On the same day L. commenced an action for an injunction to restrain the registration. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that every instrument of transfer should be left at the office for registration accompanied by the certificate of the shares to be transferred, & such other evidence as the co. might require to prove the title of the transferor to his right to transfer the shares:—Held: G. had not on Nov. 27, a "present, absolute, & unconditional" right to the registration of the transfer, & therefore the prior equitable title of L. must prevail.

(2) Directors are not bound to register a transfer at the next meeting after it has been handed in, when it has come to their knowledge that the transferor objects to the registration, although the transfer is in order, & nothing further is required to be done on the part of the transferee—of the shares without production of the certificate:—Held: the transfer to pltf., in view of the provisions of s. 52 of above Act, conferred upon him a mere equitable title which was cut out by the subsequent transfer, & while the co. might have insisted upon production of the certificate they were not bound to do so, & were not estopped from denying pltf.'s right to the shares.—SMITH v. WALKERVILLE MALLEABLE IRON CO. (1896), 23 A. R. 95.—CAN.

a. As to compliance by transferee with conditions in articles of association.—Although the arts. of assocn. prescribe certain conditions which have to be complied with to entitle a transferee to get his name on the co.'s register as a member of the co., those are matters which the co. may or may not insist upon. If the co. insists upon them & an alleged transferee is not recognised as such by the co., & the co. refuses to register his name he may apply to compel the co. to register his name & then the question will arise whether he has complied with the arts. or not & whether the co. has a right to insist upon conformity with the arts. But a co. has always a right to accept such evidence as satisfies its mind that an appct. is really the owner & a real transferee entitled to be registered.—UNION INDIAN SUGAR MILLS CO. v. executed documents for, the co., & the only way he could have held shares entitling him to do so was by transfer from G.—HAMILTON v. GRANT (1900), 30 S. C. R. 566.—CAN.

The directors had 14 days within which to approve of or decline a proposed transferee. B. fraudulently deposited certificates of shares which were in his sole name, as trustee for pl'ts., with defts., together with a form of transfer in blank as to the numbers of the shares & the names of the transferees. The bank, who took for value & without notice, filled in the transfers with the names of some proposed transferees, & left them with the co. for registration. On the next day pl'ts. gave the co. notice of their prior claim, & the co. declined to register the transfer:—Held: the title of the transferees was not complete when the transfer was presented, there being more than a mere ministerial act to be performed by the co. before the transferees could claim to be registered as shareholders, & the prior equity of pl'ts. prevailed.—MOORE v. NORTH WESTERN BANK, [1891] 2 Ch. 599; 60 L. J. Ch. 627; 64 L. T. 456; 40 W. R. 93; 7 T. L. R. 430.

C. Irregular Registration.

2430. Transfer from transferor registered before transfer of shares to transferor registered.]—One of two partners in a foreign firm of bankers lent to L. in this country a sum of money, L. executing, by way of security, a transfer to the firm of shares in a co., which was executed by the above-named partner in the name of his firm, & the transfer was approved of by the directors. L. at that time held transfers of a corresponding number of shares, but the transfers were not registered. Some time afterwards the transfer deeds were left at the office of the co., & the transfers were registered, the registration of the transfer to the bankers being dated before the registration of the transfers to L., & being in the name of the bankers as a firm. The loan was afterwards repaid, & the shares were re-transferred to L. by the same partner, he executing the deed in the name of the firm, & the transfer was duly registered. Within a year from this time an order for winding up the co. was made:—Held: (1) under the circumstances the one partner could accept shares so as to bind the firm; (2) shares can be sufficiently registered in the name of a firm; (3) the errors & irregularities in the registration did not affect the liability of the firm; (4) the firm of bankers were, in respect of these shares, liable as past members of the co.—*Re LAND CREDIT CO. 2431. Transfer of shares to trustees for company—Consent of trustees to registration required by articles—Registration without consent.]—An agreement was made for the purchase by a co. from R. of his business, part of the purchase-money, namely, £40,000, to be paid in 1,000 shares of £50 each, upon which £40 per share should be credited as paid. R. guaranteed to the co. for five years a yearly dividend of £10 per cent., & it was thereby agreed that the vendor's shares should be transferred to A. & B. as trustees for the co. to secure the performance of the guarantee. The agreement was incorporated in the articles of the co., by which it was provided also that A. & B.'s names should not be placed on the register of members without their consent. The shares were allotted to R. & he executed a transfer of them to A. & B., & a certificate of transfer was issued. Subsequently, the certificates of these shares, the deed of transfer, & a certificate of transfer were deposited with the bankers of the co. for safe custody. In July, 1875, an order was made for winding up the co. The liquidators placed the names of A. & B. without their consent on the register of members & list of contributories:—Held: the names of A. & B. must be removed from the list of shareholders.—Re WEST HARTLEPOOL IRON CO., GRAY'S CASE approved by the board. A shareholder, holding 423 shares, became insolvent, & his shares thereupon vested in the official assignee, who sold them. The purchaser required the official assignee to transfer the shares into the names of two nominees. The official assignee executed the necessary transfer deeds & sent them to the co., with a request that the shares might be transferred accordingly. The proposed nominees were already members of the co. & registered holders of shares in it, & no objection was taken to them in their personal capacity. It was contended that neither the official assignee nor the transferees had any legal right to call on the co. to register the transfers:—Held: having regard to the provision of the arts. of assocn. of the co., the official assignee was entitled to have the shares registered in the names of his vendees.—*KAIKHOSRO MUNCHERJI HEERAMANICK v. d. Transferee inserting own name on blank transfer form—Refusal of company to register transfer.]—Shares in the N. Bank were sold by the allottee, & a transfer in the form required by the arts. of assocn. of the Bank was executed, but no name was inserted as transferee. The purchaser pledged them with another bank, & deposited with them the blank transfer. This bank applied to the N. Bank, without producing a letter from the pledgor, to register their lien, & on its refusal sold the shares to pl'tf. & delivered to him the transfer, also in blank. Pl'tf. inserted his own name in the transfer, & requested the N. Bank to register the shares in his name:—Held: the N. Bank were justified in refusing to register, & pl'tf., having received back from his vendors the price of his shares, had no cause of action.—KNOWLES v. NATIONAL BANK OF INDIA (1869), 2 B. L. R. 158.—IND.

Deft., who was the registered holder of partly paid shares in a co., executed a transfer of them, & the transfer was lodged with the secretary, who at once entered the name of the transferee in the register. The transfer came subsequently before the directors, who, acting under the above article, refused to pass it, & the secretary struck the name of the transferee out of the register. The directors afterwards made a call upon the shares. In an action to recover the calls the secretary in his evidence stated that he had no authority to pass transfers, & that he made the entry in the register merely in order to keep pace with the work, & that the directors had never before refused to sanction a transfer:—Held: the secretary had no authority to enter the transfers at once, & therefore, deft. remained the registered holder of the shares, & was liable for calls.—*CHIDA MINES, LTD. v. g. Whether court will enforce—Resolution at special general meeting—Transferor not present.]—Bank of L. brought an action against S., deft., as shareholder, to recover a call of 10 per cent on 25 shares held by him in that bank. Deft. pleaded that, before receiving notice of the call he had made, in good faith & for valid consideration, a transfer & assignment of all shares & stock which he held in the bank to an authorised & qualified person, & deft. & the transferees of the shares or stock did all the things which were necessary for the valid & final transferring of the shares or stock, but plffs. without legal excuse & without reason, refused to record such transfer, or to register the same in the books of the bank, or to recognise the transfer. Plffs. filed no replication to the plea, but at the trial of the action, they attempted to justify the refusal to permit the transfer of the shares upon the ground that at a special general meeting of the shareholders of the bank, held on June 26, 1873, it was resolved, "that the Bank of L. should not be allowed to go into liquidation, but that steps should be taken to obtain a loan of such sum as may be necessary to enable the bank to resume specie payments & that the shareholders agree to hold their shares without assigning them until the principal & interest due on such loan shall be fully paid, & to execute, when required, a bond to that effect." Deft. was not present at the meeting when this resolution was passed. Subsequently to the resolution & prior to the sale by deft. of his shares, a large number of other shares had been transferred in the books of the bank. In Oct., 1879, the Bank of L. became insolvent, & the Bank of N. S., plffs., obtained leave to intervene & carry on the action.

At the trial a verdict was found by the judge in favour of defts.; but the Supreme Ct. of Nova Scotia made absolute a rule nisi to set aside the verdict.—BANK OF NOVA SCOTIA (ASSIGNEE) v. SMITH (1883), 16 N. S. R. (4 R. & G.) 146; reversed, 8 S. C. R. 558.—CAN.

Execution debtor was the president of the co., & on showing cause, he asserted payment of the execution before the sale, etc.:—Held: (2) this could not justify the co. in refusing to transfer, for they had no concern with the transactions between execution plff. & deft., or between deft. & the sheriff.—Re GUILLOT & SANDWICH & WINDSOR GRAVEL ROAD CO. (1867), 26 U. Subsequently, but before the trial, the mtgees. applied in the action for leave to sell the shares, but pltf. & the registered holder both opposed, & the application was not granted. At the trial the action was dismissed with costs:—Held: the measure of damages payable under the undertaking was the difference between the respective prices of the shares at the date of the injunction & at the date of the application for leave to sell.—MANSELL v. 2439. Cancellation procured by fraud.]—A broker employed by pltf. to purchase shares, which pltf. paid for, procured the instrument of transfer to pltf., & pltf.'s signature thereto, & received from pltf. the certificates & transfer for the purpose of registration. Soon afterwards he fraudulently procured pltf. to cancel his signature to the transfer, & by means of the cancelled transfer & the certificates, induced the vendor to execute a fresh transfer to himself, & thereupon procured the shares to be registered in his own name, & then mortgaged them to one of defts.:—Held: the effect of the first transfer was not destroyed by the cancellation fraudulently procured, & the registration in the name of the broker & the transfer to his mtgee. were decreed to be set aside.—DONALDSON v. GILLOT (1866), L. R. 3 Eq. 274; 15 L. T. 382; 12 Jur. N. S. 959; 15 W. R. 166.

2440. Approval of transfer by mistake—Cancellation by officer of company without authority.]—A transfer of shares in a co. by a holder who had not paid his calls was duly passed by the board, & remained on the list for thirty-four days, but was subsequently cancelled by the officer without the authority of the board. The co. having been subsequently wound up:—Held: the transfer was invalid, & the transferor must be placed on the list of contributories.

It appears that by a rule of the arts. of assocn. the co. have power to decline to recognise any transfer by a holder of shares from whom any call is due. It has been contended that the co. has exercised this option & that they are bound by the acts of their officers, & further, that they have sanctioned those acts; but it is quite clear that when the transfer was passed, it was passed under a mistake which was corrected & the transfers cancelled within thirty-four days after it had happened (STUART, V.-C.).—Re BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, & JAPAN, ANDERSON'S CASE (1869), L. A. In General.

2441. Transfer to company—By member of committee of management.]—One of the members of the committee of a joint-stock co. sold his shares to the committee, on behalf of the co., at a price not exceeding the market price of the shares at that time. The shares were transferred to the trustees in trust for the co., & the vendor thenceforward ceased to interfere in their affairs. Three years after it was known to the shareholders generally that the shares had been sold to the co., the co. having during that time continued the business, & having obtained new Parliamentary powers, pltf., on behalf of himself & all the shareholders in the co., filed his bill against the vendor to set aside the sale & transfer of the shares as fraudulent; & to obtain contribution from the vendor towards the debts of the co. The ct. refused to disturb the sale, & dismissed the bill, with costs.

The sale as it was effected was in strictness irregular. A party in the situation of deft. ought not to have sold his own shares to the co. (WIGRAM,

n. n. Transfer by unauthorised agent —Responsibility of company.]—Applt., being the holder of 350 shares in deft. co., authorised C., one of the members of the firm of L. Bros., mining agents & brokers, to sell the same. The shares, instead of being sold by C., were sold by A., another member of the firm, & were afterwards transferred by deft. co. to the purchaser on the application of A.:—Held: the sale by A. was wholly unauthorised; it was the duty of the co., before transferring the shares, to ascertain whether the firm, purporting to sign his name to the transfer as applt.'s agent, was authorised by applt. so to do.—CHRISTOE v. q. Discretion of directors—Shares transferred for purpose of increasing voting power of transferor.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. incorporated in New South Wales it was provided that shareholders should be entitled to vote according to the number of shares held by them as follows: holders of 1 to 10 shares 1 vote, holders of 11 to 25 shares 2 votes, holders of 26 to 50 shares 3 votes, holders of over 50 shares 4 votes. It was also provided that shares should be transferred only at the discretion of the directors:—Held: the directors might properly, in the exercise of their discretion, refuse to register a transfer of a share where the whole beneficial interest in the share was retained by transferor & the transfer was made for the purpose of increasing the voting power of transferor.—MANNING RIVER CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY CO. v. Transfer to directors—Sanction of general meeting required under articles—Time for sanction.]—One of the arts. of the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co. authorised the directors to purchase shares of the co. by the authority of a general meeting previously obtained. The directors, without obtaining any previous authority, purchased shares, & transferred them to other shareholders. The money paid & received upon the transfer duly appeared in the balance sheet, which was submitted to the shareholders, but the minutes of the meeting did not contain any reference to the transfer. Five years afterwards a winding-up order was made:—Held: the previous consent of the shareholders was not necessary for a conditional contract of sale. A subsequent confirmation of the contract was sufficient to validate the sale; &, under the circumstances, such subsequent confirmation would be presumed.—Re BRITISH PROVIDENT LIFE & FIRE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, LANE'S CASE (1863), 1 De G. called at the co.'s office, executed an acceptance of the shares, & received a certificate of transfer from C., the secretary. On Apr. 11, C. wrote informing A. that the shares did not belong to B., & that, consequently, the transfer was irregular. A. was, within a few days afterwards, informed that the shares which had been deposited with B. belonged to C., & not to B. On Apr. 14, a call was made, of which A. received notice on Apr. 21. On Apr. 22, C. executed a deed purporting to transfer the shares to B., the deed being ante-dated to Apr. 6, & an entry under that date being made in the books of the co. On bill by A.:—Held: the transfer by C. to B. was fraudulent & void as against A. & could not have the effect of making him a member of the co. in respect of the particular shares, after the repudiation, by C.'s letter of Apr. 11, of the attempted transfer from B.; & the register must accordingly be rectified.—BLOXAM v. METROPOLITAN CAB & CARRIAGE CO., LTD. 2448. Sale of shares after assignment to trustees for creditors—Conflicting rights of trustees & selling brokers.]—The owner of shares in a co. executed an assignment of all his property to pltf. as trustees for his creditors. Pltf. applied to the debtor for the certificates of the shares, but were unable to obtain them, whereupon they gave notice to the co. of the assignment. The debtor afterwards through his brokers, C. & Co., sold the shares on the Stock Exchange, executed a transfer, & received the purchase-money. The co., notwithstanding the notice, entered the purchaser's name on the register as holder of the shares, but subsequently removed her name from the register & refused to issue certificates. At the request of the purchaser C. & Co. provided her with other shares in the co., & then claimed to be entitled to the shares sold on behalf of the debtor. In an action by pltf. for a declaration that they were entitled to the shares:—Held: any lien which C. & Co. might have upon the shares was only upon the debtor's interest, which was subject to the right of pltf.; & pltf., not having been guilty of any negligence to deprive them of their equity, were entitled to be registered as owners of the shares.—PEAT v. CLAYTON, [1906] 1 Ch. 659; 75 L. s. Transfer of shares already assigned—Registration by company—Position of innocent transferee.]—A co. incorporated under the Ontario Joint Stock Cos. Letters Patent Act, R. S. O. 1887, c. 157, issued a certificate stating that a certain shareholder was entitled to 22 shares of the capital stock, as he in fact at the time was. The shares were not numbered or identified, but the certificate was numbered & contained the words "Transferable only on the books of the co. in person or by attorney on the surrender of this certificate." The shareholder assigned the shares to pltf. for value, & gave the certificate to him with an assignment indorsed thereon. Pltf. gave no notice to the co., & did not apply to be registered as a shareholder until several months had elapsed, & in the meantime the shareholder executed another transfer of the shares for value to an innocent transferee who was registered by the co. as the holder of the shares without production of the certificate:—

shares, of which he retained possession. The transfer was not executed by the two directors but was registered:—Held: the transfer was invalid, & the shareholder was a contributory. The directors had no authority to delegate to a manager the power to buy shares, & had not in fact delegated that power or ratified the transaction with the shareholder. 2459. Threat to present winding-up petition—Shares purchased by trustee for company.]—A petition presented by shareholders to wind up a co. was dismissed, upon condition that the co. paid the costs of all parties to the petition, & upon the suggestion of the ct. a committee was appointed to investigate the affairs of the co. The committee reported that it would be for the benefit of the shareholders that the co. should go on, & that a voluntary loan should be obtained from the shareholders. B., a large shareholder, was dissatisfied with the report & with the statement of accounts upon which it was founded, & he informed the directors that unless a bona fide purchaser was obtained for his shares, & his other claims against the co. were satisfied, he would present another petition to wind up the co. After some negotiations an officer of the co. took a transfer of the shares, representing, as B. alleged that he purchased them on his own account. In fact he purchased them at the instance of the directors, & by means of money belonging to the co., & no bona fide purchaser could be obtained:—Held: B.'s name must be placed upon the list of contributories.—Re CONSOLS INSURANCE ASSOCN., BENHAM'S CASE (1865), 12 L. 2460. Compromise of action brought by shareholder—Transfer to director as trustee for company—Knowledge of shareholder.]—Upon the compromise of an action brought by G. against a co. in which he was a shareholder, it was arranged that G. should transfer his shares to S., who was the managing director, & should receive from the co. a sum of money as the price of his shares & in satisfaction of his claim. Accordingly, the money was paid, the shares were transferred, & the transfer registered. Two years afterwards the co. was ordered to be wound up, & the official manager placed G.'s name on the list of contributories, on the ground that the transfer was invalid, S. being a trustee for the co., & the assent of the shareholders to the transaction not having been obtained. The ct., under the circumstances, declined to impute to G. knowledge that S. was a trustee for the co.; but, independently of this:—Held: the transaction having been acquiesced in by the shareholders for two years, their consent must be presumed as against the co.

Where an act has been done by a public co., to the legality of which certain formalities are requisite, & the circumstances are such that knowledge & acquiescence may be imputed to every shareholder, the ct. will, as against the co., infer that the necessary formalities have been complied with.—*Re BRITISH PROVIDENT, ETC. It appeared that both the cos. had rules relating to the transfer of shares for valuable consideration, & to the disposal of shares belonging to deceased persons, but no forms were prescribed for the assignment of shares by a voluntary deed:—Held: these shares had not been effectually passed, according to the intention of the deceased settlor, to his grand-nephew, but must be handed over by the trustee to his personal representatives.—*SEARLE v. Rights of company—Rectification of register—Whether estopped by issue of certificate.]—On a transfer of stock in a co., incorporated under 1862 Act, the issue of the co.'s stock certificate to the transferee is not a representation that the immediate transfer to him is valid, so as to give him any right of action against the co. if it proves invalid. A buyer, on the Stock Exchange, of stock in a co. incorporated under 1862 Act, received & lodged with the co. for registration, an instrument which purported to be a transfer of the stock from the registered holder to himself. After making inquiries, the co. registered the transfer, & the buyer having transferred the stock to a bank in order to secure advances, the co. registered that transfer also, & issued their stock certificate to the bank as the registered holders. The original transfer to the buyer was discovered to be a forgery, & he thereupon paid off his debt to the bank, &

2472. —.]—A solr., who was a shareholder in an incorporated co., knowing it to be in difficulties, transferred his shares to his farm bailiff, a man without property. The transfer purported to be made for £50, but no such sum was ever paid, nor had the transferee ever agreed to pay any sum. The transferor admitted that he had made the transfer to get rid of his liability, & had asked the transferee to take the shares off his hands. He also stated that he had informed the transferee, who had no other advice, that the co. was in difficulties; that the shares were worthless, & that a liability might attach to the ownership. The transferee stated that he had never looked upon himself as owner; that he had always considered that the shares were merely put into his name to serve some purpose of the transferor's, & that he had always understood that he should be indemnified. The co. having been ordered to be wound up, the transferor, as solr. of the transferee, but without communication with him, made an offer to contribute a sum towards the debts of the co. to escape all further liability. He admitted that this sum was to have come out of his own pocket:—Held: the transfer must be held to have been merely colourable, & the transferor was a contributory.

If a person, believing a co. in which he is a shareholder to be insolvent, wishes to get rid of his shares, & before its insolvency is proclaimed bonâ fide sells them to a stranger, or even gives a stranger money to take them off his hands, that is a perfectly good transaction, & will be sustained in this ct. It is only where, after the co. has been manifestly & publicly declared to be insolvent, when in order to get rid of his liability, & to throw his burden on others, the shareholder gives his shares to a pauper or to a person over whom he has peculiar influence, as in Re Mexican & South American Co., Hyam's Case, No. 2483, post, & the like, that the transaction cannot be supported (ROMILLY, M.R.).—*Re ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH CO. A shareholder in a joint-stock co., to avoid payment of a call, procured a person of no means to accept a transfer of his shares for a nominal consideration, & agreed to indemnify him against all liability. The directors refused to register the transfer until the call should have been paid. Afterwards, upon the winding up of the co., the original shareholder's name was placed upon the list of contributories. c. Assignment in insolvency—After execution of deed of composition & discharge.—Deft., director of a railway co., subscribed for stock to the amount of $1,000, on which he paid, partly in money & partly by certain allowances made for his services as director & otherwise, the sum of $400. Subsequently to this, he made an assignment under Insolvent Act, 1869. Before doing so, however, he procured the execution by the required majority of his creditors of a deed of composition & discharge, apparently under sect. 94 of the Act. Pltf., as a creditor of the same co., sued out a writ of sci. fa. against deft. to compel payment to him of the balance due upon the said stock. Deft. pleaded that he was not a shareholder in the co., his contention being that the property in the stock had passed to assignee. It did not appear whether or not assignee had accepted or rejected this stock, or had done any act beyond accepting the assignment made to him. Deft. had obtained his discharge in the usual way. The unpaid balance upon the stock, however, not having been scheduled as a liability of deft., & no claim having been proved in respect of it:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover, & the property in the stock had not passed to official assignee.—*DENISON v. & the said directors alleged acquiescence & laches on pltf.' part in respect of the matters complained of; & pltf. proved the transfer as alleged:—Held: deft. directors in allowing the transfers complained of, were upon the evidence guilty of no fraud towards the shareholders, & such act was within the scope of the prescribed powers & duties of directors.—*THOMPSON v. held, gave to the transferee the right to repudiate the transaction. The transfer was completed & passed by the board, & the name of the transferee was placed on the register as the owner of the shares. Resolutions for the voluntary winding up of the co. were passed, & the liquidators now sought to rectify the list of contributories by replacing thereon the name of the transferor in respect of the shares:—Held: the question whether the transfer was out & out, in the sense that by it both the benefit & the liability on the shares had been transferred, was not the only test to be applied. The ct. was bound to consider the equities between the parties & whether under all the circumstances the transaction was bonâ fide. B. Particular Circumstances affecting Validity.

(a) Conduct or Position of Transferor.

2477. Transfer by shareholder—After conduct leading to postponement of call.—A shareholder, in a co. in which the previous consent of the directors was required to transfers made after the declaration of a call, attended a board meeting, & by his conduct there induced the postponement of a call, & then immediately transferred his shares to a man of straw. On the transferee moving, under 1862 Act, s. 35, to have his name put on the register in the place of that of the transferor:—Held: the ct., taking into its consideration the conduct of the transferor, would refuse to assist him to escape from his liability, by substituting the transferee's name for his upon the register.

Semble: in the absence of a special power to directors of refusing transfers, a transfer is not necessarily vitiated by the fact that it is made to a man of straw avowedly in order to evade liability.—*Re NATIONAL & PROVINCIAL MARINE INSURANCE CO., Ex p. The servant afterwards claimed the shares, & contended that as the transaction was fraudulent as against the co., the ct. would not assist the mtgee. by declaring that she was a trustee of the shares for him:—Held: the mtgee., not being under any liability to the co., or to the creditors of the co., had a right to direct this transfer to be made, & was entitled to a declaration that the servant held the shares in trust for him.—COLQUHOUN v. COURTENAY (1874), 43 L. J. Ch. 338; 29 L. T. 877; 22 W. R. 435.

Shortly afterwards the co. went into liquidation & the liquidator presented a petition for rectification of the register by the restoration of the director's name. There was no provision in the arts. of assocn. affecting a director's right to transfer his shares:—Held: the divestiture of the director having been absolute & unqualified, his name could not be restored to the register.—*M'LINTOCK v. k. Transfers of shares before first payment made—By directors aware of company's insolvent state—To persons of little or no substance.—On the issue of letters patent under Ontario Cos. Act, 1897, c. 191, incorporating a co., the directors subscribed for stock, making no provision, however, for the payment, nor making any calls thereon, while applications for stock by others were only accepted on their paying 25 per cent on subscription & 25 per cent on allotment. Subsequently, & some time before the co. was declared insolvent, the directors, knowing of the insolvent condition, & desiring to get rid of their stock, on which nothing had been paid, employed the promoter of the co. to procure persons willing to take the stock. He accordingly procured 5 persons, who he knew were of little or no substance, & as to whom he had carefully abstained from any inquiry, to take all of the directors' stock, except one share each on which they could qualify & make the transfers, informing the transferees that they would become directors, & as to 4 of them, that they would incur no liability on the stock, as he would arrange for its disposal. The purchasers gave their promissory notes for the first 25 per cent, payable to the co., instead of to the directors, the object being that they should be treated as payment of the 25 per cent for which the directors were liable:—Held: the transfers were invalid, as being made contrary to sect. 30 of the Act, before all calls had been paid; the liability of the directors for the 25 per cent being substantially the same as a call; & also in that the directors were guilty of a breach of trust in not exercising their powers in the best interests of the co. by taking special care & caution in procuring responsible transferees.

The directors were therefore directed to be placed on the list of contributories for this stock.—Re PETERBOROUGH COLD STORAGE CO. (1907), 14 O. L. R. 475; 9 O. W. R. 850.—CAN.

2508. ——An unregistered co. was in 1882 incorporated by a special Act of Parliament for the purpose of establishing a fish market. At a meeting of the directors, the directors allotted to themselves the forty qualification shares required by the Act to be held by each. A call of £5 or one fifth per share was paid on the following day, but one of the directors paid up the full amount of his shares, £1,000 in cash. Another directors' meeting was held, at which the secretary reported that £2,400 had been received for calls, & a resolution was thereupon passed that this sum should be paid by the co. on account of the preliminary costs, charges, & expenses. On the same day that sum was handed to P., who had paid or was liable for such costs, charges, & expenses; & he & four other of the directors transferred their shares to a nominal transferee, P.'s shares being transferred to L., who was a clerk of his, & also one of the directors named in the Act, in consideration of £4 paid by P. to L. No other shares in the co., beyond the directors' qualification share, were ever allotted or subscribed for. A judgment debtor presented a winding-up petition under 1862 & 1867 Acts. It was contended by the co. that no winding-up order could be made under those acts, inasmuch as there were now only three registered shareholders of the co., the other five having transferred their shares & ceased to be shareholders or directors:—Held: the transfers were invalid.—Re SOUTH LONDON FISH MARKET CO. is the duty of a transferor of shares in a public payment on Oct. 2, 1878. The bank being hopelessly insolvent, on Oct. 22

the co. resolved to go into liquidation.
On Oct. 21 a shareholder raised an action for reduction of certain transfers by which he had acquired stock of the bank five years before the stoppage.
He stated that it had been held in trust by the sellers for the bank; that he had been induced to purchase by false representations made by the bought the stock the whole capital of the bank was lost & stock worthless.

Afterwards he petitioned in the liquidatransfer had been approved by the alteration in the register of shareholders was, however, made. In 1900

B. learnt for the first time, from a letter from the manager of the co., that his name was still on the co.'s register, & he wrote protesting. No other action was taken by him, & no action was taken by the co. until 1904, when the co. went into voluntary liquidation, & the liquidator placed B. on the list of contributories. The letter from the manager referred to

When delivery of the shares became due, defts., as they could not give pltf. registered share certificates, offered him bearer certificates, & pltf. replied that owing to the liquidation the contract should be cancelled. In a subsequent action by pltf. to recover back from defts. the sum which he had paid them in respect of the shares:—Held: the contract was for the sale of registered shares, & defts. were not entitled to rely on the fact of pltf. having considered the contract cancelled, & therefore pltf. was entitled to recover.—IREDELL v. 2538. Voluntary winding up—Consent of liquidator not obtained—Refusal of transferor to execute transfer.]—Sect. 131 of 1862 Act, provides that whenever a co. is wound up voluntarily, the co. shall from the date of the commencement of such winding up cease to carry on its business, & that all transfers of shares, except transfers made to, or with the sanction of, the liquidators, taking place after the commencement of such winding up, shall be void. Pltf., a member of the Stock Exchange, sold for deft. thirty shares in "Overend, Gurney & Co.," after that co. had commenced winding up voluntarily. The sanction of the liquidators to the transfer of the shares had not been obtained, & deft. on that account refused to execute a transfer, & pltf. was in consequence compelled, by the rules of the Stock Exchange, to furnish to the buyer other shares, for which he paid an advanced price:—Held: as the statute made the execution of a transfer, without the sanction of the liquidators, only void, but not illegal, deft. was liable to an action for refusing to execute the transfer, & that whether it was the duty of the buyer or of the seller to obtain the required sanction.—*BIEDERMAN v. The liquidator might have the power of refusing, & might refuse to sanction the transfer; but that was no reason why the ct. might not order the thing to be done if it were possible. If the transfer could not be made, pltf. would be entitled to the amount of the calls which they had paid & to an indemnity against future liabilities.—ROBINS v. EDWARDS (1867), 17 L. T. 90; 15 W. Co. voluntarily for enabling the amalgamation to be carried out. The two pltf., who had recently purchased shares in the F. Co., the one the day before the resolutions for amalgamation were confirmed, the other shortly after, in the same month of May contracted to sell their shares & executed transfers thereof. On June 2, following, & before the transfers were sent in for registration, the liquidators under the voluntary winding up passed a resolution that they would not register any more transfers, except upon the terms of the transferors executing a deed by which they should guarantee the payment of all calls by their transferees. Pltf. not being able to obtain transfers otherwise executed the deeds in April, 1866. In 1866 the voluntary winding up was superseded by a compulsory winding up. In July, 1868, actions were commenced against pltf. on their deeds to recover the amounts due from them for calls & for damages, & thereupon pltf. filed bills, alleging that the liquidation was invalid, & that the deeds were obtained from them without consideration, by misrepresentation & concealment, & praying that they might be cancelled, & the actions stayed. In another suit against the same co. it had been decided, & confirmed on appeal, that the amalgamation was ultra vires & void:—Held: (1) the liquidation proceedings were valid & could not be set aside, because the amalgamation, for which they had been instituted, had been declared void. (2) The liquidators were justified in refusing to sanction the transfers except upon such terms as they thought were for the benefit of the co.—*CLEVE v. FINANCIAL CORPN., WILLIAMS v. Hence, where ten shares were standing on the register of a co. in the name of an infant, upon the co. being wound up, the ct., on the application of the liquidators, removed the name of the infant from the register in respect of the shares, & substituted that of the transferor; although the ten shares originally formed part of a batch of eighty shares which had been purchased on behalf of the infant, all of which eighty shares had, prior to the winding up, been sold by the infant, the purchase-money received, & the transfers executed by all the purchasers, & the transferees of all, except the ten shares in question, entered on the register of shareholders.—Re IMPERIAL MERCANTILE CREDIT ASSOCN., CURTIS'S CASE (1868), L. Transfer by husband—To wife—Effect of 1862 Act, s. 35.]—A shareholder transferred 50 shares in a co., the stock in which was then unsaleable, to his wife, whose sole separate estate consisted of an alimentary annuity of £150 a year. The transfer was intimated to the co. in Dec. 1883. The transfer was not considered at the first meeting of the directors which took place in Jan., but at the next meeting which took place in Apr., the directors, in exercise of the power given to them by the arts. of assocn. declined to register the transfer. In an action for payment of subsequent calls against the original shareholder, defender maintained that in consequence of the unnecessary delay of the directors in dealing with the transfer he was no longer liable for calls:—Held: there had been "unnecessary delay" within 1862 Act, s. 35, in the directors not disposing of the transfer at their first meeting, but this did not of itself entitle defender to have the transfer registered; defender might have been

The shareholders in deft. co. were principally cos. & persons manufacturing tinsplates who were originally invited to become shareholders on the understanding that, although under no legal obligation to do so, they were to take the steel bars required for their tinsplates from deft. co. which was formed as a private co., with the object of providing such supply. Pltf. co., which was an original shareholder of deft. co., subsequently withdrew its custom & transferred it to a new rival steel co. which pltf. co. had been instrumental in forming. Being unable to acquire pltf. co.'s shares by agreement, deft. co. passed the resolutions in question with the object of acquiring pltf. co.'s shares & of protecting deft. co. against conduct on the part of its shareholders detrimental to the interests of the co. :—Held : the resolutions in conferring an unrestricted & unlimited power on the majority of the shareholders to expropriate any shareholder they might think proper at their will & pleasure, went much further than was necessary for the protection of the co. from the conduct of shareholders detrimental to the co.'s interests, & the power thereby conferred could not be bond fide or genuinely for the benefit of the co. as a whole & was not such a power as could be assumed by the majority.—DAFEN TINPLATE CO. v. Pltf. was a director & shareholder, & in Aug., 1914, the co. resolved, in spite of pltf.'s protest, to increase the price of certain articles to the Admty. & the hospitals. The resolution was afterwards modified, but pltf. resigned his membership, & was removed from the directorate, & the co. resolved to sell at 1s. a share pltf.'s £1 shares, although their market value was £1 each :—Held : pltf. was entitled to an injunction to restrain deft. co. from acting in pursuance of the resolution.—PHILLIPS v. 2582. ——— Deft. co. was incorporated in 1912 with the object of furthering the interests of a federation of bedstead manufacturers, & of forming a convenient means for the investment of the funds of the federation. The rules of the federation provided for the payment by each member of 1 per cent. of each month's sales to form a reserve fund, which was to be invested & the income paid to the members in due proportion. The practice followed was that sums so paid by members were paid to deft. co., & shares in that co. issued to the members in respect of their respective payments. Pltf. in this way became the holder of shares in trust for pltf. co., which was a member of the federation. Art. 96 of deft. co.'s arts. of assocn. provided that the co. in general meeting might, by resolution passed by a three-fourths majority, "determine that the shares of any member shall be offered for sale by the co. to other members & any such resolution may fix the price to be paid" at any price not being less than 1s. per share, "& in case no such price shall be so fixed the price shall be 1s. per share." Pltf. co. having left the federation, deft. co. passed a resolution by the requisite majority for the sale of pltf.'s shares at 1s. a share. It was admitted that in so doing deft. co. had directed a sale at a gross undervalue with the intention of punishing pltf. co. for leaving the federation & thereby assisting to keep the federation together :—Held : on the construction of the art., it was open to the requisite majority of the shareholders in general meeting to direct a sale of a member's shares at less than their real value, & the fact that their resolution provided for a sale at a gross undervalue was no evidence that they acted oppressively or fraudulently, or that they acted otherwise than in bond fide exercise of the power conferred by the art.—PHILLIPS v. SECT. 24.—TRANSMISSION OF SHARES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—ON DEATH.

A. On Death of Sole Member.

(a) In General.

2591. Position of executor.]—A declaration by the public officer of a joint-stock co. against the extrix. of a shareholder for calls, stated that, by the deed of settlement, it was provided that the shareholders while holding shares, should be partners in the co.; & that in addition to £5 required to be paid by each shareholder before the execution of the deed, the directors should have power to call for the further payment by each shareholder, or his exors. of £45 on every share held by him. It then averred that, after testator's death, & whilst deft. was a shareholder as such extrix., the directors made a call. Breach, non-payment by deft. as such extrix. Pleas, non est factum, & a denial that the call was made, whilst deft. was a shareholder as extrix.:—Held: (1) the covenant by the shareholders to pay calls bound their exors., in case a call was made on them, although the covenant did not contain the words "or their exors.," & consequently there was no variance in the statement of the contract; (2) pltf. was entitled to succeed on the other issue, inasmuch as deft. was in one sense a shareholder as extrix., notwithstanding the deed provided that no exor. should become a shareholder without the consent of the directors, & until he had done certain specified acts, which requisites were not in this case complied with.—WILLS v. MURRAY (1850), 4 Exch. 843; 19 L. J. Ex. 209; 154 E. R. 1458.

price was inadequate, & that the true value of the shares had been fraudulently concealed by the office bearers of the co.:—Held: the fraud of the office bearers was the fraud of the co., & the action was therefore relevantly directed against the co.—JARDINE'S TRUSTEES v. CARRON CO. (1864), 2 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 1101; 36 Sc. Jur. 316.—SCOT.

2592. —.]—In a suit for the administration of the estate of a deceased shareholder in a joint-stock banking co., the registered public officer presented a petition praying leave to prove as a creditor for the amount of a call made since the death of the shareholder in respect of the shares:—Held: the deceased shareholder, having covenanted to pay all calls, & the shares having vested in his exors., as part of his estate, they by law became entitled to the benefit of the deed, & were liable for the calls, there being nothing in the deed of settlement of the co. overruling the rule of law.—HEWARD v. WHEATLEY (1853), 3 De G. M. & G. 628; 22 L. J. Ch. 435; 21 L. T. O. S. 121; 17 Jur. 403; 1 W. R. 216; 43 E. R. 247, L. J. J. Annotation:—Reid. James v. Buena Ventura Nitrate Grounds Syndicate (1896), 65 L. J. Ch. 284.

2593. —.]—In a joint-stock co. the presumption is, that the exors. of a deceased shareholder succeed to the full liability, as well as to the rights of their testator; the deed of settlement is to be looked at, not to see whether it imposes such liability on the exors., but whether it takes it away or limits it. The fact that by the deed of settlement exors. are not entitled to the full privileges of shareholders until they or their nominees have been registered as shareholders, is no proof of an intention to limit their liability in their representative character.

In the case of a joint-stock co. formed in 1845, where, in the opinion of the ct., nothing appeared in the deed of settlement to limit the liability of the exors. of a deceased shareholder:—Held: their liability was not limited to debts incurred before the death of testator.—Re AGRICULTURIST CATTLE INSURANCE CO., BAIRD'S CASE (1870), 5 Ch. App. 725; 23 L. T. 424; 18 W. R. 1094, L. J. Annotation:—Reid. James v. Buena Ventura Nitrate Grounds Syndicate, [1896] 1 Ch. 456.

2594. — Before registration.]—Exors. of a deceased member of a co. who have not had his shares registered in their own names have the same right to dissent from a reconstruction scheme adopted under 1908 Act, s. 192, & to restrain the liquidator from carrying out the scheme without purchasing the shares as the deceased member would have had if living.

Arts. of assocn. forbidding exors. to exercise the rights of a member until they have been registered:—Held: to refer to the exercise of rights on their own behalf & not on behalf of testator's estate.—LLEWELLYN v. KASINTOE RUBBER ESTATES, LTD., [1914] 2 Ch. 670; 84 L. J. Ch. 70; 112 L. T. 676; 30 T. L. R. 683; 58 Sol. Jo. 808; 21 Mans. 349, C. A.

2595. Right of personal representative to registration—Shares held by deceased in fictitious name.]—Where an intestate had executed transfers of railway shares & stock to a fictitious person, the ct., on a bill filed by his administrator, declared that the intestate used the fictitious name as another designation of himself, & that pltf., as his administrator, was entitled to transfer the shares & stock, & to receive the dividends thereof.—ARTHUR v. MIDLAND RY. CO., ETC. (1857), 3 K. & J. 204; 69 E. R. 1082; sub nom. ARTHUR v. LONDON & NORTH WESTERN RY. CO., 5 W. R. 385.

— Form of entry.]—See No. 1283, ante.

2596. Assignment of assets by personal representative to avoid liability.]—T., the widow & residuary legatee of testator, in Nov., 1889, took out letters of administration with the will annexed, & possessed herself of the personal property of testator, but did not have 500 shares in pltf. co.

transferred into her name. On Apr. 10, 1893, pltf. gave T. notice of a call of £1 per share. On Apr. 17 three deeds were executed, whereby T. assigned the whole of the personal estate, except the shares, to L., upon consideration of covenants entered into by L. to indemnify T. against all liabilities, & to provide her with board, lodging, & wearing apparel, & amenities suitable to her position, & on T.'s death to provide her with a decent funeral:—Held: (1) as legal personal representative, T. was bound to administer her husband's estate according to law, & as residuary legatee, she took only what was left after due administration, that is to say, after payment of the debts, including the calls that might be made on the shares; (2) the deeds of assignment must be declared void as against pltf., & there must be the ordinary accounts in a creditor's action; (3) pltf. were entitled to be paid the call & interest, & the costs of the action, & the surplus of the estate would go according to the provisions of the deeds of assignment.—Re TROUGHTON, RENT & GENERAL COLLECTING & ESTATE CO. v. TROUGHTON (1894), 71 L. T. 427; 10 T. L. R. 611; 13 R. 140.

2597. Appointment of Scottish executor—Subsequent sequestration—No English legal personal representative.]—At the commencement of the winding up of a co., certain shares stood in the register in the name of A., a domiciled Scotsman, who was then dead. The shares were held by him as trustee. He had appointed exors. in Scotland, one of whom had accepted the office; but he had no legal personal representative in England. After A.'s death his estates were sequestrated in Scotland. The effect of this, according to Scottish law, was to vest in the sequestrator, as from the date of the sequestration, the whole of A.'s estate, including trust estates, & to divest the exor. entirely. The beneficial interest in the shares belonged to the sequestrator & another person jointly. There were surplus assets of the co. to be returned to the shareholders. The sequestrator was willing to give the joint receipt of himself & the other beneficiary upon payment to him of the proportion of the assets payable in respect of A.'s shares:—Held: the legal title to the shares was vested in the sequestrator, & the money might be paid to him upon the joint receipt offered.—Re TUTICORIN COTTON PRESS CO., LTD. (1894), 64 L. At their request the co. paid to them the dividends & interest payable upon testator's shares & debentures & transferred into their names in the co.'s books in London, two shares & a debenture. The exors., to the knowledge of the co., had not obtained & did not intend to obtain probate in England:—Held: the co. had made themselves executors de son tort; they had taken possession of & administered part of the testator's estate, & were liable to penalties & to deliver an account & pay such duty as would have been payable if probate had been obtained in England.—*NEW YORK BREWERIES CO. v. 2600. As between executor & legatee—After assent by executor—Non-compliance with formalities of membership.—A waiver of the stipulations of a co.'s deed by the directors is not sufficient unless it is shown that the body at large made the directors their agents for that purpose. Where, therefore, a shareholder bequeathed his shares & the exor. assented to the bequest, & the secretary placed the name of the legatee & her husband opposite the shares in the books of the co., but the provisions of the deed of settlement had not been complied with as to the transfer of the shares, nor was it shown that all the shareholders of the co. had concurred in dispensing with such compliance:—Held: the exor. was the proper person to be placed on the list of contributories under the Winding-up Act, without qualification.—Re VALE OF NEATH & SOUTH WALES BREWERY CO., KEENE'S EXECUTORS' CASE (1853), 3 De G. 2601. — Executor not registered.—A co. was wound up nine years & a half after the death of A., in whose name shares were allowed to stand, his executor being beneficially entitled to the shares:—Held: A.'s estate was liable, in the hands of specific devisees & legatees, to pay the calls on the shares.—*TURQUAND v. 2602. — After legacies paid—Liability accruing after payment.—Testator, who had been a shareholder in a co., but had before his death been released from all liability in respect of his shares in consideration of a certain payment, by his will gave certain legacies, which his exors. duly paid. The co. afterwards endeavoured to set aside the release, & they failed in the first instance, but on appeal succeeded in setting aside the release:—Held: the exors. were personally liable to refund the amount paid to the legatees, to meet the calls made upon testator's estate in respect of the shares.

2603. As between executor & assignee of residuary legatee—Call after distribution of residue.

—(1) A residuary legatee assigned the residue to his wife, Mrs. K. for her separate use. The residue comprised some shares not fully paid up in a joint stock co. The exors. handed over to Mrs. K. the certificates of the shares, but did not transfer them, & they paid over to her the cash balance of the residue. After this a call was made on the shares which the exors. were compelled to pay. Mrs. K. refused to indemnify them, & they brought this action against her to enforce indemnity:—Held: if Mrs. K. had been a feme sole, she would have been liable to refund at the suit of the exors., for the liability on the shares did not constitute a debt at the time of paying away the residue, & though the exors. would have had no right to call on the residuary legatees to refund for payment of a debt of which they had notice when they paid away the residue, they did not lose the right to refunding by paying it away with notice of a liability which had not become a debt.

(2) Subject to 1862 Act, s. 75, the liability of a shareholder for future calls is not a debt.—WHITTAKER v. KERSHAW (1890), 45 Ch. D. 320; sub nom. Re KERSHAW, WHITTAKER v. KERSHAW, 60 L. J. Ch. 9; 63 L. T. 203; 39 W. R. 22, C. A.

As between legatee & residuary estate—Where payments necessary to make deceased a complete member.—Where testator takes shares in a co., any payments remaining due at, or becoming due after, his death, which are necessary to constitute him a complete shareholder, must be paid by his general personal estate; but if he was a complete shareholder, payment of calls made after testator's death must be made by the specific legatee of the shares.—*DAY v. 2605 i. As between legatee & residuary estate—Calls after testator's death.—The owner of certain shares in pltf. co. shortly before his death assigned by deed all his property, including his shares to his son, deft., subject to payment of his debts. Deft. admitted receiving dividend-warrants the first of which he endorsed as "J. C., assignee of J. C. (Sen.)," but alleged he had devoted proceeds in payment of his father's debts. He also admitted he had attended a meeting & moved a resolution. After the meeting he showed the deed of assignment to one of the directors & asked to be registered as a shareholder, but was refused as the deed did not comply with the arts. of assocn. The co. made calls on the shares, which deft. refused to pay:—Held: the co. were aware that deft. was not the registered owner of the shares; deft. was not estopped by any conduct on his part from denying that he was a registered holder, & he could not be personally liable for payment of the calls & an Exor. de son tort. Deft. was not liable for such payment de bonis propriis but was liable for

In default of any person executing the deed in respect of such shares, after six months' notice, the shares were liable to forfeiture. A shareholder in the co. bequeathed his shares to his exor., in trust to convert them into money. The exor. sold some of the shares, but did not give the proper notice to make himself a shareholder as to the rest, & was, nevertheless, permitted to receive the dividends on them for five years, signing the receipts as exor. only:—Held: he was not a contributory without qualification.—Re NORTH OF ENGLAND BANKING Co., ARMSTRONG'S CASE (1849), 1 De G. & Sm. 565; 12 L. By the deed of settlement of the co. it was provided, that until certain acts were done constituting the exor. of a deceased member, or purchaser of the deceased member's shares, a partner in the co., the estate of the deceased member should remain liable:—Held: on winding up the co., in the absence of any proof that the extrix. had done any acts constituting her a member of the co., the estate of the deceased partner was liable to contribute, & the name of the extrix. ought to be placed on the list of contributories in her representative character.

The master having struck out the name of the extrix. from the list of contributories, on the ground that Country Bankers Act, 1826 (c. 46), s. 13, applied to the case, the Vice-Chancellor, being of a different opinion, made an order referring it back to the master to review his decision, with a declaration of opinion that the extrix. ought to be included in the list, either in her own right or in her representative character:—Held: on appeal, the alternative form of this order was correct.—*Re NORTH OF ENGLAND JOINT STOCK BANKING Co., Ex p. 2615. — Executors not registered as members.]—Eighty shares in A. co. stood in the names of K. & J. K. died & his will was proved, but his exors. took no steps for having their names placed on the register. On the winding up of the co. an application was made to have the names of K.'s exors. placed on the list of contributories in their representative capacity jointly with J.:—Held: K., having executed the deed of settlement of the co., which contemplated more persons than one as owners of a share, & which contained a covenant whereby each owner covenanted severally for himself, his heirs, exors. & administrators to perform & satisfy all the engagements & obligations attaching to any shares, held by him, K. must be considered liable on all engagements & obligations up to the time of his death. But K. & J. having been joint tenants & not tenants in common, K. was not liable on any contract entered into after his death. Consequently the exors. were placed on the list of contributories in their representative capacity, but only in respect of the engagements & liabilities up to the time of K.'s death.—Re ALBERT LIFE ASSURANCE CO., KIRBY'S EXECUTORS' CASE (1871), 15 Sol. More than nine years after the death of testatrix the co. failed, & on being wound up under Winding-up Act, 1848 (c. 45), the master placed the name H. alone on the list of contributories as personally liable; he subsequently, & after the passing of the Winding-up Amendment Act, 1849 (c. 108), reviewed his decision, & placed the names of both H. & C. on the list as liable in the character of exors. & C. applied to have his name taken off the list:—Held: there was nothing in the facts of the case in reference to the dealings between the co. & H., or in the provisions of the deed of settlement of the co., that varied the rights of the co. in respect to the liability of C. to contribute in his character of exor.—Re NORTH OF ENGLAND JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., CROSFIELD'S CASE (1852), 2 De G. & after her death to his daughter absolutely, & he appointed them extrixes. The widow & daughter, as extrixes., received the dividends on the shares for several years. 2623. Inquiry of company by executors—As to liability of testator—Estoppel.]—M., a director in a co., took 500 shares, & gave a promissory note for £5,000. M. died, & before proving his will, whom she has been married in community, to pay to herself as surviving spouse any portion of the common estate until her husband's shares in an unlimited banking corporation have been transferred or the liability entailed by their retention has been ascertained.

A. & B. married in community of property by their mutual will, appointed the survivor & their daughter C. heirs of the first dying. A., the husband, died first, & B., as extrix., framed an account by which she awarded one moiety of the realised assets to herself as surviving spouse & divided the other moiety between herself & C. as heirs. Among the assets of the common estate were 30 bank shares registered in A.'s name, which B., as extrix., took no steps to realise. Nine years after A.'s death the bank was placed in liquidation, & the estate, as represented by B., the extrix., was placed upon the list of contributories:—Held: neither B. nor C. could be placed upon the list of contributories in their individual capacity, but there were sufficient grounds for a rule calling upon B. to show cause why, falling sufficient assets in the estate, she should not be ordered to pay, de bonis propriis, the sums awarded & paid to herself as his exors., upon inquiry, were informed by the surviving directors that their testator had only twenty shares upon which the whole capital had been paid. There was no entry of his ever having received any dividends in respect of the 500 shares. On the faith of the representation of the directors, who had cancelled the 500 shares, the exors. distributed M.'s assets. On the winding-up of the co., the master ordered M.'s exors. to be placed on the list of contributories in respect of the 500 shares, but, on appeal, the order was discharged.

Instead of being exchanged they were cancelled, & other shares, being old shares, were transferred, in the co.'s books, to A. & B., as upon a sale:—Held: as to the forty shares, B. was properly excluded from the list of contributories, both in his individual character, & also as representative of his deceased father.—*Re ST. 2632. Person receiving dividends—Brother of deceased shareholder.]—Where a person who had received the dividends on the bank shares of a deceased shareholder was, on the winding up of the affairs of the banking co. under 1848 Act, placed by the official manager on the list of contributories as the exor. of the deceased shareholder, & on his appearance before the master, he showed that he was not such exor., the master placed him on the list of contributories as a person primarily liable:—Held: the master's decision was contrary to the express terms of that Act, & must be reviewed by him.

G. was served with a notice as representative of his deceased brother. He attended in compliance with that notice, complained of being described in a false character, & disclosed the real nature of his position. The master then, in defiance of the notice under which G. appeared, placed him in the list of persons personally & primarily liable. That was not a correct proceeding, nor one justified by the Act. The master might as well charge him as personally liable for 100 shares instead of ten, as charge him in a character totally different from that in which he was summoned to appear. The necessity of a new notice has been arbitrarily dispensed with, & G., without further question, has been made liable as a primary shareholder. That course is contrary to the express provisions of the Act (LORD COTTENHAM, C.).—Re NORTH OF ENGLAND JOINT STOCK BANKING CO., Ex p. GLAHOLM (1849), 1 H. & Tw. 121; 1 De G. & Sm. 583; 18 L. J. 2647. ——— Certificates transferable by delivery—Fraudulent deposit by brokers.]—Scrip certificates, by which it was certified that, after the payment of certain instalments, the bearer thereof would be entitled to be registered as the holder of shares in a banking co., were issued to pltf., & by him deposited with a stockbroker for the purpose of paying the instalments remaining due, & dealing with such certificates as pltf. should direct. The broker, in fraud of pltf., & without his authority, deposited the scrip with defts. as security for an amount due from him, the broker, to defts. Defts. were not aware of the fraud:—Held: defts. were entitled to the scrip certificates as against pltf., on the ground that pltf., by depositing with his broker instruments purporting to be transferable by delivery to a bona fide holder for value, was estopped from denying that they were so transferable.—*RUMBALL v. 2648. ——— Right of subsequent transferee for value to charging order—Under Judgments Act, 1838 (c. 110), s. 14.]—Deft., a registered owner of shares in a joint-stock co., deposited the certificate with E. as a security for money advanced. Deft. afterwards borrowed a further sum from an insurance office, & executed to C., one of his sureties on that occasion, with the consent of E., who was the other surety, a transfer of the shares, accompanied by a declaration of the terms of the transfer, & delivered both instruments to C. The money not having been paid to the insurance office, they claimed it from E. & C., when C. requested the insurance office to transfer the shares into his name, which they refused to do, on the ground that they had been previously served with a judge's order nisi to charge the shares:—Held: the shares were properly charged as shares standing in deft.'s name "in his own right" within the meaning of the above Act.—*FULLER v. 2652. Right to give—Effect of 1856 Act, s. 19.] —The object of the above sect. enacting that “no notice of any trust, express or implied or constructive, shall be entered on the register or receivable by the co.” was that the co. itself should not be bound by any notice of any trust, but the sect. does not prevent an equitable mtge. by deposit of shares from being so far completed by notice as to be valid as against the assignees in bkpcy. of the mtgor., claiming them under the reputed ownership clause of the Bkpcy. The directors & secretary of a joint-stock co. joined in depositing the certificates of shares belonging to them with a banking co., as a security for money advanced:—Held: this transaction amounted to a sufficient notice to the co. of an equitable assignment of the shares belonging to the secretary, so as to support the title of the equitable mtgees. against his assignees in bkpcy.—Re SHELLEY, Ex p. SUB-SECT. 3.—RIGHTS OF MORTGAGOR.

A. In General.

2658. Redemption—After twenty years.]—The representative of C. prayed to redeem £2,500 East India stock, transferred to debt. on Apr. 1, 1708, for securing £2,000 & interest at £6 per cent. to be retransferred on payment of principal & interest on July 3 following. C. died in 1709, the son brought this bill in 1729. The ct. refused to decree a redemption.

2659. ——— Retransfer of identical stock pledged.]
—A. & B., stockbrokers, borrowed, on behalf of pltf., a sum of money, for a term of three months, from defts., who were also stockbrokers, upon the security of certain railway stock, which was transferred by pltf. into the name of one of defts.' firm. At the expiration of the term the loan was repaid with interest, & defts., who, pending the loan, had sold pltf.'s stock, purchased other stock, & retransferred a similar amount to pltf. Pltf. claimed to be entitled to the amount of profit which defts. had realised:—Held: (1) pltf. was entitled to sue as principal in the transaction; (2) defts. were not justified, either by law or by the custom of the Stock Exchange, in parting with the security during the currency of the loan, but were bound to return the identical stock pledged; (3) pltf. was entitled to recover from defts. the amount of profit realised by their dealings with 2660. — Free of clog on the equity.]—A holder of shares in a tea co. mortgaged the shares to secure a loan & agreed to use his best endeavours to secure that “always thereafter” the mtgee. should have the sale of all the co.’s teas as broker, & in the event of any of the co.’s teas being sold otherwise than through the mtgee. to pay him the amount of the commission he would have earned if the teas had been sold through him. The mtge. was paid off & the co. afterwards changed their broker. The quondam mtgee. having brought an action against the shareholder for breach of the above agreement:—Held: the agreement was not binding & the action could not be maintained.

An agreement in a mtge. of shares under which the mtgor. undertakes to use his best endeavours to secure that the mtgee. shall “always hereafter” be employed as broker for the co. is invalid as constituting a clog on the equity of redemption.—*BRADLEY v. 2662. To proceed against company in name of mortgagee — To enforce retransfer — Necessary parties to action.]—Shares in a banking co. were transferred by way of mtge. The mtgor. afterwards paid off the debt & applied for a retransfer of the shares, but the directors of the bank did not permit the retransfer to be made. In the meantime a creditor recovered judgment against their public officer, & threatened execution against the mtgee. as one of the shareholders:—Held: (1) where the mtge. was made simply as an absolute transfer, subject to redemption & nothing had passed binding the mtgor. to take a retransfer of the shares, the mtgor. was not liable to indemnify the mtgee. against debts incurred after the transfer made on the mtge., & before the mtge. debt. was paid off; (2) the mtgor. having elected to take a retransfer of the shares, the mtgee. became a trustee of the shares for the mtgor., & the mtgor. was bound to indemnify him against the whole expenses or liabilities which he had properly incurred by holding & maintaining the shares;

(3) the mtgor., indemnifying the mtgee. in respect of the costs, was entitled to take proceedings in the name of the mtgee., to compel a retransfer of the shares, & (4) to resist the proceedings against the shareholders under the judgment.

Semble: the mtgee. has not, in such a case, any right at law against the mtgor.

B. On Sale of Shares by Mortgagee.

2665. Where sale wrongful—Right to profits—& interest.]—A. having borrowed of B. £1,100, not only gave him a bond for it, but as a collateral security, deposited with him a subscription receipt of a co., numbered 195, for £500, with liberty to sell it, in case default should be made in payment of the debt. Before the bond became payable, B. sold this receipt for £2,700, but pretended that it was not the receipt deposited by A., that receipt being numbered 194, for the same sum, & which, after default made in payment of the bond, B. sold for no more than £595. On a bill filed against B. an issue was directed to try whether the receipt so deposited was numbered 195 or 194, & a verdict being found that it was numbered 195, B. was decreed to account for the difference, with interests & costs.—*TUTT v. Notwithstanding this agreement, B. sold the stock on the very same day:—Held: he was answerable for the money received by such sale, with interest.—ANDRÉ v. CRAWFORD (1771), 1 Bro. Parl. 2669. On bankruptcy of mortgagor—Right of assignee in bankruptcy to maintain trover—Or to recover in damages.]—A holder of scrip certificates for shares, borrowed of deft. a sum of money on his own promissory note, payable on demand, & on the security of the shares, & deposited with deft. the scrip certificates. He afterwards became bkpt., & deft., without demand & without notice, sold ten of the fifteen shares to repay himself his debt. The creditors' assignee, without making any tender of the amount of the debt, brought an action of trover against deft. to recover the value of the shares:—Held: even assuming the sale to be wrongful, the immediate right to the possession of the shares was not by the sale re-vested in pltf., & he could not therefore maintain trover, either for the whole value of the shares or for nominal damages.—HALLIDAY v. HOLGATE (1868), L. R. 3 Exch. 299; 37 L. J. Ex. 174; 18 L. T. 656; 17 W. R. 13, Ex. Ch.

C. Against Sub-Mortgagee.

2670. Right to redeem—On payment of debt to sub-mortgagee.]—FRANCE v. CLARK, No. 2338, ante.

2671. ——— Sub-mortgagee with constructive notice.]—S. gave to E. certificates of railway stock with transfers thereof executed by him in blank, & bonds of foreign cos., alleged to be negotiable securities, for the purpose of raising £26,000. E. gave the securities to M., a money dealer in London, to secure £26,000 advanced by M. to E. M. deposited the transfers & securities, together with other securities of his customers, with various banks, as security for large loan accounts running between him & them, the blanks in the transfers of stock being filled up with the names of nominees of the banks. The banks in so dealing either actually knew, or had reason to believe, that the securities did or might belong not to M., but to his customers. M. having become bkpt., the banks sold some of S.'s securities, & claimed to hold the proceeds & the unsold remainder as security for all the debt from M. to them:—Held: though the banks had the legal title to the securities, they were not purchasers for value without notice, but ought to have inquired into the extent of M.'s authority, & this whether the securities were negotiable or not; & upon payment to the banks of the money advanced by M. to E., S. was entitled to the value of such of the securities as had been sold by the banks, & to redeem the remainder.—*SHEFFIELD (EARL) v. 2672. ——— Sub-mortgagee without notice.]—Stockbrokers were employed by a client to make for him from time to time on Stock Exchange speculative purchases & sales of stock, shares, & bonds. The brokers furnished him with money to enable him to pay for the purchases, & he authorised them to hold the purchased stocks, shares, & bonds as security for their advances, & also to repledge them.

The brokers had a loan account with their bankers, with whom they deposited stock, shares, & bonds belonging to various clients, as security for the bankers' advances. The bank allowed the brokers to withdraw the deposited securities from time to time, as they required them, upon their depositing others of equal value. Ultimately, the brokers became defaulters on the Stock Exchange, & were adjudicated bkpts. At the date of the default there were in the hands of the bank various stocks & shares, & also some bonds payable to bearer, which the brokers had purchased for the client. The stocks & shares were transferred by deed in the ordinary way, & they had all been transferred to, & were registered in, the names of trustees for the bank. Some of the transfers were made by the client himself, some by the brokers, & some by third parties. Those which were made by the client were expressed to be for a nominal consideration; the others were expressed to be for full value. The bonds passed by delivery on the Stock Exchange, & were always there treated as negotiable. The client claimed to be entitled to redeem the securities on paying to the bank the amount which was due from himself to the brokers; the bank claimed to hold the securities until payment of a larger amount which was due to them from the brokers. The client asserted that the authority which he had given to the brokers to repledge his securities authorised them to do so only for an amount not exceeding what was due from himself to them.

There was evidence that the majority of transactions on the Stock Exchange, when the purchaser of securities does not pay for them at once, is carried on upon a system as "contango," or "continuation," under which the person who provides the purchase-money becomes the owner of the purchased stock or shares, he entering into a contemporaneous contract with the purchaser to sell to him at a future day, generally the next "account day" on the Stock Exchange, an equal amount of similar stock or shares at the original price, increased by a charge called the "contango":—Held: (1) having regard to the evidence relating to the "contango" system, there was nothing to lead the bank to suppose that the stocks & shares which were transferred to their trustees were not the broker's own property; & the bank must therefore be treated as bona fide holders for value without notice, & their legal title could not be impeached; & consequently, the client could not redeem without paying the amount which was due from the brokers to the bank; (2) as to the stocks & shares of which the client had himself executed transfers, he was estopped from denying that the brokers had authority to pledge them to the bank for their full value; (3) the bonds were negotiable securities, & the client could not redeem without paying the amount due from the brokers to the bank.—BENTINCK v. LONDON JOINT STOCK BANK, [1893] 2 Ch. 120; 62 L. J. Ch. 358; 68 L. T. 315; 42 W. R. 140; 9 T. L. R. 262; 3 R. 120.

2677. — Shares not fully-paid—Relief from liability.]—Directors of a co. are not personally liable to find cash for cheques drawn by them as officers of their co. upon their co.'s bank, & which the bank honoured when the co. had no funds at the bank, by reason of a letter written by such directors, at a time when the co. had funds at the bank, requesting the bankers to honour cheques of the co. drawn in a particular manner, such letter being only an intention not to treat cheques as cheques of the co., unless signed in that manner; such a letter is not any representation of any authority in the directors to overdraw the account, or that there will be funds forthcoming to answer the cheques, & it does not imply any undertaking on the part of any of the directors signing it that he will personally pay or be answerable for any cheques, though drawn in that particular manner, if they should not be paid by the co. Bankers, to whom, on such cheques, large sums were owing by a railway co., having obtained a transfer to two of their number, of preference shares, on which nothing had been paid, as a collateral security for the advances made by them:—Held: (1) as on the literal construction of the correspondence which resulted in the transfer, there was nothing to show that the shares were to be fully or at all paid up, there was no misrepresentation or liability on the part of the directors to pay what was due upon the shares; but (2) under the circumstances the bankers were entitled to be relieved from liability in respect of such shares, & to have their names cancelled in the register of the shareholders of the co.—BEATTIE v. Sale—Bankruptcy of mortgagor—Shares not in order or disposition of bankrupt.]—The petitioners were bankers who had had dealings with the bkpts. who had given them their joint promissory note & a further security by way of assignment to them of certain shares. An entry was made at the office of the co. whose shares were in question. On petitioners applying to be registered, the secretary of the co. said the transfer to them was not in the form prescribed. Petitioners now applied for an order to sell the shares:—Held: they were entitled to the relief claimed; there was here no reputed ownership or order & disposition, for any person inquiring at the office would at once have learned that the bkpts. were not the true owners.—*Re LITT & HARRISON, Ex p. (2) Where a mtge. of shares was made by deposit of the share certificate together with a blank transfer, the fact that the mtgee. in giving notice requiring payment makes a mistake as to the amount due on the mtge. & demands too much is not a ground for invalidating the exercise of his implied power of sale.

2699. ——— Mortgage by blank transfer & deposit of certificates—Transfer not registered.]—Shares in a co. were registered in the books of the co. in the name of W., he being a trustee for pltf. In Feb., 1886, as a security for an antecedent debt due from his firm to defts. H. & A., W. deposited with them the certificates for 75 of the shares, & executed & delivered to them a transfer of those shares, & they sent it to the co.'s office for registration. Before it was registered pltf. discovered the facts, & she brought this action to assert her right to the shares. Under the co.'s deed of settlement the person registered in the register of shareholders as the proprietor of a share was to be recognised by the co. as the lawful proprietor, & no person was to be entitled to be recognised as the proprietor of a share as between himself & the co. until he had been registered as the proprietor; no person was to be entitled to be registered as the proprietor of a share until he should, by execution of the deed of settlement, or some deed referring thereto, have undertaken the liabilities & duties of a shareholder; every transfer of shares was to be by deed which when executed was to be deposited at the office of the co., & remain in its custody, & such deed was to be according to a form in the sched. thereto, or the like effect. The transfer by W. to H. & A. was not according to that form, & did not in any way refer to the co.'s deed of settlement:—Held: H. & A. had not acquired the legal title to the shares which the transferor had, for they had not been registered as shareholders, nor had the transfer to them been accepted by the co. as a proper transfer, so as to make it effectual as between the co. & them. Neither had they acquired an absolute & unconditional right to be registered as shareholders, & their title was inchoate only, & not sufficient to defeat pltf.'s prior equitable title.—ROOTS v. WILLIAMSON (1888), 38 Ch. SECT. 26.—SURRENDER OF SHARES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—VALIDITY.

A. In General.

2705. General rule.]—The forfeiture of shares is distinctly recognised by 1862 Act, & by the arts. contained in the sched., which in the absence of other provisions, regulate the management of a limited liability co. It does not involve any payment by the co., & it presumably exonerates from future liability those who have shown themselves unable to contribute what is due from them to the capital of the co. Surrender no doubt stands on a different footing. But it also does not involve any payment out of the funds of the co. If the surrender were made in consideration of any such payment, it would be neither more nor less than a sale, & open to the same objections. If it were accepted in a case when the co. were in a position to forfeit the shares, the transaction would seem to me perfectly valid. There may be other cases in which a surrender would be legitimate (LORD HERSCHELL).—TREVOR v. WHITWORTH (1887), 12 App. Cas. 409; 57 L. J. Ch. 28; 57 L. T. 457; 36 W. R. 145; 3 T. L. R. 745, H. 2709. ——— Resolution authorising forfeiture.—By the deed of settlement of a co. its directors had the power of purchasing on behalf of the co. shares in the capital of the co. when there should be a surplus fund of £10,000, & there was no prohibitory clause in the deed restricting the purchase under other circumstances. The deed provided the mode by which a shareholder parting with his shares was to be relieved from subsequent responsibility. The deed also contained clauses regulating the mode of convening extraordinary & general meetings, & provided that, where an extraordinary meeting was to be convened, notice should be given of the specific object of the meeting to each shareholder. The co. being in insolvent circumstances, an extraordinary meeting was held & a resolution passed, the purport of which had not been previously notified, authorising the directors to purchase, within three months, the shares of any member who was desirous of retiring from the co., who would lend to the co. a sum equal to the purchase-money. After the expiration of the three months, a general meeting of the co. was held, at which the directors were authorised to allow such further time as they might think reasonable to those shareholders who had not complied with the resolution of the extraordinary meeting, & the forfeiture of the shares of those proprietors who should continue to be defaulters was sanctioned. Acting on the resolution of the general meeting, W. sold his shares to one of the directors on behalf of the co., & lent a sum equivalent to the purchase-money, receiving the loan note of the co. Having died before the transfer of the shares was effected with all the formalities prescribed by the deed, the co., at the instance of his exor., completed the transfer by the execution of those formalities:—Held: (1) the resolution of the extraordinary general meeting, being invalid was incapable of being ratified by the general meeting whose powers were limited to acts not contrary to the deed; (2) the resolution of the general meeting, in terms applying only to defaulters, could not be construed to extend to the privilege of retiring from the partnership, which had expired by lapse of time; (3) the master, acting under an order for winding up the co., had rightly included the exor. in the list of contributories without qualification.—Re VALE OF NEATH & SOUTH WALES BREWERY JOINT STOCK CO., LAWES'S CASE (1852), 1 De G. 2710. ——— Alteration of articles—Liability of shareholders diversely affected.—A co. may by special resolution vary its arts. so as to give itself power to accept surrenders of old shares in exchange for new.

Two thousand £10 shares in a co. had been issued, of which 901, called X shares, had been fully paid up, & on the other 1099, called A shares, £2 10s. per share had been paid. Special resolutions were duly passed that the X shares should be cancelled, & two shares of £10 each, with £5 per share paid thereon, given in lieu of each, & that the A shares should be cancelled & one share of £10, with £5 paid, be given in lieu of every two of them. These resolutions were assented to by all the shareholders & duly registered, & the shareholders generally accepted in lieu of their old shares, shares, which were called in the proceedings B shares, with £5 each paid. T., a holder of A shares, having thus accepted B shares, sold & transferred them, & in the annual lists sent to the registrar, was treated as having then ceased to be a member. About seven years after the passing of the resolutions the co. was ordered to be wound up, & the liquidator placed on the list of contributories the name of T., & also the names of all the other persons who at the passing of the resolutions were holders of A shares, as well as the names of the persons who had become holders of the B shares given in lieu of them:—Held: T.'s name must be removed from the list, for that the resolutions ought to be construed, not as purporting to oblige all the shareholders to accept B shares in lieu of their old shares, but only as empowering the directors to effect such exchange with all shareholders who wished it, & so construed, the resolutions were not ultra vires, but were effectual as special resolutions altering the arts. of assocn., & a surrender of the old shares made in pursuance of them was valid.—

The shares were transferred accordingly, & were afterwards again transferred, & at the date of the winding-up order, stood in the names of other persons:—Held: the first arrangement was invalid, & the retiring directors were still contributories, notwithstanding the subsequent transfers.

This was a transaction which was, & was known by the parties to it to be, a purchase of shares by a set of remaining directors from directors who intended to retire from the direction, on behalf of the co., & to form part of the stock of shares of the co.; & this was an essential part of the transaction (ROMILLY, M.R.).—Re UNIVERSAL PROVIDENT LIFE ASSOCN., MUNT'S CASE (1856), 22 Beav. 55; 52 E. No note of the proposal was entered on the minutes, nor were the shares handed over to him. No other director followed his example, but, subsequently, he being still a director, his name was returned to the Stamp Office for the shares. Afterwards having ceased to be a director, & having reason to know that the co. was in failing circumstances, he procured his shares to be cancelled by the directors:—Held: upon the terms of the co.'s deed of settlement, this was ultra vires on the part of the directors, they having no power to cancel or diminish the capital, but only to forfeit shares for the benefit of the co. & was a fraud on the part of the shareholder, who was accordingly a contributory in respect of those shares.—Re ATHENÆUM LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, RICHMOND'S CASE & PAINTER'S CASE (1858), 4 K. & J. 305; 32 L. The co. had power to receive all the capital unpaid on any share, but had no power to cancel shares or to buy shares. A resolution confirming this agreement, which was most beneficial to the co., was passed at meetings at which some of the shareholders were not represented. No shareholders dissented, & the debenture-holders & other creditors assented. The co. presented a petition for the sanction of the ct. to the proposed reduction of capital:—Held: (1) the co. had power, without the sanction of the ct., to sell part of its assets in consideration of a price in cash, & a release from liability, & then to accept a surrender of these shares; (2) the transaction was not a purchase by the co. of its own shares; (3) the result would be that these shares would be "capital in excess of the wants of the co." within Companies Act, 1877 (c. 26), s. 3; & (4) the ct., therefore, had power to sanction the resolution, although there was no power to authorise a co. to prefer one shareholder to another of the same class by buying up his shares.—Re DENVER HOTEL CO., [1893] 1 Ch. 495; 62 L. 2725. — Power to purchase shares—Surrender by director under arrangement for benefit of company—Confirmed by extraordinary general meeting.]—The memorandum of assocn. of a limited colliery co. gave the co. power to do all things which it should consider conducive to the attainment of its objects, but did not in terms give any power to purchase its own shares. Clause 10 of the arts. empowered the directors to purchase for the co. any shares in the co., & directed that the shares so purchased should be dealt with as if they had never been issued, & that any profit arising on the re-issuing or subsequent sale of such shares should be deemed profits of the year in which they were re-issued or sold. In 1872, disputes having arisen as to the conduct of the business, the directors agreed with W., the largest shareholder, who was also one of the directors, to purchase for the co. his shares & also his interest as landlord of the mines worked by the co. This arrangement was confirmed by an extraordinary general meeting of the co., & was carried into effect by an assignment of his interest in the mines to the co. for a specific sum, & by a transfer to the co. of his shares for another specific sum. The co. was entered in the share register as holder of these shares, & in all the subsequent returns to the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. the co. was entered as such holder. The co. for some time was prosperous, but afterwards fell into difficulties, & in 1879 an order was made for winding it up:—Held: (1) although the arts. could not effectually authorise a general trafficking in shares, as that would be extending the business of the co. in a way not authorised by the memorandum, there was nothing illegal in a clause authorising a purchase of shares, not for profit, but for carrying into effect an arrangement considered to be for the benefit of the co.; & such a purchase did not reduce the capital of the co. in any sense in which such reduction is prohibited by the Cos. Act; & W. had effectually surrendered his shares, to the co. & ceased to be a shareholder from the date of the surrender, & was not a contributory; (2) if the transaction, supposing it to have been carried into effect without the sanction of the extraordinary general meeting, would have been questionable, the co. having confirmed it & taken the benefit of it, could not now have impeached it, & the liquidator had no better right.—Re DRONFIELD SILKSTONE COAL CO. (1880), 17 Ch. 2728. Effect of provision in articles validating contract approved by general meeting.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a limited co., it was provided that no contract entered into by the directors to which the assent of the co. in general meeting should be given, should be afterwards impeached on any ground whatsoever. In Dec. 1866, the directors entered into a contract with pltf., one of the terms of which was that the co. would "forthwith" cancel all shares in the co. then standing in pltf.'s name which were not fully paid up. The contract was assented to by the co. in general meeting, & was largely performed in part, but pltf.'s shares were not cancelled on Feb. 13, 1867, when resolutions were passed for a voluntary winding up, which was afterwards continued under supervision:—Held: the agreement for cancellation of the shares could not be impeached; & pltf.'s name ought not to be on the list of contributories in the character of a present member.—MARSHALL v. GLAMORGAN IRON & COAL CO. (1868), L. R. 7 Eq. 129; 28 L. J. Ch. 69; 19 L. T. 632; 17 W. R. 435.

2729. Dispute over obligation of director to take qualification shares.]—In Oct. 1846, A. in the belief that he must take shares in order to qualify for the office of director which he had accepted in a co., applied for, & had certain shares allotted to him. Understanding shortly afterwards that no qualification was necessary, he thenceforward repudiated the shares, refusing to execute the deed of settlement, or to pay calls. No dividend was ever received by him. In 1855, after intermediate communications, he offered to pay a specified sum on being released from all further liability, & the directors, who were empowered by the deed of settlement to compromise disputed claims, passed a resolution accepting his proposal. This resolution was confirmed at a general meeting of shareholders, but no notice had been given of the intention to confirm the arrangement, or of its terms, nor were the terms stated in the circular subsequently sent to the shareholders, containing the directors' report, & the resolutions passed by the meeting. A's name had been originally put upon the register of shareholders, & was never removed. In 1861, the co. was wound up. A's name was put on the list of contributories:—Held: there being no ground for imputing fraud, collusion, suppression or concealment, the arrangement under which A. had been released must stand as a bond fide compromise, whether he was originally liable as a shareholder or not, & the order must be discharged.—Re AGRICULTURIST CATTLE INSURANCE CO., BELHAVEN'S (LORD) CASE (1865), 3 De G. r. —.]—A co. was formed for the acquisition of mines with a capital consisting of preferred & deferred shares. The deferred shares, which were bearer shares, were issued as fully paid to the vendors, who subsequently sold part of these shares. Thereafter an agreement was entered on account of misrepresentation in the prospectus, wrote to the secretary declining to have anything more to do with the co., & requiring the return of his deposit. The deposit was returned, but F.'s name was not removed from the register. A year & five months afterwards the co. was ordered to be wound up. The directors had not express power to compromise disputes, but they had all powers which could be exercised by the co. in general meetings:—Held: F. was not a contributory.—Re CANADIAN NATIVE OIL CO., FOX'S CASE (1868), L. 2731. — Unknown to member at date of surrender.—The cancellation of shares by directors, where the shareholder has valid grounds to claim cancellation, is good & effectual, although the shareholder claimed such cancellation on invalid grounds, not being at the time aware of the existence of valid grounds.

In the prospectus of a co. it was untruly stated that 80,000 shares had been subscribed for. W., relying on this statement applied for shares, & had ten shares allotted to him, on which he paid the deposit. The committee of the Stock Exchange refused to grant a settling day, whereupon W. wrote to the directors that they ought to return the deposit. The shareholders at a meeting agreed that the allottees were entitled to have their allotments cancelled, whereupon W. received back his deposit money, & returned his share certificates, & an entry was made in the register of shareholders that his shares were cancelled. The co. was afterwards wound up, & W. then discovered the misrepresentation as to the number of shares subscribed for:—Held: the cancellation of the allotment was valid, the directors having been aware of the misrepresentation though the shareholder was not aware of it; & W. was not a contributory either as a present or past member.—Re LONDON & MEDITERRANEAN BANK, WRIGHT'S CASE (1871), 7 Ch. The directors of the co. advanced defts. a sum of £6,500 & some debenture-stock in the co. on the security of the money which would be due to defts. on the conclusion of the transaction with D. The transaction went off, & the directors called upon defts. to repay the money. Defts. being unable to pay, proposed a compromise, which the directors accepted, that they should deliver up 400 shares, which they held in the co., to be cancelled in satisfaction & discharge of their debt. At a general meeting of the co., the fact that the 400 shares had been forfeited was mentioned to the shareholders & published in a circular, & the books of the co. were open for inspection, so that every shareholder had the means of inquiring into the transaction. The arts. of assocn. provided that the co. should not buy or sell its own shares. In an action brought to recover the money lent:—Held: (1) although the directors, in entering into a compromise with defts., had exceeded the authority given to them by the arts. of assocn., yet the shareholders had ratified the directors' acts by not objecting at the right time; & (2) they could not, after profiting by an increased dividend arising from the forfeiture of the shares, open anew transactions to which they had tacitly assented.

What amounts to an agreement—Resolution authorising directors to accept surrenders—Not binding on company as agreement.]—(1) A new certificate of incorporation is necessary to complete a change of name by a co. under 1862 Act, s. 13. It is not enough that the change has been sanctioned by a special resolution of the co. & approved by the Board of Trade. On July 18, 1867, a co. duly passed a resolution to change its name, which resolution was confirmed on Aug. 9. On Aug. 23 the directors made a call in the old name of the co. On Sept. 7 the approval of the change of name by the Board of Trade was obtained, & on Sept. 13 notice of the call, in the new name, was given to the shareholders. On Dec. 31 an action in the old name was brought against a shareholder who knew of the proposed change of name, to recover the amount of the call. The certificate of incorporation in the new name was not issued until Feb. 13, 1868:—Held: the action was properly brought in the old name of the co., & the notice of the call in the new name was sufficient, as it in fact gave deft. notice that the call had been made.

(2) The co. passed a resolution authorising the directors, "if they should think fit," to accept transfers from such shareholders as should give notice of their willingness to surrender their shares:—Held: this was not binding on the co. as an agreement to accept such surrenders.—SHACKLEFORD, FORD & CO. v. SECT. 27.—FORFEITURE OF SHARES.

SUB-SECT. 1.—THE POWER TO FORFEIT.

2741. Existence—Whether inherent.]—There is no inherent power in the directors or in a general meeting of the shareholders in a co. to declare a forfeiture of shares.

Therefore a person who had taken shares, but had not signed the deed, & whose shares had been declared forfeited by the directors with the sanction of a general meeting of the shareholders, was not relieved from his liability as a contributory, the forfeiture being ultra vires, & the directors not being expressly empowered by the deed to forfeit shares.—Re NATIONAL PATENT STEAM FUEL CO., BARTON'S CASE (1859), 4 De G. & J. 46; 4 Drew. 535; 28 L. This not being authorised by the constitution of the co. or by the provisions of the deed of settlement:—Held: it was not a matter of internal management to be confirmed by a general meeting, & a demurrer to a bill to make the directors liable was therefore overruled.—HODGKINSON v. him notice that in default of payment within a specified time his shares would be forfeited; that if the requisitions of any such notice were not complied with, the shares might be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect; that when any share had been so forfeited, notice of such forfeiture should be given to such shareholder, & an entry should be forthwith made in the register of shareholders, stating the date of such forfeiture; & that any share so forfeited should become the property of the co. K., a shareholder in the co., made default in payment of his calls, & notice was sent to him in due form that, unless he paid the calls by Sept. 2, they would be forfeited. The time having elapsed without payment, the secretary made entries in the books on Sept. 3 that the shares were forfeited, & had been transferred to the co. But there was no entry in the minutes of any resolution having been passed by the directors, nor any evidence of any notice of the forfeiture having been sent to K.: —Held: (1) there was a valid forfeiture of the shares, & K. could not be placed on the list of contributories as a member of the co.; (2) as the entry of forfeiture on the books could not have been properly made without a resolution of the directors, the ct. was bound to assume that such a resolution had been passed; (3) the forfeiture was complete on Sept. 3 without sending a notice of it to the shareholders, the provisions in the arts. as to sending the notice being mandatory only, & not of the essence of the forfeiture.—Re NORTH HAILLENBEAGLE MINING CO., KNIGHT'S CASE (1867), 2 Ch. b. For failure to pay calls — Vendor's shares.]—Shares were issued to vendors as purchase price for property. The arts. of assocn. provided that a majority of the shareholders could alter them, such alteration to be binding on all. Power was also given to increase the capital by making fresh calls. The arts. were duly altered, one of the alterations providing that in case of non-payment of new calls the shares of those in arrears should be forfeited. Subsequently a resolution was duly passed to increase the capital by making a fresh call. Pltf., a vendor, refused to pay such calls on her vendor's shares, & in consequence her shares were forfeited. —Held: the resolutions were binding on all shareholders of whatever class.—*TUCKER v. given to shareholders, including himself, that unless the call was paid by a certain date their shares would be forfeited. He did not pay the call, & after the date fixed by the last notice he resigned his position as director. Subsequently the directors passed a resolution that pltf.'s shares being forfeited, should be sold, & removed his name from the register. Pltf. afterwards claimed them & tendered all calls. The directors then passed a resolution declaring the calls forfeited:—Held: no declaration of the forfeiture having been made, the directors had no right to remove the name from the register.—*GREENWOOD v. Notice—Necessity for.]—Pltf., on becoming a member of debt. co., agreed to accept his shares subject to the rule of the co. that in default of payment of dues for a year, the directors might forfeit any share so in default. Pltf. being in default for a year & upwards the directors declared his shares forfeited, & this proceeding was confirmed at a meeting of the shareholders. Pltf. instituted proceedings to have such forfeiture declared invalid, on the ground (inter alia) that notice of the intention to forfeit had not been given to him; & that notice of the forfeiture had not been served on him, so that he had been unable to appeal to the shareholders:—Held: these objections could not prevail.—*NELLIS v. In Feb. 1889, C. applied, under another art. of assocn., to be allowed to prove in the liquidation for damages for the irregularity of the directors in ordering the forfeiture:—Held: there had been an irregularity by the directors in not giving notice to C., & he was entitled to prove for damages under the art., & in competition with the other creditors of the co., 1862 Act, s. 38 (7), not applying to the case.—Re NEW CHILE GOLD MINING CO. (1890), 45 Ch. C. Effect of Winding up.

2767. Company in voluntary liquidation—Forfeiture after first meeting—Before confirmatory meeting.]—When a co. is wound up voluntarily by means of a preliminary & a confirmatory resolution under 1862 Act, ss. 129, 130, the commencement of the winding up dates from the passing of the second resolution.

Where a forfeiture of shares has been validly made by the directors of a co. before the commencement of a winding-up, the liquidators have no power, under sect. 131 of the Act, to cancel such forfeiture.

Accordingly, where the directors of a co. had forfeited the shares of D. for non-payment of calls after the passing of a preliminary resolution to wind up, & before its confirmation, & the liquidators had subsequently agreed with D. to cancel the forfeiture:—Held: (1) the forfeiture was valid; (2) the liquidators had no power to cancel it; (3) D. could not be made a contributory.—*Re CHINA S.S. 2768. — Forfeiture after appointment of liquidator—With sanction of liquidator or general meeting.]—The powers of selling & forfeiting shares vested by the arts. of the co. in its directors may be exercised at any time after the appointment of liquidators during the voluntary winding up of the co. by the directors, with the sanction of the liquidators or general meeting of the co., under 1862 Act, s. 133 (5). All the directors of the co. being dead, new directors should be appointed by a general or special meeting of the co. called by the liquidators to exercise the rights of selling & forfeiting shares.—Re FAIRBAIRN ENGINEERING CO., LADD'S CASE, [1893] 3 Ch. 450; 63 L. SUB-SECT. 3.—WHAT OPERATES AS FORFEITURE.

2769. Where provision for forfeiture discretionary—Non-payment of call—No resolution forfeiting particular shares.]—A shareholder in a co. received a notice that on non-payment by him of arrears of calls on a certain day, his shares "would be forfeited without further notice." He also knew that the question of winding up the co. was under consideration. Two days before the day appointed for the payment of the arrears, he went to the co.'s office, paid the arrears on a few of his shares, & took a receipt, saying that on the rest he should submit to a forfeiture. The directors, at a board meeting, five days afterwards, examined the list of defaulters, & declared that the shares of some of them, whom they considered as not solvent, to be forfeited; but they did not declare the shares of this particular shareholder to be forfeited, & they continued to treat him as the holder of the whole number of shares. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that "in the event of non-payment at the time & place appointed by the notice, any share might thereupon be forfeited without any further act to be done by the co."—Held: the shares upon which the arrears were not paid up, were not absolutely forfeited by the non-payment, & the co.'s right of option remained; & as the co. had declared their intention of retaining the shareholder on the list, that he must, upon winding up, be held to be a contributory in respect of the full number of shares.—Re EAST KONGSBERG Co., BIGG'S CASE (1865), L. 2772. — Non-production of certificate.—The proprietors of a mine in 1835 agreed to form themselves into a co., upon the plan that the mining property should be divided into 12,000 shares, of which 5,500 should be retained by themselves & the remaining 6,500 allotted to the public at £40 a share, the allotment moneys being retained by the proprietors. The deed of settlement provided that if default should be made in payment of the instalments of the £40, the shareholder should cease to be a proprietor, & the share should be forfeited. Powers were reserved to increase the capital by augmenting the amount of the shares, & of altering the existing laws, rules & regulations of the co. In 1836 another deed of settlement was executed, the effect of which was to make the shares transferable by simple delivery of the certificates. In 1866, it was resolved at a general meeting held under the deed of settlement, that the capital should be increased by augmenting the 12,000 shares from £40 to £50, to be paid by instalments, upon non-payment of which the share was to be forfeited; that within a certain period the shareholders were to bring in their certificates, with the name, residence, & description of the holders to be registered; & in default that the shares should be forfeited for the benefit of the co. It was also resolved that the co. should be registered as a limited co. under 1862 Act. Copies of the resolutions were sent to all the shareholders whose addresses were known; but the holders of 2,405 of the 12,000 shares did not send in their certificates to be registered. The holders of the 9,595 shares who sent in their certificates were, in Dec., 1866, registered as a limited co., which, in 1868, went into voluntary liquidation, afterwards continued under supervision:—Held: the shares of the members who did not send in their certificates had been effectually forfeited; & they were not liable to be placed on the list of contributories.—Re COBRE COPPER MINE Co., KELK'S CASE, PAHLEN'S CASE (1869), L. Calls were made, & a resolution was then passed declaring the forfeiture of all those shares upon which the calls had not been paid, but payment of past calls was not required, although the directors had power to enforce such payment. The 500 shares, upon which no calls had been paid, were declared to be forfeited, & were taken up by other parties. The directors subsequently voted a sum of money to B. for his services, & compromised the question of forfeiture for that sum, which was only half the amount of the calls due. Twelve years afterwards the co. was wound up, & two years after that an application was made to place the shareholder on the list of contributories:—Held: (1) the shareholder ought to be placed on the list, as the arrangement was not within the power of the directors, & was a fraud on the other shareholders.

2778. ——— Effect of assent by all shareholders—Acquiescence as assent.]—(1) An arrangement allowing members of a co. to retire from the co. under certain conditions therein agreed to by a public meeting of the shareholders, convened after due notice to all the shareholders, is not in itself valid, unless made in accordance with the provisions of the deed of settlement, & if not assented to directly or indirectly, after due notice, by all the shareholders, may be impeached by any one of them. But if the means of notice to all appear sufficient, so as to raise a clear presumption of knowledge & acquiescence, & the arrangement is left unimpeached by any one for a great many years, the shareholder who has been allowed to retire, & whose name has been removed from the lists of the co., will be held to be relieved from his liability as a shareholder.

(2) An arrangement known among the shareholders as the Chippenham arrangement was, in this case, adopted & acted on, with this single exception, that the retiring shareholder did not at once pay the sum for which he was liable, but was allowed to give a bill for the amount, which bill was paid at maturity. The directors then passed a resolution declaring his shares cancelled, & his name was removed from the lists:—Held: his name could not, after the lapse of years, be put on the list of contributories.

(3) A shareholder who had been allowed to retire, upon terms not consistent with the provisions of the deed of settlement, nor those of the Chippenham arrangement, & was therefore held liable to have his name put upon the list of contributories, was not in a better situation than any of the ordinary acquiescing shareholders to complain of what had been done in this case. 2779. ——— Shareholder no longer treated as member.]—Though the directors of a co. may grant to a dissenting shareholder leave to retire from the co. on conditions which they deem prudent & advisable to be granted in his case, yet if such conditions are not in accordance with the terms of the deed of settlement, or with conditions for retirement, notice of which was distinctly given to all shareholders, & which were agreed no at a public meeting of the shareholders, though he performs the conditions on which such leave was granted, & his name is for years removed from the lists of the shareholders, & the co. changes its form of conducting its business, of which he has no notice, & dividends are received in which he does not participate, he is liable to have his name inserted in the list of contributories on the final winding up of the co.

A joint stock co. was formed & a deed of settlement was executed, which had in it various clauses as to the admission & withdrawal of shareholders, & the transfer & forfeiture of shares. On difficulties arising in its business a proposition was made to allow, on certain conditions, dissenting shareholders to retire on the forfeiture of their shares. This proposal, of which distinct notice had been given to all, was adopted at a public meeting of the shareholders. S., a shareholder, who owned shares both by allotment & purchase, & who had executed the deed of settlement, dissented from these conditions, & sought by proceedings in Chancery to have the co. wound up. He was not successful in the attempt. An action was brought against him for overdue calls. He defended the action. After a time, & while the litigation with him was still going on, the directors entered into an agreement with him to allow him to retire upon conditions which were not those named in the deed of settlement, nor in the proposal agreed to at the public meeting. No notice of these conditions thus entered into with S. was shown to have been communicated to the other shareholders, but the fact of S.'s retirement was known to them, & there was no imputation of any fraudulent concealment. The name of S., who had performed all the conditions on which leave to retire was granted to him, was removed from the list of shareholders at the end of 1849. Changes were afterwards made in the mode of carrying on the co.'s business, & dividends were received, but he was not informed of the changes, he never received a dividend, & he never was called on to take, & never did take, any part in the affairs of the co. In 1861 the co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: (1) his name was rightly placed on the list of contributories; (2) the effect of the clauses as to forfeiture was only to make the shares a security for calls; (3) it was the duty of the directors to enforce their calls by every means, & it was a breach of trust to accept, under the pretence of a forfeiture, shares known to be valueless in discharge of money due from a shareholder known to be solvent.—*SPACKMAN v. 2785. — Resolution for forfeiture—Name not removed from register.]—Fifty shares in a co. were registered in the joint names of a father & son on their application, & they paid £150 by way of deposit & allotment money. Shortly afterwards a call of £2 a share was made. The father became a director, & having, as he said, discovered that the co. was formed under circumstances of gross fraud, wrote to the chairman warning the directors against involving the shareholders in any fresh liability. Shortly after, he resigned his seat as director. Two months afterwards, the call being unpaid, the father wrote to the chairman, requesting the directors to declare the shares forfeited; & said that he & his son must be satisfied that their names were taken off the register. A resolution was thereupon passed that the shares be forfeited; but the names were not removed from the register of shareholders, & were on it when the winding-up order was made more than a year afterwards. No steps were taken on one side to enforce the call, or on the other to recover the deposit & allotment money. Upon summons by the official liquidator, that the names might be settled on the list of contributories:—Held: (1) the so-called forfeiture of shares was void; & resps. must be settled on the list of contributories; (2) the costs of a contest by a person disputing his liability to be a contributory, & failing, must, except under special circumstances, be paid by such contributory.—Re LONDON & PROVINCIAL STARCH CO., GOWERS' CASE (1868), L. 2786. — Under power of compromise—Membership conditional.]—W. was an official in Scotland of an English co.; the co. desired to have a board of directors there. W. suggested to D., who lived in Scotland, to take shares & become one of the intended directors. D. objected on the ground that it was not a co. of limited liability; W. assured him that he should be secured against loss, & that a bill was then about to be presented to Parliament to limit the shareholders' liability. D. thereon consented, & W. applied in his name for ten shares, obtained an allotment of ten & paid the deposit on them. This deposit was never repaid by D. to W. D., at W.'s request, signed a proxy paper, & also a receipt for a dividend, which, however, was in fact paid to W. The bill in Parliament was not passed. Some time afterwards a call was made on D. in respect of his shares, of which he took no notice; another call was made; he denied his liability, & desired W. to state the facts to the directors & to claim his discharge from liability. W. did so; & the directors, who, by the resolution of a general meeting, possessed powers to make compromises in disputes with shareholders, though not, in terms, to cancel shares, consented that, on D.'s paying a certain call then due, his shares should be cancelled. The money was paid, & D.'s name was struck out of the list, & a balance-sheet with his name struck out was presented at a general meeting as containing a list of persons whose shares had been cancelled. So things remained till some years afterwards, when the co. was ordered to be wound up; & D.'s name was put upon the list of contributories:—Held: it must be removed therefrom; the directors had had the power to make a compromise of a disputed claim, this case came within the power, & the power had been bond fide & rightly exercised.—*DIXON v. 2802. Against member—Acquiescence for several years—Partial absence abroad.]—In Feb. 1825, a joint-stock co. was established for the purpose of working a mine, the capital of which was to consist of 200 shares of £50 each. The directors had power to exact the full payment of £50 on each share, but if further aid were required, then they were to call a meeting of proprietors & submit to their decision the propriety of increasing the number of shares, or of taking such other steps as might appear advisable. Pltfs., who were shareholders, paid the full amount of their calls, but in Oct. 1862, were informed by the secretary of the co. that he had some time since mentioned to a person, who was pltfs.' agent for payment of their calls, that in the previous July the directors had resolved to increase the amount of calls on each share. To this pltfs. objected, & refused to pay the additional calls. An altercation by letter ensued till about Aug. 1828, when pltfs., as they alleged, left the country. In July, 1828, their shares were declared forfeited. The other shareholders then continued to work the mine, but the concern was unsuccessful till 1835, when it began to make an increasing profit. In Nov. 1837, pltfs., as they alleged by their bill, returned to this country. In Sept. 1838, they filed their bill to be let into the receipts of the profits with the other shareholders. It did not appear in evidence whether pltfs. were absent from this country, or where they were, between Aug. 1828 & Nov. 1837, except that it was admitted by defts. that in 1828 they were in Jersey. Many acts of irregularity & misconduct in the management of the concern during the interval were admitted by defts., & amongst others, the fact that, during a great portion of that period, the concern was managed by an insufficient number of directors. Pltfs. had no means, under the deed of settlement, of dissolving the society:—Held: pltfs., not having sufficiently accounted for their acts & conduct during the interval between Aug. 1828, & Nov. 1837, must be considered as having acquiesced in the conduct of the directors & other shareholders in the concern, & were not entitled to the relief sought by their bill.—*PRENDERGAST v. The directors passed a resolution forfeiting the shares of L. for non-payment of a call, & gave him notice of the forfeiture. On demand L. paid the call, interest, & expenses, & at the same time wrote that he repudiated any further liability on the shares. Nine months afterwards the directors passed a resolution purporting to rescind the forfeiture & giving notice to L. that he was registered in respect of the shares. T., N., & S., the de facto directors, made a call, payment of which was resisted by some of the shareholders on the ground that T., N., & S., were not de jure directors. B. Power and Mode of Appointment.(a) By Subscribers to Memorandum.

2825. Time for exercise—After incorporation of company.]—The subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. of a co. met, & before the registration of the co., purported to appoint certain persons as directors. The co. was then registered, but without arts. of assocn., and it was therefore governed by the regulations in Table A to 1862 Act. Relying on this appointment these directors objected to their management of the affairs of the co. being interfered with by certain persons who set up that they had been appointed directors after registration of the co. Art. 52 of Table A provides that "the number of directors, & the name of the first directors, shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn.":—Held: this can apply only to empower the subscribers to appoint directors after the co. has been registered. Table A cannot have any application to regulate a co. before its incorporation. The co. has no existence until registration.—MÖLLER v. MACLEAN (1889), 1 Meg. 274.

2826. — After first ordinary meeting & adjourned meeting held.]—(1) Art. 58 of Table A to

1862 Act, providing that "at the first ordinary meeting after the registration of the co. the whole of the directors shall retire from office," does not apply to mere de facto directors; nor does it apply to subscribers of the memorandum of assocn. who, not having appointed directors under art. 52, are, by art. 53, "deemed to be directors"; it only applies to directors who have been duly appointed under the arts.

(2) Art. 62 does not apply so as to continue mere de facto directors as directors till the ordinary meeting in the year next after that in which a meeting has been held at which an election of directors ought to have taken place, when no directors have been elected either at such earlier meeting or the adjournment thereof.

(3) The power given by art. 52 to the subscribers of the memorandum, to determine who shall be the first directors, remains in force notwithstanding the first ordinary meeting after registration & the adjourned meeting held seven days afterwards, have been held without any directors being appointed thereat.

(4) Art. 35, prescribing seven days' notice for summoning a meeting, only applies to general meetings of the co. Table A contains no special provision as to summoning meetings of subscribers of the memorandum of assocn., & only reasonable notice of such meetings is necessary.—*JOHN MORLEY BUILDING CO. v. By the arts. of assocn. of the co., Table A of 1862 Act, so far as it dealt with the appointment of the first directors, was expressly excluded, but the arts. contained no provisions in substitution therefor. By the arts. seven days' notice of any meeting was necessary. The person so appointed as a director assigned to pltf. the fees alleged to be due to him as such:—Held: as seven days' notice of the meeting was not & could not have been given, the appointment of the director was invalid, & neither he nor his assignees could sue the co. for his fees, or upon a quantum meruit for services rendered.—*WOOLF v. Upon the death of one a meeting was called to appoint a new director, when S., to whom the deceased director had bequeathed his shares, was declared elected by one of the two directors, although the other refused

The co. made application for the purpose of obtaining powers to carry out their undertaking. The application was brought an action against a shareholder for calls under sect. 22 of that Act. It was proved that the co. was formed to consist of 240 shares of £20 each; that it was provided by the arts. of assocn. Art. 44, "The number of directors shall be five, three of whom shall form a quorum, & the names of the first directors shall be determined by the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn.;" Art. 45, "Until directors are appointed the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn. shall for all purposes of this Act be deemed to be directors." Seven persons subscribed the memorandum of assocn. At a meeting of which three only of them were present, five of their number, of whom deft. was one, were appointed directors of the co. Deft. attended meetings as a director. A call was made at a meeting at which three only of the persons so chosen as directors were present. At this time only 68 shares had been subscribed for:—Held: deft. was not liable to an action for calls, because the directors had not been duly appointed; & the persons who made the call were not a quorum of the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn.—*HOWBEACH COAL CO., LTD. v. 2831. ———— Sufficiency of quorum—Four out of seven.]—By the arts. of assocn. the business of a co. was to be managed by a board, which was to consist of the directors for the time being, or a quorum of such directors assembled at a meeting constituting a board for the transaction of business. The number of the board was not to be less than three, nor more than seven. The first directors were to be determined by the subscribers to the memorandum of assocn., & until the directors were appointed the subscribers were to be the directors. The first directors had power to add any persons to their number, within a certain time, provided the total number of the board did not at any time exceed seven. No person, except the first directors & such persons as were added to their number, was qualified to be a director unless he was the registered holder of shares of a certain value for at least three months. Any casual vacancy in the board was to be filled up by the board, which was empowered to continue to act notwithstanding such vacancy. The board was also empowered to determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. All acts of the board, or of any person acting as one of the board, were to be valid, notwithstanding the discovery afterwards of any defect in the appointment or qualification of any of the board. Four out of seven of the original subscribers only were present at the first meeting of the co.; three of their number were elected first directors, & a resolution was passed that two of such directors should form a quorum. At the next meeting of the board, F., H., & E. were appointed directors, & at a subsequent meeting the resignations of the three original directors were accepted. F. shortly afterwards sent in his resignation by letter. At a meeting of the board on Oct. 28, 1880, at which H. & E. were the only directors present, fifty shares were allotted to deft.; F.'s resignation was accepted, & deft. was appointed director to fill up the casual vacancy caused thereby. Deft. joined the board, & on Nov. 15 acted as a director, confirming, amongst others, the resolution passed at the previous meeting allotting fifty shares to him. In an action for calls on the shares allotted to deft.:—Held: (1) the first directors had been properly appointed by four out of seven subscribers to the memorandum of assocn.; (2) the quorum appointed by the subscribers at the first meeting was not properly appointed, & ought to have been appointed by the board; (3) deft., in the absence of any proper quorum, was duly appointed by a majority of the board, namely, two out of three, to fill up the casual vacancy caused by F.'s resignation.—*YORK TRAMWAYS CO. v. At the first ordinary meeting, which was held on Aug. 20, 1888, these four persons did not retire from office, as provided by art. 58 of Table A.; but a resolution was passed at the meeting rejected, & the co. took no further proceedings, & transacted no other business. No meeting of the co. was ever called, & no directors were appointed. An order having been made for winding up the co., the authorising them to continue to act as directors; & two of those four persons on the same day allotted to K., an appct., 200 ordinary shares in the co.:—Held: (1) as the subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. had all concurred in appointing the first directors of the co., the fact that they had not met together for the purpose of coming to their determination did not invalidate their act, & accordingly, the appointment in writing of July 27, 1888, was good; (2) the resolution passed at the general meeting of Aug. 20, 1888, was valid to the extent of continuing in office the then present directors; (3) art. 62 of Table A, which provides that, if at any meeting at which the election of directors ought to take place the places of the vacating members are not filled up, the meeting shall stand adjourned till the same day in the next week, & further provides as therein mentioned, is directory only; & the meaning of that art. is, that if for any reason either the first meeting, or the adjourned meeting at which the election of directors ought to take place, does not proceed validly to fill up the places of the vacating directors, then they are to continue in office; & accordingly, the four directors were validly in office on Aug. 20, 1888, & the allotment of 200 shares made to K. by two of those four directors was valid.—*Re GREAT NORTHERN SALT & CHEMICAL WORKS, Ex p. 2834. Directors authorised to fill casual vacancies—General meeting held before vacancy filled—Power not lost.—One of the arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that any "casual vacancy" occurring in the board of directors might be filled up by the directors by the election of a member duly qualified. Previously to the general meeting of the co. a vacancy occurred in the board, & the vacancy was filled up by the directors after the general meeting had been held. The directors filled up the vacancy by electing pltf. as a director, but they subsequently refused to allow him to join the board, & maintained that his election was invalid because a general meeting had intervened between the time when the vacancy occurred & the time when pltf. was elected by the board. Pltf. commenced an action against the co. & the directors, & moved for an injunction to restrain the directors, from interfering or preventing him from acting as a director:—Held: the general meeting did not put an end to the power of the directors to fill up a "casual vacancy," & pltf. was entitled to the injunction.—MUNSTER v. CAMMELL CO. (1882), 21 Ch. D. 183; 51 L. J. Ch. 731; 47 L. T. 44; 30 W. R. 812.

2835. — Existing directors fewer than minimum provided by articles.—By the arts. of assocn. of pltf. limited co., in liquidation, it was provided that the board of directors should consist of not less than three or more than seven directors. Calls were to be made by the board of directors. If any casual vacancy occurred in the office of directors, it might be filled up by the board of directors. Deft. was a director of pltf. co. & a shareholder in it to a large extent. At a meeting of directors held on Nov. 7, 1882, a call of £1 per share was made, payable on Dec. 6. Before Dec. 19, 1882, by the resignation of some of the directors, their number was reduced to two, of whom deft. was one. At a meeting held on Dec. 19, 1882, these two, deft. being in the chair, elected three other directors, & the board thus constituted passed a resolution that notice be sent to the shareholders who had not paid the call, that, in default of its payment by Dec. 30, their shares would be liable to forfeiture. They also made a second call of £1 per share, payable on Jan. 20, 1883. At a meeting of the same directors held on Jan. 3, 1883, deft. in the chair, it was resolved that the shares on which the first call had not been paid should be forfeited. Amongst the names of the shareholders in arrear that of deft. was included. Upon an action to recover the amount of the said two calls:—Held: the two directors who were alone in office at the commencement of the meeting held on Dec. 19, 1882, not being sufficient in number to form a properly constituted board, although sufficient to form a quorum of a properly constituted board, had no power to act so as to increase the number of directors, or to make a call, as between the co. & the ordinary shareholders; as deft. was a director, in the chair, & assisted in passing the resolutions for the second call, & for the forfeiture of the shares on the non-payment of the first call, he was estopped from disputing the validity of such resolutions, & was liable to pay the amount of the calls.—*FAURE ELECTRIC ACCUMULATOR CO., LTD. v. PART III. SECT. 28, SUB-SECT. 1.—B. (b).

c. Directors authorised to appoint additional directors—By resolution ratified by shareholders—No record of resolution.—One of the bye-laws of pltf. co. provided that the directors, three in number, might increase their number to seven, at any time by resolution to be ratified by the shareholders. The evidence showed that the directors passed such a resolution but the minutes of the meeting contained no reference to it. Subsequently, at a meeting of the shareholders, a resolution was passed "that the board of directors be increased from three to seven members, an amendment to the bye-laws being put & carried to that effect":—Held: the passing of the resolution of the directors to increase their number might be proved by the oath of one or more of them, & the new board of seven directors was properly constituted.—NORTH WEST BATTERY, LTD. v. HAR-GRAVE (1913), 26 W. L. R. 331.—CAN.

d. Directors authorised to fill casual vacancies—Act requiring three directors—Only three shareholders.—The Act of incorporation of a co. provided that there should not be less than three directors, each of whom should be a shareholder. The corp. consisted of three shareholders, who were the directors. Upon the death of one a meeting was called to appoint a new director, when S., to whom the deceased director had bequeathed his shares, was declared elected by one of the two directors, although the other refused to concur in the appointment:—Held: no election was necessary to make S. a director, there being only three shareholders each of whom was qualified to be a director.—KIELY v. KIELY (1878), 3 A. R. 438.—CAN.

e. — Existing directors not forming a quorum.—Bye-laws of a co. provided that there should be seven directors, four of whom should be a quorum. Four directors ceased to be qualified:—Held: the remaining directors had not power to fill the vacancies, notwithstanding that the board might consist of only three members. & the vacancies could only it is of an extraordinary character; & any decision come to at such a meeting cannot afterwards be questioned on the ground that no notice of such business was given.

(2) Where the first directors of a co. were appointed by the subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. & some of them refused to act & others retired:—Held: the remaining directors could appoint other directors in their places under an art. giving them power to fill up casual vacancies on the board of directors.—COMPAGNIE DE MAYVILLE v. WHITLEY, [1896] 1 Ch. 788; 65 L. J. Ch. 729; 74 L. T. 441; 44 W. R. 568; 12 T. L. R. 268; 40 Sol. Jo. 352, C. A.

2838. Concurrent power—In directors & company—Construction of articles.]—By art. 65 of a co.'s arts. of assocn. four named persons were appointed directors & it was provided that they should, subject to the provisions as to resignation & removal of directors, retain office until a special resolution had been passed to vary the art. Art. 66 provided: "The directors shall have power to appoint any other persons to be directors at any time before a special resolution shall be passed bringing into operation the provision as to the retirement of directors by rotation." Arts. 72 to 79 dealt with the rotation of directors, art. 74 providing:—"The co. at any general meeting at which any director retires in manner aforesaid shall . . . unless it be determined to reduce the number of directors, fill up the vacated office by electing a person to be director, & may fill up any other vacancies, & the co. may at any general meeting fill up any vacancy arising otherwise than by such retirement of a director, or appoint an additional director or directors":—Held: the passing of the special resolution referred to in art. 66 was not a condition precedent to the co.'s having power under art. 74 to appoint directors, & therefore until such special resolution had been passed the co. & the directors had concurrent powers of appointment.—ISAACS v. CHAPMAN (1916), 32 T. L. R. 237, C. A.

(c) By Company.

2839. Where power of appointment vested in directors.]—The arts. of assocn. of an English co. in which an American co. held a majority of shares provided that casual vacancies in the office of director might be filled up by the board, & that the directors might appoint additional directors up to the prescribed maximum, which was seven. The arts. also provided for votes being given either personally or by proxy appointed in writing or under the common seal of a corporation. Only persons entitled to vote at any general meeting were to act as proxies, except that a co. which was a member might by proxy authorise a representative to act at meetings for them. R., who held a power of attorney from the American co., issued a requisition & notice for an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the English co., at which he was chairman & voted as proxy, & which meeting, on a poll, purported to pass two resolutions, increasing the number of directors to sixteen & electing additional directors:—Held: in an action by the English co., the express power vested in the board of appointing additional directors excluded any implied concurrent power to the same effect in the co. which had by its constitution delegated to the members of the board for the time being the sole right of appointing additional directors.—BLAIR OPEN HEARTH FURNACE CO., LTD. v. REIGART (1913), 108 L. T. 665; 29 T. L. R. 449; 57 Sol. Jo. 500.

2840. — Disagreement by directors.]—(1) A board meeting of directors can be held under informal circumstances, but the casual meeting of two directors even at the office of the co. cannot be treated as a board meeting at the option of one against the will & intention of the other, & it makes no difference that a notice convening a board meeting has been sent by the one to the other if such notice has not in fact been received by the other.

(2) Where the arts. of assocn. of a co. incorporated under 1908 Act, give to the board of directors the power of appointing an additional director, & owing to differences between the directors no board meeting can be held for the purpose, the co. retains power to appoint additional directors in general meeting.

1. — Appointment by majority.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that in case of a casual vacancy occurring on the board of directors the continuing directors should fill up the position by electing another director, & in the event of the directors being unable to agree a meeting of the shareholders of the co. should be called for the purpose of appointing a new director. A casual vacancy having occurred the continuing directors met & by a majority elected another director to fill the vacancy. This election was disputed on the ground that the provision as to the procedure to be followed in the event of the directors being unable to agree required that the directors should be unanimous:—Held: the casual vacancy on the board of directors had been properly filled.—LOGAN v. SETTLERS' S.S. CO., LTD. (1906), 26 N. Z. L. R. 193.—N.Z.

g. Nominated directors rejected — No others nominated.]—At the annual meeting of the stockholders of a co. held for the purpose of electing directors, one of the stockholders moved that certain named persons be the directors of the co.:—Held: in order to defeat their election, other parties must be nominated & elected by a majority of votes, & it would not be sufficient for the majority merely to vote against the persons nominated without voting for someone else.—*SPURR v. h. At special general meeting — On date & with quorum fixed by directors.]—Ptfs. were a co. incorporated under Canada Joint Stock Cos. Act, 1877 (c. 43). By a bye-law passed by the directors in pursuance of the Act the last Tuesday in Sept. was fixed as the date of the annual general meeting, & the quorum for such meeting was to consist of five members; but at a special meeting they were required in addition to represent one-third of the capital stock. In 1884 there was no election of directors at the appointed time, owing to the office where the meeting was to have been held being locked up & deft. refusing to attend the meeting or give up the books, etc.; & in Oct. a special general meeting of the shareholders was held, called on notice stating the object thereof, on a requisition by one-fourth in value of the shareholders, & directors were elected, who appointed a new secretary. At the meeting there were present three-fourths of the qualified vote & one-third of the subscribed capital, but considerably less than that amount of the nominal capital. In an action by the co. against deft. for the non-delivery of the books, etc., to the new secretary, deft. set up that he was still secretary, because, as he alleged, the directors who appointed the new secretary were not duly elected, & that there was not a quorum at the meeting to transact business:—Held: (1) there was authority to call the special general meeting for the election of directors; & it was duly called by the proper number of shareholders; (2) the directors could by bye-law determine the quorum & all other formal proceedings for the control & conduct of the meeting of the board & shareholders, & there was a proper quorum present at the meeting under the bye-law — *AUSTIN MINING CO., LTD. v. B. did not act as a director, & before anything further had been done he wrote refusing to be connected with the co. The co. nevertheless sent him a letter of allotment for twenty shares, of which he took no notice. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: the holding of twenty shares for two months prior to the date of election, in the absence of a recommendation by the board, was a condition precedent to B.'s eligibility for election; the fact that six of the seven directors voted for B. at the general meeting did not amount to a recommendation by the board, as they were not met in the capacity of directors; B.'s election was, therefore, void, & he was not a contributory.—Re EAST NORFOLK TRAMWAYS CO., BARBER'S CASE (1877), 5 Ch. Notice of a general meeting stated it to be for the purpose of considering a resolution that three retiring directors be appointed directors; according to the minutes of the meeting the notice was treated as read; the three persons named in the notice were proposed & seconded as directors; that resolution was put, & an amendment to appoint two additional directors was carried:—Held: on motion by the co. to restrain the additional directors from acting, the ct. was not precluded from looking at the notice convening the meeting as part of the res gestæ; the amendment appointing the additional directors was sufficiently indicated

2854. — Notice in time for adjourned meeting.—One of the arts. of assocn. of a limited co. provided that a member should not be qualified to be elected a director unless written notice of the intention in that behalf were given to the co. not less than fourteen clear days before the day of election of directors. The ordinary general meeting of the co. was held on Dec. 10, 1915, at which meeting, according to the arts., the two deff. directors retired by rotation. The report of the directors was not adopted; there was no election of directors, but a committee of shareholders was appointed to investigate the affairs of the co. & report to a general meeting, & the meeting stood adjourned to receive this report. On Feb. 21, 1916, written notice was given to the co. by a shareholder stating that at the adjourned meeting he proposed to move the election of four named members as directors. The adjourned meeting was held on Mar. 10, 1916, to consider the committee's report & to transact the unfinished business. The chairman ruled the notice of Feb. 21, 1916, to be out of order, & after declaring the election of auditors said there was no further business & left the chair. Subsequently the shareholders appointed a chairman & elected the four new directors. On motion by the shareholders for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the two former directors from acting:—Held: the day of election of directors within the art. was the date of the adjourned meeting on Mar. 10, 1916; the notice of Feb. 21, 1916, was in compliance with that art.; the first two persons elected as directors in lieu of the two who retired were duly elected; & the injunction asked for must be granted.—CATESBY v. BURNETT, [1916] 2 Ch. 325; 85 no person unless nominated by the directors should be elected as a director for the first time unless he should have given seven days' previous notice in writing, etc. Pltf. was elected as a director at a general meeting of the co. without being nominated by the directors, & without having given the required seven days' notice. He acted as a director for about three years, & was then re-elected as a director in a similar manner, & was subsequently appointed chairman of directors. The latter position he held for a year, & shortly after ceasing to be chairman the managing director & others of the board refused to recognise him any longer as a director, on the ground that he had not been legally elected:—Held: the article in question was mandatory, not merely directory, & pltf. had not been duly elected in the first instance, & the defective election of pltf. had not been validated or ratified by the conduct of the co.—ANDERSON v. COASTAL S.S. CO., LTD. (1903), 22 N. Z. L. R. 180.—N.Z.

r. Defect in appointment not known—Effect of.—Where a person, de facto elected as a director of a co. incorporated under Cos. Statute, 1864 (No. 190), has been permitted to take his seat at the board or to continue to sit there unchallenged, both he & the directors acting with him must be deemed to be ignorant of any defect in his appointment or qualification until the contrary appears; & acts done by him prior to the knowledge by the board of such defect will be valid.—*BUZOLIO PATENT DAMP-RESISTING & ANTI-FOULING PAINT CO., LTD. v. s. Right to take advantage of non-compliance—Shareholder—Resolution not registered.—H. applied verbally to a co. for 30 shares, offering to pay by two bills at three & four months. The co. accepted the offer, H. accepted the two bills for the price & left the shares as security. Scrip was filled in but not signed or issued. H. signed no application & did not sign the deed or the register, but his name was entered on the register as a member. The original number of directors was six, & a resolution increasing them to nine was passed. No notice or copy of this resolution was sent to the registrar-general to be recorded. The nine directors made calls & sued H. for them:—Held: (1) H.'s signature of the acceptances only was evidence of his consent to be a member if such consent were necessary; (2) without such consent proof of his name being in the register was prima facie proof of his being a shareholder; (3) the acts of the nine directors de facto were valid.—*McIVOR HYDRAULIC SLUICING & GOLD MINING CO. v. a. — Illegal contract.—

Declaration against deff. for calls on stock. Plea, that by pltf.'s charter it was provided that so soon as $100,000 stock should be taken, & ten per cent thereon paid into a chartered bank, the provisional directors might call a general meeting, & the shareholders who had paid such ten per cent should elect directors & organise the co.; that one D., acting in collusion with the provisional directors, to enable them to make a colourable compliance with the Act, agreed to & did enter his name as a subscriber for $30,000 stock, & to pay $3,000 thereon, & it was agreed that he should not be called on for any further payment on said stock, & that any payment he might colourably make should be restored to him by means of a contract for building a railway for pltf., which the provisional directors then agreed to give him on such terms as would yield a large profit; that his subscription was not bona fide, but in fraud of the Act; & before $100,000 stock had been taken, exclusive of such fraudulent subscription, the provisional directors called a meeting, at which D. was present, & assumed to rate as a shareholder, & chose directors, who made the alleged calls; wherefore the co. had never been legally organised, & the calls were not authorised:—Held: no defence, for D. could not dispute his being a shareholder, & the alleged agreement with him, being contrary to the statute, could not operate.—*PORT WHITBY & PORT PERRY RY. 2855. When court will grant relief—Candidates defeated by fraud.]—The declaration of a chairman of the election of directors of a co. is prima facie evidence of the validity of such election. In a case of fraud, however, the ct. would grant relief to the candidates against whom the declaration was made; until the declaration is set aside, such candidates have no authority to act as directors, & when they caused a bill to be filed in the name of the co. it was taken off the file, with costs to be paid by the solr. who filed it.—WANDSWORTH & PUTNEY GAS-LIGHT & COKE CO. v. 2856. — Irregularity capable of being cured by company in general meeting.]—The arts. of assocn. of deft. co. provided that every share should confer one vote both at general meetings of the co. & at meetings of the directors, & by art. 89 that the business of the co. should be managed by the directors. Art. 93 provided that a director might contract with the co., but prohibited a director from voting in respect of any contract in which he was interested, & art. 99 empowered the directors from time to time to appoint one of their body to be managing director for such period & at such remuneration as they thought fit. Pltf. was appointed director by the co. at a remuneration of £300 per annum & chairman & managing director by the board of directors, but without remuneration & for no fixed period. Two years later, at a board meeting of the three directors, deft. F., supported by the third director but opposed by pltf., appointed herself chairman in his place & joint managing director with him, in both cases without remuneration. At a subsequent extraordinary general meeting the co. reduced pltf.'s remuneration as director from £300 to £25 per annum. Some time afterwards, at a board meeting of three directors, F., supported by the third director, carried resolutions removing pltf. from the office of managing director & appointing herself sole managing director at a substantial remuneration. Pltf. opposed both resolutions & upon the latter, demanded a poll, with the result that by means of F.'s own votes there was a majority in favour of the resolution appointing her. In an action by pltf. in his individual capacity & also on behalf of the shareholders other than F.:—Held: (1) the mere appointment of pltf. to be chairman & managing director did not entitle him to fill those offices for as long as he retained his directorship; (2) when no remuneration was attached to the office, the appointment as chairman or managing director was merely a delegation of their powers by the directors to the director so appointed, & did not constitute a contract between him & the co. within art. 93; secus, where remuneration was attached, & consequently, the appointment by F. of herself as sole managing director was within the prohibition of that art. & invalid; (3) it was competent for the co. in general meeting notwithstanding art. 99, to waive the irregularity occasioned by F. voting contrary to the prohibition & to confirm the resolution appointing her, & the irregularity was, therefore, not of such a character as to give a dissentient minority any right to sue, and the ct. would not interfere; (5) the directors being in the circumstances unable to exercise the powers conferred upon them by the arts., the co. in general meeting could make the appointment; (6) the co. had power to reduce the remuneration of an existing director & to discriminate between directors in respect of their remuneration; & the exercise of such power was not part of the business of the co., the management of which was by art. 89 delegated to the directors so as to render the same exclusively exercisable by them.—FOSTER v. 2858. Poll granted on improper demand—Candidate defeated on show of hands elected on poll.]—A co. was registered under 1862 Act, with the following arts. of assocn. Art. 64: "Upon all questions at every meeting a show of hands shall in the first instance be taken, & unless before or immediately upon such show of hands a poll be duly demanded such question shall be decided by such show of hands." Art. 67: "If a poll is demanded by shareholders qualified to vote & holding in the aggregate 2000 shares or more, it shall be taken in such manner as the chairman shall direct, & the result of such poll shall be deemed to be the resolution of the co. in general meeting." Art. 75: "Votes may be given either personally or by proxy." Two vacancies arose among the directors & there were four, candidates, of whom prosecutor was one. At the meeting for election a show of hands was motion for their election:—Held: he was barred personali exceptione from objecting to their proceedings, on the ground that they were not the directors of the co.—HUTCHESON v. HALKETT (1847), 10 Dunl. (Ct. of Sess.) 150; 20 Sc. Jur. 43.—SCOT.

g. ———.]—Action by certain shareholders of a co., on behalf of themselves & all other shareholders, except the individual defts., to have the election of the latter as directors set aside for irregularity:—Held: the action must be dismissed unless pltf. obtained the consent of the co. to sue in the co.'s name; as, however, the co. was a party as deft. & all necessary parties were before the ct., it was proper to dispose of the case on the merits, conditionally on such consent being obtained & the record amended.—KELLY v. h. Application of special articles—Acquiescence—Voters deprived of votes.]—Where an election of directors in a joint stock co. was clearly illegal, the voters having been each allowed only one vote, whereas each share should have been given a vote—but the parties chosen had for more than eight months discharged the duties, the ct.

taken, when prosecutor obtained the largest number of votes. A poll was then demanded by the deputy chairman, who was the holder of twenty shares only, but who held proxies for more than 2000 shares. At the poll the prosecutor was not elected:—Held: a mandamus must be granted to admit prosecutor as having been elected director by the show of hands, for the poll was illegally demanded, as the holder of proxies was not a person holding shares within the meaning of art. 67.—R. v. GOVERNMENT STOCK INVESTMENT CO. (1878), 3 Q. B. D. 442; 47 L. J. Q. B. 478.

2859. Application of 1844 Act, s. 30—Informal transfer of qualification shares.—A joint-stock co. was registered under the above Act. Certain clauses in its deed of settlement required that a holder of shares desirous of transferring them must give notice to the officer of the co.; that the directors at a board meeting must certify their approval of the proposed transferee; that the transferor must execute a deed of transfer; & that every transferee, approved of by the directors, must, within one calendar month execute, at the office of the co., or at such other place as the board should reasonably require, a deed of covenant to abide by the rules & regulations of the co. "whereupon such person shall become a shareholder of the co." B. held shares in the co., & was a director; he desired to transfer his shares; he gave no notice, no certificate of approval was given before the transfer; a deed of transfer was executed, but no deed of covenant as required by the arts. of the assocn. was ever executed:—Held: the transfer thus made, though irregularly, was not invalidly made, & the persons then known as directors having at a meeting of shareholders recognised the transferees as shareholders, & having then & there declared them to be elected as directors, & the shareholders at such meeting having accepted them as directors, the validity of the transfer to them & their title to office could not afterwards be impeached.

The clauses in the deed are affirmative clauses; the objection as to the non-execution by the transferee of the deed of covenant is cured by the above sect. The moment the transferee assumed to act as a director, & allowed himself to be returned as a shareholder, he lost all right to question his liability (LORD CAIRNS, L.J.).—*MURRAY v. 2860. Application of 1862 Act, s. 67—Acts affecting members as well as strangers.—Certain directors of a co. were appointed at a meeting which was convened after a notice of only thirteen days had been given of such meeting, whereas by the deed of settlement of the co. fourteen days' notice of such meeting ought to have been given. The appointment of such directors was afterwards confirmed by a confirming meeting & at the next annual general meeting. The directors made a call, which deft. resisted on the ground that it was an invalid act, as the directors had been illegally appointed. The defect in the appointment was not discovered till after the making of the call:—Held: the call was properly made, as the defect in the appointment of the directors had been cured, & their acts validated by the above sect., & there was nothing in that sect. to limit its operation to the validation of acts & contracts affecting persons outside, & not members of the co.—*BRITON MEDICAL, GENERAL, & LIFE ASSOCN. v. 2861. — Strangers dealing with company—With notice of irregularity.—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that the qualification of every director should be the holding, in his own right, of shares of the co. of the nominal value of £100, & that the office of director should be vacated if he ceased to hold the requisite amount of shares, or did not acquire the same within two months after election or appointment. The first directors of the co. were appointed in June, 1889, but none of them acquired any shares in the co., until Oct. 1889, when shares were allotted to some of the directors, & to the vendor to the co., who was also managing director. On Oct. 28 a contract was entered into by the co. for the issue of fully paid-up shares to the vendor in satisfaction of his purchase money which was duly registered, & on Nov. 20 a previous allotment of shares to the vendor was cancelled, & a new allotment of fully paid-up shares was made to him. The co. was ordered to be wound up, & the vendor to the co. was settled by the chief clerk on the list of contributories as a holder of shares

The art. also provided that two directors should form a quorum; that the continuing directors might act notwithstanding any vacancy in their body; that the directors might fill up any casual vacancy; that the directors might appoint one of their body to be managing director; & art. 89, that the office of director should be vacated if he accepted or held any other office under the co., or if he by notice in writing to the co. resigned his office. B., R., & M. were directors of the co. On Oct. 23, 1902, B. was appointed secretary of the co., which office he resigned on Dec. 2. At a board meeting held on Dec. 4, & attended only by B. & R., a letter was read from M. resigning his directorship, & B. & R. then passed a resolution appointing B. managing director of the co. At the next board meeting, attended only by B. & R., a resolution

The agreement extended to shares whether held by the exors. in that capacity or in their own personal capacity. W. was about to retire by rotation, & some of the exors. threatened to oppose his re-election:—Held: the agreement was valid as regarded shares held by the exors., either as such or as directors, & on W. undertaking to retire, if required by the ct., at the ordinary meeting next after the trial, an injunction must be granted until the trial restraining such of the exors. as threatened to do so from voting against the re-election of W. on his retirement by rotation.—*GREENWELL v. SUB-SECT. 2.—QUALIFICATION.

A. In General.

2873. Qualification required under constitution of company—Application—Provincial directors.—A co. was in process of being wound up. By the deed of settlement of the co. it was provided that no person should be or continue a director unless he was the holder of a particular amount of stock. The co. was managed by a board of directors at the chief office in L., & by boards in various towns, in the latter of which local agents or deputies, called provincial directors, had conferred upon them limited authority. C. was one of these provincial directors, but held no shares in the co., & on a question of his liability to be placed upon the list of contributories:—Held: the clause requiring the qualification for directors did not apply to those who held the office of provincial directors, & C. was not liable to be placed on the list of contributories.—Re NATIONAL ASSURANCE & INVESTMENT CO., COTTERELL'S CASE (1862), 1 New Rep. 5; 32 L. whom they might appoint, not exceeding, with themselves, ten, should be the original directors of the co. It was also provided that every member holding not less than fifty shares should be eligible as a director, & that the office of a director should be vacated if he should cease to hold its qualification. F. did not sign the memorandum of assocn., & refused to subscribe any money for shares, but accepted the offer of E. to give him fifty paid-up shares, as the qualification of a director, out of those appropriated to E., in payment of F.'s services in making inquiries & reporting concerning the value of the concession in Austria. B. & H. attended meetings of the directors, but no shares were allotted to them, nor did their names appear on the register for any shares except those for which they had signed the memorandum. In Sept. B. resigned his office, but H. continued a director. No business was ever done by the co., & in Nov. a resolution was passed to wind up the co. The liquidator placed B. & H. on the list of contributories for fifty shares each:—Held: assuming that the contract entered into by B. & H. to obtain a qualification amounted to an agreement to take fifty shares within 1862 Act, s. 23, they were entitled to a reasonable time for performing the agreement, & under the circumstances such reasonable time had not elapsed at the commencement of the winding up of the co.; & they could not be held liable as contributories in respect of the fifty shares.—Re COLOMBIA CHEMICAL FACTORY MANURE & PHOSPHATE WORKS, HEWITT'S CASE, BRETT'S CASE (1883), 25 Ch. (2) The directors of a co., in its name, entered into an agreement with H. that the capital of the co. should be increased, & that he should endeavour to obtain subscribers for the new shares to be issued. He was to receive, by way of remuneration, a large commission on the nominal value of the new shares taken up, & also a number of shares issued as fully paid up to him or his nominees, of which 1000 were to be issued as soon as the directors had accepted four persons to be nominated by him as directors or trustees of the co. This agreement was registered. The co. afterwards passed a special resolution to increase the capital to the extent mentioned in the agreement. R., on the nomination of H., agreed to become a director, on the understanding that he was to be qualified by holding 200 fully paid-up shares, which were to be found for him by H. R. was afterwards elected a director, & acted as such. After his election a second agreement was entered into between the co. & H., by which it was arranged that 2,000 specified shares should be allotted to him or his nominees, as part of the consideration to which he was entitled under the first agreement. The second agreement was also registered. After this 200 of the specified shares were, at the request of H., allotted to R., & were with his assent registered in his name as fully paid up. Nothing was, in fact, paid for them. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: the arrangement with H. was fraudulent, & ultra vires, but as R. had never agreed to take any but paid-up shares, he could not be placed on the list of contributories in respect of the 200 shares.—Re BRITISH PROVIDENT LIFE & GUARANTEE ASSOCN., DE RUVIGNE'S CASE (1877), 5 Ch. 2886. — Effect of resolution by subscribers.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. did not require that a director should be qualified by holding any shares but the subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. passed a resolution that the qualification of future directors should be the holding of fifty shares each, & that R. should be one of the future directors. R. subsequently became a director, & acted as chairman at some meetings. R.'s name also appeared as a director in the prospectus. R. stated that when he acted as chairman he was not aware that any qualification was necessary, & that as soon as he heard of it he took steps to get this resolution rescinded, & ultimately wrote to the secretary resigning his seat at the board.

R. had signed a proxy paper as "a member of the co.," but had never applied for any shares, nor were any ever allotted to him. The chief clerk settled R. on the list of contributories in respect of fifty qualification shares:—Held: a resolution of the subscribers could not alter the constitution of the co., & there being no contract on R.'s part either express or implied to take shares, his name must be removed.—Re PATENT DAVIT & BOAT DETACHING CO., RANKEN'S CASE (1879), 39 L. By the arts. of assocn., which adopted the contract, it was provided that a director should vacate his office if he did not acquire a qualification within a month of his appointment or election, & that the qualification of a managing director should be the holding in his own right shares of the nominal value of £25,000. B. provided for pltf. shares to the amount of £5,000, & died in Aug., 1888. Pltf., who was one of his exors., & his co-exors., in Oct., 1888, transferred shares to the amount of £20,000 into pltf.'s name to complete his qualification as a managing director; but the estate had not been administered, & there was no evidence under what circumstances the shares were transferred to him or whether he was beneficially entitled to them. The board of directors refused to recognise pltf. as a director on the ground that he had not sufficient qualification, & he brought an action to restrain them from excluding him, & moved for an interim injunction:—Held: (1) on the construction of the arts. the provision that the office of a director should be vacated if he did not acquire a qualification within a month did not apply to those who were appointed managing directors under the contract; (2) in the absence of evidence as to the beneficial interest in the shares transferred to pltf. the ct. could not decide whether he was the holder of the shares "in his own right" within the arts., until the estate had been administered. 2896. Shares transferred to director—Held in trust for company—Transfer not registered.—Where important provisions of the deed of settlement & the statute with respect to the transfer of shares have been violated or disregarded by the board, in order to enable a person to qualify for the directorship of a co., that person will not be liable to be inserted on the list of contributories, even though he should, without ever paying for them, execute a transfer alleging that it is for value, to himself of the necessary shares, accept the directorship & receive fees for his attendances, unless the co. is in a position absolutely to prove that he was party or privy to the breach of trust of duty on the part of the directors. The shares transferred having been held theretofore by the manager in trust for the co., & having been by the order of the directors transferred without payment of any consideration to the alleged contributory:—Held: he was, as the manager had previously been, only a trustee for the co.—Re WATERLOO LIFE, EDUCATION, CASUALTY & SELF RELIEF ASSURANCE CO., SAUNDERS'S CASE (1864), 2 De G. 2899. — Followed by invalid allotment—Subsequent repudiation.—S., who was a shareholder for twenty shares, applied for thirty more, expressly to qualify as director; & at a general meeting, confirmed by a subsequent meeting, the shares were allotted, & he was appointed director, & paid the deposit on the shares. It afterwards turned out that these proceedings were invalid. S. then repudiated the additional shares, & required that the deposit paid on them should be appropriated to his former twenty shares, which was accordingly done. He never acted as director; but on two occasions paid calls in respect of the twenty shares, for which only his name was down in the register at the joint-stock office. The co. was being wound up & the official liquidator sought to make S. a contributory for fifty shares, viz., the twenty original & the thirty qualifying shares:—Held: the application would be refused.—SHAW'S CASE (1876), 34 L. T. 715.

2900. — Application withdrawn before allotment—Though office exercised.—The arts. of

assocn. of a co. provided that a director's qualification should be 25 shares, & that the first directors should be the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn., or such of them as should be appointed by the subscribers, together with any other members of the co. appointed by the subscribers. C., who was not one of the subscribers & held no shares in the co., was appointed by the subscribers one of the first directors, was elected chairman by the board, & his name appeared as such in the prospectus shortly afterwards issued. He afterwards applied for forty shares & paid a deposit. No shares were allotted to any of the appcts. on account of the applications not being sufficiently numerous, & C., after having presided at several board meetings & signed cheques, resigned his position as director without ever having held shares or having been registered as a member of the co. He afterwards withdrew his application for shares & requested the return of his deposit, & the deposit on fifteen of the forty shares for which he had applied was returned to him, but not the deposit on the 25 qualification shares. H.'s case was similar in the material respects. The co. having been ordered to be wound up, & the names of C. & H. having been settled on the list of contributories for the 25 shares:—Held: their names must be removed from the list, since their applications were for allotment of shares, & their agreement was to accept the shares on allotment, & no shares had ever been allotted, & their appointment & continuance as directors, though they held no shares, was simply an irregularity, & did not constitute a contract between the co. & them for the allotment of the qualification shares.—Re ELECTRIC & MAGNETIC CO., LTD., CARMICHAEL'S & HEWETT'S CASE (1882), 46 L. 2901. Whether office accepted—Attendance at one meeting—Mistake as to character of meeting.—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that the first directors should, within two months of the date of their appointment, become the registered proprietors of 250 shares of £1 each, & that the first directors of the co. should be appointed by a meeting of subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. forthwith after registration. The co. was incorporated on Jan. 11, 1884. A meeting of the subscribers to the memorandum was held on Jan. 12, & T., who was not a subscriber, was appointed one of the first directors. A draft prospectus was then settled & signed by the directors present, including T., & T.'s name was inserted as a director. T. alleged that he did not know the co. was formed before the meeting of Jan. 12, but thought it a preliminary meeting. He never attended another meeting nor in any way acted as director, nor applied for nor was allotted any shares. The co. was ordered to be wound up on Aug. 8, 1885. The liquidator claimed to put T. on the list of contributories for 250 shares:—Held: T. could not be taken to have become a director, & if he had ever acted as a director, he had withdrawn during the two months allowed for qualifying, & could not be put on the list of contributories.—Re SELF-ACTING SEWING MACHINE CO., LTD. (1886), 54 L. 2902. Alteration of qualification after appointment—Effect on continuing directors—Alteration confined to future directors.]—By the memorandum of assocn. of a co., C. & H. were named as directors, without being required to hold any particular number of shares as a qualification. The co. was regulated by Table A. of 1862 Act, clause 58 of which provides that at the first ordinary meeting the whole of the first body of directors shall retire. An extraordinary general meeting was held within four months after the registration, at which a resolution was passed, which was duly confirmed, that the future qualification of a director should be 100 shares. It was also resolved to postpone the first ordinary general meeting for three years. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: the future qualification meant the qualification of future directors, & C. & H. were not liable for 100 shares, although they continued to act as directors till the co. was wound up.—Re LA MANCHA IRRIGATION & LAND CO., HAMILTON'S (LORD CLAUD) CASE (1873), 8 Ch. By the terms of the deed of settlement no one could be a director who did not hold £100 capital stock. A., however, never was & never agreed to be the holder of any stock in the co.:—Held: A. could not be placed on the list of contributories on the ground of his having, by accepting the office of director, come under an obligation to take the stock requisite to qualify him for the office.—Re NATIONAL INSURANCE & INVESTMENT ASSOCN., DAVIES'S CASE, ABERCORN'S (LORD) CASE (1862), 4 De G. A few days afterwards they signed the memorandum of assocn. for 21 shares each, & they also signed the arts. of assocn. By two of the clauses of the arts. it was provided that the subscribers of the memorandum should be directors, until directors were appointed, & that no shareholder was entitled to be a director unless he held at least 100 shares in the co. The co. was afterwards wound up in bkpcy.:—Held: considering the aforesaid resolution & the arts. of assocn., they were liable to be placed on the list of contributories in respect of 100 shares each, in which number the 21 shares for which they had subscribed the memorandum of assocn. would be included.

him, on which the $500 would pay 10 per cent. C. then acted as a director for some time without, as he alleged, knowing that any stock had been subscribed for him. Subsequently he was notified of a 5 per cent. call on 50 shares, & he at once communicated with the president, who told him not to mind, & that the secretary would be instructed, & he was not troubled again about it. During this time his note had been carried by the co., & he had paid nothing. The president then absconded, & C. was notified of a 5 per cent call, & gave a note for $250 in payment of same, not, as he alleged,

He allowed a prospectus to be issued on which his name appeared as a director. In May, 1865, he wrote to the secretary, requesting that his name might be withdrawn, & though he afterwards acted for the co. as auctioneer, he never again interfered as director. No shares were allotted to G., & his name did not appear on the register of members. In 1870 the co. was ordered to be wound up. In July, 1873, the official liquidator, for the first time, fixed G. on the list of contributories, in respect of twenty shares, the number required by G. for his qualification as director:—Held: having regard to the lapse of time, & as G. had entered into no actual contract to take shares, his name was improperly placed upon the list.—Re FREEHOLD & GENERAL INVESTMENT CO., GREEN'S CASE (1874), L. 2920. ———— Refusal by company to allot full qualification.]—The mere acting as a director is not sufficient evidence of a contract to take the shares required for qualification. An actual contract must be proved.

A co. was registered in Dec. 1883. O. was shortly afterwards appointed a director by the subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. The arts. of assocn. fixed a director's qualification at 25 shares. On Mar. 5, 1885, O., by letter, applied to the co. for 25 shares. On May 11, 1885, the secretary wrote to O., "In answer to your application the directors have allotted you five shares." No formal withdrawal of O.'s application, & no fresh application, was proved. In the interval between Mar. 5 & May 11, O. had desired to resign, & had only retained his seat at the board on some kind of understanding that he should be relieved of his liability for qualification shares. In June & July a special resolution was purported to be passed & confirmed that the qualification should not apply to the first directors, but this resolution was invalid for want of a quorum. The co. was ordered to be wound up on Oct. 31, 1885.

The liquidator took out a summons to put O. on the list of contributories for twenty shares in addition to the five allotted to him:—Held:

2922. ————.]—Where a person has accepted the office of director & acted as such, an agreement is to be inferred between him & the co., that he will serve the co. on the terms, as to qualification & otherwise, contained in the arts. of assocn.

The arts. of a co., after specifying the qualification of a director, provided that a first director might act before acquiring his qualification shares, but should, in any case, acquire the same within one month of his appointment, & unless he should do so, should be deemed to have agreed to take the said shares from the co., & the same should be forthwith allotted to him accordingly. J. & P. were appointed two of the first directors of the co., accepted the office, & acted, Neither of them ever applied for any shares, & none were allotted to them, or registered in their names. 2923. — Acceptance amounts to offer—No contract till shares allotted.]—Where the arts. of assocn. of a co. require that the directors shall hold a certain qualification in shares, merely accepting office as a director & acting as such do not constitute an agreement to become a member of the co. within 1862 Act, s. 23, but only a contract to qualify by taking the required shares within the time specified by the arts., or, if no time is named, within a reasonable time.

The lapse of the time within which the director is bound to qualify only amounts to an offer to take shares, & no agreement to take them exists until the offer has been accepted, e.g. by placing the director on the register of shareholders, by resolving to allot the shares to him, or by his so acting as to show that he has assumed that his offer has been accepted, & by both parties acting on that assumption. At a board meeting, at which he was present, a resolution was passed "that the shares in the co. now applied for be allotted & letters of allotment issued forthwith"; & he afterwards attended meetings of the board as a director. Subsequently, upon his request, the directors cancelled the allotment to him, & repaid to him his deposit. There was no evidence of there ever having been any express notice to him of the allotment:—Held: the contract was complete & binding, & the directors had no power to cancel the allotment.

On Feb. 14, 1867, the directors of the co. were appointed, & at the same time it was resolved to allot 25 shares to each of the persons named as directors. A., one of these persons, had consented to act as director; but in ignorance, as he stated, that any shares had been allotted to him, & under the mistaken impression that the necessary qualification was twenty £25 shares, & not 25 £20 shares, applied on Mar. 1, 1867, for twenty shares, which were allotted to him. He attended meetings & continued to act as director until Oct. 1867, shortly after which the co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: he was liable, not only for the twenty shares for which he had applied on Mar. 1, but also for the 25 which were allotted to him as his director's qualification, pursuant to the arts. of assocn., on Feb. 14, 1867.—Re BRITISH & AMERICAN TELEGRAPH CO., FOWLER'S CASE (1872), L. 2933. After lapse of reasonable time without acquiring shares—Shares subsequently acquired.]—On Oct. 22, 1888, I. was appointed an original director of a co. whose arts. provided that each director should hold, at least, forty shares in the co. At a meeting of some of the directors, held on Oct. 25, 1888, forty shares were, without his knowledge, allotted to him, & before he ever acted as a director his name was placed on the register in respect of those forty shares. He had never applied for these shares, & according to his evidence, he never knew until after the co. was ordered to be wound up that these shares had been allotted to him or registered in his name. He first acted as a director on Nov. 28, 1888, & he next so acted on Jan. 16 & 18, 1889. On Jan. 19, 1889, he acquired by transfer forty fully paid shares in the co. which were duly registered in his name, & on Jan. 28 he retired from the board. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up, & upon an application to remove I.'s name from the list of contributories in respect of the forty shares allotted to him on Oct. 25, 1888:—Held: (1) I. must be taken to have known that it was his duty to qualify for the office of director by taking forty shares within a reasonable time; (2) a reasonable time had elapsed, if not by Nov. 24, 1888, at all events, before Jan. 19, 1889.—Re PORTUGUESE CONSOLIDATED COPPER MINES, LTD., Ex p. INCHQUIN (LORD), [1891] 3 Ch. 28; 60 L. 2937. — Name appearing in prospectus—Withdrawal on ground of misrepresentation.]—Where the holding of a certain number of shares is a necessary qualification for a director, the mere acceptance of the office only involves an agreement to have the qualifying shares within a reasonable time after becoming director; & if a person accepting the office retracts the acceptance before the reasonable time for acquiring the shares has expired, & without having acted as director, he will not be fixed with the qualification in the event of the co. being afterwards wound up. K. subscribed the memorandum of assocn. for ten shares; he also subscribed the arts., which provided that the qualification of a director should be the holding of fifty shares; that K. & two other persons named should be the first directors; & that the office of a director should be vacated if he ceased to hold the prescribed number of shares. The co. was advertised to the public, & within three days after the publication of the prospectus, in which K.'s name appeared in the list of directors, K. gave notice in writing to the secretary of his withdrawing from the co. on the ground of alleged misrepresentations made to him by the promoter as to its character & objects; & he never acted as a director, nor applied for shares, nor were any shares allotted to him. He subsequently resigned, but his resignation was declined, & an action, afterwards dismissed for want of prosecution, was brought against him to recover calls due on the qualification shares. The co. having gone into liquidation:—Held: the action for calls was no bar to the liquidator's claim to place P. on the list of contributories for the qualification shares; his acceptance of the offer was, at least, equivalent to an application for the shares, & his name must be placed upon the list.—Re HAMP- SHIRE CO-OPERATIVE MILK CO., LTD., PURCELL'S CASE (1880), 29 W. The co. was now in course of being wound up. The liquidator applied under the above sect. to charge them for misfeasance in acting as directors without qualification:—Held: the sect. creates no new right, but merely provides a summary mode of calling directors to account for acts of impropriety, for which they are liable to an action; to make a person liable under it, he must be shown to have been guilty of some misconduct by which the co. has suffered loss; & the application must be dismissed.

Such remuneration shall be divided among the directors in such proportions & manner as they shall from time to time agree, or, in default of agreement, equally. The office of a director shall be vacated if he cease to hold the due qualification." N. was one of the first directors, & from June, 1896, to Nov. 1897, when the co. went into liquidation, he attended eight meetings of the board of directors. He did not acquire any shares within a month of his appointment; but in Mar. 1897, he acquired 25 shares of £10 each, not from the co., but from its promoter. The directors never agreed as to the proportions in which the remuneration was to be divided amongst them:—Held: (1) the agreement by N. to serve the co. on the terms of the arts. as to qualification & otherwise, & the agreement by the co. to remunerate him, were cross & not interdependent contracts; (2) N. could not "cease" to hold a qualification which he never possessed; (3) as a member of the board he was nevertheless entitled to remuneration; but he could only claim his share of the remuneration for one year, against which must be set off the £250 due from him to the co. for the qualification shares which he had agreed to take; (4) where arts. provide that the directors shall be entitled to receive a certain sum by way of remuneration in each year, no remuneration can be claimed except for a complete year of service.—*SALTON v. The shares were of £10 each, & were to be paid up in full on acceptance. The qualification of the directors was 25 shares, & the directors were empowered to purchase the business for £170,000 in shares. At D.'s request eight persons agreed to become directors on having their qualification found. They were appointed directors, & their names were entered on the register for 25 shares each. They then passed a resolution to buy the business for £168,000 in shares & £2,000 in cash, & eight cheques were drawn on behalf of D. for £250 each, & one of them handed to each of the directors, who indorsed them, & handed them to the secretary, by whom they were passed on to D. The shares were then entered as fully paid up, & a receipt for £2,000 was given by D., & entered upon the books of the co.:—Held: it was necessary to the validity of the contract to purchase the business that the directors should be previously qualified; what had occurred subsequently did not amount to payment; & the directors were properly on the list of contributories for unpaid shares.—Re DISDERI & CO. (1870), L. Of the remaining 1,900 shares, each of the six shipowners was to take 300 fully-paid shares for his own benefit, & 100 fully-paid shares were to be placed in the joint names of three of them, who eventually, on the formation of the co., became directors, to be applied in rewarding persons who should bring business to the co. The co. was incorporated, & the only shareholders were the vendors & the six shipowners. In order to give effect to the above arrangement, an agreement was entered into between the vendors & the co. whereby the vendors purported to sell their business & patent rights to the co. for £25,000, as to £3,000 in cash & as to £22,000 by the allotment to the vendors or their nominees of 2,200 fully-paid shares, & this agreement was duly registered. Of these 2,200 shares, 300 were allotted to the vendors, & on the nomination of the vendors, the remaining 1,900 were allotted, as to 100 to the three directors jointly for the purpose above mentioned, & as to 1,800 to the three directors & the other three shipowners in equal shares for their own benefit, the whole of the 2,200 shares being so allotted as fully-paid.

The co. is entitled to say "you accepted £500 of our money from [the promoter] & divided it among yourselves & you must repay it, & we will treat the shares as fully paid up; or we will treat the shares as unpaid, & you, who have divided them among yourselves, must pay what is due upon them" (PEARSON, J.).—Re CARRIAGE CO-OPERATIVE SUPPLY ASSOCN. (1884), 27 Ch. 2958 i. Power of company—To fix.]—Pltf., a large shareholder in deft. co., was in June, 1918, appointed by two of its directors as manager & worked as such till Dec. 1918. At the annual general meeting of shareholders in Sept. 1918, he was elected a director, but no mention was made of his position as manager nor of any salary being paid to him. On Dec. 2, 1918, pltf. as manager sent out notices of a special meeting of shareholders for Dec. 17 "to discuss matters of importance pertaining to the cos. affairs." At the meeting a resolution was passed authorising payment to pltf. of six months' salary at $200 per month or $1,200 to Dec. 1, "to be paid by the co. when the finances of the co. will warrant so doing":—Held: (1) there was no expressed contract upon which pltf. could recover remuneration for his services as manager of the co. (2) A contract for payment should not be implied: pltf. was a large shareholder in the co. & was during half the time for which he claimed remuneration one of the directors; the services rendered were not more than might reasonably be expected from a large shareholder in the interests of the co. & so indirectly for his own benefit, without salary or other remuneration; there are statutory provisions against payment to directors of cos. unless expressly provided for as required by the statute; & a bye-law of the co. gave power to the directors to grant & fix the amount of salaries & remuneration of the officers, including those of such officers as might be directors whether paid to them as directors or otherwise. (3) A resolution passed at a general meeting of the shareholders of the co. giving pltf. a salary of $200 per month but payable only "when the finances of the co. will warrant so doing" could not avail pltf. in the absence of evidence that when this action was brought the finances of the co. warranted payment; & at any rate, there was no power in the shareholders at that meeting to pass such resolution so as to bind the co.—MARKS v. ROSCAND Co., LTD. (1921), 64 D. L. R. 254; 49 O. L. R. 137.—CAN 2962. Out of what funds payable—Whether profits only.]—The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. provided that the directors might yearly distribute among themselves, as remuneration for their services, such sum as should be equal to one-tenth of the profits of the co. for the last preceding year, provided always that there should be yearly distributed among the directors, as such remuneration, a sum which should not be less than £100 yearly for each director, & such remuneration should be divisible among the directors as they might think proper. No profits were ever made by the co., but the directors distributed among themselves, out of the capital, sums amounting to £100 a year for each director. On an application by the official liquidator that one of the directors might be ordered to refund the amount thus received by him:—Held: the remuneration of the directors was not payable out of profits; profits were mentioned in the arts. only as the measure of the amount of remuneration to be received by the directors; & the directors were entitled to a minimum salary of £100 a year, whether any profits were made or not.

There is no general presumption that the fees of directors of cos. are to be paid out of profits only.—Re LUNDY GRANITE CO., LTD., LEWIS'S CASE (1872), 26 L. T. 673; 20 W. R. 519, L. J. Deft. agreed to do so on terms, one of which was that he should have representatives on the board. The co. having approved this agreement in general meeting, deft. appointed pltf. to act as his representative to look after his interests, for which services deft. was to pay pltf. £200 a year out of his own pocket so long as pltf. remained a director. In an action brought by pltf. to recover remuneration calculated at the rate of £200 a year, the jury found that deft. had agreed to pay pltf. £200 a year so long as he remained a director, & they further found that the agreement did not contemplate that pltf. should promote the interests of deft. even though such interests were not identical with those of the whole body of shareholders:—Held: the bargain was not corrupt, the co.'s assent to & approval of the agreement between pltf. & deft. being sufficient to divest the transaction between the parties of any character of illegality & pltf. was entitled to recover his remuneration.—*KREGOR v. Resolution of directors to dispense with fees—Subsequent rescission.]—(1) Arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that general meetings should be held once in every year at such time & place as might be prescribed by the directors; that at the ordinary meeting in 1906 all the directors should retire from office; & that the directors should be remunerated at a certain rate per annum. 1862 Act, s. 49, provided that a general meeting should be held once in every year. No general meeting was held or called in the year 1906 or 1907, but the directors continued to act as such:—Held: the directors vacated office on Dec. 31, 1906, being the last day on which a general meeting for that year could have been held, & were not thereafter entitled to any remuneration until they were re-elected.

(2) On Feb. 12, 1906, the directors passed a resolution that they should not accept any fees for their services rendered thereafter; but on Jan. 17, 1907, they passed another resolution that from that date onwards the directors should be entitled to their fees:—Held: a director appointed after Jan. 17, 1907, was entitled to remuneration under the arts.

(3) In 1905 the co. agreed to sell all its undertaking & assets to another co., the consideration being fully-paid shares in a third co. & the payment by the purchasing co. to the selling co. of the latter's debts up to £25,000. These shares were allotted to the selling co. which gave a charge on them to the purchasing co. to secure repayment of what had been paid by it in discharging the debts of the selling co. beyond themselves in such manner as the majority of them might decide, & that the arts. might be rescinded, altered or added to by special resolution of the co. In Jan. 1919, at a special general meeting of the co. a resolution was duly passed deleting the sects. of the arts. referring to the payment of the directors & substituting a provision that the remuneration of the directors should from time to time be settled by the co. at its annual general meeting. On Feb. 24, 1919, pltf. resigned his directorship on ground that the co. had broken its contract with him:—Held: the portions of the arts. of assocn. relating to the remuneration of directors could properly be amended by a majority vote of the shareholders & though the arts. of assocn. admittedly constituted a contract between the shareholders & the directors & as there was nothing in the agreement which prohibited any change in the directors' remuneration during the pltf.'s period of service, pltf. could not claim damages founded on diminution of 2977. — Sufficiency of notice summoning meeting.]—Deft. co. held nearly all the shares in a subsidiary co. Four of the five directors of the deft. co. were also directors of the subsidiary co. In 1907 the subsidiary co. increased their directors' remuneration from £2,500 a year to £2,500 a year & a sum equal to 20 per cent. of the net profits, after paying 10 per cent. to the ordinary shareholders. The directors of deft. co. exercised its voting powers to pass the art. giving this increased remuneration without obtaining the sanction of the shareholders of deft. co. In 1914, deft. co. issued notice of an extraordinary general meeting to pass resolutions ratifying the payments which had been made to the directors of the subsidiary co., & to insert an art. authorising their directors, as directors of subsidiary cos., to receive remuneration without accounting for it, & to exercise the voting power of deft. co. as they should think fit. The notice stated the art. of the subsidiary co. giving the increased remuneration, but gave no information as to the amount which had been received thereunder. At the meeting, the chairman stated that the directors' fees from the two cos. since 1881 had averaged £320 per annum for each director. The statement was untrue. The total amount for fees & percentages received by the directors of the subsidiary co. for the previous seven years was £44,876. The resolutions were duly passed & confirmed as special resolutions. Pltf., a shareholder of the deft. co., in an action on behalf of himself & all other shareholders for a declaration that these special resolutions were not binding upon deft. co., moved for an injunction to restrain the directors of the subsidiary co. from acting upon them:—Held: the notice was misleading & was not such a satisfactory statement of the facts as the shareholders were entitled to, & pltf. could maintain the action without joining the co. as pltf., & the injunction must be granted.—

2977 ii. — By the arts. of association of a banking co., formed under 1862 Act, it was provided that the remuneration of the directors should be determined by the co. in general meeting; & that the co. should not make any advance or allow any credit to a director, or to any firm of which a director should be partner, on his or their personal guarantee or security only, or otherwise than on adequate security. Complaints were made by certain shareholders that these provisions of the arts. had not been adhered to; & a report of the co.'s auditor as to directors' overdrafts stated that in some instances, these were inadequately secured. Private meetings of shareholders were held, at which they expressed their dissatisfaction, & on Jan. 10, 1884, a sub-committee was appointed at one of these meetings to require the directors to give full information as to advances to directors, & the securities held for same, & the directors declined to accede to the request. On Jan. 24, 1884, a circular was issued convening an extraordinary general meeting of the co. for Jan. 31, 1884, at which resolutions were to be proposed altering the arts. of assocn. by authorising advances to directors on their personal security, subject to certain restrictions, & by increasing the remuneration of directors, & leaving to the discretion of the directors the future remuneration of the chairman and vice-chairman, as well as the remuneration of the former for past services. Proxy forms, drawn in favour of two of the directors, accompanied the circulars. An action having been commenced on Jan. 23, 1884, by shareholders, seeking to have it declared that advances to the directors, or to firms in which they were partners, on inadequate security was a breach of trust on the part of the board of directors, an inquiry whether any & what sums were paid & allowed to deft. directors out of the funds of the co. by way of remuneration, over & above what they would be respectively entitled to under the regulation of the co., & an injunction to restrain deft. from holding the meeting convened by the circular, or from proposing the resolutions mentioned in the circular; & pltf. having moved for an interlocutory injunction:—Held: the ct., being of opinion that the circular had a misleading tendency & was one by which the great body of the shareholders might be misled, statements contained in it were calculated to have the effect of obtaining proxies from the shareholders without their having the information which would enable them to form a correct judgment as to who were the proper persons to whom the votes should be entrusted, & the shareholders had not been fully & fairly informed & instructed upon what was proposed to be done, an interlocutory injunction should be granted against proposing the resolutions objected to at the extraordinary general meeting.—JACKSON v. The business of the co. consisted chiefly in lending money to builders on mtges. payable by instalments, & the directors treated, as part of the profits available for dividends, the value for the time being of the instalments of principal & interest remaining unpaid by each mtgor. Upon this footing the directors paid for several years, out of the floating capital from time to time in their hands, dividends of 7½ per cent. & upwards & remuneration to themselves. Upon a summons taken out in the winding up of the co. by a creditor:—Held: (1) “realised profits” must be taken in its ordinary commercial sense as meaning at least “profits tangible for the purpose of division;” (2) the directors having treated estimated profits as realised profits, & having in fact paid dividends out of capital on the chance that sufficient profits might be made, were jointly & severally liable, as upon a breach of trust, to repay & must repay, the sums improperly paid as dividends; (3) they must repay the remuneration they had respectively received, with interest in each case at 4 per cent.—Re OXFORD BENEFIT BUILDING & INVESTMENT SOCIETY (1886), 35 Ch. 2985. — No dividend paid—Remuneration voted by general meeting.]—It was provided by one of the arts. of assocn. of a co. that the directors should not receive any remuneration for their services in any year until the members should have received a dividend for that year of 5 per cent. on the amount paid on their shares, & that then the directors should be paid for that year such sum as the co. should in general meeting determine. The arts. also provided that the directors should be indemnified out of the funds of the co. all expenses incurred by them as directors. The co. never paid any dividend, & was on Apr. 17, 1886, ordered to be wound up. Before the order for winding up, at a general meeting held on Feb. 9, 1885, at which some of the directors were present, a resolution was passed allotting a sum of £1,000 to the directors for their services for the year ending Dec. 31, 1884. On Feb. 17, 1885, four of the seven directors held a meeting & passed a resolution dividing the £1,000 among the body of directors in certain proportions. At another meeting in Mar. the directors passed a resolution sanctioning certain bills for their expenses “as settled by the resolution of Feb. 7.” On summons by the official liquidator asking that the seven directors might be held jointly & severally liable to refund the £1,000 & for an order for payment:—Held: the art. of assocn., saying that the directors were to receive no remuneration until a dividend had been paid, had been broken, & the directors were jointly & severally liable to repay the money with interest at 4 per cent.—Re WHITEHALL COURT, LTD. (1887), 56 L. The co. resolved on a voluntary winding up, for the purpose of selling its undertaking & assets to a new co. A very large profit was made by this sale. On an action by one of the directors for his proportion of the 3 per cent. on the profits so made:—Held: (1) “net profits” in the art. in question was intended to apply to profits made by the co. as a going concern, & not to profits made by a sale of the whole undertaking & assets in a winding up; (2) the directors' remuneration was intended to be a return for their services, to which the present sale was not attributable, & accordingly pltf.'s claim failed.—*FRAMES v. In 1883 resolutions declaring a dividend were approved by the directors & auditor of the co. & passed at a general meeting of the shareholders. This dividend was chiefly payable out of a balance made up of the estimated value of certain claims which eventually turned out to be worthless. The proceedings were perfectly regular, & no wrong motive was attributed to any of the persons concerned. The directors claimed under the arts. a remuneration of 10 per cent. on the balance. 2989. Before qualification acquired.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that no person should be eligible as a director unless he held fifty shares at least in the co., & had held such shares for one month previously. A. was appointed a director on Mar. 21, 1864. On Apr. 1, he applied for 25 shares, & on the following day paid the deposit of £25. On Apr. 22, these shares were allotted to him, & on Aug. 9 he paid the £75 due in respect of the allotment. He had received certain fees for his attendances as a director before the actual allotment of his shares. 2992. Before remuneration fixed—Remuneration fixed at first general meeting.]—The subscribers to the memorandum of assocn. of a co. which was registered under the Cos. Acts, & whose arts. of assocn. were those contained in Table A. of 1862 Act, appointed the first directors of the co. in accordance with art. 52 of Table A. At the next, the first, general meeting of the co. the same directors were elected directors & a resolution was passed fixing their remuneration at £400 per annum, divisible as they might determine. In the balance-sheet submitted to & passed at the second general meeting of the co., the remuneration of the directors appeared as commencing at a date previous to the first general meeting of the co. The co. having gone into liquidation :—Held : the directors' remuneration commenced at the date of the first general meeting when the resolution was passed fixing the remuneration, & the directors were liable to refund the remuneration received for the period before that date.—Re LONDON GIGANTIC WHEEL Co., LTD. (1908), 24 T. 2993. Before allotment—Payment inconsistent with first prospectus—No allotment on first prospectus.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that the remuneration of the directors should be by way of annual salary. The directors issued a prospectus which contained a statement that "the vendor pays all expenses up to allotment." An insufficient number of applications for shares having been received, no allotment was made on the faith of that prospectus. The directors, however, continued to carry on the business of the co. to the best of their ability, & issued a second prospectus which did not contain the statement in question. Before allotment, & before the expiration of a year from the incorporation of the co., the directors voted themselves certain sums in respect of their quarter's salary, which were applied in payment of the amounts uncalled up on the shares which they had agreed to take. Six months later the co. was ordered to be wound up :—Held : the directors, having acted bona fide in the interests of the co., were entitled to vote themselves remuneration before the expiration of the year.—*Re WOOD'S (A. After appointment to other office carrying remuneration—Receiver & manager in debenture-holders' action.]—The directors of a co. were entitled under its arts. of assocn. to be paid at the rate of a certain sum a year to be divided amongst them as they should agree amongst themselves. In pursuance of their agreement the remuneration was paid to the directors in certain proportions. In a debenture-holders' action against the co. two of the directors were appointed by the ct. to be receivers & managers of the co.'s assets & business, & the ct. allowed them a remuneration for so acting. 1. Directors absent from meetings without leave.]—A co. was formed & registered under the Co.'s Act, 1882, in 1897. One of its arts. of assocn. provided that "the future remuneration of the directors . . . shall be determined by the co. in general meeting." The arts. contained no provision as to how often or at what times the directors were to meet, but provided that they were to "meet together for the despatch of business, adjourn, & otherwise regulate their meetings as they shall think fit." Up till 1903 the directors' fees were voted annually in "general meeting." The arts. contained in Jan. 1903, the following resolution was passed : "That the directors' fees be £30 per annum until altered." Up to Oct. 1904, the fees were actually paid to the directors. From then a sum of £30 was in each year credited in the co.'s books to a Directors' Fees Account, & debited to the "Profit & Loss Account." Before the co. went into voluntary liquidation in July, 1907, the meetings of directors had been held at irregular intervals, a period of three months sometimes passing without a meeting being held. In some instances meetings were called, but lapsed for want of a quorum. Some of the directors were absent from certain of the meetings, sometimes with leave, sometimes without :—Held : (1) under Companies Act, s. 73, that at the end of each year a right had accrued to each director who had not been absent without leave for a period of three months or upwards in that year to receive his share of the fixed fee for that year, & his right was not affected by absences without leave in a preceding or succeeding year. (2) Absence for three months or upward in any one year was a bar to any remuneration for that year, even though it were absence from a meeting which lapsed for want of a quorum. (3) If no meeting were called for a period of three months there could be no absence without leave in that period. (4) Where in any year any 3001. — Absence during part of year.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. each of its directors was to be paid out of its funds by way of remuneration £300 per annum, & the office of a director was to be vacated if he absented himself from directors' meetings during a period of three calendar months without special leave of absence from the directors. M. was appointed a director on Aug. 3, 1898, & attended meetings of directors down to Feb. 3, 1899, on which last named date he attended a meeting at which they, including himself, passed a resolution "that no remuneration be received by the directors for their services until a dividend is declared on the ordinary shares of the bank." There was no further meeting from Feb. 3 to Mar. 3, 1899. From Feb. 3 he absented himself without leave until after May 7, 1899, on which another directors' meeting was held, & on May 8, 1899, received a written notice from the board stating that he had ceased to be a director pursuant to the arts., & that the fact of his non-attendance for three months had been ordered to be entered on the minutes. M. did not insist on being reinstated & did not attend a meeting of directors on June 3. The co. went into liquidation on Dec. 29, 1899, & no dividend was declared on the ordinary shares. M. claimed to prove for remuneration from the date of his appointment until the winding up:—Held: (1) the remuneration not being due until the end of a year, & the agreement to pay it being on Feb. 3 only partially performed & not broken, the resolution was effective; (2) the period of absence only began to run from Mar. 3, 1899, terminating on June 3; (3) the remuneration was not apportionable, & the claim of M. failed.

Although there is a difference between the act of "absenting oneself," which is purely voluntary, & the fact of "being absent," which is voluntary or involuntary as the case may be; yet the fact that a person is absent under some strong compulsion, which does not amount to physical necessity, does not necessarily negative the voluntary aspect of his act, or show that he has not "absented himself." Where, accordingly, the director of a co., though not actually physically prevented by present ill-health from attending the meetings of his fellow directors, was yet induced to stop away from them because his remaining at that season in England might have been injurious to his health, his absence was treated by the ct. as being voluntary, & he was deemed to have "absented himself" within the arts. of assocn.—Re LONDON & NORTHERN BANK, MCCONNELL'S CLAIM, [1901] 1 Ch. 728; 70 L. The co. went into voluntary liquidation in July, 1907, & for that year the sum of £15 was credited to the Directors' Fees Account. There was a balance remaining in the liquidators' hands after payment to the creditors in full:—Held: (1) the resolution fixing the directors' fees was a valid resolution speaking from year to year; (2) if the co. had been a going concern, the remuneration fixed being one sum for the year, & not "at the rate" of that sum per year, the directors would not have been entitled to receive payment for part of a year; but the liquidation having supervened before the close of the year they were entitled to payment for that year.—Re UNIVERSAL SUPPLY CO. (1908), 27 N. 3005. Remuneration at rate "per annum"—Whether apportionment implied.]—In Nov. 1919, pltf. agreed with an agent for an intended co. to sell his business to that co., the payment to be partly in cash & the balance in debenture stock of the co. The agreement contained a clause providing "that the vendor shall be, & act as, one of the directors of the said co., & that his fees for so acting shall be £150 per annum." The arts. of the co. when formed, deft. co., provided that the remuneration of the directors should be "at the rate of" £150 per annum, & such further sum as should be voted to them by the co. in general meeting, & that such remuneration should be divided amongst the directors as they should determine, or failing agreement, equally. The co. on incorporation adopted the agreement & pltf. received the debentures, which contained a condition entitling the co. to pay them off at the expiration of six months. In Dec. 1919, pltf. was duly appointed a director to hold office so long as he held a certain amount of debentures in the co. Disputes having arisen between pltf. & the co., pltf. agreed to accept payment of all money due to him upon his debentures, & on May 14, 1920, the debentures were paid off, & thereupon he ceased to be a director. In an action by pltf. to recover a proportionate part of the £150, as his fees for the period from Dec. 1919, to May, 1920, when he acted as director:—Held: (1) neither under the agreement nor under the arts. was pltf. entitled to the sum he claimed; (2) the ct. would not imply a term in the agreement that a proportionate part of the remuneration should be paid if pltf.'s services terminated during a broken period of a year.—*MORIARTY v. One of the arts. of a limited co. provided for the payment of £200 a year to each director by way of remuneration for his services; another art. declared that no director should vote on any matter in which he was interested; & a further art. provided that every director & other officer should be indemnified by the co. against, & it should be the duty of the directors out of the funds of the co. to pay, all costs & expenses which any officer of the co. might incur in the discharge of his duties. In Apr. 1902, A. was elected a director of the co. In May, 1902, the directors passed a resolution that all reasonable travelling expenses should be reimbursed to the directors from time to time. At the date of his election A. was residing at W., & remained so resident until his resignation in Jan. 1903, & during his directorship was paid out of the co.'s assets his travelling expenses to & from L. incurred in attending the board meetings:—Held: (1) the resolution was ultra vires the directors, & A. must refund to the co. the moneys paid him for his travelling expenses whilst a director; (2) A. was not personally liable for the sums paid to his co-directors for their travelling expenses, except to the extent that he had signed cheques for that purpose.—*YOUNG v. 3022. — Agreement among directors.]—At a meeting of the directors of a co. in liquidation at which the liquidator of the co. was present, all the directors mutually agreed to forgo their claims to directors' fees then owing to them, & the liquidator was a party to this agreement on the part of the co. Subsequently, the co. sued one of the directors for goods sold & work done, & the director counterclaimed for the director's fees due to him previously to the agreement:—Held: the agreement by the directors to forgo directors' fees was binding not only as between the directors themselves, but also as between the co. & each director, although the co. had done nothing more than assent to the agreement as a party to it, & therefore deft. could not sustain his counterclaim in respect of his fees due to him as director.—*WEST YORKSHIRE DARRACQ AGENCY, LTD., v. The directors held a majority of the shares in the co. & the resolution was carried by their votes:—Held: although the value of the portion of the assets of the minority was decreased, & the value of the portion of the assets of the majority was increased, by an amount greater than the sum paid for the new shares, the resolution was binding on the minority, & could not be set aside.—*VING v. 3035. Death of directors — Offer "to the directors"—Acceptance by survivors & executors of deceased directors.]—A firm of cotton brokers acted under contract as brokers to a cotton spinning co., & purchased shares in the co., & in 1911 agreed to take up more shares, & pay in advance of calls, upon the terms of receiving interest for the advance. At the same time they wrote & sent a letter addressed "to the directors" informing them that should they at any time while the writers remained the brokers of the co. wish to take over the shares the latter had taken up as fully-paid at par, they would transfer those shares. The letter was acknowledged, but the offer was not accepted until 1919, when the co.'s shares had greatly risen in value, & the co.'s solrs. wrote accepting the offer on behalf of three directors, survivors of the six original directors of 1911, & the exors. of three directors who had died.

In an action brought by the brokers claiming a declaration that there was no enforceable contract between them & defts. upon whose behalf the offer purported to have been accepted:—Held: the offer was an offer to the directors for the time being as a board & not one to the directors in existence at the time it was made personally, & therefore it was not completed by acceptance. The brokers were accordingly entitled to the declaration claimed.—REYNOLDS v. ATHERTON (1922), 127 L. T. 189; sub nom. ATHERTON v. REYNOLDS, 66 Sol. Jo. 404, H. L.

All the shares had been allotted before the filing of the bill:—Held: as no relief by way of specific performance was possible, pltf.'s claim for damages under (21 & 22 Vict. c. 27), Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (c. 27), failed also. In such a case pltf.'s claim against the directors to be indemnified out of their shares was only a claim for damages in another form.

Directors are agents of the co., & their personal liability in a suit, upon a contract made by them, must be governed by the ordinary law of principal & agent. But a shareholder may sustain a bill against directors personally, where he charges them as trustees, & seeks redress against them for a breach of duty to the co. of which he is a member.—FERGUSON v. WILSON (1866), 2 Ch. directors, countersigned by the secretary. The same committee subsequently resolved that all cheques should be signed by three of the five constituting the committee of management. M. was a director, a member of the committee of management, & a member of the allotment committee, & attended the meeting at which the above resolutions were passed. On Aug. 14, cheques were drawn, & M. was present on that day for the last time, & on Aug. 22, he wrote saying "he withdrew"; on Aug. 24, he desired the secretary to withhold his name from future prospectuses; on Aug. 26, the chairman asked him to reconsider his determination; on Aug. 28, the solr. to the co. wrote to a similar effect, & on the same day M. declined compliance. The whole amount of deposits paid was above £40,000, £35,000 of which only was paid up to Aug. 22, out of which, sums had been withdrawn leaving a balance of above £33,000 in the bankers' hands on that day. The co. was ordered to be wound up, & the master charged M. with the whole £40,000 on the ground that he had not retired on Aug. 22. On appeal:—Held: M. had retired, whether his resignation was accepted or not, & ought not to have been charged with any part of the £40,000 unless for sums drawn out if any, before Aug. 22.

The payment was included in a much larger item on the annual balance sheets & passed without objection:—Held: the director was liable to repay the amount on the ground of misfeasance, & the co. had not ratified the payment, there being no notice of it on the balance-sheets sufficient to put persons of ordinary care upon inquiry.

3060. ——— Reliance on company's officials—Accuracy of balance-sheet.]—The chairman of a co. gave directions to depts., the manager & secretary, as to the preparation of the balance-sheets, to make a true, faithful, & uncoloured report of the state of the bank's affairs. The balance-sheets were prepared by the manager & the secretary from the books. The directors never interfered with the books. The balance-sheets were submitted to the board, but the board never altered or interfered with them in any way. They simply directed them to be printed, & examined them by reading them & seeing the details therein expressed, but took no steps to verify the entries, & depended entirely on the manager & secretary & on the auditors, & never tested the balance-sheets with any of the books:—Held: it was part of the duty of the directors to have investigated the accounts further from time to time, more particularly the weekly of a co. are its agents for the purpose of carrying on its business, but they are also trustees of the money & property for the shareholders. The rule, forbidding a trustee solr. from recovering profit costs applies to a director-solr. It applies even though the work was done pursuant to express instructions, from the directors' executive committee & the co. received the benefit of the services.—*HUGGARD v. 3061. ——— Omission of liability in.]—

(1) In Feb. 1881, a co. was formed for the purpose of acquiring & developing landed estates, & the arts. of 1862 Act, Table A., were incorporated. Table A. contained no art. dealing with the resignation of a director. On June 17, 1884, deft., who was one of the directors of the co., sent a letter to the board of directors resigning his office. The letter was considered at the next board meeting, on July 15, & stood over until after a general meeting of the co., on Dec. 31, 1884, when the resignation was accepted:—Held: the director in question could not resign to his colleagues, & must be held responsible as a director up to Dec. 31, 1884.

(2) From 1881 onwards reports & balance sheets of the co. were issued in the names of the directors, & dividends & bonuses paid upon alleged profits, but in reality out of capital. As a fact, no profits were at first made, as a certain large liability to a building society did not appear in the balance sheets from 1881 to 1884. From the evidence it appeared that the directors did not personally go into the accounts, or take any guiding part in administering the affairs of the co., but trusted to the secretary, & adopted what was laid before them by him. Auditors & accountants were employed in the preparation of the accounts & reports, but no proper valuations of the assets were made. The writ in the action was issued in Nov. 1888, & Stat. Limitations was pleaded:—Held: all the directors of the co. were liable for the dividends & bonuses paid from the year 1881 to 1884 with interest at 4 per cent., inasmuch as by the omission of the liability to the building society, no proper balance sheets had been placed before the shareholders, & they had failed to justify the payment of dividends; the secretary of the co. was liable for negligence, but, as Stat. Limitations applied in this case, he was only responsible by way of damages to repay the amount improperly paid out of capital within six years from the date of the writ.—*MUNICIPAL FREEHOLD LAND CO., LTD. v. feree. Such discretion, though in terms absolute, is in the nature of a trust, & therefore must not be exercised capriciously or unjustly, where directors refuse the cross-examination on their affidavits to give their reason for declining to transfer a register of shares the ct. may infer the true reasons for such refusal from the evidence before it.—Re SHAW & CO., LTD., HUGHES' CASE (1896), 21 V. The shareholders at the annual general meeting appointed three of their number to constitute a board of audit to look into the operations of the bank, to examine its books & papers, & to report thereon, but these had failed to discover the irregularities which caused the failure of the bank:—Held: resp. was not personally liable for the loss sustained by the bank.—*PRÉFONTAINE v. The capital was limited, but there was a power in the directors to create new shares. The whole capital being exhausted, & more money being required, to save the property from being seized by the creditors & the whole undertaking from being ruined, the directors borrowed money & applied it for the purposes of the undertaking. It having been held at law that the lenders of the money were not entitled to recover against the co., the directors repaid the money out of their own pockets, & upon the affairs of the co. being wound up, claimed to be creditors of the co. for the money so paid:—Held: they were entitled to be repaid the money so advanced, it having been advanced bonâ fide, & for the purposes of the undertaking.

It contained recitals to the effect that the persons named as managing directors had accepted the office, & provided that the holding of forty shares at least should be requisite to qualify a person to be a managing director. It was distinctly proved that before this deed was executed by anybody, one of the persons named as managing directors had refused to accept the office or execute the deed; & as to two others, there was no proof that they ever had accepted. The deed was executed by nineteen subscribers, but none of the managing directors ever executed it or took shares, though most of them accepted & acted in the office. The directors, thinking it expedient to sell all the vessels belonging to the co., employed pl'tfs., ship-brokers, to procure a purchaser. Pl'tfs. accordingly negotiated a sale of the vessels upon the terms fixed by the directors, with C.

The negotiation, however, went off, upon an objection urged by C.'s solr. that the directors had no power to sell the whole of the vessels, except in the event of the winding up of the co. with the consent of the shareholders, which had not been obtained:—Held: pl'tfs. were not, under the circumstances, entitled to maintain an action against the directors upon an implied warranty that they had authority to sell, which in point of fact they had not.—*WILSON v. 3125. — Informal under internal regulations of company.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a telegraph co. it was provided that three directors should be the quorum necessary for the transaction of business; & the directors were empowered, in their discretion, to sell all or any one or more of the co.'s lines of telegraph, grants, licences, powers, ways, wayleaves, easements, privileges, engagements or contracts, or any part of its goodwill, estate, property or interest therein, upon such terms & conditions as they should deem expedient; & also at their discretion to appoint agents, any such agent to be remunerated at the discretion of the directors. The co. resolved to sell their undertaking to the Postmaster-General; & in July, 1869, a letter was written addressed to C., appointing him to act as agent for the directors in the matter of the sale, & agreeing that if he succeeded in obtaining from the Postmaster-General the sum of £20,000 or upwards, his commission should be £25 per cent. The letter concluded by saying: "We engage to sign a legal obligation to the above effect when called upon, & to get the signatures of our brother directors." This letter was written in C.'s office, & there signed by two of the directors, & handed to C., who forwarded it to a third director in the country, by whom it was returned to C. confirmed & signed by himself & a fourth director. This agreement, though not appearing to have been resolved upon or confirmed at any meeting of directors, was referred to at a subsequent meeting of shareholders, & not repudiated; but no such legal obligation as referred to in the letter was executed. The sale having been effected through C.'s agency for a sum of more than £20,000:—Held: the agreement was not ultra vires; & though informal according to the internal regulations of the co., it was binding against the co. in favour of a person dealing with them. Consequently, C. was entitled to commission at the rate of £25 per cent.—Re BONELLI'S TELEGRAPH Co., COLLIE'S CLAIM (1871), L. R. 12 Eq. 246; 40 L. J. Ch. 567; 25 L. T. 526; 19 W. R. 1022.

The co. was represented at the meeting of creditors, & agreed to accept a composition, & in N.'s statement the uncalled liability upon the shares was included as a debt due to the co. The amount of the composition was paid to the co., who, by its directors, executed a release to N. & agreed to accept a forfeiture & surrender of the shares. The proceedings in respect of the composition were carried out under the provisions of Part C. of the Insolvency Act, 1890:—Held: such release being within the powers of the directors under the arts. of assocn. of the co. to execute on behalf of the co., was valid & bound the co.—Re MELBOURNE LOCOMOTIVE & ENGINEERING WORKS, LTD. (IN

The co. was ordered to be wound up by the ct. here; & the lessor came in to prove for the whole that was due to him in respect of the rent for the premises, the term in which was to expire in 1871. It was objected that the French directors had no authority to accept the lease, & generally, that it was not binding on the co. here:—Held: the co. was bound by the lease, & there must be a reference to chambers to ascertain what was due to the lessor in respect of it.—Re GENERAL INTERNATIONAL AGENCY Co., LTD. The directors appointed trustees, & the co. issued prospectuses stating that 50 per cent. of the premiums on whole life policies was invested, & granted policies in accordance with the special resolution:—Held: the directors were liable to account in the winding up to the extent of the funds not invested, & invested but applied to the general purposes of the co., & such liability was for a "misfeasance or breach of trust in relation to the co.," enforceable under 1862 Act, s. 165, on the application of the official liquidator & a policy-holder as a creditor in the winding up.—Re BRITISH GUARDIAN LIFE ASSURANCE Co. 3128. Under article providing for repairs & renewals—Floating dock.]—It is said that the directors by their report have admitted that they have not been properly maintaining the dock as a structure, & a passage from their report, which was issued in view of this reduction scheme, was referred to which, in my opinion, cannot be taken as an admission on the part of the directors that they have not done their duty in keeping up the dock. I refer now to art. 100, which deals with the net profits, but for the moment only to that part of it which shows how the net profits are to be applied: "After setting apart," says the art., "such sums for repairs & renewals as the directors shall from time to time consider necessary or proper." The directors under that have a discretion as to the sum which shall be devoted to repairs or renewals. There is a duty, no doubt, of maintaining the work in a reasonable state of repair by means of timely repairs & timely renewals; but it is scarcely necessary for me to state that under such a clause as this the directors were not bound to construct a new dock. They were only bound to do the best they could for this iron & wooden structure with a view to keeping that structure in a fair state & condition.

Like the case of repairing a house, the covenant to repair does not involve on the covenantor a liability to build a new house (CHITTY, J.).—Re FLOATING DOCK Co. OF ST. THOMAS, LTD., [1895] 1 Ch. 691; 64 L. J. Ch. 361; 43 W. R. 344; 39 Sol. Jo. 284; 13 R. 491.

Purchase of company's shares—Assent required under articles—Proof of assent.]—By the deed of settlement of a co., it was provided that it should not be lawful for the directors to sell or purchase any shares without the authority & sanction of a general meeting "previously in that behalf obtained." L., who was a registered shareholder for 300 shares, & who had been a director of the co., in 1855, being desirous of parting with his shares, applied to the directors, & was referred to S. as the agent. L. agreed with S. to give up the shares, to pay £100 & £30 bonus to himself, & take back two annuities. This transaction was completed in Jan. 1856. Direct evidence that any meeting was held for the purpose of confirming this purchase was wanting, but it appeared that the shares were transferred in the co.'s books, & in the public register, & that the allottee paid calls upon them. The annuities were also regularly paid, & there was evidence to show that at a general meeting held in Apr. 1856, a balance-sheet was produced & adopted, which showed entries for "annuity purchase-moneys," & a £300 for "deposits returned on shares":—Held: under the circumstances, the assent of the co. must be held to have been given to the transaction; and that, on the whole, the transfer by L. to the company was a valid transfer; & that he was not liable to be placed on the list of contributories.—Re BRITISH PROVIDENT, ETC., ASSURANCE SOCIETY, LANE'S CASE (1863), 1 De G. —Arts. of a co. registered under a Colonial statute adopting 1862 Act, provided that, subject to powers given at meetings of shareholders, the directors should have power to borrow on the property of the co. any sum “not exceeding in the aggregate one half the paid up capital.” The arts. further provided that one half of the votes of the shareholders called for the purpose should be “necessary” to enlarge, extend, rescind or alter all or any of the provisions contained therein. The directors exceeded their borrowing powers:—Held: the limitation of the power of borrowing was merely a limitation of the authority of the directors, & was not part of the constitution of the co. The act of the directors might be ratified by the co. at a half-yearly meeting, but such ratification would not enlarge the borrowing powers of the directors for the future.—*IRVINE v. (h) Application of Company's Funds.

3145. General rule.]—(1) The governing body of a corpn., which is in fact a trading partnership, cannot in general use the funds of the community for any purpose other than those for which they are constituted, whether that governing body is exclusively directors, or a council general, or the majority at a general meeting of the co. Therefore the special powers given either to the directors or to a majority by the statutes or other constituent documents of the assocn., are always to be construed as subject to a paramount & inherent restriction, that they are to be exercised in subjection to the special purposes of the original bond of assocn. That is not a mere canon in the English municipal law, but a great & broad principle, which must be taken, in the absence of proof to the contrary, as part of any given system of jurisprudence.

3166. Effect of ratification—Relation back.]—Subsequently to some negotiations between A., a director of a co., & L., an offer by letter was made by L. to the co. to take from it a lease of its property. On Dec. 9, 1886, A. wrote to L. saying that his offer should be laid before the directors, & on Dec. 13, 1886, A. again wrote to L. to inform him that the directors accepted his offer, & that the co.'s solrs. had been instructed to prepare the necessary documents. On Jan. 13, 1887, L. wrote to the co. alleging that he had discovered that he had been misled as to certain facts, & stating that he therefore withdrew all offers made to the co. An action was thereupon brought by the co. against L. claiming specific performance of the contract, & damages. It appeared that at the time when A. wrote accepting L.'s offer, he, although acting perfectly bonâ fide, had not in fact obtained the formal authority of the co. to enter into the contract, & the contract was not ratified by the co. until after L.'s repudiation thereof:—Held: the ratification by the co. related back to the date of the contract, & the repudiation by L. was of no avail, notwithstanding that the co. itself was not bound by the contract until the ratification thereof took place.—BOLTON PARTNERS v. S. promoted the formation of a co. to purchase the colliery for £25,000 in cash & £25,000 in paid-up shares & induced six gentlemen to become directors, engaging that they should be at no expense. The arts. contained a clause empowering, but not binding, the directors to pay the preliminary expenses attending the formation of the co. Shortly before the co. was registered an agreement was made between S. & the directors that S. should receive £3500 for preliminary expenses. On this occasion he produced a list of preliminary expenses, but did not produce vouchers, & no inquiry was made of him as to whether he was entitled to receive anything under his arrangements with E. S. received £3200 from E. & received out of the funds of the co. the £3500, out of which he paid the calls on the shares which the directors had taken to qualify them for the office. The co. having been ordered to be wound up:—Held: the directors were jointly & severally liable to repay to the co. the sum so ordered to be paid to S. for preliminary expenses, on the ground that the money was paid in order to provide the directors' qualifications, for the directors had by their agreement with S. disqualified themselves for exercising a discretion as to the payment of preliminary expenses & had not used due care & caution in examining into the propriety of paying them, & irrespective of the fact of their calls having been paid out of the money received by S., the payment to him was, under the circumstances, a misapplication of the funds of the co., for which they were liable under 1862 Act, s. 165.—Re ENGLEFIELD COLLIERY CO. (1878), 8 Ch. 3182. Misrepresentation inducing purchase of shares—Civil liability.]—(1) After a resolution has been passed for winding up a co. voluntarily a shareholder cannot as a general rule obtain a compulsory order for winding up or an order for continuing the voluntary winding up under supervision. The only exceptions to the rule are where the resolutions has been passed fraudulently, or where creditors appear to support the petition.

By the arts. of assocn. of a limited co. the directors were authorised, when it should appear to them that the capital for the time being subscribed was sufficient for the purposes of the co., to allot the remaining unallotted shares among the shareholders in proportion to the number of shares then held by them, without receiving any money for them. When shares to the amount of one-fourth of the nominal capital had been allotted & paid up, the directors allotted the remaining three-fourths as fully paid up shares, among the existing shareholders without further consideration; & petitioner became a purchaser of some of these shares in the market. The co. passed a resolution for a voluntary winding up & afterwards the petitioner presented a petition for compulsory winding up:—Held: (2) the provision in the arts. was highly improper; (3) if it amounted to a fraud, it was a fraud upon petitioner in his individual capacity of purchaser of the shares & was not committed by or upon the co. & therefore it was not within the scope of the winding-up Acts to give relief in respect thereof; (4) if the alleged fraud could be proved the guilty party could be indicted for conspiracy.—Re GOLD CO. 3184. What plaintiff must prove—Misrepresentations wilful & fraudulent—Plaintiff in fact deceived.]—To make a co. or its directors or secretary liable for misrepresentation made in the certificates or transfer of shares purchased from a shareholder, the purchaser must show that he was in fact deceived, & that the misrepresentations were wilful & fraudulent.

The capital of a railway co. that had been classified by Act of Parliament according to the respective priorities of the shares & stocks of which it was composed included £85,000, No. 1 preference stock, & £60,000 No. 2 preference stock.

The directors, acting under a bona fide belief that they had power to issue stock that would rank with the No. 1 preference stock, issued £10,000 that was described in the certificates as No. 1 preference stock. In 1865, pltf's., without having seen these certificates, purchased this £10,000 stock, & a transfer in which it was also described as No. 1 Preference stock was sent to the co., & was returned to pltf's. with an indorsement by the secretary that coupons for such stock were held by him to meet the transfer. In 1869, pltf's. ascertained that the directors had no power to issue No. 1 preference stock, & in 1870 it was declared by the Ct. of Chancery that this £10,000 stock ranked below the No. 2 preference stock. In 1874, pltf's. filed a bill against the co., the directors, & the secretary, to make them jointly & severally liable for the loss sustained by pltf's. through the misrepresentation of defts. The bill alleged that pltf's. bought the £10,000 stock under the belief that it formed part of the £85,000 but this allegation was not verified by affidavit, & pltf's. only swore that they bought it under the belief that it would rank with No. 1 preference stock:—Held: no misrepresentation had been made to pltf's. by which they had been deceived, & even had they been deceived their delay in commencing proceedings would have disentitled them to relief.—EAGLESFIELD v. LONDONDERRY (MARQUIS) (1876), 4 Ch. Deft., one of the directors of a mining co., formed to consist of 100,000 shares of £1 each fully paid up, having in conjunction with others falsely & fraudulently caused it to be represented to the committee of the Stock Exchange that 41,711 shares had been allotted, & that £40,911 was in the hands of the co.'s bankers, having been paid upon the scrip, 40,000 shares being reserved, as the price to be paid for certain land, & 19,000 for distribution in the colony, the committee caused a settling day to be appointed & the shares to be quoted in the official list. Pltf. knowing the rule of the Stock Exchange & from seeing the shares quoted, believing that two-thirds of the scrip had been paid upon, bought on the Stock Exchange from third persons 200 shares in that belief. It was proved that no more than 19,183 shares were allotted & only 7000 were ever paid upon, & that deft. knew this at the time of the representation to the Stock Exchange. The true test as to whether an individual shareholder can sue a director for misconduct is, if the transaction is such that the body of the shareholders could not have sanctioned it; if they could not, as for example where false reports are made, then such action lies, for it is an injury to each individual shareholder, who was or might be deceived.—*DAVIDSON v. 3197. ——— Conspiracy—Issue of untrue balance sheet.]—On an indictment for a conspiracy to defraud, by false representations of solvency, defts. may be convicted who had no knowledge of the transactions, which resulted in insolvency, provided they were aware of the result, & concurred in the representations in furtherance of the common design, even although they did so with no motive of particular benefit to themselves.

Overt acts in conspiracy, though not necessarily laid, & if laid not proved as against all defts., may be looked at as showing the object of the conspiracy.

The information charged defts., intending to deceive, defraud & prejudice such of the shareholders of the Royal British Bank as were not aware of the true state of the affairs of the bank, & to induce the Queen's subjects to become customers & creditors of the bank, & to purchase & hold shares therein, did conspire falsely & fraudulently to publish & represent that the bank & its affairs had been, during the year ended Dec. 31, 1855, & then were, in a sound & prosperous condition, producing profits divisible among the shareholders, they, defts., then well knowing, as the fact was, that the bank & its affairs had been during that year, & then were, in an unsound & unprosperous condition, not producing any profit divisible among the shareholders.

One overt act alleged was the publication & distribution of a balance-sheet purporting to give a true statement of the condition & affairs of the bank for the year ending Dec. 31, 1855:—Held: though some of defts. were aware of the insolvent state of the bank, & concurred in the balance-sheet & the dividend with a view to induce persons to retain or to purchase shares in the bank, in the hope, or even belief, that they might thereby rescue the bank from its difficulties, they were in point of law guilty of the offence charged in the information; & with respect to each of the three there was evidence from which the jury were justified in finding the guilty knowledge & concert.—R. v. On an application by the official liquidator under 1862 Act, s. 165:—Held: the four directors were jointly & severally liable to repay the £400 with been earned in excess of those shown in the balance-sheets; & for interdict against the issue of such balance-sheets. Pursuer did not charge directors with fraud, & he admitted that the balance-sheets had been passed by the auditors & approved by general meeting of the co., but he averred that the actings complained of were ultra vires:—Held: the action fell to be dismissed on the ground that the valuation of the stock was a matter within the discretion of the directors, subject to the approval of the shareholders, & that there was no relevant averment that the co. or the directors had acted ultra vires.—YOUNG v. BROWNLEE & CO., LTD., [1911] S. C. 677.—SCOT.

Nothing inconsistent with the report appeared in the books of the company, which were kept in the ordinary way, but the value of the stocks was variable, & comparison with the prices current would have shown that at the date of the report the securities had greatly

3201. — By way of indemnity after qualification.]—A promoter acting in the interests of the vendor entered into a secret agreement with A., in order to induce him to become a director, to buy back at par at any time when required the shares which A. was bound to take up to qualify. A. having become a director, & having duly qualified, received back from the promoter the price of the shares at par at a time when they had become valueless:—Held: A. was guilty of a misfeasance under 1862 Act, s. 165, in accepting a secret indemnity from a promoter, & that he was accountable to the co. for the value of that indemnity, which was in this case the price of the shares at par.—Re NORTH AUSTRALIAN TERRITORY CO., ARCHER'S CASE, [1892] 1 Ch. 322; 61 L. 3202. — Paid out of purchase-money payable to vendor to company—Liability to refund.]—Before the formation of a co. for the purchase of certain property the vendors agreed with H. that he should become a director, they providing him with the forty shares necessary to qualify him. He thereupon signed the memorandum of assocn. in respect of forty shares & became a director. At a meeting of directors cheques were drawn on the bankers of the co. & given to the vendors in payment of part of the purchase-money. One of these cheques being for the same amount as that due on H.'s shares was given by the vendors to H., & was by him paid in to his own bankers. He then drew a cheque on his own bankers, & gave the cheque to the co. in payment of the sum due on his shares. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: (1) H. being a director of the co., could not retain money so paid him by the vendors; (2) the money had never ceased to be the money of the co.; (3) there had in fact been no payment by H. of the money due in respect of the shares; (4) he was liable as a contributory in respect of these shares.—Re CANADIAN OIL WORKS CORPN., HAY'S CASE (1875), 10 Ch. After the contract had been adopted & completed, O. was elected a director, & from that time acted as director until the winding up of the co.:—Held: (1) the transaction between H. & O. amounted to a hiring of O.'s services as a director to act in the interests of H.; (2) O. had thereby committed a misfeasance within 1862 Act, s. 165, & was liable to pay the liquidator the nominal value of the shares.—Re CAERPHILLY COLLIERY CO., ORMEROD'S CASE (1877), 37 L. 3208. — — — — — ].—The principles laid down in McKay's Case, No. 3559, post, & Pearson's Case, No. 3206, ante, viz., that a director being in a fiduciary position to his co. cannot retain a consideration received by him from the promoters as an inducement to become a director; & if the consideration has been a gift of fully paid-up shares, that he may be compelled not only to restore the shares, but to account to the co. for the highest value to be attributed to them since they have been in his possession are equally applicable to proceedings in an action by the co. to recover the value of the shares, as proceedings under 1862 Act, s. 165, for the same purpose. The director is further chargeable with interest on the highest value of the shares. Previously to the incorporation of a co. fifty fully paid-up ordinary shares were offered to G. by the promoters to induce him to act as a director. G. consented to act as a director, & fifty shares of £100 each, part of a large number of paid-up shares retained as commission by the promoters on the sale of the works to the co., were transferred into his name without any consideration. G. acted as director for three years, & assisted in carrying into effect the contracts for purchase, but was not aware of the amount of commission retained by the promoters. In 1871 these ordinary shares were quoted at £80 a share. In 1874 G. ceased to be a director. In 1877, when these shares were only quoted at £1 per share, the co. commenced an action against G., claiming a declaration that he was a trustee of these fifty shares for the co., or of the value of them at the election of the co. with interest, & for an account:—Held: (1) G. was a trustee of these shares for the co.; (2) restitution of these shares was not sufficient; (3) as the co. had elected to take the value of these shares, G. must pay to the co. £80 per share on each of the shares transferred to him, with interest at 4 per cent. from the date of transfer, & the costs of the action.—*NANT-Y-GLO & BLAINA IRONWORKS CO. v. —A co. was formed for the purpose of carrying out a preliminary agreement to purchase from C., a promoter, certain slate quarries, the purchase-money to be paid partly in cash & partly in fully paid-up shares. The agreement was registered. The arts. of assocn. appointed A. one of the first directors, & provided that a director should be qualified by holding fifty shares. Art. 14 provided that it should be lawful for C. "to give shares to the directors, or any other persons, for the purpose of promoting the co." At a meeting of the directors, at which A. was present, fifty of the vendor's shares were, at the request of C., allotted to A., & registered in his name as fully paid up. Nothing was, in fact, paid for them. The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: (1) the arrangement contained in art. 14 was fraudulent; (2) A. had been guilty of a misfeasance in relation to the co., & was liable under 1862 Act, s. 165, to pay to the liquidator the value of the shares.—Re ESKERN SLATE & SLAB QUARRIES CO., LTD., CLARKE & HELDEN'S CASES (1877), 37 L. In an action by the co. against A. for repetition of the £10,000:—Held: the co. were entitled to recover, in respect that the true price of the mines was only £115,000, & that A.'s services were not set forth in the pros-

3214. Costs—Received from promoters.]—The arts. of assocn. of a banking co., with a nominal capital of £1,200,000 in 60,000 shares, of which the prospectus stated that the first issue would be 30,000, empowered the directors to commence business as soon as they should think fit, notwithstanding the whole capital might not have been subscribed for, & provided that upon the first allotment of shares £10,000 should be paid to the promoters. When only 5,000 shares had been subscribed for, & before the co. was in a situation to commence business, the directors allotted the shares & paid £5,000 to the promoters, who immediately paid to four of the directors £500 apiece. The co. having been ordered to be wound up:—Held: the directors could not be charged with the money paid to the promoters, but that each of the four directors must repay to the co. the £500 received by him from the promoters. Where a co. in course of liquidation is ordered to pay costs, such costs are not to be proved as a debt in the winding up, but are payable in full out of the assets of the co.—MADRID BANK v. 3215. Fully-paid shares—Received from vendors & co-director as promotion money—Contrary to terms of prospectus.]—The prospectus issued by the promoters of a projected co. stated that the purchase money to be paid by the co. to the vendors was £32,500, of which £15,000 was to be paid in 3,000 fully paid-up shares, & that "the remuneration of the directors will be paid by the shareholders, & it is proposed that they should be paid only by a commission on the profits made, no promotion money whatever being paid to them by the co., & all formation expenses being paid by the vendors." The £32,500 was the real price originally agreed to be paid to the vendors. Shortly after the registration of the co. the vendors, who were two of the first directors of the co., transferred 800 of their vendors' paid-up shares to their co-directors in pursuance of an understanding which existed at the time the prospectus was issued, but which was not disclosed. The shares were so transferred as promotion money, & in order to induce them to continue directors. In an action by a shareholder against the directors, claiming damages, on the ground that he had been induced to take his shares in the co. by the fraudulent misrepresentations contained in the above paragraph of the prospectus, & on the faith of which he had taken his shares:—Held: (1) the understanding was not a contract within 1867 Act, s. 38, & the omissions to state it in the prospectus did not make the latter fraudulent within the statute; (2) although the transaction between the vendors & their co-directors might be ground for holding them liable in some other proceedings, it did not render the prospectus false or fraudulent, & the action must be dismissed with costs.

(3) "Formation expenses" necessarily include promotion moneys paid to persons as a commission for floating a co.; & where a prospectus states that "no promotion money will be paid by the co., & that the formation expenses will be paid by the vendors," it must be shown in order to prove such a statement false, that the purchase price agreed upon has been purposely & fraudulently increased for the purpose of making the co. pay the promotion money in addition to what was understood to be the real price between the parties.—ARKWRIGHT v. NEWBOLD (1881), 17 Ch. D. 301; 50 L. J. Ch. 372; 44 L. T. 393; 29 W. R. 455, C. A.

The directors allotted shares without consideration to some of their number. It was proved to the satisfaction of the ct. that it was intended at that time to work the co. as a private partnership, & to admit no other members. All the members consented to what was done, & it was sanctioned at a general meeting of the co. No prospectus was issued. Rather more than a year afterwards, the co. being in need of more capital, some fresh shareholders were admitted, who alleged that they were not informed of the manner in which the original shares had been allotted. The co. was ordered to be wound up:—Held: no fraud had been committed on the co., & the official liquidator, as representing the co., could not call upon the directors under 1862 Act, s. 165, to account for the value of the shares so allotted to them.—Re BRITISH SEAMLESS PAPER BOX Co. (1881), 17 Ch. At the commencement of the winding up of the co. some of the shares so given remained registered in the director's name, & the rest had been transferred by him, some for value, others for a nominal consideration. There was evidence that the public had subscribed for the ordinary shares of the co. at their par value:—Held: the director had been guilty of a misfeasance in relation to the co., & he must pay to the liquidator the full nominal value of all the shares which had been given to him, & there was no distinction between those shares, the certificates of which were to be retained for two years, & the others.—Re DIAMOND FUEL Co., MITCALFE'S CASE (1879), 13 Ch. Where the arts. of a joint-stock assocn. declared that if a director had any interest in a contract proposed for acceptance by the assocn. he should declare his interest, or his place as director should be vacated, & that having declared it he should not vote on the proposal:—Held: (2) "declare his interest" meant declare the nature of his interest, & the words were not satisfied by a mere declaration that he had an interest in the matter; (3) the vacating of the seat would not prevent the contract itself from being treated as one made for the benefit of the assocn., for that the rule of equity would apply to such a case in addition to the penalty specially mentioned by the art. of assocn.

t. Extent of liability.]—Where directors of a co. receive by way of gifts from a third person shares in the co., & belonging to it, & do not, when they discover that the shares belong to the co., offer to hand them back or to make any restitution to the co., & do not admit that the shares belong to the co., the failure to make any attempt at restitution is a ground upon which the ct. may charge them with interest upon the value of the shares.

In such case the co. has an option either to take back the shares themselves & rely upon all the advantages which may pertain to the shares, or to require an account of the value of the shares together with interest upon their value.

The value of the shares so taken is the value at the time they were misappropriated.—MONTGOMERIE'S BREWERY Co. v. BLYTH (1901), 26 V. L. R. 612; 27 V. L. R. 175.—AUS.

By an agreement between himself & the directors, one-half of those shares was transferred to the directors for their own benefit. The co. was ordered to be wound up, & the directors to whom those shares had been transferred were declared contributories in respect of the shares, as unpaid shares.—*Re IRISH CONSOLS MINING Co., Ex p. At the same time £30,000 were paid by B. co. to the directors of A. co.; this transaction not being disclosed to A. co. or to the shareholders in either co. In 1919 & 1920 actions were brought against the directors to recover the £30,000. Pltfs. included the liquidator of B. co., a person suing on behalf of himself & all other shareholders in A. co., & of all shareholders in that co. prior to June 29, 1902, who transferred their shares pursuant to the agreement. A. co. was not made a party to the actions:—Held: (1) the payment to the directors could not be justified as compensation for loss of their directorships, in the absence of a full disclosure of the facts; (2) the actions could not be maintained. The liquidator could not sue, because no claim had been made & transferred to B. co., & that co. was not a shareholder. The claim as representing the shareholders failed because, if A. co. existed, it was a necessary party; if it did not, there was no claim. The claim as representing the shareholders on June 29, 1902, failed, because the directors acted as agents for the co. & not for the shareholders.—CLARKSON v. DAVIES, [1923] A. C. 100; 92 L. J. P. 3240. Shares issued at a premium—Profits on shares allotted to directors' nominee.]—Defts., in 1864, were four of the directors of a joint-stock bank. In that year resolutions were passed to increase the capital by the issue of 20,000 new £50 shares which were to be offered to the old shareholders at the rate of one new share for each old share held by them, each allottee paying for each share £25 premium, & £5 as a first call. The shares not taken up by them were to be disposed of by the directors at £30 premium. The directors entered into an arrangement with S., for him to take at £30 premium all the shares not taken up by the old shareholders. In pursuance of this, 9778 shares were allotted to S., who paid only £5 per share, it being arranged that the certificates for these shares should be withheld, that the bank should have a lien on them for the premiums, & that no transfer from him to any purchaser should be registered till the £30 per share on the shares transferred had been paid. S., being unable to take up so many shares applied to defts. to relieve him of some of them, & they severally took from him considerable numbers at £30 per share, & afterwards disposed of them at a profit, the £30 per share being paid to the bank at the times when the shares were respectively registered in the names of the purchasers:—Held: defts. must respectively account to the bank for the profits made by them respectively by sale of the shares.—*PARKER v. but the director was not to vote on any contract of this kind, and if he did, his vote was not to be counted.

In 1886, shortly after its formation, the ry. co., of which F. was a director, entered into contracts with a steamship co. for the carriage & shipment of bananas. F. was the largest shareholder in the steamship co., & was also a partner in the firm that managed it; no disclosure of F.'s interest was made either in the prospectus of the ry. co., or when the contracts were entered into, nor did he ever "declare the nature of his interest" pursuant to the arts. of assocn.; but his co-directors of the ry. co. were aware that he had some interest in the steamship co. F. continued a director of the ry. co. until 1896, when he resigned & shortly afterwards that co. brought an action against him to make him liable for all profits received by him as shareholder in the steamship co., & as partner in the firm that managed it, under the contracts with the pltf. co. F. having died before the trial, the action was revived against his exors.:—Held: on the arts. of assocn., F.'s estate was not liable to account for any profits made by him out of the contracts with the pltf. co.

The co. afterwards took over the business of the firm paying therefor £30,000, & receiving assets worth £12,000, & having eventually gone into liquidation, the liquidator brought an action to recover from the members of the firm the difference:—Held: K. & F. having received the benefit of the money paid by the co., were liable to repay the loss.—WADE v. ii. On Sale to Company.

3253. Sales before incorporation of company—After agreement to become director—Goods delivered after incorporation.—In Aug., Sept., & Oct., 1872, negotiations were carried on for the purchase of the business of F. & B. by a limited co. M., who often had large contracts with F. & B. for the delivery of goods, on Sept. 7 agreed to become a director of the proposed co., & on Sept. 24, an agreement was entered into between F. & B. & a trustee for the co. for the purchase & taking over by the co. as from Sept. 1, the business of F. & B. & for carrying on all contracts entered into by them as buyers or sellers. On Oct. 7, M. attended a meeting of the directors. On Oct. 24, the memorandum & arts. of assocn. were signed by M. The arts. ratified the agreement of Sept. 24. On Oct. 31, the co. was incorporated. On Oct. 15 & 25, & on subsequent dates, M. entered into contracts with F. & B., & afterwards with the co., for the delivery of goods; some of the goods under the earlier contracts were not delivered by Oct. 31. In a suit by the co. to make M. liable to account for profits made on all these contracts:—Held: he was not, under the circumstances, liable to account for profits in respect of contracts prior to the incorporation of the co., but only for those after that date.—*ALBION STEEL & WIRE Co. v. 3254. Sale to private company—Price payable in shares—Goodwill valued too high.—(1) H., the owner of a manufacturing business, sold it to a co., of which he was sole director. The co. was, & was intended to remain, a private concern, consisting of the vendor & his friends, & the consideration was satisfied wholly in shares. H. afterwards sold his shares:—Held: in the absence of fraud, & under the circumstances of the case, the co. had no right of action against H. on the alleged ground that in estimating the purchase price of the business, too high a value had been placed upon the goodwill.

(2) Where a reasonable salary had been drawn by a managing director without the authority of any resolution, & without any specific notice to the shareholders, but the item appeared in the accounts, & every shareholder either knew, or had the means of knowing the fact:—Held: the director was not liable to account to the co. for the money.—*HADLEY (FELIX) & Co., LTD. v. 3257. Knowledge of members—No formal approval.—Directors cannot pay themselves for their services, or make presents to themselves out of the co.'s assets, unless authorised so to do by the instrument which regulates the co., or by the shareholders at a properly convened meeting.

N. the chairman of a co. in which substantially all the shares were held by himself & his family, purchased on behalf of the co. the right to a building agreement to be obtained from certain comrs. The comrs. objected to the co. as tenant, & proposed to substitute N. who thereupon sold the benefit of the agreement to the co. at an advance of £10,000 of which £7,000 was spent upon commissions & otherwise in order to obtain the agreement from the comrs., & £3,000 was applied by N. to his own use. A further sum of £3,500 was spent by N. out of the assets of the co. upon his private house. These payments were made out of money borrowed by the co. for the purpose of its business; they were sanctioned by resolutions of the directors, & were approved of by all the shareholders. The arts. contained no power to make presents to directors. Upon a summons taken out by the liquidator in the winding up of the company against N. under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10:—Held: N. was not liable for the £7,000, but was liable for the £3,000 & the £3,500, because the shareholders for the time being had no power to authorise the making of presents to directors out of money borrowed by the co., & because if there had been such power it could be exercised only at a general meeting.—Re NEWMAN (GEORGE) & Co., [1895] 1 Ch. 674; 64 L. c. —.]—In any question as to the remedies available against a director of a co. who has sold his own property to the company, regard must be had to the relationship in which the 3258. Sufficiency of disclosure.]—A. & B., directors of a colliery co., purchased the lease of a colliery & re-sold the same to the co. of which they were directors at a large profit. There was no allegation that the price they obtained from the co. was more than the lease was worth at the time. The fact that A. & B. were the vendors to the co. was fully disclosed to the latter at the time of the sale, but the price they had themselves paid to the lessee was not disclosed. No unfair advantage had, in the opinion of the ct., been taken of the co.:—Held: A. & B. had made a "full & fair disclosure" of their interest in the subject of sale & it was not incumbent upon them to disclose the price for which they had themselves bought.—CHESTERFIELD & BOYTHORPE COLLIERY CO. v. BLACK (1877), 37 L. T. 740; 26 W. R. 207.

3259. —.]—Directors of a co., who are also vendors to the co. do not discharge their duty of disclosing to the shareholders what profits they have made on the sale to the co. by the insertion of words in a prospectus which, read with caution & sifted to the bottom might have given to the reader a clue to their meaning. The disclosure must be explicit. Nor can they escape liability to refund secret profits by a clause in arts. of assocn. that they shall not be accountable to the company for any profit realised by reason only of their holding that office or of the fiduciary relation thereby established.—*GLUCKSTEIN v. 3261. Effect of adoption of contract by company.]—In 1871 certain coal areas were purchased for £5,500 by six persons, of whom F. was one, & were vested in G. as a trustee for them without disclosing the trust. In 1873 a co. was formed for the purpose of purchasing these areas & other property. F. was one of the directors, & as such he concurred in effecting a purchase by the co. from G. for £12,000 cash, & £30,000 in fully paid-up shares, without disclosing the fact that F. was a part owner. In 1875 the co. was ordered to be wound up. In 1878 a meeting of contributories was called, at which two rival schemes were brought forward, one for repudiating the purchase of the coal areas, the other for adopting the purchase & selling the property. The latter scheme was adopted, & was confirmed by the ct. The liquidator accordingly sold the property, but at a heavy loss. A contributory then took out a summons under 1862 Act, s. 165, to make F. liable for misfeasance as a director in allowing the co.'s seal to be affixed to the agreement for purchase by the co.:—Held: (1) though the co. would have been entitled to rescind the contract, yet as rescission had become impossible no relief could be given against F.; (2) as F. when he acquired his interest in the property was not a trustee for the co., he could not be treated as having purchased on behalf of the co. at the price he gave, & was not chargeable with the difference between the price at which he bought & the price paid by the co., & he could not be charged with the difference between the price paid by the co. & the value of the property when the co. bought it, as this would be making a new contract between the parties.

Where a trustee, purchasing on behalf of his cestui que trust, purchases his own estate without disclosing his own interest in it, the cestui que trust, when he discovers the fact, may, if he pleases, set aside the contract altogether, but then he must return that which has been purchased. The same rule applies, in the case of a purchase by a director on behalf of a co., of property in which he has any interest; if the co. repudiates the contract, the property must be returned. In this case a return of the property is impossible after what was done in 1878. The resolution of the shareholders to sell the property was passed in 1878, & the co. having determined to adopt, & not to set aside, this contract of purchase, it is too late now to seek to do so (COTTON, L.J.).—Re CAPE BRETON CO. (1885), 29 Ch. The memorandum also provided that each of the subscribers for a founders' share should, in addition to paying up the nominal amount of that share, "subscribe for" fifty ordinary shares for each founders' share held by him. Five directors of the co. took certain founders' shares each, & no ordinary shares in respect of them; but they procured other persons to acquire fifty ordinary shares for every founders' share so taken:—Held: (1) (LORD LUDLOW, diss.), the meaning of the words "subscribe for" was not "take" personally, the obligation to "subscribe for" such things as transferable shares being performed, or at all events satisfied & discharged, by procuring an allotment to be made to persons approved by the directors; but that, even if "subscribed for" meant "take," the obligation to take might be satisfied & discharged by the acceptance by the directors of a nominee of the person bound to take; & the directors by finding others to take fifty ordinary shares for every founders' share taken had fulfilled the obligation imposed upon them; (2) a charge of misfeasance had not been made out, inasmuch as a mere allotment of shares, whether ordinary or founders' shares, by directors to themselves was not unlawful, nor a breach of duty, nor a breach of trust.—Re LONDON & COLONIAL FINANCE CORPN., LTD. such of the shares thus allotted as they had disposed of, & as to the shares which they retained the proper measure of the damages was, under the circumstances, not the highest price at which any shares of the co. had been sold during the period for which the directors had held their shares, but the market value of the shares at the dates at which they were respectively allotted to the directors, & the directors must pay to the co. the excess, if any, of that market value above the sums which they had paid to the co. for the shares respectively.—*SHAW v. In 1904 he transferred his shares, receiving therefor the sum of $125 more than he had paid. In 1906 the shares were forfeited, by resolution of the directors, for non-payment of a call of 100 per cent made upon them:—Held: the original subscriber for the shares was liable as for breach of trust under Winding-up Act, R. d. — [For purpose of obtaining controlling voting power.]—Deft. co. was incorporated in 1912 under the Ontario Companies Act, with an authorised capital stock of $150,000, divided into 1,500 shares of the par value of $100 each, but only 1,208 shares had been issued. Pltf., a director, was the registered holder of 458 of these, & had agreed to buy 150 shares from another shareholder, which would give him a majority of the issued shares. At a meeting of the directors held in Oct. 1918, a resolution was passed (pltf. voting against it) that the balance of the share capital of the co. unissued be offered to the shareholders at par. This offer to remain open for 20 days. There were five directors, & all were present at the meeting. The president then asked each one present how many shares he would take. Two asked for 10 each, one for 100, & one for 50—these numbers bearing no fixed relation to their previous holdings. The pltf. said he would take his proportion based upon his holding of 608 shares. This was not conceded; pltf. was offered 98 shares, which he refused. The directors then passed a resolution (pltf. voting against it) that the applications for the shares be accepted & that certificates be issued accordingly. Pltf., suing on behalf of himself & all shareholders other than the individual defts., brought this action against the co., his four co-directors, & another shareholder who was to get some of the shares, to restrain them from making the allotment:—Held: the purpose of deft. directors in all they did was to deprive pltf. of the controlling position which he had acquired—they were making a one-sided allotment of shares with a view to the control of the voting power which was beyond their powers.—BONISTEEL v. COLLIS LEATHER CO., LTD. (1919), 45 O. L. R. 195.—CAN.

Liability for non-compliance with 1900 Act, s. 4—Necessity for knowledge of facts.]—(1) A co. issued a prospectus offering 20,000 £1 preference shares to the public & stating that no allotment would be made unless 15,000 shares had been applied for & the application money paid. Pltf. applied for 100 shares. The directors proceeded to allotment when 15,000 shares had been applied for, but in some cases the application money had only been paid by cheques which had not been cleared. Pltf. paid the full amount of his shares. The co. went into liquidation, & it then appeared that the co. was insolvent & the shares worthless. Pltf. brought this action against one of the directors claiming repayment of the money paid on application for the shares under sect. 4 & compensation for loss under sect. 5 of the 1900 Act. Deft. was not present at the meeting of the board at which the allotment was made, but was present at subsequent meetings at which the minutes were confirmed & a resolution passed to apply for a certificate to commence business:—Held: Mears v. Western Canada Pulp & Paper Co., No. 1650, ante, having decided that payment by cheque is not payment within 1900 Act, s. 4, until the cheque is cleared, there had been a contravention of the Act.

(2) Sect. 4 applies only before allotment. After allotment is once made, whether in contravention of the Act or not, it is only voidable at the option of the shareholder, & the co. cannot pay back the application money; the only liability of the directors after allotment is the liability to make good the loss under sect. 5, sub-sect. 2, of above Act. Under that section, "knowingly contravene" means contravene with knowledge of the facts. A director cannot escape liability by ignorance of the law.

(3) A director does not make himself responsible for an act done at a meeting at which he was not present, & which is complete without further confirmation, merely by voting at a subsequent meeting for the confirmation of the minutes:—Held: deft. was not aware of the facts & had not knowingly contravened the Act.—*BURTON v. fully-paid.] — At a meeting of the directors of a co. they allotted all the unissued shares, being 40 per cent of the capital stock, to the secretary of the co. at par, he having subscribed for them, & immediately afterwards he disposed of a number of these shares at par to the directors individually. No shares had been sold for three years previously, & in the meantime the co.'s real estate had greatly increased in value, & pltf. had recently purchased a large number of shares, nearly all at a premium, & some at a premium of 150 per cent:—Held: this transaction by the directors was 3273. Payments in advance of calls on their own shares—Applied in paying themselves remuneration.]—The directors of a co. by the arts. of assocn. were empowered to receive payments in advance of calls, & were to be paid a certain amount for their fees. The co. fell into a state of utter insolvency, & the directors knowing this, in order to get rid of their liability on shares not fully paid up held by them, passed a resolution authorising any director to pay calls in advance. Under this resolution the directors from time to time paid to the account of the co. large sums purporting to be advances on calls, & immediately afterwards they drew against these sums for their fees. The co. was afterwards wound up. Upon summons by the official liquidator to enforce a second payment of the calls purported to have been paid under this arrangement:—Held: the arrangement being a contrivance only for the benefit of the directors could not stand, the pretended payments in anticipation of calls were invalid, & the calls must be enforced.—*Re EUROPEAN CENTRAL RY. Calls made for securing debts guaranteed by directors personally—After presentation of petition to wind up.]—(1) Directors of a life assurance co. borrowed money from their bankers for the purposes of the co., & by resolution declared a charge in favour of the bankers upon the unpaid proceeds of calls already made. They borrowed a further sum, & passed a second similar resolution after the presentation of a winding-up petition, but before any order made. The co. having been ordered to be wound up:—Held: both charges were effectual.

(2) The directors had been made themselves personally responsible to the bankers for the amount of both the above-mentioned loans, & were compelled to pay the same:—Held: they were entitled to stand in the shoes of the bankers as against the proceeds of the calls.

The co. was afterwards ordered to be wound up & was unable to pay its debts in full:—Held: this transaction amounted to a fraudulent preference, & the directors who had received anything for their own benefit under the mtge. were liable to refund.—*GASLIGHT IMPROVEMENT CO. v. An account of these transactions was laid by the English directors before the committee of management, to whom also the balance due from the English directors was paid. These transactions were afterwards approved of by a general meeting:—Held: the general meeting had power to sanction such a transaction, & having done so, there was no ground for a suit in this country against the retired English directors.—*KENT v. (1) A co. was formed for insurance on lives & survivorship, & during sickness, & for granting annuities. The capital of the co. was advertised as £50,000, in shares of £50 each. Under the deed of settlement it was provided, that the proprietors should not be answerable, indirectly or directly, further or otherwise than as to their respective shares in the co. The full amount of the shares had not been paid up when the co. suspended business:—Held: each proprietor was liable to the persons insured, to the extent of the unpaid portion of his share in the capital of the concern, but not to the full extent of the sum advertised as the capital of the co.

(2) Pltfs. were eleven of the insured, who had effected insurances for payment of a sum of money upon death or during sickness. Some had received policies, & others had only free tickets entitling them to demand policies after paying their premiums for six months:—Held: the interests of pltfs. were identical with the rest of the insured; & they might represent the whole body, amounting to about £2,000.

(3) The directors had declared a dividend, which was not warranted by the state of the funds of the society:—Held: those directors who had been parties to declaring the dividend were liable to make good the amount of the dividend.

(4) The directors having bought up a number of shares with the funds of the society:—Held: they were liable for the amount so applied, this being a dealing with the funds altogether at variance with the scope of the deed of settlement.—*EVANS v. But the balance-sheet of a co. engaged in a hazardous trade will not be considered delusive & fraudulent merely because an estimated value was put upon assets of the co. which were then in jeopardy & were subsequently lost, or because the co. was obliged to borrow money to pay the dividend, provided the facts fairly appeared on the balance-sheet, & the balance fairly represented profits.

Sect. 28.—Directors: Sub-sect. 6, E. (f).]

A co. was formed under 1862 Act, for running the blockade during the civil war in America. The arts. provided that dividends should not be paid except out of profits, & the directors should declare a dividend as often as the profits in hand were sufficient to pay £5 per cent. on the capital, subject to the resolutions of a general meeting. In 1864, a dividend was declared & sanctioned at a general meeting, & subsequently paid, upon a balance-sheet in which a debt due from the Confederate Govt., & cotton in the Confederate States, & also ships engaged in running the blockade, were estimated at the full nominal value. All these assets were lost, & the co. was wound up:—Held: as the estimate was made bona fide, & the facts appeared truly in the balance-sheet, the balance-sheet was not delusive, & the dividend must be considered to have been made out of profits, although the co. had actually to borrow the money to pay it.—Re MERCANTILE TRADING CO., STRINGER'S CASE (1869), 4 Ch. 3280. — Directors relying on manager's valuation of stock-in-trade.—Directors who pay away the funds of their co. honestly, & reasonably believing in a state of facts which would justify the payment, are not bound to replace the funds because it subsequently turns out that on the true facts the payment was ultra vires.

Ordinary directors of a co. are entitled to rely on certificates of its manager as to the value of its stock-in-trade.

For some years before a co. was wound up balance-sheets, signed by its auditors, were published by the directors to the shareholders, in which (a) the value of the co.'s mill & machinery, & (b) the value of its stock-in-trade, were greatly overstated. The directors knew that (a) was an overvalue, but none of them knew that (b) was, but they believed & relied on certificates, deliberately false, given by J., one of the directors who was also manager. Dividends were for some years paid on the footing that the balance-sheets were correct. If the excess in value in respect of (a) & (b), or either of them, had been deducted, there would have been no profits available for dividend. But taking the stock-in-trade at the amounts stated in the certificates, & the mill, machinery, & site at their true value, the co. was not insolvent until the last year of its existence. In the winding up of the co. it was sought to make the directors liable for the dividends, & for the damages alleged to have resulted from continuing the co.'s business on the footing that the balance-sheets were correct:—Held: the directors, other than J., were not, though J. was, liable for the dividends; but the damages were too remote, & the directors were not liable for them.—Re KINGSTON COTTON MILL CO. 3282. Dividends paid out of borrowed money—Liability to proceedings under 1862 Act, s. 165.—

The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that all dividends on shares should be made only out of the clear profits of the co., & all moneys borrowed by the co. & all moneys received under insurances of the co.'s property against destruction or damage by fire should be deemed capital. A building of the co. having been destroyed by fire, the co. resolved to increase the capital by £150,000 for the purpose of reconstructing the building, & to issue for this purpose 15,000 preference shares. These shares were issued, & during the reconstruction of the building, no profits having been earned by the co., the directors paid four dividends on the shares. The first dividend was paid out of moneys received from an insurance co. in respect of a loss occasioned by the fire. The other three dividends were paid by means of moneys borrowed expressly for the purpose from the contractors of the co. & a financial co., both of whom had notice of the purpose for which the money was borrowed, & both of whom held a large number of the preference shares:—Held: (1) the directors were, under 1862 Act, s. 165, jointly & severally liable to pay to the liquidator the amount of the first dividend; (2) with respect to the other three dividends, the result of the transactions as a whole, had been only to increase the amount of the proofs against the co. by the amount of the loans, & consequently the directors were jointly & severally liable to pay to the liquidator only such a sum as would enable him to pay on all the debts of the co. a dividend equal to that which would have been paid on all the debts other than the loans, in case no proof has been made in respect of the loans; (3) the order must be made without prejudice to the right of the directors to be indemnified by any shareholders or creditors of the co. who were parties or privies to the payment of the dividends out of capital, & three months from the date of the Chief Clerk's certificate of the amount payable by the directors must be given to them to make the payment.

(4) The dividends in question were paid in Jan. & July, 1874, & in Jan. & July, 1875. The order to wind up the co. was made in Nov. 1876. A liquidator was appointed in Dec. 1876; he afterwards retired, & his successor was appointed in Dec. 1878. 3283. Dividend sanctioned by company—On faith of misrepresentations of directors.]—(1) The shareholders as a body cannot make the directors liable to repay the amount of dividends which have been declared by them in excess of the proper amount, the shareholders having sanctioned such payment upon reliance of the truth of misrepresentations made by the directors. Where a loss has accrued from the misrepresentations made by the directors, each individual shareholder has his remedy at law against the directors, but the shareholders, as a body, cannot maintain a suit in equity to recover the amount of the loss.

(2) The deed of settlement of a banking co. provided, that when one-fourth of the capital was lost, the directors should call a meeting, & the co. should be dissolved. Considerably more than one-fourth of the capital was lost, & the meeting was called, at which the shareholders resolved to continue the bank. Further losses were made, but no such meeting was called again:—Held: as the shareholders knew that the bank was going on after more than one-fourth of the capital was lost, the directors were not liable for continuing the bank.

(3) The directors of a banking co. are not liable to the co. for including in their accounts as good, debts which were in fact, bad, unless they can be fixed with knowledge of the fact. A bill seeking to make the directors liable for misrepresenting the value of the assets of a co., alleged that they had included amongst the assets as good a sum advanced by them to a director who had died insolvent & without having repaid the sum; & the bill prayed that debts might be declared liable for allowing directors & others to overdraw their accounts:—Held: as this was within the powers conferred on the directors by the deed of settlement on such a bill they could not be made liable for the sum so advanced & lost, on the ground that it had been improperly advanced.—TURQUAND v. MARSHALL (1869), 4 Ch. App. 376; 38 L. J. Ch. 639; 20 L. T. 766; 33 J. P. 708; 17 W. R. 935, L. C.

3284. ———.]—The directors of a limited co. for several years presented to the general meetings of shareholders reports & balance-sheets in which various debts known by the directors to be bad were entered as assets, so that an apparent profit was shown though in fact there was none. The shareholders, relying on these documents, passed resolutions declaring dividends, which the directors accordingly paid. An order having been made to wind up the co. the liquidator applied, under 1862 Act, s. 165, for an order on the directors to replace the amount of dividends thus paid out of capital:—Held: (1) as regards each half-yearly dividend the persons who were directors when it was paid were liable for the whole amount paid for the dividends of that half-year; (2) the claim was for a breach of trust, & Stat. Limitations could not be set up; (3) the directors could not set off any money due from the co. to them against the amounts which they were ordered to replace.—Re EXCHANGE BANKING CO., FLITCROFT'S CASE

3285. ——— Liability for fraud of co-directors.]—(1) An innocent director of a co. is not liable for the fraud of his co-directors in issuing to the shareholders false & fraudulent reports & balance-sheets if the books & accounts of the co. have been kept & audited by duly appointed & responsible officers, & he has no ground for suspecting fraud. Consequently, if such a director has received together with the other shareholders, dividends declared & paid in pursuance of such reports & balance-sheets, such dividends having been, in fact, payments out of capital, he cannot be called upon, under 1862 Act, s. 155, to repay the dividends so paid, nor even the dividends received by himself.

The arts. of assocn. of a co. conferred on D., one of the directors, the supreme control over the management & affairs of the co. D. prepared fraudulent balance-sheets, which purported to show that large profits had been made by the co. The balance-sheets & certain reports were adopted at board meetings. C., another of the directors, was not present at any of such board meetings. In consequence of such balance-sheets & reports, dividends were declared, which were, in fact, paid out of capital. On an application in the winding up of the co., to make C. liable for the amount of the dividends so paid:—Held: as C. had no suspicion of the fraud, & did not wilfully abstain from making inquiries for the purposes of permitting his co-directors to commit fraud, he was not guilty of such gross & wilful negligence as was equivalent to fraud, & he was not liable for the dividends paid out of capital, either to himself or to other shareholders.

3297. ——— Amount received by director.]—The ct. has summary power in a voluntary winding up, on the application of the liquidator, to make an order under 1862 Act, ss. 138, 165, calling upon a director to repay a dividend or bonus declared & paid to him under a delusive balance-sheet.

Where a bonus was declared & credited to a director against arrears of calls then due from him:—Held: a payment within the section.

Where directors, after proper investigation of the financial position of the co., declare & the shareholders agree to, a dividend or bonus, the ct. will not lightly interfere with the payment of such dividend or bonus, on the ground that the estimates on which it was founded have turned out to be erroneous. But where the directors declare a dividend or bonus without proper investigation or professional assistance, & it is afterwards called in question, the burden lies on them to show that it was fairly paid out of profits; & if they are unable to do so, the ct. will order them to refund what they have received.

The directors of a marine insurance co. declared a bonus of 10s. per share, which was agreed to at a general meeting & paid. The directors prepared no profit & loss account, but only an account of the receipts & payments of the co., which made no allowance for the risks to which the co. was liable. The co. having resolved to wind up voluntarily:—Held: an order ought to be made on a director to repay the bonus paid to him.—Re COUNTY MARINE INSURANCE CO., RANCE'S CASE (1870), 6 Ch. 3301. Estoppel of shareholders.]—The accounts of a limited co., at the commencement of their financial year, in 1900, showed a considerable debit balance on the previous year's trading, but the directors illegally though honestly applied a profit made in the earlier part of 1900 in payment of an interim dividend instead of in reduction of the debit balance, thus in effect, paying a dividend out of capital. The balance-sheet for 1900 showing the debit balance & also the payment of the dividend was submitted to & approved by the shareholders in general meeting. Subsequently, the directors, recognising their mistake, proposed to apply any future profits in wiping out the debit balance, & this was almost entirely accomplished out of profits in 1901 & 1902, as appeared from the balance-sheets for those years submitted to & approved by the shareholders in general meeting. In 1903 two of the shareholders, who had themselves received their portions of the dividend, & concurred in passing the balance-sheets, com-

other the shareholders of the co." against the co., & the directors to compel the directors to repay to the co. the amount of the dividend. Afterwards the other shareholders were, at their own request, joined as defts. All defts. counter-claimed, in the event of the ct. holding that the dividend had been illegally paid, for repayment by pltfs. of the portions received by them:—Held: in the circumstances pltfs. were not entitled to maintain the action, but the judgment on the counterclaim must stand.

A shareholder in a limited co. who has, with full notice or knowledge of the facts, himself received part of the proceeds of an ultra vires act committed by the directors, such as payment of a dividend out of capital, & who still retains the money, cannot, either individually or as suing on behalf of the general body of shareholders, maintain an action against those directors; nor can he do so even if, after action brought & before trial, he repays the money he has wrongfully received. Qu: whether he can do so if, before action, he repays the money.—*TOWERS v. holders declining to consent to any such proposed transfer of shares in the co., they shall be bound to take such shares at the price offered in the case of a proposed sale, & at the market price of the day in the case of a proposed transfer for any other cause." Added subsequently by special resolution: "Unless such shares shall not at the time be fully paid up, & the reason for declining to consent be that the directors are not satisfied with the proposed transferee." Trustees entered upon the register were anxious in the discharge of their duty to dispose of their trust shares, which consisted of 100 £100 shares, fifty being fully paid up, & fifty on which £1 per share had been paid. After negotiations, the four directors by special minute approved of the purchase by three of themselves of these shares to be held in trust for the co. A transfer was executed in favour of the three directors "in trust for the co.", & their names were entered upon the register of members, with the same designation. The money paid for the shares came out of the funds of the co., & thereafter the selling trustees ceased to be treated as having any interest therein. At the next general meeting the purchase was approved of by a majority of the shareholders. There was no other transfer or transferees proposed. More than fifteen months after the transaction the co. was wound up voluntarily, & calls were necessary to pay creditors. In an application by the liquidator substantially for rectification of the register, by substituting the names of the selling trustees for those of the three directors, it being admitted that all parties had acted with perfect good faith:—Held: (1) the names of the three persons, the three directors, now appearing upon the register as holding these shares could not be disturbed; the transfer to them being valid & effectual, & the rights of creditors having intervened; (2) the above art. did not give any power to the co. to become the purchaser of its own shares, nor had the transaction been carried on under its provisions.

The directors held out to the world that these shares were owned by individuals, & to this the individuals assented. Beyond this creditors had no occasion to look, & they would be entitled to assume that whatever amount of liability attached to the shares was assumed by the individuals in whose name they stood, & that this liability was not in any way diminished by reference to the trust on which they were held (LORD CAIRNS, C.).—*CREE v. 3320. What amounts to warranty—Issue of debenture-stock certificates — After borrowing powers exhausted.]—By an agreement made between a co. & a contractor engaged under a contract in carrying out works for the co., & executed at a meeting of the directors of the co., it was agreed that in consideration that the contractor would proceed with the works the co. would issue to him, in discharge of a debt then due to him under the contract, debenture stock of the co. Certificates of debenture stock were thereupon signed by two of the directors, & issued to the contractor. The co. had at the time exhausted its power of issuing debenture stock, but the directors were ignorant of the fact. There were no assets of the co. to satisfy the judgment if the contractor had recovered judgment against the co. for the debt due to him, but the debenture stock of the co. was & always had been, worth its nominal value. In an action by the contractor against the directors for breach of an implied warranty that they had power to issue valid debenture stock:—Held: the directors were liable, & the damages were the nominal value of the debenture stock purported to be issued.—*FIRBANK'S EXECUTORS v. Between Apr. 1881 & 1883 various transactions took place between the secretary of the Docks Co. & the London agents of plths. in respect of advances by plths. to the co., the usual arrangement being that plths. should take a bill of exchange drawn upon the co. by the contractors of the co., & also certificates of debenture-stock, accompanied by a letter from the secretary to the effect that the certificates were a collateral security.

The advances were renewed from time to time, & finally consolidated by an agreement of Oct. 20, 1882, made in consideration of a further advance. Some of these certificates were indorsed by G., one of the directors of the Docks Co., to the effect that the stock represented thereby was within the statutory limit. In Jan. 1883 it came to the knowledge of the Docks Co. that there had been an over-issue of debenture-stock since Jan. 1881, & that the co. was insolvent. A special Act was obtained under which an arbitrator was appointed to settle the claims arising out of the condition of the co. Under that Act certain classes of debenture-stock were authorised to be issued. Stock under one of these classes was awarded & issued to plths. in respect of their loan & interest. The stock was admitted to be worthless, & plths. brought an action for damages against the directors & the secretary:—Held: (1) plths. advanced their money on the faith of the warranty contained in the indorsements on the certificates by G., & were, therefore, entitled to damages against him; (2) that the measure of such damages was the difference between the values of the certificates as delivered, & those which ought to have been delivered, which in this case was the whole amount advanced by the plths.—WHITEHAVEN JOINT STOCK BANKING CO. v. REED (1886), 54 L. T. 360; 2 T. L. R. 353, C. A.

3322. ——— Contract entered into by company—Knowledge of chairman.]—Plths. contracted to supply goods to a co. to be paid, as to £600, in first mtge. debentures of the co., & as to the balance by the co.'s acceptances. The contract was made at a board meeting of the co. at which deft. was chairman, & which was attended by plths.' representative. Plths. repeatedly pressed for their debentures, & were put off by promises contained in letters written by the secretary of the co. with the knowledge of deft. as a director; but eventually the co. was ordered to be wound up without plths. having obtained their debentures. At the time the contract was made deft. knew that the whole of the first mtge. debentures of the co. had been issued except £4,950, which were deposited with the bankers of the co. as security for the co.'s overdraft, which was also guaranteed by the directors, under an arrangement by which the co. could at any time withdraw any of the debentures on paying the nominal amount thereof in cash. In an action by plths. to make deft. personally liable for the £600 on the ground that his acts were a representation that he had authority to say the co. could issue the debentures at a time when he knew they had no debentures available for the purpose:—Held: that the deft. was not liable.—*ELKINGTON & CO. v. The secretary gave orders to pltf. to advertise the prospectus, which was done at an expense of £236. The co. was never registered:—Held: deft., by consenting to act as a director, had not authorised the secretary of the co. to pledge his credit, & he was not liable to pltf.—BURBIDGE v. 3327. Tort—Infringement of patent by company's servants.]—The workmen employed on the works of a joint-stock co., in the manufacture of certain foils & sheet metals, infringed, in the carrying out of the process upon which they were employed, pltf.'s patent for a certain method of combining lead & tin & a metal so produced:—Held: the directors & managers, as well as the co., were personally liable for the acts of the workmen, even on the supposition that the workmen had been directed by them not to infringe pltf.'s patent.—BETTS v. 3328. — Misrepresentation by agent or servant—General rule.]—A principal agent is not responsible for the act of a sub-agent with respect to a representation made in favour of his principal; & the directors of a limited co. cannot be held personally liable for a fraudulent representation made by an agent of the co., unless they have induced or authorised him to make it.

A co., of which the appts. were directors, was in negotiation with resp. for an advance upon the security of sheep & wool, the property of the co.; L., an agent of the co., wrote in answer to a question of resps.:—"The mortgage to N. is the only incumbrance on the sheep & wool"; in fact there were two other outstanding incumbrances, but at the time of writing L. had them both in his possession on behalf of the co., under an agreement that they should be paid off out of the advance to be made by resps., which was in fact done:—Held: under these circumstances there was no evidence that L. was guilty of making a false representation of the position of the co.—BEAR v. With the letter was sent a prospectus, from which it appeared that the co. was incorporated by Act of Parliament, & that three persons named were directors. Pltf. advanced the money, & received in return a Lloyd's bond, signed by the secretary, whereby the co. purported to acknowledge the debt, & to covenant to pay the same with interest at 6 per cent. The co. having ceased to pay interest, & being in difficulties, pltf. filed a bill against two of the three directors, & the representatives of the third, praying that they might be decreed to pay the amount advanced by the pltf. with interest:—Held: the principle of relief on the ground of misrepresentation by third persons did not extend to an incorrect statement of a matter of law, & demurrer by the representatives of the third director allowed.—RASHDALL v. PART III. SECT. 28, SUB-SECT. 6.— F. (g).

r. Sale of company's business—Wilful default.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that none of the directors should be answerable for the acts or defaults of the other or others of them or for any other loss, misfortune or damage which might happen in the execution of their respective offices or trusts or in relation thereto, except the same should happen by or through their own wilful default respectively.

The directors of pltf. co., entered into an agreement with A. for the sale of the co.'s undertaking for £170,000, which might be satisfied by 170,000 shares of £1 each in a new co. to be formed by A. One of the provisions of the agreement, which A. insisted on, was that the new co. should out of its contributed capital discharge a debt of £20,000 owing by B. to A. as security for which debt A. held 40,000 shares in pltf. co. belonging to B. The agreement was carried out, the new co. was formed, pltf. co. received the 170,000 shares in the new co., the new co. paid the debt of £20,000 & A. purchased from B. the 40,000 shares:—Held: (1) it was a wilful default on the part of the directors of pltf. co. to make the agreement without providing that either pltf. co. or the new co. should have the benefit of the 40,000 shares; (2) the measure of damages was the lessened value of the interest of pltf. co. in the new co. by reason of the new co. having to pay £20,000.—GOULD & BIRBECK & BACON v. MOUNT OXIDE MINES, LTD. (1916), 22 C. L. R. 490.—AUS.

3334. Lease in directors' names—Liability after retirement.]—A. B. & other persons took premises for a year certain, with a proviso that they might have a lease for seven or fourteen years, upon giving a month's notice before the end of the year. They were the directors of a banking co., the business of which was carried on upon the premises. Before the end of eleven months from the making of the agreement, there was a change of directors; & no notice was given, in pursuance of the agreement, for an extension of the term. Shortly before the expiration of the year, negotiations for a lease were commenced between the landlord & the new directors, but no notice was executed nor any agreement made. A few days before the expiration of the year, an application was made to the landlord by the new directors for a quarter's occupation from the end of the year; to which the landlord answered, "I will consider of it." No further negotiation was carried on between the parties, nor did it appear that any other communications passed between them, but the new directors continued in occupation of the premises for a quarter from the end of the year:—Held: the original tenants were liable in an action for use & occupation, for a quarter's rent, as holding over after the end of their term, there being no acceptance of the new directors as tenants, & no discharge of the liability of the original ship, in which the name of pltf. co. did not appear. In an action to recover the price of the goods:—Held: assuming the contract to be a document within Cos. Act, 1899, s. 67, there was nothing in the Act to render it void or illegal, although a penalty might be enforced under s. 68 against the director or officer authorising its issue.—MORELAND METAL CO. v. COWLESH-HEAD (1919), 19 S. R. N. S. W. 231.—AUS.

*t. For services—Signed by president—Part payment by company.]—*Pltf. put in a memorandum of an agreement made between the directors of a co. of the first part & pltf., which contained an agreement by pltf. to do certain work for specified prices, which the party of the first part thereby agreed to pay, & was signed by deft., describing himself as president of the co., & by pltf. The co. had been duly incorporated & pltf. had received £350 from them on account of his work:—Held: deft. was not personally liable.—JOHNSON v. HAMILTON (1856), 13 U. C. R. 211.—CAN.

*a. — Signed by provisional directors—Part payment by company.]—*Pltf. claimed damages from deft. co. for wrongful dismissal, on the ground that he was employed under a special agreement, which had not terminated when his services were dispensed with. The agreement was in these words: "We, the undersigned, jointly & severally agree to engage () for the period of one year, from this date." The agreement was dated May 8, 1893, & was signed by three of the incorporators & provisional directors of deft. co. The co. was not organised until Aug. 1893, when the provisional directors named in the Act, in addition to those who signed the agreement, met for the first time. The directors, who signed the agreement with pltf., set him to work in May, 1893. Up to Oct. he was paid by R., one of such directors, but, after that date, the co. assumed control of the work, & pltf. was paid out of the treasury of the co. His employment continued up to the end of June, 1894, when he was notified by the treasurer that his services would be dispensed with, & he was paid in full up to that date. There was no resolution of the board, either in regard to his appointment or dismissal:—Held: (1) the contract was merely a joint & several contract of the directors who signed it, & not a contract binding upon the co., & the directors who signed that contract had no power to bind the co., even if they so intended; (2) the payments made to pltf. by the treasurer of the co. were not evidence of ratification of the contract of May 8, & would not be evidence of an implied contract of general hiring.—O'DELL v. BOSTON & NOVA SCOTIA COAL CO., LTD. (1897), 29 N. S. R. 385.—CAN.

*b. Purchase of goods—Value exceeding prescribed limit.]—*In an action against a co. for goods sold & delivered, the amount claimed being admitted, debts set up that their indebtedness when the goods were purchased largely exceeded the limits prescribed by R. S. O. 1897, c. 199, ss. 11, 40, & that the directors were personally liable, & not the co.:—Held: a motion for summary judgment must be dismissed.—CANADIAN GENERAL ELECTRIC CO. v. TAGONA WATER & LIGHT CO. (1903), 24 C. L. T. 61; 6 O. L. R. 641; 2 O. W. R. 1055.—CAN.

*c. Promotion expenses—Provisional directors—Named in prospectus.]—*Where a co. was sought to be promoted & floated & a prospectus was issued, & H. & K. signed it & agreed to act as directors, & figured as such on the prospectus, & certain advertising expenses were incurred on the promotion of the co. which was never floated:—Held: H. & K. were jointly & not jointly & severally liable for the expenses.—HOLLIS v. ARGUS CO., LTD. (1890), 7 S. C. 326.—S. AF.

*d. — — — — —.]—*The mere fact that persons agree to become provisional directors of a co. does not render them liable for goods supplied on the order of the attorney or secretary of the co., & they are not necessarily rendered liable by allowing their names to appear as provisional directors on the prospectus. Whether they are liable depends on the terms of the prospectus. If it merely states that they are provisional directors they will not be liable. If it represents that the attorney or secretary is not merely to act as such when the co. is formed, but is already appointed to act for such provisional directors, they will be liable for such business as is usually done by the attorney or secretary of persons who are forming a co.

Defts., provisional directors of a projected co., made it clear inter se & to their agent that they would not hold themselves responsible for the expenses of flotation & that the agent had no authority to pledge their credit, but an advertised prospectus disclosed that defts. were already engaged in functions usually discharged by promoters, & that the agent had already assumed the duties of his office:—Held: defts. could not escape liability on the ground that the agent contracted for a non-existent principal, known to pltf. to be non-existent, & pltf. was justified in assuming that defts. were promoting the co. & that their agent was authorised to incur on their behalf such expenses as an agent would usually incur, & defts. were liable to pltf. for the costs of the advertisement.—DE DRUKKERS MAATSCHAPPIJ v. OOSTHUIZEN (1915), 6 C. P. D. 401.—S. AF.

*vants.]—*Pltf., the manager of a co., paid out of his own money the amount due for wages by the co. to certain labourers, & having obtained assignments of their claims, recovered a judgment against the co. for the amount, together with a sum of money owed to him by the co., for services. After an execution against the co. had been returned unsatisfied, he brought this action on behalf of himself & the labourers against two of the directors under R. S. O. 1897 (c. 197), s. 8, to make them personally liable for the amount due on the execution:—Held: the action brought against the co. was not such a one as is contemplated under the sect., & there being no dispute as to the facts, this action was dismissed on a motion under Con. Rule 616.—HERMAN v. WILSON (1900), 32 O. R. 60.—CAN.

Where personal liability excluded.]—The directors of a provisionally registered co. agreed with pltf. to use their endeavours to obtain a charter of incorporation for the co., the object of which was to raise a sum of money to assist pltf. in laying down a submarine telegraph, & in consideration of pltf.'s performing such work, the directors agreed, among other things, that pltf. should be paid out of the funds to be raised by the co. a certain amount in paid-up shares of the co. as soon as the general allotment of shares should be made. By a subsequent clause in the agreement it was provided that none of the directors should be held personally responsible for payment of the said amount in paid-up shares or otherwise under the agreement, it being expressly understood & agreed that pltf.'s right to recover should be dependent entirely & exclusively on there being sufficient capital raised by the co. to meet such payment, & the same should not be demanded or enforced until a sufficient sum should be applicable for such purpose in the hands of the co.:—Held: although from the form of the pleadings it must be taken that there was a sufficient sum in the hands of the co. to satisfy pltf.'s claim, no action would lie against the directors for non-payment of the stipulated amount in paid-up shares.—WEST v. o. ———— In this action pltf. sought payment from debts, as directors of a co. of the amount of a judgment recovered by him against the co. for wages due to him as a workman employed by the co. The action was begun within a year from the time debts ceased to be directors; but, after the expiration of the year it was discontinued against debt. K., who was resident in a foreign country:—Held: as the liability of debts, as directors under Ontario Cos. Act 2, Geo. 5, c. 31, s. 96, was several as well as joint, pltf. was entitled to sue them separately & was not bound to join all of them as debts, he was entitled also, under Rule 67, to sue one or more or all of them in the same action.—REUCKWALD v. MURPHY (1914), 7 O. W. N. 191; 32 O. L. R. 133.—CAN.

p. ———— Pltf. kept a store near the mine of a co. Pursuant to an arrangement made between him & the co., the men employed by the co. who bought goods from pltf. had the price of the goods charged against their wages. The purchasers initialled the vouchers, which were sent to the co.; when the pay-cheques were drawn, a separate cheque was made out for each workman's store-bill, payable to the workman; the men then indorsed these cheques, & they were retained by the co. An adjustment was made monthly between pltf. & the co., he was given credit for the amount of these cheques so held & for any goods he had sold to the co.; he was charged with the rent of his store, which was owned by the co., & for anything else which he owed to the co.; & was then given a cheque for his net balance. Pltf. recovered judgment against the co. for the amount of a claim made up of balances due for wages, represented by the original cheques in favour of the men, which had never been handed over to pltf. Execution having been issued & returned unsatisfied, this action was brought against the directors of the co. to enforce a claim under Cos. Act, R. S. O., 1914 (c. 178), s. 98:—Held:

the money became payable to pltf. by virtue of his direct contract with the co. when the adjustment took place & he accepted the cheque, there was then a novation, & under this new contract pltf. became a creditor of the co. in respect of the cheques given to him, & the demands ceased to be demands for wages within the meaning of the statute.—COVENEY v. q. ———— Who may be sued—De facto directors.]—Pltf. recovered judgment against a co. for wages due under a hiring by the co. Execution was issued & returned nulla bona. Pltf. then brought action under Manitoba Joint-Stock Act, 1902 (c. 30), s. 33, against debts, as directors of the co. Debts pleaded that the sect. was a penal provision to be strictly construed & not enforceable against other than de jure directors whereas they were not lawfully directors, neither of them having the necessary qualification of owning stock absolutely in his own right:—Held: both having been chosen in a manner which, if they had been qualified, would have made them directors de jure & both having acted as de jure directors, they could not take advantage of their own wrong when dealing with third parties acting bona fide & they must be held liable.

Held also s. 33 is not a penal provision (cf. Huntington v. Attrill, [1893] A. C. 150).—MACDONALD v. DRAKE (1906), 4 W. L. R. 434.—CAN.

The co. & pltf. had entered into an agreement by which the co. were to furnish a boarding-house & heat free for pltf., who was to operate it for the co.'s employees, furnishing them free lodging & meals at 25 cents a head. The sums due for meals were to be deducted from the men's wages by the co., & carried to pltf.'s credit in the co.'s books. The men were notified of the arrangement & accepted the situation. On May 15, 1911, the co. were indebted to pltf. for $2,396.55, in respect of the above arrangement, & $132.55, in respect of other matters, a total of $2,529.10. They paid $500 in cash & gave their note for $2,029.10, the balance. The note was unpaid on maturity & pltf. recovered judgment against the co. for the amount & thereupon sued debt., claiming to be an equitable assignee of the workmen's claims for wages:—Held: the amount due was never due as "wages," being never due to the workmen, but directly to pltf. under his contract with the co., & there could be no equitable assignment to pltf., & even if the money due could, at any time, be regarded as "wages," it changed its character when pltf. accepted, from the co., a payment on account & a note for the balance.—OLSON v. Directors permitted a transfer of 19,528 shares from a substantial holder to P., a director & shareholder of the co. They had previously refused to allot these shares to him, & at the time of the transfer they had notice of a charge, an injunction, & two charging orders against other shares held by him. They alleged that they believed that he was again in possession of considerable funds, & that they examined into the matter & approved him as transferee within the terms of their articles, which provided that every transferee must be approved by the directors. P. subsequently became insolvent, & all his shares were forfeited:—Held: directors are not in the same position as ordinary trustees; the directors had in fact approved P. as transferee; & even if they had made a mistake, they could not be made personally liable for the consequences.—Re FAURE ELECTRIC ACCUMULATOR Co. (1888), 40 Ch. In Apr. 1890, the present suit was filed against deft., who had been one of the directors of the co., & it was alleged that after the formation of the co. deft. & his co-directors had carried on speculative dealings in shares of other cos. & had used the funds of the co. for this purpose, which was not warranted by the memorandum of assocn. Pltfs. alleged that their dealings had resulted in a heavy loss to the co., which they now sought to recover from the deft. There had been originally five directors of the co., but at the date of suit two of them were dead, & two had become insolvent:—Held: (1) the memorandum of assocn. did not justify the directors of the co. in dealing in shares of other cos., & the transactions complained of by pltfs. were ultra vires; (2) the directors were liable to replace the money of the co. which they had misapplied by applying it to a purpose which was ultra vires.—KATHIAWAR

In the course of liquidation it appeared that cheques signed by J. & M. had been drawn against the banking account of the co. for purposes in which I. alone was interested; but that on the whole account, lodgments had been made by I. to the credit of the co. to an amount larger than the sums drawn out upon the cheques so signed by J. & M. On a summons by the liquidator under Cos. Act, 1862 (c. 89), s. 165, to determine whether these sums had been expended ultra vires & in breach of trust it was found that no money loss had been sustained by the co.:—Held: the ct. had jurisdiction to make an order that the directors should pay the costs although the claim of the liquidator for repayment of the money had failed.—Re IRELAND (DAVID) & Co., [1905] 1 I. R. 133.—IR.

2. Misapplication of fund — Remitted for specified purpose.]—A co. which consisted of two shareholders only, who were also its sole directors, received from their foreign correspondents a sum of £1,000 for the purpose, expressed in a covering letter, of meeting three named bills drawn by them upon the co., which were shortly to become due. The co. did not meet the bills on maturity, but the £1,000 was applied to the extent of £600 in repaying to one of the directors outlays averred to have been incurred by him on behalf of the co. In an action by the foreign correspondent against the two directors personally, to which the co. were not called as defenders:—Held: the directors' actings constituted not merely a breach of contract but a breach of trust for which they were personally liable, & a decree was pronounced against them jointly & severally for payment of the £600 claimed.—BRENES & Co. v. DOWNIE, [1914] S. C. 97.—SCOT.

In proceedings against the directors under 1862 Act, s. 165, for the invalid & improper allotment of shares:—Held: the allotment could not be made a subject of complaint under that sect., as no loss was occasioned to the co. by an act, the only direct result of which was that money was paid on the shares to the credit of the co.'s banking account.—Re LIVERPOOL HOUSEHOLD STORES ASSOCN., LTD. (1890), 59 L. The directors accordingly paid P. the money & he spent £400 as arranged, & advanced the remaining £2,600 to the co. on debentures, which he divided between himself & certain of the directors. The co. was afterwards wound up:—Held: (1) the directors were jointly & severally liable to repay the £2,600 to the co.; (2) the advance of the money to the co. on debentures was not a repayment to the co.; (3) made no difference whether the arrangement to invest the money in debentures under which it was originally paid to P., was binding or not.

In the purchase of the site & the erection of the building the directors expended more than double the amount of the capital, having borrowed the money of the shareholders & of their bankers, one of whom was a director of the co. An order was made for winding-up the co. & a general call was made upon all the shareholders:—Held: (1) upon the construction of the deed, the directors had power to borrow only to the extent of the unpaid capital; (2) the liability of the shareholders was limited to the amount of their respective shares unpaid, & the directors were primarily answerable for the excess of expenditure; (3) a creditor, having notice of the limited liability under the deed, was bound by such notice; (4) the co. was not a trading partnership, & the directors could not, in excess of their authority under the deed, pledge the credit of the shareholders even to a creditor who had no notice of the deed.—Re WORCESTER CORN EXCHANGE CO. (1853), 3 De G. The opinion of counsel having been taken, he advised that an action might be brought against such directors to enforce the return of the money & shares, or a portion of the same, with a probability of success; but upon a general meeting of the co. being held it was decided by a large majority that no proceedings should be commenced. 3359. Proceedings to restrain director from acting—Dispute as to validity of appointment—Whether dispute between company & member—Construction of articles.]—Art. 60 of the arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that "any instrument appointing a proxy shall as nearly as circumstances will admit be in the following form," & then followed a form applicable to voting at one particular meeting. Art. 101 provided that if any difference should arise between the co. & any member in regard to rights under the arts. it should be referred to arbitration. At an extraordinary meeting of the co. a resolution that the directors, of whom there were three, should be not more than five & that two named persons should be appointed directors, received a majority of votes on a poll but the chairman declared it commence business where in the judgment of the directors, a sufficient number of shares had been subscribed for to justify them in so doing.

After the publication of the first balance-sheet which showed a loss on the year's working, an action was raised by a shareholder, whose share had been allotted to him after the incorporation of the co., to have A. & other directors of the co. at the date of allotment ordained to accept a transfer of these shares & to repay to him the amount of his subscription. He averred that at the date of the allotment no sufficient capital had been subscribed to justify defenders proceeding to allotment or commencing business, that they had done so recklessly & negligently & without exercising any judgment in the matter as they were bound to do & that in so acting they had acted ultra vires & in breach of their duty to the pursuer:—Held: pursuer as an individual share-lost on the ground that the proxies for certain votes which were recorded in favour of the resolution & without which it would not have received a majority were for voting at any meeting & not at the particular meeting only. The three previous directors then held a directors' meeting & two of them appointed a fourth director, & thereupon the co. & the third of the previous directors & the two persons named as directors in the resolution brought an action against the other directors for a declaration that the appointment contained in the resolution was valid. Defts. moved for a stay under Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), & pltf. asked for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the exclusion of the directors named in the resolution from acting as such:—Held: art. 101 referred to differences between the co. & a member in his capacity as such & that as the real difference in the case was between rival sets of directors the stay must be refused, & art. 60 was merely directory & therefore the proxies were valid & pltf. should have an injunction until trial.—ISAACS v. CHAPMAN (1916), 32 T. L. R. 237, C. A.

3362. ——— Representative action—Suit to disturb settlement & release executed by majority.]—In Feb. 1845, a scheme for making a railway was projected, & pltf. S. took shares, on which he paid a deposit. In 1846, it was ascertained that the undertaking could not be proceeded with, & a public meeting of the shareholders was held, at which the majority present resolved that the affairs of the co. should be wound up, & the balance in hand returned to the shareholders, a great many of whom shortly afterwards received the dividend & signed a release, but pltf., though he refused to receive the dividend, made no objection to any of the proceedings. In 1849 pltf. filed a bill against the managing committee, & M., one of the shareholders who had received the dividend, for an account, & also that two sums of the co.'s funds, which the committee had expended in buying up shares might be declared fraudulent, & be decreed to be repaid:—Held: pltf., who, after three years' acquiescence, sought a general account, without any evidence of fraud or mistake, after an account regularly stated by the directors of the co., & approved at a public general meeting convened on due notice, followed by payment to the majority of the shareholders, who approved the account, was not entitled to relief. Semle: the frame of the suit in making M. a deft. as one of a class, in order that he might represent the whole class, & thus get rid of a difficulty, was imperfect. Where a bill seeks to disturb a settlement & release executed by a great majority of the members of an assocn. on the footing of an account stated as to the whole affairs of the assocn., submitted to all its members, the principle of allowing an individual to represent a class cannot well be applied.—*STUPART v. In the absence of any special circumstances, such as if it is not possible to get the co. to sue, or if the majority of the shareholders in the co. are against taking proceedings, the co., in liquidation, is the only proper pltf. to sue the directors to recover money of the co. expended in transactions which were ultra vires. 3368. Issue & service of third party notice—Claim for contribution by co-director.]—An application in the Ch. Div. for leave to issue & serve a third party notice under Ord. 16, r. 48, need not be served on pltf. in the first instance, but may be made ex parte.

It is always competent to the ct. or judge to require pltf. or any other person to be served with the application.

In this case pltf. claim against debts., who are two directors of a co., that they should make good certain sums which they say have been misappropriated by them, moneys of the co., inasmuch as they have been applied to an item of expenditure which it is said was illegal, & ought never to have been made. With reference to that debts. say that they are not the only directors, & there is another director. They say there is another director who is equally responsible to them for these payments, & if pltf. succeed in this action against the present debts. they are entitled to contribution from this third person. Without prejudice to what I may have to decide if an application be made by this third person to discharge the order on notice or anything of that kind, I am, as at present advised, of opinion, having regard to what I have heard from counsel for the appcts., that there is or will be a prima facie case for contribution against this third party. c. Evidence—To explain ambiguity in extraordinary resolution.]—Where at an extraordinary meeting of shareholders in a mining co. a resolution to wind up the co. voluntarily was passed, & at the same meeting a subsequent resolution was passed authorising the directors to dispose of certain surplus moneys of the co. in a special but ambiguous manner.

In an action by the co. against the directors for recovery of these moneys:—Held: oral evidence was admissible to show in what circumstances the latter resolution was passed, in order to explain the latent ambiguity, although the articles of assocn. provided that the minutes of the meeting should be conclusive evidence of the proceedings at such meeting.—WESTRALIA PROPRIETARY GOLD MINING CO. v. d. Claim for contribution by co-director—Pleading.]—A subscriber for certain shares in a co., for which he had made certain payments, brought action & obtained judgment against the company & certain of the directors for a refund of the moneys he had paid.

defts. made an admission that they were directors:—Held: (1) this was prima facie evidence, that they were so at the time pltf. was employed by the co.; (2) a book, containing the names of members present at the meetings, which showed that defts. were present at some of the meetings, at one of which a particular thing was done, was also prima facie evidence that they were present at that, particular meeting.—*BEETHAM v. 3375. By rectification of register—Application on ground of misrepresentation in prospectus—Exercise of discretion by court.]—A mis-statement of the names of the directors of a co. in the prospectus is an important misrepresentation.

A shareholder complaining of misrepresentation in the prospectus of a co. must do so within a reasonable time after becoming aware of the misrepresentation.

Where a person who is himself a director of a co. is placed on the list of contributories to it, & afterwards seeks to have his name removed from the list, & so to get rid of his liabilities to the co. of which he is such director, the ct. will narrowly watch his conduct in the matter, & will hold him strictly to his engagement.

In pursuance of the above principles, the ct. refused the application of a director to have his name taken off the list of contributories to a co. although he alleged that he had taken shares in, & become a director of, it on the faith of a statement in the prospectus which was not true.—Re LAND CREDIT CO. OF IRELAND, Ex p. MUNSTER (1866), 14 L. T. 723; 14 W. R. 957.

3376. Under Statute of Limitations—Claim for receiving bribe.]—An action was brought by a co. in 1879 against a former director to recover £250 on the ground that deft. had received it from a debtor to the co. as a bribe, to induce him to use his influence to obtain favourable terms of compromise for the debtor. The allegations that this bribe had been given had in 1872 been brought before the directors at a board meeting, they had investigated it, & as it seemed came to the conclusion that the charge was unfounded, as no proceedings were taken, & it was not alleged that the other directors had been acting otherwise than bona fide in the matter:—Held: the claim of the co. was barred by the Stat. Limitations.—METROPOLITAN BANK v. HEIRON (1880), 5 Ex. D. 319; 43 L. T. 676; 29 W. R. 370, C. A.

3377. — Breach of trust—Payment of dividends ultra vires.]—The directors of a co. which was established in 1868 made half-yearly payments of interest or dividends at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum on the amounts paid up on the shares, although the co. never earned any profit, nor was any profit & loss account ever made out. The half-yearly payments were begun in June, 1869, & were continued until July, 1878, when they were discontinued on the representation of the Board of Trade that they were being made out of capital. The co. was ordered to be wound up in March, 1886. In June, 1889, the liquidator brought an action against the respective representatives of two of the directors who had made the payments, & who had since died, to recover the amounts improperly paid by them. The claim against the representatives of one director was compromised with the sanction of the ct., & the action proceeded against the other:—Held: (1) whether the payments were authorised by the arts. or not, they were ultra vires, & such payments being regarded as a breach of trust, Stat. Limitations did not apply, nor the analogy to the statute; (2) the estate of the deceased director was liable for the payments made during the whole time that he acted as director, whether he was present at the meetings or not, as he must be taken to have confirmed what his co-directors did in his absence; (3) interest at 4 per cent. per annum ought to run from the date of the mis-

on the ground of misstatements in the prospectus. The directors paid the amount of the judgment & brought action against their co-directors for contribution. In their pleadings they confined themselves to a claim for contribution on account of the judgment the subscriber for shares had obtained against them, & which they had paid:—Held: under Companies Act, sub-s. 93, pltf. in order to succeed, must make out the case that the subscriber for shares would have had to make out if he had sued the directors who were defts. in this action, & upon the evidence, pltf. had not made out such a case, & pltf., instead of confining themselves in their pleadings to a claim for contribution on account of the judgment, which the subscriber for shares had obtained against them, should have alleged defts. responsibility for the issue of the prospectus, that the subscriber took shares on the faith of it, & suffered loss by reason of the untrue statements therein.—JOHNSON v. JOHNSON (1913), 18 B. C. R. 563.—CAN.

Pltf., the assignee of one of the three, sued for his shares of the profits:—Held: no evidence having been given that the powers of the directors had been continued (Winding-up Act, s. 7 (6)), there was no fiduciary relationship between them & the co., & nothing to prevent them from purchasing the assets of the co.

B. Notice of Meetings.

3386. Necessity for—Regular weekly meeting—Construction of constitution of company.]—By the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co., it was provided that the directors of the co. should, without notice or summons, meet together at their office once in every week, on & at such day & hour as they should from time to time agree upon, & at such other times as they should from time from the liquidator; & the agreement which the pltf. sought to enforce was not illegal, & he was entitled to recover.—HOLMESTED v. ANNABLE (1914), 28 W. L. R. 819; 18 D. L. R. 3; 6 W. W. R. 1497.—CAN.

PART III. SECT. 28, SUB-SECT. 7.—A.

3385 i. Effect of informality—Casual meeting of directors.]—In an action upon a mtge. against a co., the validity of the mtge. depended upon the regularity of two meetings & whether they were really board meetings. The proceedings took place in a solr.'s room without the co.'s secretary being present, & they had been repudiated by those whom the resolutions were intended to affect from first to last:—Held: no meeting of the directors took place; before directors can meet as such to transact the business of their co. they must meet in person, & there must be an agreement express or implied to meet in that capacity, & not otherwise; certain of the directors could not form a quorum by coming upon another in a room or in the street, & despite the protest of that other give the proceedings the complexion of a board meeting; on the facts, what was done at these meetings was not the act of the directors & did not bind the co.—HARRIS v. ENGLISH CANADIAN CO. (1906), 3 W. L. R. 5.—CAN.

to time be convened in manner thereafter mentioned, or adjourned to, & that three directors should be a board. By another clause, any three directors were empowered at any time to call a special board or meeting, by giving, under their hands in writing, three days' notice to the other directors of the co., which notices were to be countersigned by the secretary, & to be sent by him two days prior to the time appointed for such meeting:—Held: in order to constitute a good weekly meeting without notice or summons, the day & hour of meeting must have been previously agreed upon by the directors, & a meeting of three directors, without previous agreement on their part to meet on any fixed day or hour, was not a meeting duly convened within the meaning of the deed of settlement.—MOORE v. HAMMOND (1827), 6 B. & C. 456; 9 Dow. & Ry. K. B. 482; 5 L. J. O. S. K. B. 267; 108 E. R. 519.

3387. Sufficiency — Contents — Business — Provisions of deed for extraordinary meetings.]—The deed of settlement of a joint-stock co. provided that the directors should meet weekly, on a day to be named by them, & on such other days as they should think fit; but that the secretary or any director, might call an extraordinary board, by sending a notice at least one clear day before the time of meeting, & specifying the day & hour fixed for the meeting, & the purpose thereof; & that the business transacted by the directors being at least five in number, should bind the co. The directors appointed Wednesday as their ordinary day of meeting; & a board having been held on Wednesday Mar. 7, was adjourned. A letter was afterwards sent to the directors by the secretary, stating that he was directed to inform them that a special board was summoned for Tuesday the 11th, on special business. At this meeting the call in question was made:—Held: the call was duly made, for this was not an extraordinary board, & therefore did not require notice of its special purposes.—WILLS v. 3389. ——— Time—Meeting same day.]—Application was invited by a co. for 106,000 preference shares. At a meeting of all the directors, five in number, it was resolved not to allot till 14,000 shares were applied for. At a meeting of two directors, a quorum held shortly afterwards, it was resolved that the previous resolution was cancelled, & that the shares then applied for, about 3,000, should be allotted. The meeting was held at two o'clock, on a few hours' notice to two of the directors who did not attend, of whom one did not receive his notice till the next day, & the other gave notice he could not attend till three; the fifth director was abroad & no notice was sent to him:—Held: the allotments made under the later resolution were void against the allottees.—*Re HOMER DISTRICT CONSOLIDATED GOLD MINES, Ex p. 3390. Service of notice—Necessity for—Directors abroad.—By the arts. of assocn. of pltf. co. it was provided that the directors should not be less than three, & that the office of a director should be vacated if he absented himself from the meetings of the directors for three calendar months without special leave, & by a resolution of the board it was determined that two directors should constitute a quorum. There being four directors, a meeting of two of the directors was held, the other two being absent in America:—Held: it was not necessary to give notice of the meeting to the absent directors.—HALIFAX SUGAR REFINING CO., LTD. v. FRANKLYN (1890), 59 L. J. Ch. 591; 62 L. T. 563; 2 Meg. 129.

3391. ——— Validity of resolutions at subsequent meeting.—The arts. of assocn. of a co., which was incorporated on Oct. 20, 1888, provided that there should be not more than ten nor less than three directors; that the first directors should be appointed by the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn.; that the directors should hold meetings for the despatch of business at such times & places, & might adjourn & otherwise regulate such meetings as they thought fit, & might determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business; & that a resolution in writing, signed by all the directors, should be as valid as if passed at a meeting duly called & constituted. They also provided that the shares should be allotted by the directors to such persons at such times & on such terms as they should think fit. On Oct. 22, 1888, the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn. duly appointed five directors, one of whom was not to take his seat at the board until after allotment. On Oct. 24, a meeting was held at which only two directors were present. These two passed a resolution that two directors should be a quorum, & proceeded to allot a number of shares. Among others they allotted to S. 100 £5 shares for which he had applied. On Oct. 25, S. withdrew his application. On the same day a third director signed a resolution appointing two directors a quorum; & on Oct. 26, a fourth director handed in his written assent to the same resolution. At the meeting on Oct. 26, the previous allotments were confirmed. S. applied to have his name struck off the register:—Held: (1) (NORTH, J.) there was no properly appointed quorum of directors present at the meeting of Oct. 24, when the allotments were made; the allotment to S. was therefore invalid, & the confirmation on Oct. 26, could only take effect as a fresh allotment on that date, which, being after withdrawal, was ineffectual. S.'s name was therefore removed from the register; (2) (by C. A.) there was no evidence that I. a director who was not present at the meeting of Oct. 24, but who signed the document on Oct. 26, received proper notice of the meeting; he had not waived his right to the notice which he ought to have received, & the meeting was a bad one.—Re PORTUGUESE CONSOLIDATED COPPER MINES, LTD. (1889), 42 Ch. (a) In General.

3392. Order of business—Whether order appearing on agenda-paper.—The agenda-paper of a directors' board meeting contained, as the first business, the consideration of a transfer of shares sent to the secretary for registration; & then, as the next business, the consideration of whether a call should be made to meet the co.'s liabilities:—Held: the directors were entitled to take their business at the meeting in any order they thought proper, & to pass a resolution for a call as their first business.—Re CAWLEY & CO. (1889), 42 Ch. Deft. was appointed managing director, & went from London to British Columbia. Another director followed him shortly afterwards. The four directors left in England held a meeting in London, without notifying deft. or the other absent director, & assumed to dismiss deft. from his position as managing director:—Held: the board was properly constituted, & notice to the absent director was unnecessary, but the board had no power to dismiss deft.—*WINDSOR (C. The directors, being desirous that this matter should be definitely settled, request that B. will reply to the offer now made to him by the next board day, Sept. 4. Unless the terms of arrangement now proposed are accepted by that date, the directors are to be no longer bound by them. Signed, — chairman." B. replied within the time mentioned: "I accept your offer. It may be arranged as speedily as you can wish, & I accept the offer as one to be at once carried out, & on receiving the guaranty as to the shares, in which, I presume, your chairman concurs, & advice that the sum fixed is paid into my account, my resignation shall be at once forwarded." At a meeting of the directors, the board, by a minute, accepted B.'s resignation, & requested the secretary to get the guaranty prepared by the solr., & to take other steps to carry out the negotiation:—Held: the resolutions & letters constituted a complete agreement, & bound the directors, individually, who were present when the offer was made; & B. having resigned & been compelled to pay calls on his shares, might maintain an action against the directors for not indemnifying him, although no guaranty was tendered for execution.—*BARKER v. 3397. — Proof of—Where no entry on minutes —Presumption that resolution duly passed.]—The arts. of assocn. of a joint-stock co. provided that if a shareholder should fail in paying any call, the co. might give him notice that in default of payment within a specified time, his shares would be forfeited; that if the requisitions of any such notice were not complied with, the shares might be forfeited by a resolution of the directors to that effect; that when any share had been so forfeited, notice of such forfeiture should be given to such shareholder, & an entry should be forthwith made in the register of shareholders, stating the date of such forfeiture; & that any share so forfeited should become the property of the co. K., a shareholder in the co., made default in payment of his calls, & notice was sent to him in due form that, unless he paid the calls by Sept. 2, they would be forfeited. The time having elapsed without payment, the secretary made entries in the books on Sept. 3, that the shares were forfeited, & had been transferred to the co. There was no entry in the minutes of any resolution having been passed by the directors, nor any evidence of any notice of the forfeiture having been sent to K.:—Held: as the entry of forfeiture on the books could not have been properly made without a resolution of the directors, the ct. was bound to assume that such a resolution had been passed.—Re NORTH HALLENBEAGLE MINING CO., KNIGHT'S CASE (1867), 2 Ch. (2) A resolution passed in accordance with the arts. of assocn. of the co. solely with a view of altering the quorum in order to enable a resolution to be passed in favour of an interested director is of no effect.

Four directors were desirous of issuing debentures to two of their number in consideration of sums lent to the co. The quorum of directors was three. In order to obtain a disinterested quorum, one debenture was issued on the vote of three directors, & then the other debenture was issued on the vote of three directors, the director to whom the debenture was issued not voting in each case:—Held: (3) the issue of the debentures was one transaction & splitting the resolutions did not make them valid; (4) a resolution to reduce the quorum for the purpose of issuing a debenture to a director was invalid.—Re NORTH EASTERN INSURANCE CO., [1919] 1 Ch. 198; 88 L. ii. How Calculated.

A declaration of forfeiture for non-payment of a call of shares in a co. registered in Victoria under 27 Vict. No. 228, was made on June 18, 1869, by a resolution of the board of directors, consisting of a quorum of three, H., B., & A., who had been elected with two others at a quarterly general meeting of the co. held on Apr. 14, 1869; which meeting had been convened by advertisement, published on Apr. 8, 10, & 13, for the election of a full board of directors. It appeared that H. & A. had been previously elected directors on Jan. 14, 1867, had not retired from office as provided by the rules of the co., but had continued to act as directors up to Apr. 14, 1869:—Held: the meeting of Apr. 14, 1869, having been held without due notice thereof, according to the rules of the co. passed under the provisions of 27 Vict. No. 228, & of the business to be transacted thereat, the election of a full board of directors thereby was invalid, & consequently the subsequent declaration of forfeiture of June 18, 1869, was also invalid. Even if H. & A. had before that election legally held office, they could not thereafter act under their former title, for the election of a full board, though invalid, necessarily involved the retirement of those, if any, who up to that time had legally held the office of director.—*GARDEN GULLY UNITED QUARTZ MINING CO. v. 3407. Directors competent to transact business & vote—Interested directors prohibited from voting.]

—The arts. of a co. provided that any director might enter into a contract or be interested in any business with the co.; that no director should vote on any matter relating to the contract or business with the co. in which he was interested; & that two directors should be a quorum for the transaction of business:—Held: a quorum of directors meant a quorum competent to transact & vote on the business before the board; & therefore, a resolution passed at a meeting of three directors, two of whom were interested in the subject-matter of the resolution, was invalid.

34071. Directors competent to transact business & vote—Interested directors prohibited from voting.]—By a deed executed in 1895 property of a co. was conveyed to trustees for the holders of second debentures to be issued. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that no director should vote in respect of any matter in which he was individually interested. They fixed the quorum of directors at two. At a meeting of directors held on May 12, 1903, at which three directors, two of them being D. & K., were present, it was resolved that certain second debentures should be issued in trust for D. & K. as security for advances made by them to the co., which debentures were subsequently issued:—

Held: as D. & K. were interested parties, there was no quorum competent to vote on the resolution, & the resolution was invalid.—COX v. DUBLIN CITY DISTILLERY (No. 2), [1915] 1 I. R. 345.—IR.

iii. Where Total Number of Directors less than Prescribed Minimum.

3409. Whether minimum imperative or directory.—Where arts. of assocn. provide that the business of a co. is to be carried on by not less than a minimum or more than a maximum number of directors, the words are imperative, not merely directory. Consequently, a forfeiture of shares for non-payment of a call made when there are less than the specified number of directors is invalid.—*Re ALMA SPINNING CO., BOTTOMLEY'S CASE (1880), 16 Ch. 3410. ———.]—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that the number of directors should not be less than four; that two named persons should be the first directors; that these two named directors should have power to appoint further directors; & that "continuing" directors should be empowered to act, notwithstanding any vacancy in their body, provided that they constituted a certain fixed quorum:—Held: all these provisions must be read together; but the provision that the directors should not be less than four was imperative. The two named first directors were accordingly not capable of acting by themselves except to appoint the necessary two additional directors; & a third whom they had appointed, were not "continuing" directors within the arts., so as to be capable, in the absence of the appointment of a fourth director, of acting on behalf of the co.—*Re SLY, SPINK & Co., [1911] 2 Ch. 430; 105 L. 3412. ———.]—R. applied for & was allotted shares in a co., the prospectus of which stated that there were three directors, of whom F. was one. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that the number of directors should not be less than three nor more than seven; & three names including that of F. were given as the first directors. It was also provided that two directors should form a quorum. The co. having been subsequently ordered to be wound up, R.'s name was placed on the list of contributories. It came to R.'s knowledge that F. never authorised his name to be used as a director of the co., nor ever acted in that capacity. Accordingly R. objected that there had been no duly constituted board of directors; that two directors could not consider themselves a quorum; & that no acts by them were valid. He therefore claimed that the allotment to him of shares was void; & that he was entitled to have his name removed from the list of contributories, & the money paid by him refunded:—Held: the want of a properly constituted board of directors when the shares were allotted to R. rendered the allotment invalid; & the defect was not cured by the provision of the co.'s arts. of assocn. that two directors might form a quorum; therefore, R.'s name should be struck off the list of contributories.—*Re BRITISH EMPIRE MATCH CO., LTD., Ex p. 3413. ——— Transferee from stranger without knowledge of irregularity.—A co.'s arts. of assocn. provided that its affairs should be conducted by a council of administration; that the number of members of the council should not be less than three; that the continuing council might act notwithstanding any vacancy; & that the council might determine the quorum necessary for the transaction of business. The members of the council became reduced to two, & those two members acting in the name of the co. gave securities for debts of the co. to persons who had no knowledge of the irregularity. It was not proved that any resolution fixing a quorum had been passed by the council:—Held: the securities so given were binding on the co.

One of the securities was transferred by the creditor to whom it was given to one of the two members of the council, who had himself paid off the secured debt:—Held: the security was valid in the hands of the transferee.—*Re BANK OF SYRIA, OWEN & ASHWORTH'S CLAIM, WHITWORTH'S CLAIM, [1901] 1 Ch. 115; 70 L. 3414. ——— Effect as regards strangers.—The deed of a joint-stock banking co. contained provisions that the directors should be not fewer than five nor more than seven; that three or more should constitute a board, & be competent to transact all ordinary business; & that the directors should have power to compromise debts, etc. Agents might be appointed by the directors to draw & accept bills, etc., without reference to the directors. The number of directors became less than five; four directors being the whole number then existing, executed a deed compromising a large debt, due to the bank, taking from the debtor, a mining concern, & covenanting with him on behalf of the co. to indemnify him against certain bills of exchange. Pltf. co. was managed by three directors, & one of them disposed of his stock:—Held: he thereupon ceased to be a director, & the directorate then became incomplete & incompetent to manage the affairs of the co. Semble: even assuming that two were a quorum of the directors & could manage the business, yet, where neither the statute nor the bye-laws gave the president, also, a casting vote, resolutions passed by such vote, at a meeting attended only by the

At a meeting at which two directors only were present, a resolution was passed authorising a call. This resolution was subsequently confirmed at a meeting at which the necessary quorum was present. Less than 21 days' notice, required by the co.'s arts. of assocn., was given of the call. At another meeting of the directors a resolution was passed that, if any shareholder did not pay his call by a certain day, his shares should be forfeited. A shareholder not having so paid his call, his shares were forfeited:—Held: (1) the call was validly made; (2) the forfeiture was valid, & the shareholder could only be required to pay the amount of the call.—Re PHOSPHATE OF LIME CO., LTD., AUSTIN'S CASE (1871), 24 L. On Oct. 22, 1888, the subscribers appointed four directors. On Oct. 24, a meeting of directors was held, at which two only attended, & they allotted shares to A. & B., who had sent in applications. The ct. held that this meeting was irregular, & the allotments were invalid. The evidence failed to prove that either of them revoked his application or repudiated his shares on the ground of the allotment being invalid. On Mar. 7, a resolution was passed at a duly constituted meeting of directors, formally confirming the allotment of shares made on Oct. 24. Afterwards A. & B. moved for a rectification of the register by striking out their names:—Held: though the original allotment of shares was invalid, it had been ratified by the co., & was binding on the allottees.—*Re PORTUGUESE CONSOLIDATED COPPER MINES, LTD., Ex p. The contract for the sale & the issue of the debentures was carried out at a meeting of the five who there & then appointed themselves directors. This meeting was described in the minutes as a board meeting. At a subsequent meeting the seal of the co. was affixed to the debentures. The arts. of the co. provided that no director should vote in respect of any contract or arrangement in which he might be interested. In the winding up of the co. the liquidator claimed a declaration that the issue of the debentures was invalid & should be set aside:—Held: there being no suggestion of fraud, the co. was bound in a matter intra vires by the unanimous agreement of its members. Although the meeting was styled a directors' meeting, all the five shareholders were present, & they might well have turned it into a general meeting, & transacted the same business. 3427. Effect of—Unsigned.]—Deft. was a member of the provisional committee of a projected railway scheme, & took part in a meeting on Sept. 9, at which A. & B. were appointed engineers, & R. M. secretary to the co. B. never acted as engineer, but there was no proof that his appointment had ever been revoked. The whole engineering work was done by A. & C. At a meeting of the board, but whether at the above-mentioned meeting, or at some later period, it was left uncertain, deft. said that he thought that the solrs. should pay the engineers & be repaid their advances out of the money that should come in from the shareholders. The names of any individuals as the engineers were not mentioned during the meeting. Deft. attended several meetings subsequent to the first-mentioned meeting. On the trial of an action by A. & C. against deft. for payment for their work as engineers of the co., in order to show that C. had been appointed one of the joint engineers, plffs. tendered in evidence the following letter, written & sent by the secretary to C. "Minute of the Board, Sept. 13, 1845. Resolved that C. be requested to accept the office of joint engineer to this line. R. M., secretary. O. was requested to communicate this resolution to C. with as little delay as possible. R. M." Plffs. also proposed to read in evidence the following entry in the minute book in the handwriting of the secretary, whose duty it was to enter in the book minutes of the proceedings of the board. "Minute of the Board, Sept. 13, 1845. Resolved that C. be requested to accept the office of joint engineer to this line." There was no signature to the resolution, though the word "chairman" followed, & a space was left for the chairman's signature. There was no heading stating the names of any persons present at the meeting; nor was there any independent proof that any meeting of the board took place on Sept. 13. The Judge rejected both documents, & directed a verdict for deft. :—Held : (1) as against deft., the letter of the secretary was not evidence, as there was no proof that he had a general or special authority from deft. to write it; (2) the entry in the minute book was properly rejected, as it did not sufficiently appear to have been a resolution adopted by the board; & without the documents, there was no evidence at all to go to the jury.—RENNIE v. WYNN (1849), 4 Exch. 691; 19 L. J. Ex. 2; 14 L. T. O. S. 225; 154 E. R. 1392, Ex. Ch.

Assuming that a resolution of a board of directors, signed by the chairman, would be sufficient to revive against a co. a debt barred by Stat. 3434. — Ultra vires resolution—Effect of subsequent protest.]—The directors of a co. established for carrying on the business of a bill-broker & scrivener, & for “making advances & procuring loans on, & the investing in, securities,” were empowered by the arts. to carry on the business of the co., & to exercise all such powers as were not, by 1862 Act, or by the arts., required to be exercised in general meeting.

Two years after the incorporation of the co. the directors assisted in the construction of another co. out of an existing banking business, on the terms of an agreement whereby they were to apply for 10,000 £50 shares in the new co., but with an understanding that of these 10,000 shares they should not be bound to take more than two-sevenths of what might not be allotted to the public. In pursuance of this arrangement the directors took, amongst some of themselves, & in the names of their secretary & assistant manager, on behalf of the co., 3,000 shares in the new co., for which was drawn by three cheques & paid out of the co.’s funds the sum of £30,000. They also took, in the names of their secretary & assistant manager, 500 paid-up shares in the new co. as the consideration for an agreement not to sell any of the new co.’s shares under a £2 per share premium before July 1, 1866; or, if they saw no objection, for a further period of six months:—Held: (1) the directors had no power to take or accept the 3,000 shares, or the 500 shares, & the payment of the £30,000 was a breach of trust, which the directors were jointly & severally liable to make good to the co.

One of the directors, A., was present at a meeting held on June 19, 1865, at which it was resolved that application should be made for 10,000 shares in the new co.; & he was also present at another meeting where the minutes of this resolution were confirmed, but was absent from London when the first cheque in part payment of the £30,000 was drawn. Upon his return, on July 7, he wrote two letters, one to his co-directors, & another to a solr. director, protesting against the scheme. No protest was entered on the minutes, but at a subsequent board meeting his letter to the directors was read. He attended several subsequent meetings, & took no further step. He was not one of the allottees of the 3,000 shares, & he did not sign either of the cheques. Another director, B., did not take his seat until after the minutes of the first resolution had been confirmed, & the first cheque drawn. He signed the second, but not the third cheque. He was not one of the allottees of the 3,000 shares:—Held: (2) neither A. nor B. was in a position of less liability than any of the other directors.

(3) Another director, C., was not present at any of the meetings at which the matter was discussed, & the bill was dismissed against him without costs.

(4) A director of a co. who knows that his co-directors are misappropriating the moneys of the co., or are otherwise guilty of a breach of trust, is bound to take active & immediate steps to prevent the same, by notification to the shareholders or otherwise; or, if he cannot prevent the same without filing a bill in Chancery for the purpose, it then becomes his duty to file a bill. If he fails to do this he will be held to have concurred in the breach of trust, & be liable accordingly, notwithstanding that he may have “protested” against the proceedings of his co-directors.

(5) A director of a co. who signs cheques to the prejudice of the co. cannot be heard to say that he did so “as a mere matter of routine,” or “as a ministerial act.”—*JOINT STOCK DISCOUNT CO. v. 3436. Liability of director not attending in person—Present by proxy.]—By the deed of assocn. of a mining co., it was provided, that the affairs of the co. should be managed by a committee of seven shareholders called managing directors; & they were empowered, at their meetings, to vote by proxy. B. was appointed the resident director or manager, to superintend the mine & local concerns thereof, hire workmen, provide machinery, etc., but subject to the instructions he might from time to time receive from the managing directors, to whom he was to transmit monthly accounts of the ore raised, wages paid, etc., & a full statement of all debts & liabilities due from the co.; with a proviso that he should not expend or engage the credit of the co. for any sum exceeding £50 in any one month, without the express authority in writing of three of the managing directors:—Held: (1) this deed did not authorise B. to draw or accept bills of exchange in the name of the co., even for the necessary purposes of the mine, without the express authority of the managing directors; (2) a managing director who was represented at a meeting of directors by proxy, was not bound by a resolution of the directors present at such meeting, authorising the resident director to accept bills for the co.—*BROWN v. Limitations in proceedings against them for misapplication of the funds of the co. The directors of the L. co., which had no power to invest its capital in the shares of other cos., in Mar. 1885, accepted fully paid-up shares in the B. co. to the amount of £35,000 in discharge of a debt. This was referred to in the balance-sheet of the L. co. as "Assets by B. co.," & the entry was explained by the chairman at the general meeting in Apr. 1885, to mean that it represented the amount due from the B. co. for an estate purchased from the L. co. The same item was repeated in successive balance-sheets till 1889. The investment was made without any fraudulent intent. The L. co. was wound up in 1893:—Held: assuming that the directors had been guilty of a breach of trust in investing the money in shares of the B. co., they were protected by Stat. Limitations; & there had been no such fraudulent concealment on their part, notwithstanding the false statement by the chairman at the meeting to prevent time from running under the statute.

Qu.: whether the directors had not power to accept the shares of the B. co., if they took them as a compromise for the debt, & not with the intention of retaining them as a permanent investment.

(2) In July, 1889, the directors of the same co. passed a resolution to invest a further sum of £5,200 in more paid-up shares of the B. co. Two directors, B. & T., were not present at the meeting, but they were present at the next meeting, at which the minutes of the previous meeting were read & confirmed. B. was in the chair & signed the minutes. B. was also in the chair at the next general meeting of the co., & he then referred to the new investment, & speaking on behalf of the directors, said: "We carefully considered the matter, & deemed it advisable to exercise our right of subscription, & have no reason to regret our decision":—Held: although the presence of B. & T. at the meeting at which the minutes of the previous meeting were confirmed was not sufficient in itself to make either of them liable for the ultra vires investment, yet B. had by his action as chairman at that meeting, & by his statement at the general meeting, shown that he took an active part in the part in the investment & must be held responsible for it.—Re LANDS ALLOTMENT CO., [1894] 1 Ch. 616; 63 L. Other directors were subsequently elected in their place. A bill was then filed by the removed directors to set aside the proceedings of the meeting & the election of the new directors. On a motion for an injunction to restrain the new directors from acting:—Held: the expression "reasonable cause" in the co.'s deed did not refer to such a cause as in a ct. would be held reasonable, but only to such a cause as should be deemed reasonable by the shareholders assembled at a meeting duly convened, & therefore the ct. had no jurisdiction to interfere; nor, where no case of direct fraud was proved, to determine whether the decision of the meeting had or had not been unduly influenced by unfounded statements made by persons taking an active part in the proceedings.—*INDERWICK v. 3458. — Meeting of shareholders summoned on resolution of directors—Resolution passed at irregular meeting of directors.]—(1) A meeting of directors passed a resolution to summon an extraordinary general meeting at which were to be proposed special resolutions for removing B. from the office of director, & for increasing the capital. The arts. gave power to remove directors by special resolution. The only notice B. had of the board meeting was a notice given less than ten minutes before the time of holding it, & not stating the nature of the business. The notices for the general meeting were issued, & four days before the time for the meeting B., who up to that time had made no complaint of the short notice, brought his action to restrain the co. from holding the meeting, on the ground that the board which summoned it was not duly constituted, as B. had not received proper notice & could not attend. The general meeting was held & passed the resolutions. The judge after this granted an injunction restraining the co. from confirming the resolution to remove B. On appeal:—Held: assuming the board meeting to be so far irregular that pltf. might have objected & required another to be summoned, the general meeting, having been summoned, in all other respects regularly, by directors acting as a board, was competent to act. Qu.: whether, if pltf. had at once complained of the short notice & required a fresh board meeting to be called, the ct. would not have prevented the holding the general meeting till this had been done.

(2) Before the formation of the co. an agreement was entered into between B. & a person as trustee for the intended co., by which it was stipulated that B. should be a director & should not be removable till after 1888. Art. 6 provided that the directors should adopt & carry into effect the agreement with or without modification, & that subject to such modification, if any, the provisions of the agreement should be construed as part of the arts. The agreement was acted upon, but no contract adopting it was entered into between pltf. & the co.:—Held: treating the agreement as embodied in the arts., still there was no contract between B. & the co. that he should not be removed from being a director, the arts. being only a contract between the members inter se, & not between the co. & B. & therefore, the order for an injunction must be discharged. Qu.: whether a stipulation that a director shall not be removable will be enforced by the ct.—*BROWNE v. C. Vacation of Office.

(a) In General.

3465. Under provision in articles—On happening of particular event—Vacation automatic.]—(1) Where the arts. of a co. provide that a director shall vacate his office on the happening of some event or the doing of some act, a director automatically vacates his office on the happening of the event or the act being done; & the board have no power to waive the event, or to condone the offence or the act, which causes the vacation of the office.

Art. 21 of a co. provided that the co. should have first & paramount lien upon the shares of any shareholder for any money due from him to the co.; art. 70 that the office of any director should be vacated if he should be concerned in or participate in any contract with the co. not disclosed to & authorised by the board; & art. 75 that the remuneration of the directors should be £1,400 a year, to be divided among them in such manner as the majority of them should direct. W. was a director of the co., & on Dec. 24, 1900, he became secretly concerned in a contract with the co., & did not disclose his interest to the board; the transaction came to an end in June, 1901. At general meetings of the co. held on July 8, 1901 & 1902, W. in the usual way retired from office & was re-elected a director. In Feb. 1903, the board first discovered W.'s secret interest in the contract of Dec. 1900. He then ceased to act as a director & sold his shares in the co., but the board refused to register the transfer of the shares, & claimed that the co., under art. 21, had a lien on the shares for the repayment by W. of the money paid to him, under a resolution of the board, between Dec. 1900, & Feb. 1903, as his proportion of the directors' fees under art. 75:—Held: (2) under art. 70, W. automatically vacated his office of a director on Dec. 21, 1900; (3) W.'s disqualification for office only continued so long as the contract continued, & ceased when the transaction came to an end in June, 1901; consequently his re-elections to office in July 1901 & 1902, were valid; (4) W. was not entitled to a quantum meruit for his services as a director rendered to the co. between Dec. 24, 1900, & July 8, 1901, but the co. were entitled to recover from him the fees paid him during that period as being money paid him under the mistake of fact that he was a director, & the co. had a lien on his shares for the money.—Re BODEGA CO., LTD., [1904] 1 Ch. 276; 73 L. 3475. — Whether definite act of insolvency necessary—Evidence.—An art. of assocn. of deft. co. provided that "the office of a director shall be vacated if he become bkpt. or insolvent or compound with his creditors." C., a director of deft. co., assigned his salary as director to pltf. In an action by them to recover the salary for the quarter from Nov. 2, 1912, to Feb. 1, 1913, deft. co. contended that C. was "insolvent" within the above art. on & before Nov. 2, 1912, & that therefore his office of director had become vacated & no salary was due. At the trial it was proved that from 1908 to the end of 1912 a number of bkpcy. petitions had been presented against him, all of which, however, were dismissed by consent though C. did not pay petitioning creditors' debts. In his evidence C. admitted that throughout the summer of 1912 he did not pay his debts as they fell due, but he said that, if given time, he would be able to liquidate all his liabilities, & that he had never had any meeting of his creditors nor offered any settlement. He was cross-examined upon a letter written by his solr. to a creditor & upon an affidavit by him upon an application for the adjournment of a bkpcy. petition with the view of showing an admission of insolvency:—Held: (1) in order that a director should be "insolvent" within the meaning of the art., it was not necessary that there should be a definite act of insolvency done on a definite day from which it could be said that the insolvency dated; (2) there was evidence upon which the judge could find that C. was "insolvent" on Nov. 2, 1912, & therefore his office of director had become vacated, & no salary was due to him for the quarter.—*LONDON & COUNTIES ASSETS Co., LTD. v. A. Appointment.

3484. Power of appointment—Vested in directors by articles—Exercise by company.]—Art. 99 gave the directors power to appoint one of their body to be managing director of the co. By art. 113 the business of the co. was to be managed by the directors, who might exercise all such powers & do all such things as might be exercised or done by the co. & were not by the statutes or those arts. directed or required to be exercised or done by the co. in general meeting, subject to the provisions of the statutes, & of those arts., & to such regulations as might be from time to time prescribed by the co. in general meeting. At an extraordinary general meeting of the co. a resolution was passed that L. who was then the managing director, should be reappointed sole managing director. The directors nevertheless appointed S. another member of their body, sole managing director :—Held : art. 113 making the powers of the directors subject to the regulations of the co. related to the general management of the affairs of the co., & not to the appointment of a managing director, or other matters specially placed under the control of the directors by the arts., & therefore the appointment by the board of directors of S. as sole managing director was valid.—*LOGAN (THOMAS), LTD. v. By the arts. of assocn. it was provided that deft. should be managing director for five years at the yearly salary mentioned in the agreement, payable quarterly. Afterwards the co. by a written instrument adopted the agreement between the promoter & deft. Deft., on behalf of the co., contracted for the construction of certain fishing-smacks, & unknown to the co., took a commission from the shipbuilders on the contract. Several months afterwards the pltf. co. at an extraordinary meeting passed a resolution dismissing deft. from his office on the ground of other alleged acts of misconduct, which they were not able to substantiate in the action : being at that time ignorant of his receipt of the commission from the shipbuilders. Deft. was a shareholder in an ice co. & a fish-carrying co., which paid, in addition to the ordinary dividends, bonuses to shareholders who were owners of fishing-smacks & who employed the cos. in supplying ice & carrying for them. Deft. employed these cos. in respect of the pltf.’s smacks, & received bonuses as if the smacks were his own. Pltf. co. brought an action against deft. for an account of commissions & bonuses received by him, & for damages for alleged breaches of duty ; & deft. counter-claimed for wrongful dismissal & for the salary for the quarter which had expired before his dismissal :—Held :

3491. — Appointment for term of years—Failure to secure re-election as director.]—By art. 80 the directors were empowered to appoint a director at any time, but any director so appointed was to hold office only until the next ordinary general meeting of the co., & he should then be eligible for re-election. By art. 86b, the directors had power to appoint "any one of their number" to be a managing director for such period as they deemed fit, & to revoke such appointment. Pltf. was appointed a director of the co., & by an agreement of the same date made between him & the co., he was appointed managing director for four years, one of the terms of the agreement being that if he became incapacitated from attending to his duties as managing director the co. might by notice forthwith determine the appointment. Pltf. failed to secure re-election as a director at the next ordinary general meeting, & the co. gave him notice to determine the appointment. Pltf. brought an action against the co. for damages for breach of the agreement:—Held: as pltf. had not been re-elected a director of the co., he could not be a managing director, & therefore the agreement came to an end, & the directors had no power to appoint pltf. a managing director to hold office for four years whether the co. re-elected him a director or not.—BLUETT v. The board appointed pltf. to be managing director upon the terms of an agreement which provided that he should hold the office so long as he should remain a director of the co. & retain his due qualification & efficiently perform the duties of the office. Subsequently, while pltf. was still fulfilling the conditions of the agreement, the board revoked the appointment. Pltf. sued the co. for damages for breach of agreement:—Held: the arts. of assocn. did not empower the board to revoke the appointment at will, or otherwise than in accordance with the terms of the agreement under which pltf. was appointed managing director, & pltf. was entitled to recover damages against the co.—NELSON v. In Apr. 1909, a receiver & manager was appointed in a debentureholder's action, & a compulsory winding-up order was made against the co. The receiver & manager having given notice to deft. that his services would no longer be required, & having ceased to pay his salary, deft. commenced to carry on business on his own account. In an action to restrain deft. from carrying on business in competition with the co. in breach of his covenant:—Held: pltf. co. could not have specific performance of clause 5 without performing, & they could not now perform, clause 1 in favour of deft. No bye-law had been passed defining the general powers of the board of directors or the managing director of deft. co., except as to borrowing for the purpose of the business. The managing director did not consult the board before signing the letter, & there was no formal subsequent approval or disapproval by the board of what had been done. The managing director knew that to carry out the contract a substantial extension of deft.'s plant & premises would be necessary, & plth. also knew this. But there was no evidence that they knew anything about defts.' capital or commercial circumstances, or their ability to furnish the additional plant:—Held: in the absence of bad faith or notice, plths. were entitled to assume that the managing director was authorised to enter into the agreement, which, when orders were actually given by plths., became a binding contract & one to which the board of directors would have had power to bind the co.—*NATIONAL MALLEABLE CASTINGS CO. v. 3505. ——— Contract in own name—Whether company bound.—The managing director of a co., who had power to enter into contracts on behalf of the co., & was bound to give the co. the benefit of all such contracts, entered into an agreement with P., by which, in consideration of certain assignments, he bound himself to pay P. a sum of money. No mention was made of the co. in the deed, but the directors took part in the negotiation, & P. was aware that the agreement was made on behalf, & for the benefit, of the co. The co. paid money to P. on account of the contract, & was afterwards ordered to be wound up:—Held: P. could not claim against the co. under the contract.—Re INTERNATIONAL CONTRACT CO., PICKERING'S CLAIM (1871), 6 Ch. App. 525; 24 L. T. 178, L. JJ.

3506. ——— Bill of exchange—Presumption of authority.—The arts. of assocn. of a co. empowered the directors to authorise one of their body as managing director to draw bills of exchange on behalf of the co. The managing director drew a bill on behalf of the co. without having in fact received any authority from the directors to draw bills. In an action on the bill against the co. as drawers:—Held: (1) the managing director, in drawing the bill on behalf of the co., was a "person acting under authority" within 1908 Act, s. 77, & the co. was liable; (2) as by the constitution of the co. the managing director might have been authorised to draw the bill, a person taking the bill in due course was entitled to assume that he had authority in fact.—DEY v. 3507. ——— In tort—False imprisonment of employee.—Pltf., a workman employed in defts.'s factory, was discharged with others in consequence of slackness of work. He carried away, with his own tools, one belonging to defts., which when he found inquiry was made for it, he returned to the foreman of the factory. When he afterwards called about it at the factory, a detective was present, who asked the foreman if he gave pltf. in charge for stealing the tool, to which the foreman replied he must see defts.' managing director first. Pltf. & the detective went together to the police station, & the foreman afterwards appeared, charged pltf. & signed the charge-sheet. The next morning, pltf. having been locked up all night, defts.' managing director gave evidence against pltf., but the charge was dismissed. Pltf. brought an action for false imprisonment:—Held: under the circumstances, the managing director had no power to render defts. liable in the action.—ROWE v. g. ——— To bring action in name of company.—The arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that the officers should be a president & a general manager, a vice-president, & a secretary-treasurer; that the affairs of the co. should be conducted by a board of directors, a majority of directors to constitute a quorum. At a shareholders' meeting, a managing-director was appointed:—Held: the appointment did not confer upon the managing director any implied authority to bring an action in the name of the co., the office of managing director not being recognised by the arts. of assocn., & he could not bring an action in the name of the co., since there was neither special power conferred upon him by the arts. of assocn., nor delegation by the board of directors, nor acquiescence by the board or shareholders in the exercise by him of authority to initiate actions in the co.'s name.—STANDARD CONSTRUCTION CO. v. CRABB (1914), 30 W. L. R. 151; 7 W. W. R. 719.—CAN.

h. ——— Promissory note with qualified signature.—Def't. co. was incorporated by Letters Patent under The Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M., c. 25, for the purpose of carrying on a trading business, & pltf. sued as indorsee of three promissory notes given by the managing director of co. in its name to C., for tea ordered from him but never delivered. There was no bye-law, resolution or other act expressly defining the powers or duties of the managing director, but the evidence showed that the course of business of the co. was such that he had frequently given similar promissory notes which had been paid by the co.'s cheques without objection on the part of the other directors or the auditors:—Held: the notes sued on had been made in general accordance with the powers of the managing director within the meaning of sect. 62 of the above Act & were binding on the co.—IMPERIAL BANK v. FARMERS' TRADING CO. (1901), 13 Man. L. R. 412.—CAN.

k. ——— Contracts as to real property.—Pltf., by what purported to be a deed under the Leases Facilitation Act, let certain premises to defts., a trading corporation on whose behalf a lease was signed by their managing director, but without affixing to it the seal of the co. Def'ts. entered under the lease & paid rent for part of the term, but ceased to occupy before it expired; & in answer to an action for the rent due for the remainder of the term, set up that the lease was not sealed with the co.'s seal, or signed by two directors as required by the arts. of assocn.:—Held: since under the arts. of assocn. the directors had power to take a lease & to delegate their powers to a managing director who, in fact, signed it, pltf. was entitled to assume that the managing director had the authority of the co. to sign & the lease was binding on the co.—PLOMLEY v. 3511. Liability for acts of subordinates—Offence under Coal Mines Regulation Act, 1887 (c. 58).]—A limited co. were the owners of a coal mine of which resp. was the managing director; but resp. did not interfere with the actual management of the mine underground, which was left in the hands of a duly certificated manager, under the above Act, who was the manager of the colliery, & was in charge thereof. Resp., as managing director, occasionally visited the mine, but he had in no way interfered with the manager in his duties, though he had authorised all necessary expenditure for the safety & conduct of the mine, & had duly published at the mine the rules under the Act & the abstract of the Act itself. An offence having been committed by the use of naked lights in the mine on a day when resp. was not at the mine:—Held: (1) resp., as managing director, was "agent" of the mine within the Act, & was legally responsible as such; (2) he had, by publishing & to the best of his power enforcing the rules as regulations for the working of the mine, taken all reasonable means within sect. 50 of the Act to prevent such contravention of the rules, & was therefore not liable to be convicted for the offence.—*STOKES v. Pltfs., represented by A. refused to go on printing without a guarantee, & deft. consented to become security by drawing a bill on B. & co. & indorsing it to pltfs., upon the understanding that he was to have funds to meet it out of the debt accruing from C. to B. & co.

contracted for the purchase of real estate for the use of the co. at O., & signed the contract as "managing director." For convenience the conveyance was made to the director personally, & he executed a mtge. for the unpaid purchase money, & went into possession & used the property for the purposes of the co. The purchase was immediately communicated by him to the English directors, & they disapproved thereof, but did no act repudiating the purchase; on the contrary, they directed the buildings to be insured:—Held: this conduct was an adoption of the contract by the directors: they had power to adopt it, & had the power of binding the co.; & the co. were liable to the vendor for the purchase money.—CONANT v. MIALL (1870), 17 Gr. 574.—CAN.

n. Liability for mismanagement — Proof.]—In an action by a co. against its managing directors for damages alleged to have been caused by reason of their negligence & mismanagement, it was proved that the managing directors had kept the directors & shareholders in ignorance of the true position of the co., & that the business had been continued for a considerable period at a heavy loss:—Held: in the absence of proof that the losses had been directly incurred through the acts or omissions of the managing directors, the co. could not recover damages against them.—NOURSE v. FARMERS' CO-OPERATIVE Co., LTD. (1906), 19 E. D. C. 291.—S. AF.

o. — Statute of Limitations.]—In an action by an incorporated co. against its managing director for the return of money retained by him on various pretexts:—Held: Stat. Lim. was no defence on account of

A. was told of this arrangement. Before deft. drew this bill, A. had lent money to B. & co. on his own account, & held their acceptance to his draft. When this latter bill became due, A. obtained an order on C. from the other two partners of B. & co., without the knowledge or consent of deft. or his son, & under this order A. obtained the amount due from C. to B. & co. & appropriated it to the payment of this bill, the amount being more than sufficient to cover deft.'s bill. Pltfs. having sued deft. on his bill:—Held: deft. had no defence as against pltfs.; for pltfs. were not responsible for what A. did in getting his private debt paid, as though he was their managing director, he was not then acting for them or in pursuance of any authority from them.—*Mc-GOWAN & Co., LTD. v. t. Remuneration — Whether directors may grant.—The directors of a co. passed a resolution allowing their president a salary of $1,200 for the year then current, & ordered that a certificate of indebtedness under the corporate seal should be issued to him in that sum, upon which the president caused the corporate seal to be attached to the certificate. There was no resolution of the stockholders voting the president remuneration for his services; nor was there any provision either in the Acts of Incorporation or the bye-laws of the co. for such remuneration:—Held: the president was not by law entitled to receive pay for his services. The board of directors had no right to pass the resolution referred to; & the act of affixing the corporate seal to the certificate was of no legal force, & it was open to the co. to resist payment in a ct. of law.—FELLOWS v. ALBERT MINING CO. (1875), 3 Pug. 203.—CAN.

a. — Compliance with statutory requirements.—A bye-law was passed by the co.'s board of directors providing that the president, among other officers, should receive such remuneration as might be determined by resolution of the board be determined & that bye-law had been confirmed by a general meeting of the shareholders, & also a resolution to fix the president's salary at $100 per month:—Held: there was a literal as well as a substantial compliance with Ontario Cos. Act, 7 Ed. VII. c. 34, s. 88, & with the terms of the bye-law also. There was no necessity that each contract for such payment should be confirmed by the shareholders.—*MACKENZIE v. b. Personal liability — Question of fact.—Pltfs. were merchants & manufacturers of a town with poor railway facilities. They entered into an agreement with deft. co. & deft. P., its president, to subscribe for $10,000 worth of the co.'s bonds on condition that the co. should extend its line into the town. A memorandum embodying the agreement was drawn up & signed, pltfs. subscribed & paid for the bonds which were delivered to them, but the proposed extension of the railway was never built. Deft. P. disclaimed personal liability on the agreement, claiming he merely acted in his capacity as president of deft. co.:—Held: the facts showed that the agreement was intended by all the parties to bind deft. P. personally, & the fact that the memorandum of agreement was not executed by him in his personal capacity was of no defence.—WOOD v. GRAND VALLEY RY. CO. & PATTISON (1912), 22 O. W. R. 269; 3 O. 3519. — — Editor of periodical—Contributors.]—The articles of a co. that published a weekly periodical provided that no director should be disqualified by his office from contracting with or being employed by the co. in the capacity of contributor, editor, or otherwise; & that a director might hold any other office or place under the co. in conjunction with his office of director. R. was a director of the co. & was also appointed dress editress of the periodical at a fixed salary per annum, & her duties occupied practically the whole of her time. H. was employed by the co. at a fixed salary per annum to supply fashion drawings for the periodical, & the co. had the first call on her services & her work occupied most of her time, but occasionally she did work for other publishers. P. was employed by the co. at a fixed salary per annum to supply weekly articles & other information for the periodical, but she also wrote for other publishers. R., H., & P. claimed to be preferential creditors of the co. for arrears of salary due to them respectively at the commencement of the winding up :—Held: (1) having regard to the articles of the co., R.'s office of director did not preclude her employment in any other capacity, & she was a "clerk or servant" of the co. within the meaning of the above sub-sect., & was therefore entitled to preferential payment; (2) H. & P. were merely contributors to the periodical & not

e. ——— By directors—Confirmation.]—Pltf. brought action to recover $2,500 for a year's salary as mineralogist for defts., a mining co. Pltf. was a director of the co. during the whole of the same year, & relied upon a resolution of the first board of directors of the co. appointing him mineralogist & fixing his salary. At a meeting of shareholders, held immediately after the meeting of the directors at which the resolution was passed, the minutes of the directors' meeting were approved, confirmed, & adopted. Several other meetings of both shareholders & directors were held, on the same day, & a new board of directors was elected. The new board met & the minutes of their meeting contained an entry that "the minutes of the meetings of the directors & shareholders held previous to this meeting were laid before the meeting & were gone over, considered, & approved." These minutes & the minutes of the last meeting of shareholders were signed by all the directors & shareholders, except one. Evidence was given by some of the persons present at the meetings, which went to show that the resolution was not read to the directors & shareholders who signed the minutes. Defts. denied any knowledge of any contract of hiring or of service rendered:—Held: in the absence of any statutory provision that the consent of the shareholders individually is equivalent to the confirmation of a bye-law at a general meeting, the signing of the minutes by all the shareholders but one, assuming that they knew at the time that they were confirming the resolution, was not a compliance with either the letter or spirit of Ontario Companies Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 88.—BARTLETT v. BARTLETT MINES (1911), 19 O. W. R. 893; 24 O. L. R. 419; 2 O. W. N. 1509.—CAN.

by the co. such confirmation or acceptance not to be unreasonably withheld. The co. were to pay the agent a commission upon the invoiced prices of all goods delivered by the co. & duly paid for by the respective purchasers. A few months afterwards the co. required fresh capital, & they applied to pltf. to assist them in finding it, telling him that otherwise they would have to close down. Pltf. tried to do so, but failed. The co. then asked pltf. to give up the agency for the M. district, telling him that he would have to "stand down" so far as that district was concerned, in which case they thought that they could find the necessary capital, but he refused. The co. thereupon, being insolvent, passed resolutions for voluntary winding up & ceased to do business through pltf., & eventually sold their business. In an action to recover damages for breach of the agreement to employ pltf. as their agent for the seven years:—Held: the agreement was to employ pltf. as agent for the seven years, & a term could not be implied to the effect that the co. could terminate the agency at any time by ceasing to carry on their business; & the circumstances, coupled with the voluntary winding up, showed a repudiation by the co. of the agreement, & they were therefore liable in damages for the breach.—*REIGATE v. 3534. — Effect of appointment of receiver—Power of dismissal.—A receiver & manager of a co. cannot annul the contracts of the co., & the servants of the co. do not ipso facto become his servants on his appointment.

It was said that this occupation of the co. was at an end because the receiver had power to discharge servants & annul contracts & to do various things that were mentioned. 3537. Who liable for—Agreement excluding personal liability of members—Liability in winding up not diminished.—A., who had been appointed secretary to a joint-stock co. at a yearly salary to commence on Mar. 25, 1848, signed an agreement that no director or shareholder of the co. should be personally responsible for the salaries of any of the officers; & that no officer should be paid for his services until a sufficient sum should be obtained, by the funds of the co. for that purpose. An order for winding up the co. was made on Feb. 23, 1850:—Held: the agreement did not exonerate the shareholders from liability to contribute as members of the co. to the payment of arrears of salary due to the secretary; & though he was not in strictness entitled to more than a portion of his salary for the second year, yet, as he had served for nearly the whole of that year, it was but reasonable to allow him his salary for the whole of it.—Re INDEPENDENT ASSURANCE CO., COPE'S CASE (1850), 1 Sim. Liabilities—Broker—Application of funds on instructions from directors—Breach of trust.]—The directors of a banking co., whose arts. of assocn. provided that the directors might, without any authority from the shareholders, "sell or dispose of any of the property of the co." paid out of the funds of the co. £500 to H., a stockbroker, being the amount of the premium on 1,000 shares of the co. purchased by him in the market, at the request of the directors, for F., whom they had requested to join the board. The co. was wound up, & a suit was instituted on its behalf by the official liquidator against H., to which neither the directors nor F. were made parties, to recover from him the £500, on the ground that it was a breach of trust by the directors of which H. had notice:—Held: as the whole transaction could not now be annulled, nor the parties be replaced in their former position, such a suit could not be entertained.—*LONDON, HAMBURGH & CONTINENTAL EXCHANGE BANK v. The object of above Act, like 1862 Act, s. 165, is to furnish a summary remedy for recovery of the company's assets. It covers any breach of duty by an officer of the co. in his capacity of officer resulting in any improper misapplication of the assets or property of the co., but not every actionable wrong by an officer as such.—Re 3543. — Where company struck off register—Neglect to send in annual return—Personal liabilities remain.]—Where a co. neglects to send to the Registrar of Joint-Stock Cos. the annual return required by 1862 Act, s. 26, as amended by Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 19, & the Registrar strikes the name of the co. off the register under Companies Act, 1880 (c. 19), s. 7 (4), as a defunct co., the ct., upon an application under 1880 Act, s. 7 (5), to restore the name to the register, has no power to impose a penalty as a condition of restoring the name. By 1880 Act, s. 7 (4), the effect of striking the name of a co. off the register is to dissolve the co., but the personal liability of its officers for the engagements made as its agents is preserved, & the mere restoring of the name to the register does not relieve them from that liability. To relieve them from liability the ct. must make an order under sect. 7 (5).—Re BROWN BAYLEY'S STEEL WORKS, LTD. (1905), 21 T. L. R. 374.

He gave the draymen, who were under his control, orders never to deliver beer unless an order for it had been received by the co. at their office, & he took every care to prevent a violation of this order. The beer was sold for cash on delivery, the draymen being authorised to receive payment. None of the crates of beer bore the name of the customer for whom the beer was loaded on the van, there being no appropriation to any particular customer. A drayman sold beer on a certain occasion to a person at his own house who had not previously ordered it, & who paid the drayman for it. Resp. was charged with selling beer at an unlicensed place contrary to the above sect.:—Held: as the sale by the drayman was made without authority, resp. was not liable.—*BOYLE v. This letter was signed without any authority from the board of directors of the co., although two members of the board were aware of it, & one of them, the vice-president of the co., authorised it:—Held: not such an act as the officers of the co. were authorised in the discharge of their duties to perform; & although the bank granted the time asked for, they could not enforce payment of the amounts stipulated for.—*HAMILTON & PORT DOVER RY. SUB-SECT. 2.—THE SECRETARY.

A. Appointment and Position.

3546. Appointment—Agreement with promoters before company incorporated—Confirmatory resolution by directors under powers in articles.]—The promoters of a co., before its registration, entered into an agreement with B. to appoint him secretary to the intended co. for a period of five years on condition of his taking a certain number of shares. B. did so. He, & all the promoters, signed the memorandum & arts. of assocn. by the latter of which five of the promoters were appointed directors, & power was given to the directors to enter into an agreement with B. in the terms of the previous agreement. At the first meeting of the directors, a resolution was passed confirming the previous agreement with B. Before the expiration of the period of five years the co. went into liquidation:—Held: the directors' resolution did not constitute a new contract, but was merely an attempt to ratify a contract made before the formation of the co., & this the co. could not do; the mere signature of the arts. by the parties to the previous agreement did not put B. in any better position, & as there was no binding contract with the co. for the appointment for five years, B. had no claim in the winding up for damages for the termination of his office as secretary, but had a claim by way of quantum meruit for such work as he had done.—Re DALL & PLANT, LTD. (1889), 61 L. 3547. Position—Whether servant of directors or company.]—The secretary of a joint-stock co. is the servant of the directors of the co., who are presumed to have control over him as such, & this presumption is not rebutted by the circumstance that the co. has ceased working.—*ELMES v. The secretary of a co. in order to assist a shareholder in carrying out a fraud, falsely certified that certificates of shares had been deposited with him to meet certain transfers, when in fact no such certificates had been deposited:—Held: the co. were not thereby estopped from denying the right of the proposed transferee to be put upon the register of shareholders.—*WHITECHURCH (GEORGE), LTD. v. 3550. ——— Where no salary received—Whether disqualified as director as holding "office" under company.]—By the arts. of assocn. of a joint-stock co. it was provided that any director who should accept or hold any other office under the co. than that of manager, should thereupon be disqualified from being & should cease to be a director. A. had been appointed secretary at a salary, & whilst secretary he was elected a director, & appointed upon a committee to exercise certain powers of the directors; from the time of his election he received salary as a committeeman, but ceased to receive salary as secretary, though he continued to perform all the duties of the office:—Held: A. did not hold an "office" under the co. so as to disqualify him from being party as a director to the making of a call.—IRON SHIP COATING CO. v. No general meeting was held in the year 1873, & no list of members as required by above sect. was forwarded during that year:—Held: (1) there was evidence upon which applt. might be held to be a “manager,” liable within sects. 26 & 27, for not forwarding the list of members; (2) inasmuch as he did not take any steps to call a general meeting in 1873, he could not defend himself against the information for not forwarding the list, by saying that no meeting had been held; (3) a general meeting of the co. ought to be held once in each calendar year.—GIBSON v. A summons was taken out by the liquidator, under the above sect. asking that H. might be ordered to contribute to the assets £250 & interest as secret profit made by him in a fiduciary position, for which he must be held liable:—Held: although the facts showed that H. was in every sense of the words a “person who had taken part in the formation or promotion of the co.,” within the above sect., yet there was no legal obligation on him to account to the co. for the money which he had received.—Re SALE HOTEL & BOTANICAL GARDENS, LTD.

1. Extra remuneration—Illegality—Recovery back by company.]—By a resolution of the directors, the secretary of the co. had been authorised to sell the co.'s bonds, for which he was to be paid a commission at the rate of 5 per cent on the amounts received. Subsequently, at a time when they had no authority to do so, the directors converted the preferred stock held by certain shareholders into bonds, & paid the secretary for his services in making the conversion at the rate of 5 per cent on the amount of bonds thus disposed of. In an action to recover back from the secretary the money so received by him as commission:—Held: although the secretary had received the commissions under mistake of law, yet, as he must be assumed to have had knowledge of the illegality of the transaction, the money could be recovered back by the co. Subsequently the scheme of conversion was approved of by a resolution of the shareholders, but it did not appear that they had been fully informed as to the arrangement for the payment of a commission to the secretary in that respect, in addition to his regular salary:—Held: the resolution of the shareholders had not the effect of ratifying the payment of the commissions.—ROUNTREE v. 3563. Signature of memorandum to satisfy Statute of Frauds—Sale of houses—Company dealing in houses.]—An agreement for the sale of certain leasehold houses, the property of a co. was signed as follows: "A., Secretary for the B. Co." 1867 Act, s. 37 (2), provides that such an agreement may be signed on behalf of the co. by any person acting under the express or implied authority of the co. It appeared from the memorandum of assocn. that one of the objects of the co. was to sell houses. On demurrer:—Held: (1) as selling houses was part of the ordinary business of the co. the secretary in signing was acting under the implied authority of the co.; (2) the agreement was sufficient to satisfy Stat. Frauds.—BEER v. LONDON & PARIS HOTEL CO. (1875), L. R. 20 Eq. 412; 32 L. T. 715.

3565. In connection with legal proceedings—To commence action.]—A co. was incorporated in England for the purpose of selling in England tyres made in Germany by a German co., who held the bulk of the shares in the English co. The holders of the remaining shares, save one, & all the directors were Germans resident in Germany. The one share was registered in the name of the secretary, who was born in Germany, but resident in England & had become a naturalised British subject. After the outbreak of the war between England & Germany an action was commenced in the name of the English co. by specially indorsed writ, issued by the co.'s solrs. on the instructions of the secretary, for payment of a trade debt. In answer to a summons for judgment under R. S. C. Ord. 14, defts. alleged (1) that the co. was an alien enemy co. & that payment of the debt would be a trading with the enemy; (2) that the action was commenced without the authority of the co. The master gave leave to pltf. co.

to sign final judgment, & his order was affirmed by the judge in chambers & by the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: the action was commenced without authority & ought to be struck out as irregular.—*DAIMLER CO. Pltf. being unable to pay one of the instalments went to the offices of debt., a co., & saw their secretary, who consented to wait till a later day; but before that day possession of the goods was taken, & on a subsequent day, after the tender of a sum which pltf. had been told would be sufficient to cover all claims, the goods were removed & sold. In an action to recover damages for the seizure & sale:—Held: (1) parol evidence of the time having been enlarged for payment of the money was admissible, as it showed that there had been no "default" within the meaning of the deed; (2) the secretary had authority to bind the co. & therefore pltf. was entitled to maintain the action.—ALBERT v. s. — Contract of insurance — Knowledge of absence of authority.]—Pltf. presented to the secretary-treasurer of debt. co. a proposal to insure the property of the co. according to a plan which he claimed would effect a reduction of twenty-five per cent in the rate of premium then being paid. The officer of the co., to pltf.'s knowledge, had no authority to make a contract, but he agreed to submit the proposition & to recommend its acceptance, & in the belief that his recommendation would be approved of, prepared a cheque for the amount to which pltf. would be entitled. The president of the co. refused to give his assent to the proposition:—Held: it having been shown, to the knowledge of pltf., that the officer had no authority to bind the co., it would only be some act of the directors—a holding out of the officer as authorised to contract, or knowingly permitting him to assume that character—which would estop the co. from saying that he had no authority to bind them by his conduct. As a fact this was not so; but pltf., on the faith of these representations, advanced money to the contractors, taking as security an assignment of the retention money:—Held: in an action by pltf. as assignees of the retention money, it was not within the scope of a secretary's duty to make such representations, & therefore defts., in the absence of any evidence to show that the secretary had authority to make the representations which he made, were not estopped from denying that the retention money was due.—BARNETT v. Some years before, to the knowledge of the chairman, the son had forged his name, but since then down to the time of his appointment he had lived apparently a blameless life. With the directors' consent the secretary had charge of all the books of the co., including the cheque-book & pass-book, & by means of an elaborate system of fraud, not only succeeded in forging a director's name to cheques which were duly honoured by the bank, but for a long period escaped detection. It was also proved that in one interview at least he had a letter of introduction from the secretary in which he was described as "our superinten-

Before the first general meeting the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn., acting as directors of the co., appointed one of their own number manager of the mine, at a salary of £350 a year:—Held: under the provisions contained in Table B. the subscribers of the memorandum of assocn., as directors, had power to make the appointment, & it was not illegal either at common law or otherwise.—EALLES v. 3585. Position—Manager of two companies—Whether agent of each—Payments by one to the other through manager.]—A building society & a finance co. had some common directors & a common manager. The society had no power by their rules to lend money on deposit. They deposited money from time to time with the finance co., & repayments were from time to time made. Ultimately a balance of £375 was called in, & a cheque was drawn for it by the finance co., & was given to the manager to pay the building society. He misappropriated the money. A bill was filed by the trustees of the building society against the co. to recover the money:—Held: the manager held the money as agent for the finance co. until he paid it to some one authorised to give a receipt for it on behalf of the building society; as, therefore, he never did this, the money must be taken to be still in the hands of the finance co., & being trust money, a suit to recover it was maintainable.

A decree for repayment with interest was accordingly made.—HARDY v. METROPOLITAN LAND & FINANCE CO. (1872), 7 Ch. App. 427; 41 L. J. Ch. 257; 26 L. T. 407; 20 W. R. 425, L. JJ.

3587. Vacation of office—By removal—Provision of contract of service.—By the draft of a contract originally made between a joint-stock co. & their manager, it was provided that the manager should be removed without the concurrence of the whole committee of management, & that upon removal he should receive such compensation as the committee should adjudge, but the contract was not signed. A new contract was afterwards signed, by which the manager was removable by a majority consisting of two-thirds of the committee; in which new contract there was no provision for compensation upon removal. The manager was removed by a vote of two-thirds of the committee:—Held: the removal was valid, & no compensation could be recovered, either under the contract or by implication of law.—*COMMERCIAL BANK OF SCOTLAND v. 3588. — By winding up of company.—By arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that, in case of the dismissal of S., the manager, he should be paid the full amount of money paid upon his shares. A resolution was passed to wind up the co., & S. was appointed liquidator. S. had paid £2000 on his shares, & received £400 for remuneration as liquidator:—Held: the winding-up was equivalent to a dismissal of S., & he was entitled to prove in the winding up for £2000, subject to a set-off of the £400.—Re IMPERIAL WINE CO., SHIRREFF'S CASE (1872), L. B. was the manager of a co. having its registered office in the City of London. The co. did no business, & B. who resided at W., was very rarely in attendance at the office. Various notices relating to demands for income tax under sched. E. were addressed to B. at the office of the co., but in fact such notices never were delivered to him, & he knew nothing of them:—Held: there was no

B. Remuneration.

3591. Power of directors—Remuneration payable after cessation of concern.—(1) The governing body of a joint-stock co. have no right to do acts out of the common routine of the co.'s business except such as they are authorised by their deed of settlement to do.

(2) Where, in pursuance of a prior contract, the directors of a co. by deed agree to give to a general manager a remuneration which may by possibility be payable after the cessation of the concern, such instrument is not only proper but valid, under the deed of settlement, where it gives the directors power to pay & allow to the general manager, etc., such remuneration as they shall think proper, & to confirm all acts done by persons acting as directors in the formation of the co.

(3) Where power is given to the directors for the time being, of a co., at a general meeting, to do certain acts, the words "general meeting" do not import that the act shall be done by the "general meeting," but that the directors themselves have the power to do those acts, provided they are done at a general meeting.—*WILKINS v. 3594. — Based on profits—Deduction of excess profits duty.—By an agreement of service made in 1913 between a co. & its manager it was provided that whenever the profits of the co. made during the financial year were more than sufficient to pay the preference dividends, & also a dividend of 7 per cent. on the ordinary shares, the manager, in addition to his fixed salary, should be paid by way of commission a sum equal to 5 per cent. of the excess. The co. made excess profits within the meaning of the agreement.

Upon a summons raising the question whether, before ascertaining such excess, the co. was or was not entitled to deduct the excess profits duty payable under the Finance (No. 2) Act, 1915 (c. 89), & the Finance Act, 1916 (c. 24):—Held: the excess profits duty was a contribution to the Exchequer of a proportion of the co.'s profits standing on much the same footing as the income tax, & ought not to be deducted before ascertaining the excess profits on which the manager's commission was to be calculated.—*HOLLINS (W.) & CO., LTD. v. —Whether within ordinary course of business.]

—The business of a co. was that of importers & dealers in tinned ox-tongues & other provisions. H. was appointed manager of the co.'s business in South America, "to take the entire charge of the interests of the co. there." No express authority was conferred on him to sign or accept bills or promissory notes on behalf of the co. He was desirous of entering into a contract with L. for the supply of ox-tongues to the co. in South America. L. refused to enter into a contract unless a guarantee was given by some third person, & at the request of H., S. agreed to give the required guarantee, which he did by depositing £1000 in a bank to the order of L. As a counter-security to S., H. gave him a promissory note for £1000 signed by him "in representation of" the co. The co. made default in carrying out the provisions of the contract with L., & under a power contained in it, he forfeited the deposit, which was paid over to him at the bank. No goods were supplied to the co. under the contract. The co. never recognised the promissory note, & it was dishonoured at maturity. The co. being in liquidation, S. claimed to prove in the winding up upon the note:—Held: it not being shown that the giving of the note was necessary for the carrying on of the business of the co., or that it was in the ordinary course of the business of such a co., the note was not binding upon the co., & the claim in respect of it could not be admitted.—Re CUNNINGHAM & Co., LTD., SIMPSON'S CLAIM (1887), 36 Ch. It was clear that what the manager did was not "selling" in the ordinary sense of the word "sale." There was nothing in the nature of a sale between him & the members; his was merely the hand which supplied them with the liquors he purchased for them. To hold that to be a selling of liquors by him would be straining the law & going far beyond its real purport (LORD

3623. Duty as to registration of charges.]—A solr. not usually employed by a co. was employed by them to act in a particular matter, & having required security for costs, they gave him a charge on certain debts due to them. About five weeks after this a winding-up petition was presented, on which an order was shortly afterwards made. The charge had not been registered:—Held: though under 1862 Act, s. 43, the want of registration did not make the charge void, yet the solr. could not avail himself of the charge, for it was his duty, as being the solr. of the co. in this transaction, to see that the directions of the Legislature as to registration were obeyed.—Re PATENT BREAD MACHINERY CO., Ex p. VALPY & CHAPLIN (1872), 7 Ch. 3624. Solicitors also promoters & vendors to company—Liability for profits on sale.]—A firm of solrs. purchased a certain leasehold property, & soon afterwards they formed a co. of which they were appointed the solrs., to take over the property, which they sold to the co. at a price greatly in excess of that which they had paid for it. On a bill by the official liquidator of the co., which had been ordered to be wound up, seeking to make the solrs. answerable for the profit which they had made by the sale of the co. :

—Held: no fiduciary relation having existed between the parties at the time when the solrs. purchased the property, & there having been no fraud, concealment, or misrepresentation on the part of the solrs., & all the then members of the co. having been fully aware of the facts of the case, the sale could not be opened, & the solrs. were not accountable for the profit made on the transaction.—*MASON'S HALL TAVERN CO. v. —A joint stock marine insurance co. had declared dividends, which, as it afterwards appeared, were not warranted by the real condition of the co. The law agent of the co. who was also a member of it, when applied to for information, mentioned these dividends as proofs of the flourishing state of the co. The person to whom he so mentioned them became afterwards a purchaser of the shares :

—Held: (1) he could not relieve himself from his contract on account of these representations; (2) the law agent of the co. was not its agent to bind it in such matters; nor could he bind it as a partner, for a joint stock co. is not, like an ordinary partnership, bound by the acts of any individual member of it; (3) if the directors of a co. agreed to publish false statements of the affairs of the co., under such circumstances as showed a fraudulent intent to deceive, they were not civilly liable to those whom they had deceived & injured, but might be criminally prosecuted & punished.—*BURNES v. On motion to take this bill off the file, on the ground that the solr. had not the authority of the co., it appearing that one director alone had authorised such bill to be filed, without the consent of the other directors:—Held: such bill should be taken off the file, & the costs of the application & of the suit should be paid by the solr. filing such bill.—*FERGUS NAVIGATION & EMBANKMENT CO. v. 3628. Termination of authority—By dissolution of company.—A solr. had originally authority to defend an action in the name of a co., but his authority was revoked by the dissolution of the co. shortly before the trial. The trial of the action was delayed owing partly to the state of the business of the ct. & partly to the pleadings being amended. The action was tried on the assumption that the co. was in existence, & judgment was given for pltf. Neither the solr. nor pltf. knew till after the trial that the co. had been dissolved; but on the day of the trial the solr. was informed that the co. had held its final meeting, & he took no steps to ascertain whether or not it had been dissolved. Upon motion by pltf. that the solr. might be ordered to pay his costs of the action as from the date of the dissolution of the co.:—Held: (1) the solr. having originally authority to represent the co. was not liable for acting on that authority after it had been revoked by the dissolution of the co. until he knew or, by the exercise of due diligence, might have known of the dissolution; (2) on the day of the trial the solr. did not use due diligence in ascertaining whether or not the co. had been dissolved, & he ought to pay pltf.'s costs of the action after that date as between solr. & client.—SALTON v. Art. 44 of the deed of settlement declared, that "a sufficient part of the funds of the co. should, upon complete registration, be appropriated in payment of the expenses of & incidental to the formation of the co., including those of or having reference to the preparation & execution of that deed." When the co. was before the master, the solr. presented a demand for services from the earliest period up to that time. An agreement between M. & the co. was approved & settled, one clause of which provided that all preliminary costs & expenses of & incidental to the co. should be considered as incurred & paid or payable by the co. The agreement was not executed, but the co. entered into possession of the property agreed to be purchased. On the winding-up of the co. P. sent in a claim for his costs & disbursements. The taxing master disallowed all the items prior to the date of the registration of the co.:—Held: the certificate was right, & the solr. could not claim payment of 3636. — Costs incurred without formal instructions—Subsequent ratification by directors.]—S. was the solr. of the F. Co., formed to work a silver mine in America, & had received instructions to institute a suit in Chancery on behalf of the F. Co. against their former directors & the person who had sold the mine to the co. Counsel who drafted the bill advised that information should be obtained in America as to certain matters in dispute. Before the draft bill was finally settled S. took a journey to America & to the neighbourhood of the F. Co.'s mine in relation to the business of another co. for whom he was also solr., & who paid his expenses there & back. While in America he paid a visit to the F. Co.'s mine, & there made inquiries & obtained information which he alleged were very material for the purposes of the F. Co.'s suit. When the directors of the F. Co., who knew of his visit to America, heard of S.'s return to England, they passed a resolution that he should be asked to attend the board "to give such information as he should be able as to the mine." S. attended accordingly, & the minutes of the meeting were as follows: "S. attended the board by request & gave information as to his journey" & it was then resolved to file the bill at once. The bill was afterwards filed, having been re-settled in consequence of, & according to, the information obtained by S. in America.

S. had also taken three journeys to Paris in relation to a proposed compromise of the snit, which compromise was ultimately effected. The same solrs. acted for both mtgors. & mtgees. in the matter. The co. went into liquidation, & the costs of the preparation of the deed & incidental thereto remained unpaid. Before Sept. 18 the register of shareholders, the minute book, & certain original applications for shares of shareholders in the co. & allotment notes, came into the possession of B., the solr. of the co., in the ordinary course of business. After Sept. 18, but before the winding-up order was made, other books of the co. came into the possession of B. in the same way. The liquidator did not employ B. in the winding up, & applied for delivery over of all books, etc., in B.'s possession. B. claimed a lien on all the books, etc., for costs due to him from the co. incurred both before & after Sept. 18:—Held: (1) as to the register of members, having regard to 1862 Act, s. 32, & as to the minute book, having regard to the constitution of the co. & the arts. of assocn., the directors could not create a lien on those books so as to interfere with the liquidation.

Held: (2) as to the documents which came into his possession after the presentation of the petition, the solr., having received them with notice of the rights of other persons interested in the liquidation, could not claim a lien on them so as to interfere with the liquidation: (3) as to the application for shares & allotment notes, the solr. could resist delivery on the ground of his lien.—Re CAPITAL FIRE INSURANCE ASSOCN. (1883), 24 Ch. 3651. ——— Reconstruction—Assets purchased by new company.—A limited co. being unable to meet its liabilities, executions were levied on the co.'s property by creditors, & other creditors threatened actions. An extraordinary meeting of the co. was then held, & resolutions were duly passed to wind up the co. voluntarily. It was further resolved that the liquidator should submit a proposal for the reconstruction of the co. A scheme of arrangement, sanctioned by order of the ct., under the Joint Stock Companies Arrangement Act, 1870 (c. 104), provided that a new co. should be incorporated; that one of its objects should be the acquisition & undertaking of the assets & liabilities of the co.; that the new co. should discharge the unsecured debts of the co. by allotting to the unsecured creditors fully paid-up shares in the new co. in full discharge of their claims against the co.; & that the shareholders of the co. should receive partly paid-up shares in the new co. It was also provided that the new co. should pay all the costs of the winding up & of the scheme of arrangement. In pursuance of this order an agreement, subsequently adopted by the new co., was made between the liquidator & the trustee of the future new co. whereby it was provided that part of the consideration payable by the new co. to the liquidator should be cash. The new co. did not pay cash, & the assets of the co. accordingly were not transferred to the new co.:—Held: the co.'s assets purchased by the new co. & retained by the liquidator were to be charged with the costs of the co.'s solr. which had arisen in connection with the winding up & reconstruction of the co., the co.'s property having been "recovered or preserved" through the instrumentality of the solr. within Solicitors Act, 1860 (c. 127), s. 28.—Re CLAYTON (J.), LTD. (1905) 92 L. The official liquidator entered into an agreement with an intending purchaser for the sale to him of the mining rights comprised in the said agreement for a lease, & obtained from him a deposit of £50. The intending purchaser did not proceed with the purchase, & his deposit was forfeited, & thus became assets of the co. :—Held : the amount of the deposit was, in the first place, applicable to satisfy the solr.'s lien for costs in priority to all other claims thereon.—*Re ARDTULLY COPPER MINES, LTD. 3653. — As against debentures—Debentures restraining company from creating prior charge.—A limited co. issued mtgc. debentures charging all its undertaking & property, one of the conditions of the debentures being that they were to rank pari passu as a first charge & to be a “floating security,” but so that the co. should “not be at liberty to create any mtgc. or charge in priority to the said debentures.” There was no trust deed for further securing the debenture debt. Subsequently an order appointing a receiver was made in a debenture-holders’ action, the co. being ordered to deliver up to such receiver all documents relating to the property comprised in the debentures. The co.’s title deeds were then in the possession of their solr., who refused to deliver them up, claiming a lien for costs incurred by the co. to him as their solr. prior to the appointment of the receiver:—Held: so long as the debentures continued to be a “floating security”—that is, until the appointment of the receiver—they did not interfere with the co.’s business being carried on in the ordinary way, & the debenture-holders could not prevent the co.’s solr. employed by them in the usual course of their business, from acquiring the ordinary solr.’s lien; &, inasmuch as that lien was a right given by the general law, & not a “charge,” or, at any rate, not a charge “created” by the co., the solr. was not precluded by the condition of the debentures from asserting his lien in priority to the debenture-holders.—BRUNTON v. B. Powers and Duties.

3661. General rule.]—Where an officer of a co. has committed a breach of his duty to the co., the direct consequence of which has been a misapplication of its assets, for which he could be made responsible in an action, such breach of duty is a "misfeasance" for which he may be summarily proceeded against under the 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10, & it is not necessary that an action should be brought.

For some years before a co. was wound up, balance-sheets signed by the auditors were published by the directors to the shareholders in which the value of the co.'s stock-in-trade at the end of each year was grossly overstated. The auditors relied on certificates, wilfully false, given by J., one of the directors who was also manager, as to the value of the stock-in-trade. Dividends were paid for some years on the footing that the balance-sheets were correct; but if the stock-in-trade had been stated at its true value it would have appeared that there were no profits out of which a dividend could be declared. If the auditors had compared the different books & added to the stock-in-trade at the beginning of the year the amounts purchased during the year, & deducted the amounts sold, they would have seen that the statement of the stock-in-trade at the end of the year was so large as to call for explanation; but they did not do so:—Held: it being no part of the duty of the auditors to take stock, they were justified in relying on the certificates of the manager, a person of acknowledged competence & high reputation, & were not bound to check his certificates in the absence of anything to raise suspicion, & they were not liable for the dividends wrongfully paid.

An auditor is not bound to be suspicious where there are no circumstances to arouse suspicion; he is only bound to exercise a reasonable amount of care & skill.—Re KINGSTON COTTON MILL CO. (No. 2), [1896] 2 Ch. 279; 65 L. 3662. Inspection of books—Enforcement by mandatory order—Discretion of court.]—The secretary of a co. having been guilty of defalcations, by which loss was occasioned to the co., the directors alleged that the co.'s auditors had by negligence in the performance of their duties conduced to these defalcations, & refused to give them access to the co.'s books for the purposes of audit. The auditors thereupon brought an action against the co. & the directors, claiming a declaration that they, as auditors, were entitled at all times to access to the co.'s books, & an order for access thereto. The time having arrived when, in the ordinary course, the audit of the co.'s accounts by pl'tfs. should be proceeding for the purposes of the next annual general meeting, pl'tfs. made an interlocutory application in the action for an order that defts. should give them access to the books:—Held: it was a question for the judicial discretion of the ct. whether the right of access to the books claimed by pl'tfs. should be enforced by a mandatory order, & such an order ought not, under the circumstances of the case, to have been made upon an interlocutory application, & without any steps to ascertain whether the co. were desirous that pl'tfs. should continue to act as auditors or not.—CUFF v. LONDON & COUNTY LAND & BUILDING CO., LTD., [1912] 1 Ch. 440; 81 L. J. Ch. 426; 106 L. T. 285; 28 T. L. R. 218; 19 Mans. 166, C. A.

Act, 1900 (c. 48), they are entitled as material for the report to be made by them to the shareholders as to the true state of the co.'s affairs.

Resolutions were passed by a co. to alter their arts. by inserting a provision that the directors might set aside out of profits, without disclosing the fact, sums to form an internal reserve fund; that this fund need not be shown in or disclosed by the balance-sheet, & that no information need be given to the shareholders as to its amount, investment or application; that the directors might invest it as they thought fit without being liable for loss in consequence of such investment; that they might apply it for any purposes which they considered would advance the interests of the co.; & that, while the particulars as to this fund were to be disclosed to the auditors, it was to be the auditors' duty not to disclose any information with regard to it to the shareholders or otherwise:—Held: these resolutions were ultra vires as being inconsistent with the obligations imposed upon auditors by Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 23.—NEWTON v. BIRMINGHAM SMALL ARMS CO., LTD., [1906] 2 Ch. 378; 75 L. J. Ch. 627; 95 L. T. 135; 54 W. R. 621; 22 T. L. R. 664; 50 Sol. Jo. 593; 13 Mans. 267.

3665. — Attention of directors called to impropriety.—Although it is not the duty of the auditors of a co., appointed under the Cos. Act, 1879 (c. 76), to consider whether its business is prudently or imprudently conducted, it is their duty to consider & report to the shareholders whether the balance-sheet exhibits a correct view of the state of the co.'s affairs, & the true financial position of the co. at the time of the audit. They must ascertain this by examining the books of the co., & must take reasonable care that what they certify as to the co.'s financial position is true. Except in very special cases it is their duty to place before the shareholders the necessary information as to the true financial position of the co., & not merely to indicate the means of acquiring it.

An auditor presented a confidential report to the directors calling their attention to the insufficiency of the securities on which the capital of the co. was invested, & the difficulty of realising them, but in his report to the shareholders merely stated that the value of the assets was dependent on realisation, & in the result the shareholders were deceived as to the condition of the co., & a dividend was declared out of capital & not out of income:—Held: the auditor had been guilty of misfeasance under 1890 (Winding up) Act, s. 10, & was liable to make good the amount of the dividend paid.—Re LONDON & GENERAL BANK (No. 2), [1895] 2 Ch. 673; 44 W. 3667. Compliance with articles.—(1) Co. auditors are bound to know or make themselves acquainted with their duties under the co.'s arts. & under the Cos. Acts for the time being in force, & if the audited balance-sheets do not show the true financial condition of the co., & damage is thereby occasioned, the onus is on the auditors to show that this damage is not the result of any breach of duty on their part.

(2) Auditors are prima facie responsible for ultra vires payments made on the faith of their balance-sheet, but whether & to what extent they are responsible for not discovering & calling attention to the illegality of payments made prior to the audit must depend on the special circumstances of each case.

The payment of a commission for placing shares was authorised by the co.'s memorandum & a board resolution. In reliance on the memorandum & resolution the auditors passed certain payments for commission in their balance-sheet without discovering & drawing attention to the fact that they were not authorised by Table A (1906), by which in default of arts. the co. was regulated:—Held: in the special circumstances, the auditors were not liable for this omission.

A solr. who became a director three months after the incorporation of the co. was subsequently paid certain sums for agreed costs of incorporation & other sums for costs, rent of office, & clerical assistance. These payments were confirmed as such by boards of which the solr. was a member. The auditors passed these payments in their balance-sheet without discovering, appreciating, & drawing attention to the fact that as there was no power under Table A (1906) for a director to contract with the co., the solr. could not charge profit costs, so that the payments to him were pro tanto unauthorised:—Held: in the special circumstances, the auditors were not liable.—Re REPUBLIC OF BOLIVIA EXPLORATION SYNDICATE, LTD., [1914] 1 Ch. 139; 83 L. 3668. As to balance-sheet—Compliance with articles.—(1) It is the duty of an auditor, in auditing the accounts of a co., to ascertain that the balance-sheet fulfils the requirements specified in the arts., & that it is a correct representation of the co.'s affairs.

By the arts. of pltf. co. the directors were empowered to declare a dividend upon such estimates of account as they might see proper to recommend, so that no dividend should be payable except out of profits, & they were required annually to lay before the co. a statement of the income & expenditure of the past year, & also a balance-sheet containing a summary of the property & liabilities of the co.; & it was provided that the auditor should make a report to the members on the balance-sheet & accounts, stating whether in his opinion the balance-sheet was a full & fair balance-sheet containing the particulars required by the arts., & properly drawn so as to exhibit a true view of the state of the co.'s affairs. The remuneration of the directors & the manager was regulated by the rate of dividend. From its commencement in 1870, until its winding up in 1882, the co. earned no profits available for dividend. The directors annually submitted to the co. a balance-sheet purporting to show a profit, on the faith of which a dividend was declared. No statement of income & expenditure was ever submitted to the co. The balance-sheets were prepared by the manager, & contained false items. The directors had no knowledge that the balance-sheets were false, but they relied exclusively upon the statements of the manager. In auditing the accounts the auditor, without referring to the arts., merely certified that the accounts were a true copy of those shown in the books of the co. The balance-sheets were literally copied from balance-sheets in the ledger of the co., but the false items did not appear elsewhere in the books of the co.:—Held: (2) the directors, & the estate of a deceased director, were jointly & severally liable to make good sums improperly paid out of capital for dividends, for directors shall retire from office," does not apply to mere de facto directors; nor does it apply to subscribers of the memorandum of assocn. who, not having appointed directors under art. 52, are—by art. 53—"deemed to be directors"; it only applies to directors who have been duly appointed under the arts.

(2) Art. 62 does not apply so as to continue mere de facto directors as directors till the ordinary meeting in the year next after that in which a meeting has been held at which an election of directors ought to have taken place, when no directors have been elected either at such earlier meeting or the adjournment thereof.

(3) The power given, by art. 52, to the subscribers of the memorandum to determine who shall be the first directors remains in force notwithstanding the first ordinary meeting after registration & the adjourned meeting held seven days afterwards have been held without any directors being appointed thereat.

Relying on this appointment, these directors objected to their management of the affairs of the co. being interfered with by certain persons who set up that they had been appointed directors after registration of the co.:—Held: art. 52 of Table A can apply only to empower the subscribers to appoint directors after the co. has been registered.

Required by court—Reduction of capital affecting voting rights conferred by articles.]—The ct. has power, under 1867 Act & Companies Act, 1877 (c. 26), to sanction a resolution by a limited co. for a partial reduction of one class of its shares, as for instance, a reduction of original shares already issued & fully paid-up, leaving the unissued shares unreduced; but, if the co.'s arts. of assocn. confer on each shareholder a voting power proportionate to his holding of original shares, the ct. will, before sanctioning the reduction, require that the co. shall alter its arts. so as to make the voting power proportionate to the reduced capital.—*Re PINKNEY & SONS S.S. (b) Power to Alter.

i. In General.

3688. Extent of power—Matter of regulation—Not constitution of company.]—(1) The power given by 1862 Act, s. 50, to a general meeting by special resolution to modify the regulations of the co., is limited to altering the regulations relating to the management of the co., but not to altering its constitution.

(2) Therefore, where a general meeting altered the arts. of assocn. by inserting power to issue new shares with preferential dividend, no such power existing before:—Held: such alteration was an alteration in the constitution of the co., the intention of all parties to the original contract being that all shareholders should stand pari passu with regard to the receipt of dividends, & the ct. granted an injunction restraining the issue of preference shares.—*HUTTON v. ii. Where Special Contractual Rights exist.

3693. Rights of member—No implied term that rights not subject to alteration.]—(1) A limited co. by one of its arts. provided that it should have a lien for all debts & liabilities of any member to the co. "upon all shares—not being fully-paid—held by such member." The co., by way of purchase-money for the property acquired by it, allotted fully-paid shares to Z., a nominee of the vendor to the co. Z. also applied for & had allotted to him shares not paid-up. He was the only holder of fully paid-up shares. At his death he was indebted to the co. in arrears of calls on the unpaid shares, but his assets were insufficient to pay the arrears. Thereupon the co., by special resolution under 1862 Act, s. 50, altered the above art. by omitting therefrom the words "not being fully-paid," thus creating a lien on Z.'s fully-paid shares:—Held: (1) the co. had power to alter its arts. by extending its lien to fully-paid shares; (2) the lien so extended, having been made in good faith, was enforceable against Z.'s fully-paid shares, since he took them subject to the original arts. & the power of altering them given to the co. by 1862 Act, s. 50, & did not make any special or implied bargain that they should not be affected by any subsequent alteration of the arts.; & the fact of those shares being vendor's shares allotted in payment for the property purchased by the co., instead of being shares paid for in cash in the ordinary way, was immaterial.

(2) I am of opinion that the arts. can be so altered [as to impose a lien or restriction in respect of a debt contracted before & existing at the time when the arts. are so altered], & that if they are altered bonâ fide for the benefit of the co., they will be valid & binding as altered on the existing holders of paid-up shares, whether such holders are indebted or not indebted to the co. when the alteration is made. But, it does not by any means follow that the altered art. may not be inapplicable to some particular fully paid-up shareholder. He may have special rights against the co., which do not invalidate the resolution to alter the arts., but which may exempt him from the operation of the arts. as altered (LINDLEY, M.R.).

(3) We are all agreed that a co. cannot contract itself out of the statutory power of alteration conferred by [1862 Act], sect. 50. I take it to be clear that the alteration must be made in good faith & that an alteration in the arts. which involved oppression of one shareholder would not be made in good faith (VAUGHAN WILLIAMS, L.J.).—ALLEN v. 3696. — Reduction of preference shares.]—

(1) A contract made on the issue of any particular class of shares, such as preference shares, that that class of shares shall not be liable to reduction, will be valid.

(2) The fact that, at the time when a class of preference shares was created, the arts. of assocn. of the co. did not authorise any reduction of the capital, will not prevent the reduction of the amount of the preference shares, if a special resolution is previously passed altering the arts. by the insertion of a power of reduction.

(3) The arts. of assocn. of a co., formed in 1864, under 1862 Act, provided that the directors might, from time to time, with the sanction of a special resolution previously given, increase the capital by the issue of scribes shares, & that any capital thus raised be considered as part of the original capital. Whether directors be subject to the same provisions for a co. to have no of the original capital, either co. as its sole managers: for the co. by special resol. & OFFICES Co., LTD. new shares should have suc. J. Ch. 673; 97 L. T. dividends as it should deem exp. 703; 14 Mans. did not contain any power to reduce the capital. In 1872 it was resolved to issue certain preference shares, "bearing interest at 8 per cent. per annum in perpetuity." In 1876 it was resolved to issue certain other preference shares, "entitling the holders to a fixed dividend at 6 per cent. per annum on the amount for the time being paid up in respect of such shares." In both cases it was provided that the preference shareholders should be entitled to attend the general meetings of the co., but that they should not be entitled in virtue of those shares to vote. Both classes of preference shares were issued & were paid up in full, as were also the ordinary shares. In 1885 a special resolution was passed, adding to the arts. of assocn. a clause, authorising the directors from time to time, with the sanction of a special resolution, to reduce the capital by cancelling lost capital, or capital unrepresented by available assets. In Apr. 1888, special resolutions were passed for the reduction of the whole of the capital—including the preference shares—by one-fourth, on the ground that capital to that extent had been lost. A petition by the co. for the confirmation of the resolutions by the ct. was opposed by some of the preference shareholders, who contended that there was no power to reduce the amount of the preference shares, or that at any rate the amount of the dividend payable on those shares could not be reduced:—Held: there was nothing in the bargain with the preference shareholders which prevented the reduction of their shares, & there was nothing unfair or inequitable in the proposed reduction.

The resolutions were accordingly confirmed.—Re BARROW HÆMATITE STEEL Co. (1888), 39 Ch. D.

—(1) A co. cannot contract itself out of its statutory right to alter its arts., even by an agreement independent of & outside the arts. of assocn. The principle of Allen v. Gold Reefs of West Africa, No. 3693, ante, applies to a case between the co. & an outsider on a separate contract, as well as to a case between a co. & a shareholder on the contract contained in the arts.

(2) Where shares had been issued by the directors, not for the general benefit of the co., but for the purpose of controlling the holders of the greater number of shares by obtaining a majority of voting power:—Held: they ought to be restrained from holding the meeting at which the votes of the new shareholders were to have been used.—*PUNT v. 3702. — Alteration enabling minority to be expropriated.]—A co. was in great need of further capital. The majority, representing 98 per cent. of the shares, were willing to provide this capital, if they could buy up the 2 per cent. minority.

Having failed to effect this by agreement, they proposed to pass an art. enabling them to purchase the minority shares compulsorily on certain terms therein mentioned, but were willing to adopt any other mode of ascertaining the value that the ct. thought fit:—Held: in the circumstances the proposed art. was not just or equitable or for the benefit of the co. as a whole, but was simply for the benefit of the majority; it was not therefore an art. that the majority could force on the minority under 1908 Act, s. 13.—*BROWN v. 3703. — —.]—Deft. co., not having power under its original arts. of assocn. to acquire compulsorily the shares of members, passed special resolutions altering its arts. & introducing a power enabling the majority of the shareholders to determine that the shares of any member—other than a certain named co.—should be offered for sale by the directors to such person or persons—whether a member or members or not—as they should think fit at the fair value to be fixed from time to time at stated intervals by the directors. The shareholders in deft. co. were principally cos. & persons manufacturing tinplates who were originally invited to become shareholders on the understanding that, although under no legal obligation to do so, they were to take the steel bars required for their tinplates from deft. co. which was formed as a private co., with the object of providing such supply. Pltf. co., which was an original shareholder of deft. co., subsequently withdrew its custom & transferred it to a new rival steel co. which pltf. co. had been instrumental in forming. Being unable to acquire pltf. co.'s shares by agreement, deft. co. passed the resolutions in question with the object of acquiring pltf. co.'s shares & of protecting deft. co. against conduct on the part of its shareholders detrimental to the interests of the co.:—Held: the resolutions in conferring an unrestricted & unlimited power on the majority of the shareholders to expropriate any shareholder they might think proper at their will & pleasure, went much further than was necessary for the protection of the co. from the conduct of shareholders detrimental to the co.'s interests, & the power thereby conferred could not be bonâ fide or genuinely for the benefit of the co. as a whole & was not such a power as could be assumed by the majority.—*DAFEN TINPLATE Co. v. R. subsequently became a director, & acted as chairman at some meetings. R.'s name also appeared as a director in the prospectus. R. stated that when he acted as chairman he was not aware that any qualification was necessary, & that as soon as he heard of it he took steps to get this resolution rescinded, & ultimately wrote to the secretary resigning his seat at the board. R. had signed a proxy paper as "a member of the co." but had never applied for any shares, nor were any ever allotted to him. The chief clerk settled R. on the list of contributories in respect of fifty qualification shares:—Held: a resolution of the subscribers could not alter the constitution of the co., & there being no contract on R.'s part, either express or implied, to take shares, his name must be removed.—Re PATENT DAVIT & BOAT DETACHING CO., RANKEN'S CASE (1879), 39 L. b. Resolution sanctioning departure from article.]—A general meeting of a co. at which resolutions were taken was held upon nine days' notice.

The arts. of assocn. provided that fourteen days' notice was necessary for convening such a meeting, but another art. provided that the directors could convene a general meeting upon 48 hours' notice when they considered the business for discussion was of sufficient urgency. The notice convening the meeting stated that it was to alter one of the arts. of the co. by removing all the limitations therein contained upon the powers of the directors, & the resolution as passed had the effect of removing such limi-was equivalent to expending money of the co. in the purchase of fully paid-up vendors' shares in the co.; & the directors at the same time issued a circular to the shareholders recommending the adoption of the resolution. The resolution was carried at the meeting, & was afterwards duly confirmed at another extraordinary general meeting:—Held: the notice was a sufficient intimation to the shareholders of what it was proposed to do, & the resolution was valid & operative, as being in effect a rescission of the prohibitive art. so far as necessary, & an instruction to the directors to carry out the proposed scheme by virtue of their new powers.—*TAYLOR v. (d) Effect of Alteration.

3724. Not retrospective—Alteration of directors' remuneration.]—A co., whose arts. of assocn. provided that the directors' remuneration should be at a certain rate, altered these arts. by special resolution, which purported to make the altered rate of remuneration effective from a date prior to the special resolution:—Held: though the arts. did not constitute a contract between the co. & the directors but only pointed out the terms on which the directors were serving, & though these terms could be altered by a special resolution altering the arts., still the alterations could have effect only for the future, & the directors were entitled to remuneration at the old rate until the arts. were altered.

The arts. do not themselves constitute a contract, they are merely the regulations by which provision is made for the way the business of the co. is to be carried on. A person who acts as director with those arts. before him enters into a contract with the co. to serve as a director, the remuneration to be at the rate contemplated by the arts. The person who does this has before him, as one of the stipulations of the contract, that it shall be possible for his employer to alter the terms upon which he is to serve, in which case he would have the option of continuing to serve, if he thought proper, at the reduced rate of remuneration. Those terms, however, could be altered only as to the future. In so far as the contract on those terms had already been carried into effect it is incapable of alteration by the co. (LORD HALSBURY, C.).

It would be absurd to hold that one of the parties to a contract could alter it as to service already performed under it. The co. has power to alter the arts., but the directors would be entitled to their salary at the rate originally stated in the arts. up to the time the arts. were altered (LORD ESHER, M.R.).—*SWABEY v. By resolutions subsequently passed & confirmed at meetings duly convened & held in 1826, it was resolved, "That the capital to be raised for the purposes of the co. should no longer consist of the sum of £2,000,000 sterling, divided into 20,000 shares of £100 each, as declared by the deed of settlement, but should be limited to the sum of £1,000,000 sterling, & should be considered as divided into 20,000 shares of £50 each." By resolutions in 1838, the resolutions of 1826 were rescinded, & the original amount of capital & shares was again restored:—Held: (1) the amount of capital & of the shares was part of the constitution of the co., & could not be altered by the above resolutions; (2) the effect of passing such resolutions was not to dissolve the co., but the resolutions were simply inoperative & void, & the shares were always in point of law £100 shares.—*SMITH v. 3727. — Valid resolution passed at the same time not affected.—A co. which was in difficulties duly passed a resolution for voluntary winding up, with a view of disposing of its undertaking, which was carried on in France, to a French co. to be formed for the purpose; & at the same time it passed other resolutions as to the transfer to the French co., & a special resolution altering the arts. of assocn., so as to give power to carry out the arrangement without giving dissentient shareholders the option to receive the value of their shares in cash, as provided by 1862 Act, s. 161. These resolutions, except the resolution for winding up, were passed irregularly, but no shareholder dissented from them except one fully paid-up shareholder, who applied to the co. to pay him the value of his shares, which was refused. He then presented a petition praying that the co. might be wound up compulsorily, or under supervision, or that he might be at liberty to sue in the name of the co. to set aside the proposed arrangements, or that the value of his shares might be ascertained & paid:—Held: (1) the resolution to wind up voluntarily having been regularly passed, the ct. would not, on the application of a fully paid-up shareholder, interfere with it by ordering a compulsory winding up or a winding up under supervision, against the wishes of nearly all the shareholders; (2) the winding-up resolution being good in itself, was not invalidated by being associated with resolutions which were not regularly passed.

Qu.: whether it would have been invalidated, even if those other resolutions had been ultra vires.

Held: (3) leave to sue in the name of the co. had rightly been refused, as the resolutions authorising a transfer to the French co. were not ultra vires, but, although irregular, were capable of confirmation; (4) the special resolution altering the arts. while the co. was in difficulties, & as a part of the scheme for transfer to the French co., was invalid, & petitioner was entitled to have the value of his shares ascertained & paid, as provided by 1862 Act, s. 161.—*Re IRRIGATION CO. 3728. — May form basis of contract.—Pursuer insured his ship with the defenders, a mutual assurance assocn. The policy provided that the "provisions contained in the arts. of assocn. shall be deemed & considered part of this policy." Five years before the date of the policy the co., having full power under its arts. of assocn. to do so, resolved to alter, inter alia, one of its arts., by substituting these words for others: "That it shall be a condition of this insurance that the assured shall keep one-fifth," of the value of such ship, "uninsured." This addition to the art. was not confirmed by a special resolution passed in accordance with 1862 Act, ss. 50, 51; but it was registered, & printed with the arts. on the back of each policy. The pursuer had also insured with another co., the result being that he had insured altogether for more than four-fifths:—Held: the irregularity in the procedure by which the arts. had been altered did not prevent it from being binding upon the pursuer, & the condition, contained in such art. having been broken, he was not entitled to recover upon the policy.—*MURHEAD v. SUB-SECT. 3.—MEETINGS OF MEMBERS.

A. In General.

3729. Statutory meeting—What is.—A registered co. held a meeting within four months after registration, which was described in their minute book as the statutory meeting. It was adjourned:—Held: this meeting was an ordinary general meeting within 1862 Act, ss. 26, 27, & the directors were liable to a penalty for not returning a list of their shareholders within fourteen days petition to the ct. for confirmation of the reduction of capital:—Held: the procedure had been irregular in respect that at the time when the resolution for reducing share capital was passed, the co. had no power to reduce capital & that no procedure could be taken on the resolution altering the arts. of assocn. & conferring power to reduce capital until that resolution had been confirmed at a subsequent general meeting.—OREGON MORTGAGE CO., LTD., PETITIONERS, [1910] S. C. 964.—SCOT.

3729 1. Statutory meeting—What is.—"Statutory meeting" in Cos. Act, 1908, s. 96 (1), means a statutory meeting as defined in sect. 87 (1) of the Act, & a co. which is not entitled to commence business as not having complied with sect. 99 of the Act cannot hold a statutory meeting within sect. 96 (1).—SHORTLAND FLAT GOLD-MINING CO., LTD. v. KNEEBONE (1912), 31 N. Z. L. R. 1039.—N.Z.

3730. Sufficiency of notice convening.]—The T. co. was incorporated as a co. limited by shares under 1908 Act, on Jan. 3, 1911. Its arts. of assocn. provided that the statutory meeting of the co. should be held at such time—within the statutory limit—and at such place as the directors should determine, & that the notices convening general meetings of the co.—whether ordinary or extraordinary—must specify the general nature of the business to be transacted thereat. The T. co. held only two general meetings—one of which, held on Jan. 30, 1911, was for the purpose of passing, & the other, on Feb. 14, 1911, was for the purpose of confirming, a special resolution for the increase of the co.'s share capital. The meeting of Jan. 30 was held too soon to be the statutory meeting of the co.; & the notices of the meeting of Feb. 14 referred only to the business of confirming the resolution passed at the previous meeting; but this meeting, so far as its date was concerned, might have been the statutory meeting:—Held: if the meeting of Feb. 14, 1911, was intended to be the statutory meeting, it was not properly convened, for, if it was to be the statutory meeting, the notices convening it should have so stated.—*GARDNER v. The last general meeting of the co. was held on Mar. 21, 1916:—Held: the sect. created two separate offences, that of not holding the meeting in the calendar year, & that of not holding it within fifteen months after the last meeting; the directors had the whole of the calendar year in which to comply with the former requirement none the less because the period of fifteen months from the date of the last meeting had already expired; & the offence charged in the information was not committed until after Dec. 31, 1917.—*SMEDLEY v. 3736. — Where articles provide for ordinary general meetings—May call extraordinary general meetings.]—In the absence of express power in the arts. of assocn., directors have no power to postpone a general meeting of shareholders which has been properly convened. The fact that the directors have power to fix the time & place of the meeting & to adjourn the meeting does not give them the power.

The fact that the arts. of assocn. provide that ordinary general meetings are to be held in certain months does not prevent directors from calling extraordinary meetings of the shareholders at other times at which the business of ordinary meetings may be transacted, & if the meeting is called as an ordinary meeting at some other time of the year, it may nevertheless be treated as the ordinary meeting for the purpose of the election of directors & other ordinary business.—*SMITH v. 3738. Requisition for meeting—Who entitled to make requisition.]—A co. had a nominal capital of 60,000 shares, of which 48,000 shares had been offered for subscription. The issued share capital was 22,357 shares, on 5,094 of which all calls & sums due had been paid. A requisition under 1908 Act, s. 66 (1) calling upon the directors to convene an extraordinary general meeting was signed by the holders of 690 out of the 5,094 shares. The requisition consisted of a number of documents which were in two forms. By the first form the directors were requested to call an extraordinary general meeting of the co. for the purpose of considering the reconstruction of the board & resolutions concerning the directorate & officers of the co. The second was in identical terms, except that there were added at the end of it the words "in addition to the affairs of the co. in general":—Held: (1) the "one-tenth" referred to in 1908 Act, s. 66 (1), was one-tenth of that part of the issued share capital of the co. upon which all calls or other sums then due had been paid, & not one-tenth of the issued share capital of the co. the holders of which one-tenth had paid all calls, etc., upon their shares, & therefore, the requisition was signed by a sufficient number of duly qualified shareholders; (2) the documents constituting the requisition were "in like form" within sect. 66 (2) of the Act.—*FRUIT & VEGETABLE GROWERS' ASSOCN., LTD. v. The notice purported to be issued by order of the board. A requisition had been served on the co. in accordance with the arts. requiring the calling of the meeting. In fact no meeting of directors was held after the receipt of the requisition, but a meeting of directors was held on Dec. 16, the day after the writ was issued, at which it was resolved that the directors should adopt, ratify, & confirm the action of the secretary in issuing the notice convening the meeting. The only question for determination was whether the meeting had been validly summoned:—Held: on ratification by the directors the notice became good for all purposes.—HOOPER v. KERR, STUART & Co., LTD. (1900), 83 L. T. 729; 17 T. L. R. 162; 45 Sol. Jo. 139.

3743. Requisition for meeting—Meeting summoned by secretary without authority—Validity.]—(1) A co. was governed, so far as the calling of meetings was concerned, by 1862 Act, Table A, art. 32. By the arts. of assocn. two directors constituted a quorum. A requisition was sent to the directors in accordance with Companies Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 13, requesting them to convene a meeting to pass an extraordinary resolution for voluntary winding up. Within the 21 days allowed to the directors for convening a meeting, the secretary of the co., without the authority of the directors, summoned the meeting. At the meeting two directors, the requisitionists, & many shareholders were present, & the resolution was passed by the required majority. At the hearing of a petition by a creditor for the compulsory winding up of the co., the defence was set up that a voluntary winding up was pending, & that petitioner did not show that he was thereby prejudiced:—Held: the secretary had no power to issue the notices, there was no ratification of his

of the co. signed the minute of the resolution. A meeting of the creditors of the co. was subsequently held, when the voluntary winding up of the co. was confirmed & a resolution passed for the appointment of a joint liquidator. An order confirming that appointment was made by the county ct. registrar. Subsequently the registrar, on the application of the judgment creditor, made an order, which was confirmed by the county ct. judge, setting aside the appointment of the two liquidators on the ground that a valid resolution to wind up the co. voluntarily had not been passed:—Held: it was competent for the shareholders of the co. acting together to waive the formalities required by 1908 Act, s. 69, as to notice of intention to propose a resolution as an extraordinary resolution, & as all the shareholders of the co. had met & passed the resolution to wind up the co., the resolution was valid as an extraordinary resolution within 1908 Act, s. 182, & it was not open to a creditor to impeach its validity.—Re OXTED MOTOR CO., [1921] 3 K. 3757. Where specific object to be stated—Object not stated—Meeting invalidated.]—By the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co., the directors were specifically authorised to purchase shares of members under certain circumstances, but the deed contained no express prohibition restricting the directors from buying up shares generally. The co., becoming embarrassed, summoned an extraordinary general meeting, at which a resolution was passed, authorising the directors to purchase & take a transfer of the shares of any member who would lend the co. a sum of money equal to the purchase-money of his shares. The notice calling the meeting did not state, as required by the deed, the specific object for which the meeting was called. At a subsequent general meeting, at which the resolution was read, the directors were authorised to give further time to the members who had not yet complied with the terms of the resolution. L. then sold his shares to a trustee for the co. upon the terms stated in the resolution, & died before the transfer was effected; & the directors, at the instance of his exor., completed the requisite formalities of the transfer:—Held: the resolution of the extra-consider a resolution for approving & adopting the agreement, but not stating any ground for a meeting being necessary. The resolution was passed as an ordinary resolution, but not as a special resolution:—Held: (1) though a resolution giving the directors powers to do certain acts in future which they were not authorised by the arts. to do, would be an alteration of the arts., & would require to be passed as a special resolution, the adoption of a contract which was within the objects of the co., but which the directors had entered into without authority, was not an alteration of the arts., & could be effected by ordinary resolution; (2) the resolution of the general meeting was not invalidated by the fact that the notice convening it did not suggest any reason why the contract could not be carried into effect without the sanction of a general meeting.

(3) A majority of a meeting called with due notice of the object for which it was called could make this a contract of this co., & it would be wrong for the ct. to interfere with the proceedings of a general meeting as to an act within the powers of the co. Notice was given that an extraordinary general meeting would be held on July 12, at the hour & place therein mentioned for the purpose of considering, & if deemed advisable, of passing the resolutions set forth in the notice, & it concluded, "should such resolutions be duly passed the same will be submitted for confirmation as special resolutions to a subsequent extraordinary general meeting which will be held on July 29, at the same time & place":—Held: the meeting was invalid, for though it was possible to put on the notice the construction that a meeting would be held on July 29, whether the resolutions were passed on July 12 or not, the construction which an ordinary business man would put upon the notice would be that the meeting would be held only if the resolutions were passed at the first meeting; the notice of the second meeting was therefore conditional, & being bad when sent, could not be made good by the shareholders acquiring information aliunde that the resolutions had been passed at the first meeting.—ALEXANDER v. SIMPSON (1889), 43 Ch. D. 139; 59 L. J. Ch. 137; 61 L. T. 708; 38 W. R. 161; 6 T. L. R. 72; 1 Meg. 457, C. A.

The arts. gave power to remove directors by special resolution. The only notice B. had of the board meeting was a notice given less than ten minutes before the time of holding it, & not stating the nature of the business. The notices for the general meeting were issued, & four days before the time for the meeting B. who up to that time had made no complaint of the short notice, brought his action to restrain the co. from holding the meeting, on the ground that the board which summoned it was not duly constituted, as B. had not received proper notice & could not attend. The general meeting was held & passed the resolution:—Held: assuming the board meeting to be so far irregular that pltf. might have objected & required another to be summoned, the general meeting, having been summoned, in all other respects regularly, by directors acting as a board, was competent to act.

(a) In General.

3773. How conducted—In compliance with Acts & articles.—The 1862 Act is not intended to & does not abrogate the arts. of assocn. of any co. properly incorporated under its provisions. Where, therefore, the arts. of assocn. of a co. require a certain quorum before business can be proceeded with, & a certain qualification in members for voting, & the Act requires certain formalities to be observed & a certain majority of votes to be obtained to give validity to certain resolutions, the requirements both of the Act & of the arts. must be strictly observed, otherwise no binding resolutions can be passed.—Re CAMBRIAN PEAT, FUEL, & CHARCOAL CO., LTD., DE LA MOTT'S & TURNER'S CASE (1875), 31 L. 3775. — Resolutions mentioned in notice—Whether amendment may be moved.—(1) There is no very precise meaning in law to be given to the word "amalgamate" in the memorandum of assocn. of a co., but Seemle: the sale by one co. to another, in consideration of shares in the purchasing co., of all the vendor co.'s assets, except certain shares in the purchasing co. held by the vendor co., is authorised by a clause in the memorandum of assocn. of the vendor co. allowing the co. to "amalgamate" with another co.

(2) At a general meeting of a co. the chairman by the vote of the majority can stop the debate after the resolutions have been reasonably discussed.

(3) An amendment altering the terms of a resolution cannot be moved at a second meeting which has been called simply for the purpose of confirming or rejecting the resolution.—WALL v. 3776. — — — — ——In passing a special resolution under 1862 Act, s. 51, the resolution confirmed at the second meeting must be in the same form as that passed at the first meeting, but it is not necessary that the resolution passed at the first meeting should be in the identical terms of the resolution specified in the notice of such meeting. If, therefore, a proper & sufficient notice of the intention to propose a special resolution at a general meeting has been given, the resolution will not be invalidated if, owing to an amendment at the first meeting, the resolution then passed & afterwards confirmed at the subsequent general meeting, of which notice specifying the amended resolution has been duly given, is not identical with the proposed resolution specified in the earlier notice.—TORBOCK v. 3778. — — — — ——Notice was given of an extraordinary meeting of shareholders in a co. for the purpose of considering, & if thought fit, passing resolutions for a voluntary winding up, with the appointment of a liquidator at a fixed remuneration, for the purpose of reconstruction in accordance with the terms of a draft agreement. At the meeting the only resolution put was for the voluntary winding up of the co., with the appointment of a liquidator. On the petition of a creditor:—Held: a compulsory order must be made, on the ground that the resolution put to the meeting was not in accordance with the resolutions of which notice had been given, & therefore no valid resolutions for a voluntary winding up had ever been passed.—Re TEEDE & BISHOP, LTD. (1901), 70 L. 3779. Meeting summoned as directors' meeting—Directors only members—Validity as general meeting.—A syndicate of five persons formed a private co., in which they were the sole shareholders, & sold to it for £15,000 in debentures of the co., property which they had, a few days before, acquired for £7000. The contract for the sale & the issue of the debentures was carried out at a meeting of the five who there & then appointed themselves directors. This meeting was described in the minutes as a board meeting. At a subsequent meeting the seal of the co. was affixed to the debentures. The arts. of the co. provided that no director should vote in respect of any contract or arrangement, in which he might be interested. In the winding up of the co. the liquidator claimed a declaration that the issue of the debentures was invalid & should not be set aside:—Held: there being no suggestion of fraud, the co. was bound in a matter intra vires

1. Appointment of scrutineers—Conflicting interests.—At a meeting of the shareholders of a co., a chairman was elected by a majority of the votes of those present. Two shareholders who were also provisional directors, & who were candidates for re-election, were appointed scrutineers in the same manner, & directors were then elected, excluding pltf. It was the duty of the scrutineers to decide as to what votes were valid, & they also interpreted an instrument under which pltf. had advanced money to start the co., & which provided for the future disposition of the shares of the co., held by pltf. as security for his advances, & allowed persons to vote as being ordinary resolution passed at a separate general meeting of the holders of shares of that class, & "all the provisions hereinafter contained as to general meetings shall, mutatis mutandis, apply to every such meeting, but so that the quorum thereof shall be members holding or representing three-fourths of the nominal amount of the issued shares of the class." The subsequent provisions as to general meetings provided, inter alia, that the quorum thereat should be members personally present, not being less than three in number, holding or representing one-tenth of the issued capital of the co.; & that if at an adjourned meeting a quorum was not present those members who were present should be a quorum. These arts. were said to be in the common form:—Held: although the provisions as to general meetings were to apply, mutatis mutandis, to class meetings, they must be so applied subject to the provision above quoted, which was inserted in art. 13 for the purpose of protecting the rights of the privileged class of shareholders; & accordingly at all class meetings, whether adjourned or not, the quorum must be three-fourths of the members of the class required by art. 13.—*HEMANS v. (d) Voting.

i. In General.

3798. Method of voting—No provision in articles.]—In ascertaining the majority on a special resolution put to a general meeting of a co. the chairman is not entitled, unless a poll is demanded, to take account of the number of votes which each member has, but the voting will go by the mere numerical majority of those members present in person or by proxy; & semble: if a poll is demanded, then it must be a poll not merely of the members present in person or by proxy at the meeting, but of all the members of the co.

The common law of all meetings is that votes are taken by a show of hands, & that common law must prevail unless the arts. of assocn. of a co. contain any provision to the contrary.—Re HORBURY BRIDGE COAL, IRON, & WAGGON CO. (1879), 11 Ch. (2) Semble: under such circumstances, an individual shareholder might, notwithstanding Foss v. Harbottle, No. 4100, post, institute a suit in his own name, to set aside a transaction, which the co. was competent to confirm.

At a meeting of the co. a poll took place upon an amendment to a resolution, & the chairman declared the amendment carried, but it would have been lost if the chairman had not ruled out 649 votes, on the ground that—as the fact was—they were given by nominees of P. & other large shareholders, who had executed duly registered transfers of some other shares, for the sole purpose of increasing their voting powers:—Held: the votes ought to have been counted in; the right of voting being the legal right of a registered shareholder, & the directors having no right to enquire into his motives, or his beneficial interest in his shares.

Proxies had been given to A., who was not a member of the co., & failing him to B., who was not a member. A. voted under these proxies & no objection was taken at the time:—Held: the validity of these votes could not be afterwards disputed.

(2) A vote given by the representative of a co. under a resolution passed pursuant to 1908 Act, s. 68, can be properly admitted by the chair-

—Held: the words "at the next general meeting" were merely indicative of the earliest period at which the bondholders might vote, & the statute did not require a new registration in order to entitle the bondholders to vote at any subsequent meeting, so long as the interest remained unpaid; the bondholders' right to vote was not limited to the right of voting for directors, but that they had the right to vote on all subjects properly coming before a general annual meeting upon which shareholders might vote.

Where a subsequent statute extended the bondholders' right of voting to "special meetings":—Held: the bondholders had the like right to vote on all subjects coming before "special meetings."—HENDRIE v. GRAND TRUNK RY. CO. OF CANADA, GRAND man on the evidence afforded by the copy of such resolution.

(3) Arts. of assocn. of an English co. provided that "the instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointer or his attorney duly authorised in that behalf, or, if such appointer is a corp., under its common seal." A South African co. having no common seal & not required to have one was a shareholder in the English co., & by writing under the hands of two directors appointed an attorney in England to vote on its behalf, with power of substitution. Acting under this power the attorney appointed himself proxy in the form prescribed by the arts. & claimed to vote either under the power of attorney or under the proxy. The chairman rejected this vote:—Held: the requirement of a common seal only applied to corps. having a common seal according to English law, & the attorney of the South African co. was entitled to vote at any rate under the proxy if not under the power of attorney itself.—*COLONIAL GOLD REEF, LTD. v. 3805. — Trustees—Shares held by way of security.—(1) Where a co. makes an issue of debenture stock which it secures by a debenture trust deed, & as part of the specifically mortgaged property causes shares in another co. to be registered in the names of the trustees of the deed, the trustees are, in the absence of any contract restricting their rights, entitled, as the legal owners of the shares, to exercise the voting rights in respect of them in such manner as in their judgment they may deem best, irrespective of any directions of the mtgor. co. as to how the voting rights should be exercised, & this, notwithstanding that the security is not yet enforceable.

(2) Where arts. of assocn. give a right to demand a poll to "members holding" at least a specified number of shares, joint holders of the specified number of shares may demand a poll without the support of any other member.—*SIEMENS BROTHERS & Co. v. 3806. — Executor.—A co. having common form arts. of assocn., including a "transaction clause" dealing with persons becoming entitled to shares in consequence of death, admitted the right of an exor. of a deceased member to vote in respect of that member's shares, but did not expressly confine the admission to the right to vote at that particular meeting:—Held: the exor. had the right to vote in respect of those shares at a subsequent meeting.—*MARKS v. How right to vote lost—Money due on shares—Forfeited & reissued—New holder unable to vote till arrears paid.—By the arts. of assocn. of a co. it was provided that after the forfeiture of shares the directors of the co. should be entitled to recover from the shareholder calls & other sums due in respect of the forfeited shares, & that no member should be entitled to vote whilst any calls or other sums should be due & payable to the co. in respect of the shares of such member.

Shares were forfeited for non-payment of calls, & resold by the co. to a purchaser, to whom a certificate was issued stating that he was to be deemed to be the holder of the shares discharged from all calls due:—Held: the purchaser of the shares was not entitled to vote whilst any calls or other sums remained due & payable to the co. from the original holder of the shares.—*RANDT GOLD MINING CO., LTD. v. 3814. ——— Demand by specified number of members—Whether public demand necessary.—At a general meeting held under 1862 Act, s. 51, for the purpose of considering a special resolution, it is not necessary for the validity of a demand for a poll that the five members demanding it should then & there openly & publicly make the demand; it being sufficient if the demand is made by them informally & privately, & the bare fact of the demand stated to the meeting by the chairman.

A general meeting was called for the purpose of considering a proposal to wind up a limited co. voluntarily. Upon a show of hands being taken with reference to an amendment to a resolution to that effect, the chairman, after stating that the result was in favour of the amendment, said "a poll is demanded," & at once proceeded to cause a poll to be taken accordingly; announcing subsequently that the amendment was lost; whereupon, the poll not being challenged, the original resolution was duly carried, & afterwards confirmed. A petition by two shareholders having been presented before the general meeting, praying that the co. might be ordered to be wound up by the ct., the petitioners pressed their demand, on the ground, among others, that the poll had been improperly directed, inasmuch as the requisite five members had not openly & publicly demanded it. It appeared, however, at the hearing of the petition that five members, including the chairman, supporting the proposal to wind up voluntarily, had privately agreed that, if the show of hands should be against them, a poll should be demanded:—Held: the chairman was justified in the course he took; the poll was not improperly demanded: & the resolutions could not be impeached successfully on that ground.—Re PHOENIX ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO., LTD. (1883), 48 L. 3815. ——— Shares held jointly.—A co.'s arts. provided that at general meetings resolutions were to be decided by a numerical majority of votes, unless a poll was demanded by three members, & that when two or more persons were entitled to a share the one whose name stood first on the register should be the only one entitled to vote. Pltfs., who numbered more than three, held a majority of shares & they opposed certain resolutions, which were, however, carried on a show of hands. Owing to some of pltfs.' shares being jointly held they only counted as two persons & so did not amount to the three persons necessary for the demand of a poll. Pltfs. brought an action to restrain the carrying out of the resolutions & asked for an injunction until the trial:—Held: without prejudice to the question whether pltfs. would be entitled to an injunction at the trial, they should have an interlocutory injunction.—CORY v. REINDEER STEAMSHIP, LTD. (1915), 31 T. L. R. 530; 59 Sol. Jo. 629.

At a general meeting of the co., a resolution having been lost upon a show of hands, the chairman demanded a poll & directed that it should be taken by means of polling papers signed by the members & delivered at the offices of the co. on or before a fixed day & hour:—Held: having regard to the terms of the arts., such a mode of taking the poll was unauthorised & invalid.—*McMILLAN v. Thereupon one of the candidates obtained a rule calling on the society & the other candidates to show cause why the declaration of the election should not be postponed until after the receipt of the voting papers from England, & why such voting papers should not count in the election. The ct. discharged the rule on the ground that the terms of the Act had been strictly followed & there had been no irregularity.—LANCE v. SOUTH AFRICAN MUTUAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (1914), 5 C. P. D. 1004.—S. AF.

The arts. also provided for votes being given either personally or by proxy appointed in writing or under the common seal of a corp'n. Only persons entitled to vote at any general meeting were to act as proxies, except that a co. which was a member might by proxy authorise a representative to act at meetings for them. H., vice-president of the American co. who held a power of attorney from that co., issued a requisition & notice for an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the English co., at which he was chairman & voted as proxy, & which meeting, on a poll, purported to pass two resolutions, increasing the number of directors to sixteen & electing additional directors:—Held: (1) the express power vested in the board of appointing additional directors excluded any implied concurrent power to the same effect in the co. which had by its constitution delegated to the members of the board for the time being the sole right of appointing additional directors; an interim injunction was granted against defts. restraining them from acting as directors of the English co.; (2) the questions of H.'s right to act as chairman & to vote stood on the same footing, & the exception in the arts. practically reproducing sect. 68 of 1908 Act, the word "company," had the meaning assigned to it by sect. 285 of the same Act & was limited to a co. within the meaning of the latter sect. The solr. accordingly filed the bill in Chancery in the name of the co. against the three directors who supported the validity of the poll to restrain the gentleman who had been declared elected from acting. A meeting of shareholders was subsequently held, at which resolutions were passed repudiating the Chancery proceedings:—Held: the return of the poll was to be considered good until it was brought into question before a proper tribunal, in a proper manner; & therefore the solr. having accepted a retainer from persons not authorised to pledge the credit of the co., the bill must be taken off the file, & the costs paid by the solr.—WANDSWORTH & PUTNEY GAS LIGHT & COKE CO. v. WRIGHT (1870), 22 L. 3840. Compliance with form prescribed in articles—Prescribed form applicable to particular meeting—Proxies for voting at any meeting.—Art. 60 of the arts. of assocn. of a co. provided that “any instrument appointing a proxy shall as nearly as circumstances will admit be in the following form,” & then followed a form applicable to voting at one particular meeting. Art. 101 provided that if any difference should arise between the co. & any member in regard to rights under the arts. it should be referred to arbitration.

At an extraordinary meeting of the co. a resolution that the directors, of whom there were three, should be not more than five & that two named persons should be appointed directors, received a majority of votes on a poll but the chairman declared it lost on the ground that the proxies for certain votes which were recorded in favour of the resolution & without which it would not have received a majority, were for voting at any meeting & not at the particular meeting only. The three previous directors then held a directors’ meeting & two of them appointed a fourth director, & thereupon the co. & the third of the previous directors & the two persons named as directors in the resolution brought an action against the other directors for a declaration that the appointment contained in the resolution was valid. Defts. moved for a stay under Arbitration Act, 1889 (c. 49), & pl’tfs. asked for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the exclusion of the directors named in the resolution from acting as such:—Held: art. 101 referred to differences between the co. & a member in his capacity as such & as the real difference in the case was between rival sets of directors the stay must be refused; art. 60 was merely directory & therefore the proxies were valid & pl’tfs. should have an injunction until trial.—*ISAACS v. A holder of 2,000 preferent shares voted by proxy. The arts. of assocn. provided that “the quorum necessary for a general meeting shall be members present in person or by proxy representing & holding not less than one-half of the issued shares”; & that the holder of a preferent share should have three votes, & the holder of an ordinary share one vote:—Held: the provisions of the arts. of assocn. as to voting by proxy must apply; & effect must be given to the resolution.—*WILLIAMS v. A bill was then filed by the removed directors to set aside the proceedings of the meeting & the election of the new directors:—Held: on a motion for an injunction to restrain the new directors from acting, the expression “reasonable cause” in the co.’s deed did not refer to such a cause as in a ct. would be held reasonable, but only to such a cause as should be deemed reasonable by the shareholders assembled at a meeting duly convened, & therefore, the ct. had no jurisdiction to interfere; nor, where no case of direct fraud was proved, to determine whether the decision of the meeting had or had not been unduly influenced by unfounded statements made by persons taking an active part in the proceedings.—*INDERWICK v. To comply with sect. 192 (1) of the Act, there must at least be a special resolution authorising the liquidator to accept shares as the consideration for the sale. In the absence of such a special resolution there would be no special resolution to which the provision relating to dissentients in sect. 192 (3) could apply.

Semble: a special resolution passed on a show of hands—no poll being demanded—by a three-fourths majority, as provided by sect. 69 of the Act, & subsequently confirmed, is sufficient to attached to any class of shares, the consent of the shareholders affected must be obtained by a resolution passed by a majority of the shareholders of that class holding three-fourths of the share capital of that class:—Held: a resolution passed by six out of the twelve holders of preference shares in a co. was not in compliance with the sect., even though the six shareholders were the only shareholders present or represented at the meeting, & though they held more than three-fourths of the preference shares.—Re ARDEN COAL CO., [1922] S. If the interval is less than fourteen clear days the statutory defect in the resolution only affects the position of the co. & its shareholders inter se, & does not concern the creditors. Thus, where a director of a co. took shares in new capital raised under a resolution passed & confirmed at meetings the interval between which was thirteen days only, & the co. afterwards went into liquidation:—Held: he was precluded from objecting to the validity of the resolution as a ground for his removal from the list of contributories.—Re MILLER'S DALE & ASHWOOD DALE LIME CO. (1885), 31 Ch. In 1913 a special resolution was passed for the conversion of the society into a co. limited by shares pursuant to Friendly Society Act, 1896 (c. 25), s. 71. The objects of the co. under its memorandum were restricted to the objects of the society immediately prior to the conversion. There were no signatories to the memorandum of assocn., & no register of shareholders of the co.; nor had any shares been in fact allotted. It was estimated that two years might elapse before the allotment of shares could be made. In 1914 a special resolution of the co. was passed altering & extending the object clauses of the memorandum. Upon a petition being presented by the co. for the confirmation by the ct. of this special resolution:—Held: the conversion of the society into a limited co. under Friendly Society Act, 1896 (c. 25), s. 71, did not involve the simultaneous conversion of the members of the society into members of the co., & inasmuch as there were no members of the co. in existence within the definition of 1908 Act, s. 24, there was no special resolution properly passed which the ct. could confirm, & no such order as was asked could be made on the petition.—Re BLACKBURN PHILANTHROPIC ASSURANCE CO., LTD., [1914] 2 Ch. 430; 84 L. (1) The arts. of assocn. of a co. gave power to the chairman at any general meeting of the co., with the consent of the meeting, to adjourn the meeting, & also provided for taking a poll if demanded by five shareholders. At a general meeting of the co. the adjournment of the meeting was moved, & on being put, was declared by the chairman, who was one of the directors, to be carried. A poll was duly demanded, but the chairman ruled that there could not be a poll on the question of adjournment, & left the room. One of the shareholders filed a bill on behalf of himself & all other shareholders except the directors, against the directors & the co., stating these facts, & alleging that the course taken at the meeting was taken in collusion with the directors, with a view of stifling discussion, & that the directors were intending to carry out certain measures injurious to the co. without submitting the terms to a general meeting; & praying for a declaration that the conduct of the chairman was illegal & improper, & for an injunction to restrain the directors from carrying out the proposed arrangements without submitting them to the shareholders for their approval:—Held: on demurrer, the bill could not be sustained, inasmuch as it violated the rule laid down in *Mozley v. 3881. What amounts to an adjournment—Whether postponement of poll.—A poll demanded at a co. meeting was directed to be taken at a future date, but the meeting itself was not adjourned:—Held: the mere postponement of the poll was not an adjournment ad hoc of the meeting within the meaning of an art. allowing the lodgment of proxies 48 hours before a meeting "or adjourned meeting," but the original meeting continued for the purpose of the poll, & no fresh proxies could be lodged.—SHAW v. TATI CONCESSIONS, LTD., [1913] 1 Ch. 292; 82 L. J. Ch. 159; 108 L. T. 487; 29 T. L. R. 261; 57 Sol. Jo. 322; 20 Mans. 104.

3882. Effect of adjournment—Unfinished business—Date of completion—Date of adjourned meeting.—One of the arts. of assocn. of a limited co. provided that a member should not be qualified to be elected a director unless written notice of the intention in that behalf were given to the co. not less than fourteen clear days before the "day of election" of directors. The ordinary general meeting of the co. was held on Dec. 10, 1915, at which meeting, according to the arts., the two deft. directors retired by rotation. The report of the directors was not adopted; there was no election of directors, but a committee of shareholders was appointed to investigate the affairs of the co. & report to a general meeting, & the meeting stood adjourned to receive this report. On Feb. 21, 1916, written notice was given to the co. by a shareholder stating that at the adjourned meeting he proposed to move the election of four named members as directors. The adjourned meeting was held on Mar. 10, 1916, to consider the committee's report & to transact the unfinished business. The chairman ruled the notice of Feb. 21, 1916, to be out of order, & after declaring the election of auditors said there was no further business & left the chair. Subsequently the shareholders appointed a chairman & elected the four new directors. On motion by the shareholders for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the two former directors from acting:—Held: the day of election of directors within the meaning of the art. was the date of the adjourned meeting on Mar. 10, 1916; the notice of Feb. 21, 1916, was in compliance with that art.; & the first two persons elected as directors in lieu of the two who retired were duly elected.—*CATESBY v. An entry was made in the minute book stating the names of parties & the number of shares subscribed for, the name of the chairman, who signed the minute, being set down for 100 shares. The minute was signed, not at the next meeting, but after the proceedings to wind up the co.:—Held: the minute was prima facie evidence against all who were present at the meeting, & in the absence of counter evidence showing the incorrectness of the minute, the chairman was liable as a contributory for 100 shares.—Re LLANHARRY HEMATITE IRON ORE CO., LTD., RONEY'S CASE, STOCK'S CASE (1864), 4 De G. At the time material there were two directors, & one only being resident in England, it was agreed between them that he should carry on the business there as sole manager, though no minute was entered of a resolution to that effect. The English director subsequently, acting alone, authorised the sealing & issue of debentures to pltf. who purchased them bonâ fide. These debentures were sealed in the presence of the English director & of the secretary only, art. 76 of Table A requiring the presence of two directors & the secretary & they were duly registered as a series in accordance with 1908 Act, s. 93 (3):—Held: evidence was admissible that the two directors had agreed that one should act as a quorum, & though there was no minute of any resolution as to that the ct. would presume that a resolution to that effect was passed.

There was no quorum present at the adjourned meeting, & this meeting was accordingly adjourned sine die, under art. 42. The secretary of the co. prepared a list of the persons who were members of the co. on the fourteenth day after Dec. 6, 1910, giving such particulars as are required by Cos. h. Cancellation of charter — For failing to make statutory return—Procedure.]—An order in council purport-was to secure the sending in of the list & summary once a year, & the enactment as to the time of sending in the same was merely directory; (2) there was evidence that applt. continued to be director; & (3) there was evidence that applt. knowingly & wilfully permitted the co.'s default.

In my judgment, there is prima facie evidence that he "knowingly & wilfully" permitted the default upon the part of the co., for a director is one "who directs" the proceedings of the co. No step can be taken & no omission can occur in its management without his having the power to raise an objection. He is therefore prima facie responsible for any default on the part of the co., & the burden of proof lies upon him to show that the failure to do what was required of the co. happened without any blame attaching to him (LORD COLERIDGE, C.J.).—EDMONDS v. FOSTER (1875), 45 L. J. M. C. 41; 33 L. T. 690; 40 J. P. 151; sub nom. EDMUNDS v. FOSTER, 24 W. R. 368.

3915. ———.]—By 1867 Act, s. 39, every co. formed under 1862 Act must hold, under a penalty, a general meeting within four months after its memorandum of assocn. is registered. By 1862 Act, s. 26, every co. under that Act must, within fourteen days after the first ordinary general meeting, make out a list of its members, & forward the same to the registrar of joint-stock cos. within a further period of seven days, subject to a penalty of £5 per diem in default. On a summons taken out against a co. for not having forwarded a list of members as aforesaid, the magistrate decided that it was necessary for complainant to prove that the first ordinary general meeting had been held, & on failure of such proof, dismissed the summons:—Held: the magistrate was right; for the date of the general meeting formed a tempus a quo from which the period of fourteen & seven days was to run; & it could not be presumed against the co. that a general meeting had been duly held.—*R. v. 3917. ——— Secretary—Manager de facto.—(1) By 1862 Act, s. 49, a general meeting of every co. under this Act shall be held once at least in every year:—Held: the word "year" means the period of time commencing on Jan. 1, & ending Dec. 31, & not the period of twelve months commencing from the day of registration of a co.

(2) Applt. was the secretary of a co. registered under 1862 Act. The arts. of assocn. did not provide for the appointment of a manager, & none had been appointed. At a meeting of directors in 1872, applt. reported that he had called a general meeting of the shareholders; & in 1874 he had, in a letter to the directors, stated that unless certain contracts were carried out he should feel it his duty to summon a general meeting of shareholders. No ordinary general meeting of shareholders had been held in 1873, & no list of shareholders had been forwarded to the registrar in compliance with 1862 Act, s. 26, & applt. had not taken any steps to cause a meeting to be held in 1873. He was convicted on an information charging him, as manager, with authorising a default in forwarding a copy of the list of shareholders to the registrar in 1873:—Held: the conviction ought to be affirmed: for there was evidence that applt. was manager de facto, & therefore a manager within sect. 26; & as he took no steps in 1873 to call a meeting, & thereby made it impossible for him to forward to the registrar a list of the members, there was evidence that he had knowingly & wilfully authorised a default within sect. 27.—GIBSON v. BARTON (1875), L. R. 10 Q. B. 329; 44 L. J. M. C. 81; 32 L. T. 396; 39 J. P. 628; 23 W. R. 858, D. C.

3922. ———.]—The direction in 1908 Act, s. 26 (1), to every co. to make out & forward to the registrar of cos. "a list of all persons who, on the fourteenth day after the first or ordinary general meeting in the year, are members of the co.," & also a summary as to the capital & shares of the co., is mandatory; & the obligation to forward the list every year is independent of whether or not the ordinary general meeting of the co. is held in the year. Therefore, where the directors of a co. are summoned under 1908 Act, s. 26 (5), for knowingly & wilfully permitting default to be made by the co. in complying with the requirements of sect. 26, it is no defence for them to set up that the holding of the ordinary general meeting of the co. is a condition precedent to the obligation to send in the list arising, & that as the meeting had not been held the list of members could not be sent in, when they were themselves parties to the meeting not being held.—PARK v. O. 1914, c. 178, s. 135, for not making returns to the Govt., it appeared that pltf. had been induced by force & fraudulent statements of a broker acting for the co., to pay $3,000 for shares in the co. On the returns being rendered, application was made by deft. to the A.-G. to remit the penalties; this was refused. Defts. then applied to a judge in ct., & an order was made, under sect. 6 of the Act, remitting the penalties, upon terms that defts. should repay to pltf. the money received from her for the shares, with interest at 6 per cent., & her costs as between solr. & client of both actions & the proceedings before the A.-G.—SEAGRAM v. PNEUMA TUBES, LTD. (1917), 40 O. L. R. 301.—CAN.

Div. granted a rule nisi for a mandamus directing him to hear & determine the application for a summons. The rule was by a subsequent order of the ct. discharged. On appeal against this order:—Held: the application to the magistrate for a summons against the co. was a criminal proceeding, & therefore the judgment of the Q. B. Div. was a judgment in a “criminal cause or matter” within Jud. Act, 1873, s. 47, & no appeal would lie.—R. v. TYLER & INTERNATIONAL COMMERCIAL CO., [1891] 2 Q. B. 588; 61 L. J. M. C. 38; 65 L. SUB-SECT. 6.—ACCOUNTS AND INSPECTION.

A. Accounts.

3926. On what principles to be kept—Trading company.]—(1) A banking co. which had a nominal capital of £1,000,000 divided into 100,000 shares of £10 each, had issued all its shares, the sum of £5 having been paid on each share, which thus constituted a paid-up capital of £500,000. The co. sold a part of its business for £875,000, realising thereby a net profit of £205,000 after bringing the £500,000 into account, & after making certain payments to the purchasers:—Held: the co. was justified in carrying the £205,000 to the profit & loss account, & applying the same as dividends, the capital of the co., being intact.

It was also provided that the directors should at every half-yearly meeting produce a balance-sheet of the affairs of the co., which they never did. Upon the winding up of the co.:—Held: a transfer of shares was liable in respect of losses that accrued prior to the date of the transfer.—Re PORTSMOUTH BANKING CO., HELBY'S, STOKES', & HORSEY'S CASES (1866), L. 3928. Interference by court—Account regularly stated & approved by shareholders.]—(1) In Feb. 1845, pltf. took shares in a co., at a public meeting of all the shareholders, duly convened in Jan. 1846, when the co.'s accounts were stated & adopted it was resolved that the co. should be dissolved, & that a dividend should be returned. Pltf. did not attend the meeting, but he received due notice of the dividend by letter in Feb. 1846, & refused to accept it. Some of the shareholders who received the dividend gave receipts & others executed a deed of release. In Feb. 1849, pltf. filed a bill on behalf of himself & all others the subscribers & shareholders, except defts. & all others, if any, of the subscribers & shareholders who had received payment, against the directors & one other shareholder, who was sued as representing all those who had received payment, praying for a general account, & for specific relief as to certain sums charged to have been improperly applied by the directors:—Held: inasmuch as pltf. had failed upon the evidence to show improper conduct, had received full notice of the dividend, & had acquiesced for three years he was not entitled to the relief prayed, the bill was dismissed with costs.

Semble: (2) the principle of allowing an individual to represent a class cannot be applied to the case of a suit which seeks to disturb a settlement & release, executed by the great majority of members of an assocn. upon the footing of a stated account; (3) where an account has been regularly stated & approved by a majority of shareholders in an assocn., the ct. will not on light grounds, unless the statement of the account be withheld, or fraud or error can be shown, permit the account to be disturbed at the instance of an individual member.—*STUPART v. 3929. False or fraudulent accounts—What amounts to fraud—Erroneous method of keeping—No evidence of fraud.]—In an action against the secretary, the solr., & several of the directors of a joint-stock co. for false & fraudulent representations, by which, as pltf. alleged, he had been induced to take shares, the representations being in the prospectus & balance-sheet as to profit

PART III. SECT. 30, SUB-SECT. 6.—A' m. Entries in account-book — Prima facie presumption.]—The account-books of a co. are the accounts

"deduced from actual working," & a dividend declared as arising out of such profit so derived; & the two fundamental facts on which the representations of profit were based, the supply of the raw material, & the cost of it, being falsified, & the accounts being altered so as to conceal the falsification, & also so as to bring into the year's account only a portion of the preliminary expenses:—Held: though the latter alone, or any error in the mere mode of keeping the accounts, would not be evidence of fraudulent representation, the falsification of facts & figures was so, as against any of defts. who were aware of the issue of the prospectus, but semble: not against those who merely had the means of knowledge.—BALE v. CLELAND (1864), 4 F. & F. 117.

3930. — Misleading balance-sheet.]—

In an action against directors of a joint-stock co. for fraudulent representations, the question being whether the "capital" & the "balance" stated in a balance-sheet meant "capital paid-up & balance of profit," it appeared that the books were kept, & the balance-sheet prepared, in the usual way, & that the balance-sheet tallied with figures in the books, & that persons acquainted with business would not understand the balance-sheet in the sense imputed—in which, it was admitted, it was not true, but in another sense in which it would be proved by the books, which pltf., who was a man of business, might have inspected:—Held: assuming this to be so, there was no ground to sustain the action.—SMITH v. CLENCI (1865), 4 F. & F. 578.

3931. — Loss of goodwill—Not attributed to revenue.]—(1) Where the value of the assets of a solvent co. has fallen below the nominal amount of the share capital, the co., in the absence of any special provisions in its arts. or of a contract binding the co., is under no obligation to make good such depreciation in the value of the assets, before declaring a dividend out of the profits.

(2) Depreciation in the value of the leases & goodwill of a co., is a loss of "fixed" as distinguished from "floating" capital. The balance-sheet of a co. cannot, therefore, be impeached on the ground that it does not charge anything against revenue in respect of depreciation of goodwill.—*WILMER v. keeping the books of the estates, which were of a complex nature:—Held: (1) on the construction of the agreement the co. were not entitled to make any charge for or in respect of the keeping of the accounts required to be kept by the co.; (2) the directors stood in a fiduciary relation to the co. but not to pltf., & the profit costs, salary & commission paid to the directors in their professional capacity might be allowed in taking the accounts between pltf. & the co. under the agreement.—*BATH v. SUB-SECT. 7.—DIVIDENDS.

A. Nature of Dividends.

3934. Distinguished from interest.]—(1) The question whether a co. has profits available for distribution must be answered according to the circumstances of each particular case, the nature of the co., & the evidence of competent witnesses.

(2) Although in some cases, fixed capital may be sunk & lost, without precluding the payment of a dividend, circulating capital must be kept up.

Semble: there is no distinction in this respect between a realised loss & an estimated loss.

(3) The common art. requiring dividends to be declared by the directors applies to fixed cumulative dividends on preference shares, & the ct. will not readily override the directors' discretion in relation thereto.

(4) "Interest" is not an apt word to express the return to which a shareholder is entitled in respect of shares paid up in due course & not by way of advance. Interest is compensation for delay in payment & is not accurately applied to the share of profits of trading, although it may be used as an inaccurate mode of expressing the measure of the share of those profits (FARWELL, J.).

The real question for determination, is whether there are profits available for distribution & this is to be answered according to the circumstances of each particular case, the nature of the co., & the evidence of competent witnesses. There is no single definition of the word "profits" which will fit all cases (FARWELL, J.).—BOND v. BARROW HÆMATITE STEEL Co., [1902] 1 Ch. 353;

3939. Income of special dividend fund—Fund ultra vires.]—The nominal capital of a co. formed for land & financial business was stated in the memorandum of assocn. to be divided into A shares & B shares. The arts. of assocn. provided that the capital & income of the B shares were to be formed into a trust fund for paying a preferential dividend on the A shares, were not to be used in any sense as working capital, & in the event of a winding up were, so far as unapplied, to be returned to the B shareholders. There was no suggestion of fraud or want of bona fides:—Held: as the memorandum of assocn. did not disclose the proposed application of the B capital, the arts. of assocn. must be held to be ultra vires.—*GUINNESS v. 3941. — How calculated—Profit on item of assets.]—(1) The question of what is profit available for dividend depends upon the result of the whole accounts fairly taken for the year, capital, as well as profit & loss, & though dividends may be paid out of earned profits in proper cases, notwithstanding a depreciation of capital, a realised accretion to the estimated value of one item of the capital assets cannot be deemed to be profit divisible amongst the shareholders without reference to the result of the whole accounts fairly taken.

(2) Among the assets taken over by a new co. in 1897, on the purchase of the undertaking of an old co., were promissory notes for $100,000 given in 1894 to the old co. by the B. Co.; these notes, which had never been considered of any value, & had never appeared as assets in the balance-sheets of the new co., had recently been paid off with arrears of interest, & the directors proposed to treat the whole sum as a windfall in the nature of an unexpected profit & divisible as dividends:—Held: the $100,000 ought not to be distributed as dividend without reference to the other business or assets of the co.—*FOSTER v. —It is only a matter of prudence, & not of law, whether or not dividends shall be paid when the assets of the co. are of less value than the original capital. So long as a co. pays its creditors there is no reason why, in an apparently flourishing concern, it should not go on & divide profits though every shilling of the capital may be lost. completed to the satisfaction of the engineer of the co. in two years from the commencement of the works. The contract price was to be paid in debentures & shares of the co., which were to be issued at the request of the contractors to their nominees, or offered for public subscription. The contractors having requested the debentures & shares to be offered for public subscription entered into an agreement to pay to the co. interest on the debenture & preference stock issued by the co. until the railway was completed. The works were not completed for more than a year after the first time fixed. Interest on the debentures & preference stock in the meantime became due which was not paid by the contractors, & was therefore paid by the co.:—Held: it was not ultra vires the co. to apply penalties due from the contractors in payment of interest on shares as such penalties were not capital, & dividends can be paid out of other money besides profits.—ALCOY & GANDIA RAILWAY & HARBOUR CO., LTD. v. GREENHILL (1898), 79 L. T. 257, C. A.

3943. — Discount—Debentures redeemed below par.—An investment trust co. by its constitution kept its capital & revenue accounts distinct, & could not apply any increase in the value of its investments as revenue, but could pay dividends out of the excess of current receipts over expenditure without regard to any depreciation in the value of its assets. The co. issued debenture stock at par, & subsequently by agreement redeemed part of such stock at a discount. In its accounts the co. carried the amount of the discount to a revenue reserve account, & the directors proposed to apply this amount from time to time in payment of dividends on its ordinary stock:—Held: the discount was in no sense net profit of the co., & could not be applied in payment of dividends.—*WALL v. 3944. Reserve fund—Construction of articles.—The arts. of assocn. of a steamship co. provided that the directors should from time to time set aside part of the profits for a reserve fund. The directors had a discretionary power to expend the moneys so set apart in the purchase of additional vessels or otherwise in extending the co.'s trade. By the beginning of 1883 they had accumulated a reserve fund of £50,000. In May, 1883, the directors issued a circular to the shareholders, stating that they intended building two or three new steamers, & for that purpose to complete the issue of the shares of the co. in the manner following: "By dividing the reserve fund on June 30 next amongst existing shareholders, allotting to each, one share of £10 fully paid, for every share at present held," & by issuing 10,000 additional shares of £10 each. The directors, anticipating that this proposal would be accepted, had in fact, before the resolution hereinafter stated, applied the reserve fund in improving the fleet. On May 16, 1883, the co. duly passed a resolution: "That out of the reserve fund as it stands on June 30, next, there shall be allotted to each shareholder £10 in the form of one fully paid-up share for every share at present held by him in the co." The shares so created were issued & credited as fully paid, & a part of the proposed 10,000 new shares were taken up & fully paid for in cash. In Oct. & Nov. 1892, a special resolution was passed by the co. for reducing its capital by cancelling capital which had been lost to the extent of £5 a share, & reducing the nominal amount of each share from £10 to £5. This was a petition for the confirmation of this reduction:—Held: (1) it did not appear that the directors had power to distribute the reserve fund as dividend without altering the arts.; (2) even if they had such a power, it did not appear that they had exercised it, for under the resolution the shareholders had no option to take their shares of the reserve fund in cash.—*Re EASTERN & AUSTRALIAN S.S. 3948. Whether capable of ratification by shareholders.]—The directors of a limited co. for several years presented to the general meetings of shareholders reports & balance-sheets in which various debts known by the directors to be bad were entered as assets, so that an apparent profit was shown though in fact there was none. The shareholders, relying on these documents, passed resolutions declaring dividends, which the directors accordingly paid. An order having been made to wind up the co. the liquidator applied, under 1862 Act, s. 165, for an order on the directors to replace the amount of dividends thus paid out of capital:—Held: even if the shareholders had known the true facts, so that their ratification of the payment of dividends would have bound themselves individually, they could not bind the co., for that the payment of dividends out of corpus was ultra vires the co., & incapable of ratification by the shareholders.—Re EXCHANGE BANKING CO., FILTCROFF'S CASE (1882), 21 Ch. 3949. What amounts to—Payments based on estimated profits—Estimate by secretary.]—The arts. of assocn. of a limited co. provided that no dividends should be payable except out of "realised profits," and that no remuneration should be paid to the directors until a dividend of 7 per cent. had been paid to the shareholders. The business of the co. consisted chiefly in lending money to builders, on mtges. payable by instalments, & the directors treated, as part of the profits available for dividends, the value for the time being, upon an estimate made by their surveyor, who was also their secretary, of the instalments of principal & interest remaining unpaid by each mtgor. Upon this footing the directors paid for several years out of the floating capital from time to time in their hands, dividends of 7½ per cent. & upwards; & remuneration to themselves. Upon a summons taken out in the winding up of the co. by a creditor:—Held: "realised profits" must be taken in its ordinary commercial sense, as meaning at least "profits tangible for the purpose of division," & the directors having treated estimated profits as realised profits & having in fact paid dividends out of capital, on the chance that sufficient profits might be made, were jointly & severally liable, as upon a breach of trust, to repay, & must repay, the sums improperly paid as dividends, & also the remuneration they had respectively received, with interest in each case at 4 per cent.

A building of the co. having been destroyed by fire, the co. resolved to increase the capital by £150,000, for the purpose of reconstructing the building, & to issue for this purpose 15,000 preference shares. These shares were issued, & during the reconstruction of the building, no profits having been earned by the co., the directors paid four dividends on the shares. The first dividend was paid out of moneys received from an insurance co. in respect of the loss occasioned by the fire. The other three dividends were paid by means of moneys borrowed expressly for the purpose, from the contractors of the co. & a financial co., both of whom had notice of the purpose for which the money was borrowed, & both of whom held a large number of the preference shares:—Held: (1) the directors were, under 1862 Act, s. 165, jointly & severally liable to pay to the liquidator the amount of the first dividend; (2) with respect to the other three dividends, the result of the transactions as a whole had been only to increase the amounts of the proofs against the co. by the amounts of the loans, & consequently the directors were liable, jointly & severally, to pay to the liquidator only such a sum as would enable him to pay on all the debts of the co. a dividend equal to that which would have been paid on all the debts, other than the loans, in case no proof had been made in respect of the loans; (3) the order must be made without prejudice to the right of the directors to be indemnified by any shareholders or creditors of the co., who were parties or privies to the payment of dividends out of capital.—Re ALEXANDRA PALACE CO. 3952. — Exchange of debentures for shares—Bonus due at future date converted into present liability.]—In 1904 a co. raised £50,000 by 5,000 £10 income bonds, repayable in seven years with a bonus of £25 exclusively out of the net profits from time to time of the co. By the conditions the registered holders of these bonds might exchange them for first mtge. debentures, but this was not to affect the bonus; by another condition, the co. had the option at any time after Dec. 1906, of giving notice to pay off the bonds & six months afterwards the principal, if not converted, & the bonus were to become payable. In 1909 most of the bonds had been converted into debentures leaving only the £25 bonus payable; no profits had been earned but it was proposed to extinguish the £25 by the issue in exchange for the bonus of twenty fully-paid new shares of the nominal value of £1 each. An action having been brought to test the validity of this proposed issue of further capital:—Held: there was nothing in the bond which authorised the co. to turn a contingent liability on income into a present liability payable out of capital; the proposed arrangement with the bond-holders was equivalent to a payment of dividends out of capital & provided a means of issuing shares at a discount, for there was no consideration given to the co. for the issue of these new shares; & on these grounds the arrangement was ultra vires the co. & must be restrained.—*FAMATINA DEVELOPMENT CORPN., LTD. v. The directors did not know the true state of the co.'s affairs or that the balance-sheets were delusive. They never exercised any judgment with reference to the accounts, but relied entirely on the manager & auditor:—Held: the directors had fallen short of the standard of care which they ought to have applied to the affairs of the co.; & the onus was upon them to show that the dividends had been paid out of profits.—*LEEDS ESTATE, BUILDING & INVESTMENT CO. v. favour of pltf. or his order. Pltf. had changed his address, of which change he had given the postal authorities, but not the co., notice. There was no evidence that the warrant was ever delivered at either the new or old address. It fell into the hands of some unknown person who forged pltf.'s signature & obtained payment at the bank. The co.'s constitution made no provision as to how dividends were to be paid, but in forwarding the dividend warrant through the post the co. was following its usual procedure. Pltf. had received two previous dividends in the same way:—Held: pltf. had not requested or consented to his dividends being forwarded through the post in the form of a dividend warrant; the dividend had not been paid to him, & he was entitled to recover.—*ACRAMAN v. year should be applicable in the payment of a fixed cumulative preferential dividend of 7 per cent. on the preference shares; then in the payment of a cumulative dividend at a rate not exceeding 2s. per share on the ordinary & "B" shares ratably, after which the surplus, if any, should be carried to a reserve fund until it amounted to £25,000; & lastly, subject as aforesaid, & to the provisions of art. 126, that the ordinary shares should confer on the holders the right to one moiety, & the "B" shares should confer on the holders the right to the other moiety of the profits or other moneys of the co. available for dividend which the co. should determine to distribute. Art. 126 provided that the directors should set aside out of the profits of the co. such sum as was provided for by sub-sect. 3 of art. 6 of the memorandum, & might before recommending any further dividend under sub-sect. 4, set aside out of the profits a further reserve fund. The preference & ordinary shares were of £1 each, & "B" shares of 1s. each. For the financial year ending Nov. 30, 1912, the co. paid a dividend of 7 per cent. only on the ordinary shares, & a dividend of 6 per cent. for 1913. In 1914 no dividend was paid on any of the shares. In 1915 there was a credit balance to profit & loss account sufficient to pay the full cumulative dividend on the preference & ordinary shares, but no dividend was paid on the ordinary shares, & £6,662 3s. 11d. was carried over. In 1916 there was a credit balance of £17,066 19s. 4d. to profit & loss account & the directors recommended the payment of the cumulative preferential dividend, & after writing down the value of certain of the assets, placed £5,000 to reserve account & carried forward £9,580 6s. 10d. No dividend was paid on the ordinary shares. The recommendations of the directors were in each year indorsed by resolutions of the co. in general meeting. Subsequently to the issue of the writ deft. co., by special resolution, appropriated out of the profits for 1916 a sum of 4d. per share on the ordinary & "B" shares for each of the years 1914, 1915, & 1916. In an action by pltf. as a holder of ordinary shares for a declaration against the co. as to his rights in the profits for the years 1915 & 1916:—Held: (1) the "profits" consisted of the credit balance in the profit & loss account of each year; (2) the case was similar to Paterson v. R. Paterson & Sons, No. 3686, ante, to determine the rights of shareholders inter se, & not strictly an action to recover payment of a dividend; & (3) pltf. was entitled to a declaration that, according to the true construction of the memorandum & arts., deft. co. was bound to apply the whole of the profits for the years 1915 & 1916, after providing for the preference dividend, in payment of the cumulative dividends at the rate of 2s. a share on the ordinary & "B" shares from the incorporation of the co. down to Nov. 30, 1916, & an account on the footing of such declaration.—*EVLING v. Notice was to be served either personally or by post "addressed to such member at his registered or last known place of abode." In 1892 K. & M. were registered as joint owners of 115 shares in the co. K. died in 1899, & though the fact of his death was never officially notified to the co., it was in fact well known to its officials. Notices of meetings of the co. at which dividends would be declared continued to be sent out to K., whose name appeared first on the register, & were returned marked "gone away," & in one instance, "deceased."

M. died in 1908, & on a claim for past dividends being made by his extrix., the co. relied on resolutions forfeiting the unclaimed dividends for the years 1908–1913:—Held: a resolution forfeiting an unclaimed dividend must be strictissimi juris, & the provisions of the arts. of assocn. regarding the service of notices on the shareholders must not be used dishonestly or unfairly, & if the officers of the co. have actual knowledge that one of two joint shareholders is dead the co. cannot rely on a formal notice addressed to deceased shareholder for the purpose of basing upon it a resolution forfeiting an unclaimed dividend.—*WARD v. f. Unclaimed dividends—Statute of Limitations inoperative.]—Dividends on ordinary shares in a co. had been declared & became payable more than

g. Holders of partly-paid shares.]—The capital of a co., incorporated under 1862 & 1867 Acts, consisted of 60,000 shares of £1; 40,000 were fully paid-up & 20,000 to the extent only of 5s. per share. In a question whether the directors could competently recommend a dividend payable to each shareholder in proportion to the amount paid up upon the shares held by him:—Held: such a declaration of dividend was incompetent, because upon the true construction of the arts. of assocn., read with 1862 & 1867 Acts, all the shares were entitled to participate equally in dividend, without regard to the amount paid up upon each.—*OAKBANK OIL CO., LTD. v. (b) Apportionment.

3963. Under Apportionment Act, 1870 (c. 35)—Application of Act—Public company.—(1) The word "dividends" in the above Act, includes payments by way of bonus or surplus profits to the shareholders of a public co., even though such payments may be only occasional & not strictly periodical; as for instance where payments are made under the deed of settlement of a life assurance society, providing for distribution of a bonus or surplus profits among its shareholders once in every five years "unless a special meeting of shareholders shall otherwise direct."

(2) A life assurance society was unincorporated but was established, in 1843, by a deed of settlement with a board of directors, £100,000 capital & a list of shareholders, & was possessed of certain powers & concessions under a special Act of Parliament:—Held: it was a public co. within sect. 5

—Participating ratably in event, with holders of ordinary stock.—A railway co., exercising powers under their Act of 1876, created deferred & ordinary stock, the former to be entitled to participate ratably with the latter in any dividend in excess of 5 per cent paid on the latter. Up to 1913 dividends were declared half-yearly at half-yearly general meetings, & from half-yearly balance sheets, & deferred stock participated in each half-yearly dividend which exceeded the rate of 5 per cent per annum; but thereafter, under Railway Companies (Accounts & Returns) Act, 1911, balance sheets were prepared & general meetings held yearly. For the first half of 1914 the co. paid an interim dividend at the rate of 3 per cent per annum on the ordinary stock, & for the second half year declared a dividend thereon of 4½ per cent for the year, & accordingly paid the ordinary stockholders for the second half of 1914 a dividend at the rate of 6 per cent per annum. A deferred shareholder claimed a right to participate:—Held: he had no such right in respect that he had no right to a half-yearly declaration of dividend on ordinary stock, & that the two payments in 1914 together formed one dividend of 4½ per cent.—THOMSON v. GLASGOW & SOUTH WESTERN RY. CO., [1917] S. C. 125.—SCOT.

1. Shares purchased at a premium.—Pltf. purchased fifty shares of stock in deft. co. of the nominal value of $100 each, issued at a premium of $20 per share, paying on application $1,500, being a deposit of $30 per share. The co. acknowledged receipt, stating the amount received to be a deposit of $30 per share on an application for fifty shares of $100 each at 20 per cent premium, but in its books it credited $1,000 to the premium account & $500 to the capital account, so that of the first payment of $30 per share $20 went to the premium & $10 to the share itself. Dividends were paid on the paid-up portion of the capital:—Held: the payment should

Testator bequeathed certain shares in a limited co. to trustees upon trust to sell, with a power of postponement, & stand possessed of the proceeds, & the shares remaining unsold, upon trust to receive the annual produce thereof, & hold the same in trust for testator's children, & declared that every share bequeathed by his will should carry the dividend accruing thereon at his death. A co., which had previously declared an interim dividend of 5 per cent. for the first half of its current financial year, subsequently during the same year passed a resolution that certain policy moneys then received should be distributed by way of "further interim dividend" & be paid in accordance with its arts. of assocn., pro ratâ, to the holders for the time being of specified shares in the co., & later declared a final dividend of

Art. 90 of its arts. of assocn. provided that “every dividend whether arising from past or current profits shall for all purposes be deemed to accrue & fall due upon the day on which it is declared & not before”:—Held: this did not constitute such an express stipulation against apportionment of the dividends as would satisfy sect. 7 of the above Act, & the Act took effect.

It was also provided that “no deficiency in dividend in any year shall be made good out of the profits of future years.” For several years there was a loss on the reversion account resulting in a debit balance at Apr. 30, 1889, of £7,867. During the year ending Apr. 30, 1890, net profits of £6,909 were earned, which same was applied in reducing the debt previously incurred, & no dividends were declared. During the year ending Apr. 30, 1891, net profits were earned sufficient to wipe out the remaining debt & leave a surplus for division after paying 10 per cent dividend to the A. shareholders as for that year. In a special case between A. & B. shareholders the former contended that they were entitled to have this surplus applied in payment to them of 10 per cent for the year ending Apr. 30, 1890, in respect of the net profits earned during that year:—Held: the A. shareholders were not entitled to a dividend for the year ending Apr. 30, 1890, the profits of that year having been properly applied in reducing debt.—*NIDDRIE & BENHAR COAL CO., LTD. v. PART III. SECT. 30, SUB-SECT. 7.—F.

a. Whether payable on number of shares or amount paid up—Shareholders’ advance payments—On partly-paid shares.—The nominal capital of a joint-stock co. incorporated under 1862 Act was £1,236,660 divided into 123,660 shares of £10. On 31,100 of these only £7 had been called up; on the remainder of those issued the whole £10 had been paid. The arts. made no the issue of new shares. Shares of £25 each (No. 1) were issued, & the capital was increased by the issue of £25 shares (No. 2); the amount of which shares respectively was immediately paid up in full. The capital was again increased by the issue of £25 shares (No. 3) which were distributed among the holders of shares Nos. 1 & 2, upon which only £2 10s. had been paid. The directors refused to make any further call, although by the co.’s deed it was provided that, with the consent of the directors, any proprietor might pay in advance any part of the money which should remain unpaid in respect of his shares, & which should not have been called for under the provisions, etc. The directors were to declare dividends, & to apply them either as a bonus to be added to the respective shares, or as interest or dividend upon such shares or upon the amount paid up in respect of such shares, or as part bonus & part interest, or dividend, or otherwise, as they might deem most expedient; & to divide such dividend or bonus into as many equal parts as there should be shares then held in the capital of the co. The directors had for ten years past divided the profits among the shareholders, according to the amount of capital paid up, & not according to the number of shares held in the co. A motion by a shareholder (No. 3) to restrain the directors from so dividing the dividends, was refused.—WILKINSON v. CUMMINS (1853), 11 Hare, 337; 20 L. T. O. S. 265; 68 E. R. 1305, L. C. & L. 3974. Who may apply to restrain dividend—Debenture-holder—Charge not enforceable.]—Pltf. was the holder of debenture-stock in a railway co. incorporated in 1855, whose capital was represented by ordinary shares, loan capital, & debenture-stock. The railway had been worked by an iron & steel co. who paid the railway co. a rental sufficient to pay the interest on its loan & share capital & the dividends on the debenture-stock. From the year 1898 no traffic had been carried on the railway, & in 1917 the rails had been taken up & sold. The co. had been paid the rent, the last half-yearly payment of which would expire in Sept. 1919, & it had paid the dividends & interest on the debenture-stock & loan & share capital. Pltf., on behalf of himself & the other debenture-holders, brought an action claiming that deft. co. ought to treat the sums received as capital & might be restrained from treating the sums payable by the iron & steel co. as profits available for paying dividends:—Held: (1) assuming there would be a deficiency of assets in 1919 to provide for the co.'s loan capital, the co. could go on distributing the annual surplus of the rent or price paid by the iron & steel co. remaining after paying the interest on the loan capital & expenses as dividends on the share capital; (2) the action by a debenture-stock holder with no enforceable charge, & whose annuity was not in arrear, was, for want of his direct interest in the administration of the co., not competent.—LAWRENCE v. In such a case where a bonus was declared & credited to a director against arrears of calls then due from him:—Held: it was a payment within the above sects.

(2) Where directors, after proper investigation of the financial position of the co., declare, & the shareholders agree to, a dividend or bonus, the ct. will not lightly interfere with the payment of such dividend or bonus, on the ground that the estimates on which it was founded have turned out to be erroneous. But where the directors declare a dividend or bonus without proper investigation or professional assistance, & it is afterwards called in question, the burden lies on them to show that it was fairly paid out of profits; & if they are unable to do so, the ct. will order them to refund what they have received.

The directors of a co. declared a bonus of 10s. per share, which was agreed to at a general meeting & paid. The directors prepared no profit & loss account, but only an account of the receipts & payments of the co., which made no allowance for the risks to which the co. was liable. a like dividend on its ordinary shares, & that the surplus of net profits should be divided ratably amongst all the shareholders. No distribution of profits was to be made without the consent of a general meeting; &, in case of any dispute as to the amount of net profits, the decision of the co. in general meeting was to be final. The directors were empowered, before recommending any dividend, to set aside, out of the net profits, a reserve fund for contingencies, or for equalising dividends, or for maintaining the works connected with the co. but it was provided that they should not be bound to do so. The co. worked under a concession granted for a term of years & subsequently prolonged. Pltf. claimed that for the purpose of ascertaining the net profits applicable for dividends, the directors "ought" in the first instance to set apart & capitalise, out of the gross profits of the co., a sufficient sum to replace, by means of a reserve or sinking fund, the capital expended in the purchase of the concession & any other wasting property of the co.:—Held: the ct. had no authority to interfere, as the rights of the preference & ordinary shareholders were clearly defined by the arts. by which a power was given to a general meeting to determine the distribution & amount of the "net profits," & the question of reserve was one left to the directors.—*LAMBERT v. 3984. — Whether capital or dividend.]—Testator bequeathed his residuary personal estate to his exor. B. in trust for testator's wife for her life & after her death to B. Part of the residuary estate consisted of shares in a co. whose directors had power, before recommending a dividend, to set apart out of the profits such sum as they thought proper as a reserved fund, for meeting contingencies, equalising dividends or repairing or maintaining the works. After testator's death, the directors of the co. proposed to distribute certain accumulated profits, which had been temporarily capitalised, as a bonus dividend, to allot new shares, partly paid-up, to each shareholder, & to apply the bonus dividend in part payment of the new share. This proposal was carried out, & with B.'s consent new shares were allotted to him & registered in his name, the bonus dividend on testator's old shares being applied in part payment of the new shares:—Held: looking at all the circumstances, the real nature of the transaction was that the co. did not pay or intend to pay any sum as dividend, but intended to, & did, appropriate the undivided profits as an increase of the capital stock; the bonus dividend was therefore capital of testator's estate, & the life tenant was not entitled to the bonus or the new shares.—*BOUCH v. A circular was sent to each shareholder intimating the sum to which he was entitled as bonus & the number of preference shares he was entitled to, & enclosing an application form for the new shares. Subsequently warrants for the bonus dividend were sent to the shareholder payable on the day on which payment of the new shares was due. The trustees of a deceased shareholder, who were directed by the trust to hold certain shares in the co. for one person as life-renter & for others in fee, took up their quota of the new shares & applied the bonus in payment thereof. In a question between the life-renter & heirs of the original shares:—Held: the operation was a payment of dividend & not a conversion of profits into capital, &

I. Preference Dividends.

3985. Whether cumulative — Construction of memorandum & articles.—A co. registered under 1862 Act, duly authorised the issue of 25,000 first preference shares on the following terms: "The preference capital authorised is £250,000, carrying dividend at £10 per cent. per annum, payable half yearly, & entitled to a pro rata participation in surplus dividends, after £10 per cent. has been paid on the ordinary share capital of £650,000":—Held: the owners of these preference shares were entitled to have the arrears of such preferential dividend made good out of the profits of subsequent years.—*WEBB v. 3986. — "Out of the profits of each year."—The memorandum of assocn. of a co. contained the clause: "The capital of the co. is £150,000 divided into 10,000 ordinary shares of £10 each & 5,000 preference shares of £10 each. The holders of preference shares shall be entitled, out of the net profits of each year to a preference dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. on the amount for the time being paid, or deemed to be paid up thereon. After payment of such preferential dividend the holders of ordinary shares shall be entitled to a like dividend at the rate of £10 per cent. per annum on the amount paid on such ordinary shares. Subject as aforesaid, the preference & ordinary shares shall rank equally for dividend":—Held: the preference shareholders were not entitled to a cumulative dividend of £10 per cent. so as to have the deficiency in one year paid out of the profits of a subsequent year before paying anything to the ordinary shareholders.—*STAPLES v. Whether subject to deductions—Colonial income tax.—An English co., which carried on business in a colony, passed resolutions under which a class of guaranteed preference stockholders became entitled to a cumulative payment of interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum in priority to the other stockholders. By a subsequent Act of the colonial legislature a duty, in the nature of income tax, was imposed on all dividends or interest paid out of assets in the colony to the members of cos. carrying on business therein, & it was declared that the duty payable in respect of the amount received by any member should be a debt due by him to the Crown:—Held: the contract between the preference & ordinary stockholders being an English contract, the rights under it of preference stockholders, not domiciled in the colony, were not affected by the colonial Act, & they were therefore entitled to their 6 per cent. without any deduction in respect of the colonial duty.—*SPILLER v. In that year an interim dividend was declared sufficient in amount to satisfy all the arrears upon the preference shares:—Held: the dividend declared in 1907 must be treated as being in respect of that year only; Apportionment Act, 1870 (c. 35), did not apply; & consequently the whole of the dividend belonged to R.—*Re WAKLEY, WAKLEY v. On Mar. 16, 1897, at a meeting of the directors, it was resolved that an interim dividend be declared for the current year at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum, payable on Apr. 20. On Apr. 12 the directors resolved that, having regard to certain litigation then pending, the payment of the proposed interim dividend should be postponed; & on Apr. 13, the co. requested their bankers to set aside out of money in their hands belonging to the co., under a special account intitled "Interim Dividend Account" a sum of £36,000 to cover the dividend, pending the co.'s instructions. d. ———— "Postponed charge."]

—By a special resolution of a limited co. it was provided that "out of the profits of the co." holders of "A" preference shares should receive "as a first charge thereon, a cumulative preference dividend at the rate of 8 per cent." & holders of "B" preference shares "as a second & postponed charge, a preferential dividend at the rate of 5 per cent per annum": & provision was also made for the distribution of the balance of profits:—Held: the dividend on the "B" shares was cumulative, the fact that it was not in terms described as such, in contrast to the dividend on the "A" shares, being insufficient to displace the general rule that preference dividends are primâ facie cumulative.—*FERGUSON & FORESTER v. the date of the formation of the co. upon the capital from time to time called up at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum, & that, if in any one of the five years the profits should prove insufficient to pay such dividend, he would pay the amount required to make up such dividend. The business was carried on at a loss from the first, & in 1847 the directors, upon whom the arts. of assocn. conferred the widest powers of management, shut up the railway tyre department, which comprised four-fifths of the whole concern, & which they had carried on at a very considerable loss. In 1875 there were no profits to divide, & the co. commenced an action against the vendor to enforce payment of an amount sufficient to pay a dividend of 10 per cent. upon the called-up capital in accordance with his guarantee:—Held: the discontinuance by the co. of the branch of their business did not discharge the vendor from his guarantee, & the co. were entitled to judgment for the sum claimed, together with interest & costs.—*BROWN & Co. v. 4001. — — — Amount of preference dividend guaranteed — Whether preference shareholders entitled to full dividend.]—

By decree of Feb. 1874 the imperial govt. of Brazil conferred upon the provincial govts. of that empire the right to grant railway concessions, & sanctioned the granting of a guarantee of interest not exceeding 7 per cent. on the capital bonâ fide spent in constructing the railway, the railway to be kept in good condition by the co. In July, 1874, a concession to make the railway of deft. co. was granted to certain concessionaires by the provincial govt. of Rio Grande do Norte, the concessionaires binding themselves to keep the railway in good condition on pain of fine or suspension of traffic. The provincial govt. contracted to guarantee for thirty years interest at the rate of 7 per cent. on the capital expended on the railway up to a certain amount; but if the traffic were interrupted for six months for reasons that might have been avoided, the payment of the guaranteed interest should cease till the re-establishment of the traffic; it also stipulated that on the dividend exceeding 8 per cent., the surplus should be divided between the railway & itself. The concessionaires undertook to carry certain govt. officials & others at half-fares, & to carry the mails, etc., gratuitously. By decree of 1875 the imperial govt. granted to any co. formed to carry out the above concession a thirty years' guarantee of the 7 per cent. granted by the provincial govt., payable half-yearly to certain conditions, including the submission of the accounts of receipts & expenditure on the construction & maintenance of the railway. In 1878 deft. co. was incorporated under 1862 Act, for the purpose of acquiring, inter alia, the rights, benefits, & privileges of the above-mentioned concession & decrees. The share capital was fixed at £500,000, 25,000 shares at £20 each. Certain of these shares were entitled to a preferential dividend of 7 per cent. payable out of the guaranteed moneys & net earnings of the co. In 1880 plts. became the holders of 250 of such preferred shares, on which for some years they received a preferential dividend of 7 per cent., but in the last few years they received a much smaller dividend. The guaranteed interest had been duly paid by the imperial & provincial govts., but a portion of the interest so received had been applied towards the necessary maintenance of the line in proper working order, & other matters connected with the railway. Plts. brought their action for a declaration that the interest received by the co. from the imperial govt. of Brazil, in respect of the capital represented by the preferred shares, should be held upon trust for & appropriated to the payment of a 7 per cent. dividend on such preferred shares, & any other application of it so long as any part of such 7 per cent. dividend remained unpaid was wrongful & a breach of trust on the part of the co.; & for payment of the money so improperly withheld, & in the alternative rescission of plts.' contract with the co. to take the 250 shares; & repayment of the sum of £5,000:—Held: plts. were not entitled to the declaration or relief sought, on the ground that the guaranteed interest payable & paid by the Brazilian govt. was not payable, or paid, for the sole benefit of the holders of the preference shares in the co., but was paid to the co. as a contribution to its revenues to be applied to such purposes as the earnings of the undertaking might be legitimately applied, & to assist it in carrying out the obligations undertaken in the original contract.—*CLIFFORD v. transfer of them, but he failed to obtain certificates of the registration of the transfer from the secretary. He subsequently received two dividend warrants, at intervals of six months, for dividends on the total number of shares. The transfer was forged by the secretary, & upon the fraud being discovered, deft. co. declined to recognise pltf.'s title to more than the original twenty shares, & upon his claim to establish his title to the fifty shares deft. co. counterclaimed for a return of the dividends paid by mistake upon those shares:—Held: deft. co. were not estopped from denying the title of pltf. to the fifty shares, inasmuch as the sending of a dividend warrant did not amount to a representation of pltf.'s title to the shares; nor was it such conduct as to lead pltf. into the belief that he had a good title, or a representation made in answer to any inquiry of pltf. whereby he was put to rest in regard to his title, & therefore was not a ground on which to base an estoppel.—*FOSTER v. The shareholders of the co. at their half-yearly general meeting declared the amount of dividend as proposed by the directors, but passed no resolution as to how payment should be made. On the day named in the directors' report a dividend warrant was sent by post to the registered address of a stockholder. The warrant was lost in the post:—Held: (1) in the circumstances there was a request by the stockholder to the co. to pay the amount due to him by means of a warrant sent by post to his registered address.

In an action by the stockholder against the co. to recover the amount of dividend in respect of the stock held by him:—Held: (2) the above facts supported a plea of payment by the co., & the remedy, if any, of the stockholder was to put in suit such rights as he had upon the lost warrant.—*THAIRLWALL v. The co. had for several years carried on their business, paying a dividend half-yearly on their ordinary shares; but they failed to set apart a reserve fund adequate for the maintenance of their tramway, which eventually became worn out. The co. having again declared a half-yearly dividend on their ordinary shares, & the total sum appropriated for the dividend being, as it appeared, much less than the sum required to reinstate the tramway:—Held: (1) the co. could only declare a dividend out of the net profits, & the net profits could not be ascertained without first restoring the tramway to an efficient condition, or making due provision for that purpose out of the co.'s assets. An injunction was accordingly granted restraining the co. from paying the half-yearly dividend they had declared, but leave was given them to move to dissolve the injunction, in the event of their being able to satisfy the ct. that there were profits available for the dividend; (2) the holders of preference shares, the dividend on which was "dependent upon the profits of the particular year only," were entitled to a dividend out of the profits of any year after setting aside a proportionate amount sufficient for the maintenance of the tramway for that year only; & were not to be deprived of that dividend in order to make good the sums which in previous years should have been set aside by the co. for main-

The licence was granted to A. & on Mar. 5, 1897, he agreed to sell to B., on behalf of the proposed co., the agreement of Mar. 3, & the licence, & other licences, for £120,000. The co. was incorporated on Mar. 8, & adopted the agreement of Mar. 5, but the licence was not actually assigned to them. Their balance-sheet of Oct. 1899, showed profits of £20,000, & they proposed to write off £3,000 against depreciation & towards the ultimate extinction of the cost of the licences. The action was brought to test their right to do this:—Held: (1) there was no direct contract between pltf. co. & deft. co. which would entitle pltf. co. to sue deft. co.; (2) deft. co. were justified in setting aside the £3,000 out of their income against depreciation before ascertaining the net "profits, available for dividend," & even assuming that pltf. co. had rights against deft. co. under the agreement, there would have been no money payable to pltf. co. at the time of the action being brought, & the action must have failed apart from the question of want of privity of contract.—*BAGOT PNEUMATIC TYRE CO. v. 4020. Creation of reserve fund—Before declaring dividend.]—(1) It is an elementary principle that a ct. has no jurisdiction to interfere with the internal management of cos. acting within their powers. The co. must sue to redress a wrong done to it; but if a majority of its shares are controlled by those against whom relief is sought, the complaining shareholders may sue in their own names, but must show that the acts complained of are either fraudulent or ultra vires.

(2) A co. formed by letters patent under Canadian Act, 27 & 28 Vict. c. 23, is not bound to divide all its profits on each occasion amongst its shareholders. It can legally reserve any portion thereof at its own discretion, & a ct. has no jurisdiction to regulate it. Whether the undivided portion is retained to credit of profit & loss or carried to credit of a reserve it may lawfully, in the absence of any express power, be invested on such securities as the directors may select subject to the control of a general meeting; but not restricted to such investments as trustees are authorised to make.

(3) It is not ultra vires for a co. to invest in the name of a sole trustee. He is strictly accountable, but the dissentient shareholders are not entitled to an injunction against the directors & the co. in respect of such investment so long as it appears to be bonâ fide.

4021. ——— To meet contingencies.]—The memorandum of assocn. of a co. provided that, as between the holders of the ordinary shares & the holders of the founders' shares, "the profits from time to time available for dividend" should be applicable as follows: (1) to the payment of a non-cumulative preferential dividend of 15 per cent. per annum on the shares other than the founders' shares; (2) of the surplus, two-thirds should be applicable to the payment of a further dividend on the shares other than the founders' shares, & the remaining one-third should be applicable to the payment of dividend on founders' shares.

The arts. of assocn. provided that, so far as they did not exclude or modify the regulations contained in 1862 Act, Table A, those regulations should, as far as applicable, be deemed to be the regulations of the co. The arts. expressly excluded some of the arts. of Table A, but did not expressly exclude art. 74, which provides that "the directors may, before recommending any dividend, set aside out of the profits of the co. such sum as they think proper as a reserved fund to meet contingencies, or for equalising dividends":—Held: art. 74 of Table A was not in toto excluded by implication, but it must be taken to form part of the arts.; "profits available for dividend" meant the net profits after making any deductions which the directors could properly make before declaring a dividend, & the directors were justified, after paying a dividend of 15 per cent. to the ordinary shareholders, in setting aside as a reserve fund to meet contingencies so much of the surplus of the profits of a year as they thought fit.

k. Creation of reserve fund — From unallotted balance of profits — Agreed additional dividend to preference shareholders prejudiced — Powers of directors.]—Under the original arts. of assocn. of a limited co. whose capital consisted of cumulative preference shares & ordinary shares, the directors had power before recommending any dividend to set aside out of profits such sum as they might think proper as a reserve fund. Subsequently it was arranged between the preference & ordinary shareholders that the ordinary shares should be split into preferred & deferred ordinary shares, & as part of that arrangement there was added to the arts. of assocn. a new art. providing, inter alia, that should the profits be sufficient to enable the payment of 7 per cent on the deferred ordinary shares, after paying 5 per cent on the preference & preferred ordinary shares, the preference shareholders should be entitled to such additional dividend not exceeding 1 per cent as the balance of profit remaining would permit; this additional dividend not being cumulative but contingent on the profits of the year. In 1904, after paying a dividend of 5 per cent on preference & preferred ordinary shares, & a dividend of 7 per cent on the deferred ordinary shares, there remained a balance which was more than sufficient to pay an additional 1 per cent dividend on the preference shares, but out of this the directors proposed to place to a reserve fund a sum which would preclude the payment of an additional dividend. In a question between the co. & the preference shareholders as to whether the directors were entitled to deal with the balance in this way instead of applying it, primo loco, in the payment of an additional 1 per cent dividend on the preference shares:—Held: on the construction of the arts. of assocn., the application of the balance proposed by the directors was intra vires.—WEMYSS COLLIERIES TRUST, LTD. v. SUB-SECT. 2.—LIMITATION OF POWERS.

A. In General.

4035. General rule.]—A co. established for one purpose cannot against the wish of any dissentient minority (however small) undertake a business foreign to its original object. No portion of the funds of a co. can be applied in procuring the means of carrying on a different undertaking, such as soliciting a bill in parliament to confer powers necessary for that purpose.—LYDE v. EASTERN BENGAL RY. CO. (1866), 36 Beav. 10; 55 E. R., 1059.

4036. —.]—The governing body of a corp'n., which is in fact a trading partnership, cannot in general use the funds of the community for any purpose other than those for which they are constituted; whether that governing body is exclusively directors, or a council general, or the majority at a general meeting of the co. Therefore the special powers given either to the directors or to a majority by the statutes or other constituent

Manitoba to cover a loss by fire on a building in G., U.S.A., & yet be considered as doing business only in Manitoba.—KITTLES v. COLONIAL ASSURANCE CO., [1917] 2 W. W. R. 878; 35 D. L. R. 588; 28 Man. L. R. 47.—CAN.

e. Express power by statute — Effect of.] When the legislature gives a co. express power to do a certain thing in a special way it is to be taken prima facie to prohibit by implication any deviation from the power so given.—McGREGOR v. ST. CROIX LUMBER CO. (1912), 12 E. L. R. 199.—CAN.

t. Implied powers — Trading company.]—A co. formed to find & publish a newspaper, even if not a "trading co." has an implied power to borrow & to pledge its assets for the purpose of defending a libel action.—HOE v. LEE (1903), 3 S. R. N. S. W. 30; 20 N. S. W. W. N. 23.—AUS.

a. —.]—Incidental powers of a co. are to be determined by a fair implication from the expressly conferred powers.—COLUMBIA BITULITHIC, LTD. v. VANCOUVER LUMBER CO. (1915), 30 W. L. R. 753; 7 W. W. R. 286; 8 W. L. R. 132; 20 D. L. R. 954; 21 D. L. R. 91.—CAN.

b. — Memorandum of association.]—The doctrine that a co. can do nothing which is not expressly or impliedly warranted by its memorandum of assocn. or other instrument of incorporation, must be reasonably understood & applied. A co., therefore, in carrying on the trade for which it is constituted, & in whatever may be fairly regarded as incidental to, or consequential upon, that trade, is free to enter into any transaction not expressly prohibited by its memorandum of assocn.—SHAMNUGGER JUTE FACTORY CO. v. RAM NARAIN CHATTERJEE (1886), 1 L. R. 14 Calc. 189.—IND.

c. Powers assumed in articles of association — Manufacturing company — Stamp duty.]—A manufacturing co., which by its arts. of assocn. is empowered to promote cos., & to hold & deal in their shares, & to acquire & sell patents & licences, is not a co. formed exclusively for manufacturing purposes, & is not entitled to be exempted from payment of stamp duty.—Re ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO., LTD. (1884), 2 N. Z. L. R. 28.—N.Z.

d. Mining company suing without miner's right.]—The four trustees of a registered mining co. with the co. as pl'ts. sued in the Ct. of Mines at Ballarat to set aside for irregularity a sale of the co.'s claim, machinery & chattels by the bailiff of the Ct. of Mines under a writ of execution. No evidence was given at the hearing that the co. held a miner's right at the time of the sale complained of, but miner's rights for the four trustees were produced & admitted. The plaint was dismissed on the ground that the co. pl'ts. did not produce any miner's right to them.—VOLUNTEER EXTENDED GOLD MINING CO. v. GRAND JUNCTION EXTENDED GOLD MINING CO. (1867), 4 W. W. & A'B. 6.—AUS.

e. Sale of whole undertaking — Necessity for express authority in memorandum.]—A co. has no power unless expressly authorised by its memorandum of assocn., to dispose of its whole undertaking. Power to sell its real & personal property is insufficient.—REWA CO-OPERATIVE DAIRY CO. v. LONERGAN (1905), 25 N. Z. L. R. 540.—N.Z.

f. Gratuities to officials.]—It is competent for a limited co. to give gratuities to its officials in consideration of services rendered or to be rendered.—CAMERON v. GLENMORANGIE DISTILLERY CO. (1896), 23 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 1092; 33 Sc. L. R. 781; 4 S. L. T. 93.—SCOT.

PART III. SECT. 31, SUB-SECT. 2.—A.

4035 i. General rule.]—A co. incorporated for definite purposes has no power to pursue objects other than those expressed in its charter, or such as are reasonably incidental thereto, nor to exercise its powers in the attainment of authorised objects in a manner not authorised by the charter. The assent of every shareholder makes documents of the assocn., are always to be construed as subject to a paramount & inherent restriction, that they are to be exercised in subjection to the special purposes of the original bond of assocn.—PICKERING v. 4037. —.]—A co., created a corpn. under 1862 Act, is not thereby created a corpn. with inherent common law rights. The objects of a co. proposed to be incorporated under that Act, as stated in the memorandum of assocn. required by sect. 8 of the Act, cannot be departed from, except so far as sect. 12 permits the change. The memorandum is the charter of the co. Consequently a contract made by the directors of such a co. upon a matter not included in the memorandum of assocn. is ultra vires of the directors, & is not binding on the co. Nor can such a contract be rendered binding on the co. though afterwards expressly assented to at a general meeting of shareholders. Being in its inception void, as beyond the provisions of the statute, it cannot be ratified even by the assent of the whole body of shareholders.—ASHBURY RAILWAY CARRIAGE & IRON CO. v. A. also insisted by his solr. that, the transfer should be bonâ fide. One of the directors took the shares, the money was paid, an indemnity was given, & the transfer was registered:—Held: A., who had taken every possible means for rendering the transfer bonâ fide & legal, had effectually parted with his shares, & was not liable as a contributory under the winding up of the co.—Re PHOENIX LIFE ASSURANCE CO., REEVE'S CASE (1862), 7 L. The co. proposed one purchaser, but he was objected to by B. as being a purchaser on behalf of the co., & therefore not a bonâ fide one. A second was found, who bought the shares, & who said he was not purchasing on behalf of the co. The evidence in the case, however, showed that B. could not have been otherwise than aware of the fact that he was purchasing the shares for the co., & that in the then existing state of the co.'s affairs a bonâ fide purchaser could not have been found:—Held: B.'s name must be placed on the list of contributories.—Re CONSOLS INSURANCE ASSOCN., BENHAM'S CASE (1865), 12 L. The co. had no power under its memorandum of assocn. or arts. to purchase or deal in its own shares or accept surrenders:—Held: the scheme was ultra vires & invalid, being either an attempt to reduce the capital of the co. without complying with the provisions of 1867 Act, ss. 9–13, or else a trafficking in the shares of the co. which was not authorised by the memorandum of assocn.—*HOPE v. 100 £100 shares, fifty being fully paid up, & fifty on which £1 per share had been paid. After negotiations, the four directors by special minute approved of the purchase by three of themselves of these shares to be held in trust for the co. A transfer was executed in favour of the three directors, "in trust for the co.," & their names were entered upon the register of members with the same designation. The money paid for the shares came out of the funds of the co.; & thereafter the selling trustees ceased to be treated as having any interest therein. At the next general meeting the purchase was approved of by a majority of the shareholders. There was no other transfer or transferees proposed. More than fifteen months after the transaction the co. was wound up voluntarily:—Held: (1) the names of the three persons, the three directors, now appearing upon the register as holding these shares could not be disturbed; the transfer to them being valid & effectual, & the rights of creditors having intervened; (2) the above art. of assocn. did not give any power to the co. to become the purchaser of its own shares, nor had the transaction been carried on under its provisions.

The memorandum of a co. contained the usual powers, & the general clause at the end of its powers "to do all things conducive to the attainment of the above objects." The memorandum contained no power authorising the co. to purchase its own shares. The arts. of assocn. expressly authorised the purchase by the co. of its own shares. The vendor to the co. had entered into an arrangement with it, by which the co. was to purchase on certain terms certain shares issued to him. On Nov. 30, 1886, a resolution was passed for the voluntary winding up of the co. & the appointment of a liquidator. On Jan. 11, 1887, the list of contributories was settled by the liquidator, & on Feb. 7, 1887, an order was made for continuing the winding up under supervision. Issue of shares—Bogus issue of shares to obtain Stock Exchange quotation.]—Where there is a corporate body capable of suing, that body only is the proper pltf. in a suit for the recovery of property, whether from its officers or directors or from any other person, & a bill for that purpose cannot be sustained by one shareholder on behalf of himself and all others except debts. The only exception to this rule is where the directors or majority of shareholders are doing something fraudulent against the minority, who are overwhelmed by them.

In order to obtain the sale of a business to a projected limited co., the L. co., & to procure a settling day for the co. on the Stock Exchange, it became necessary that 40,000 shares in the co. should be subscribed for, with £5 paid upon each. To effect this purpose, it was arranged between the directors of the L. co., & the I. co., who were promoting the L. co., & the N. bank, that the N. bank should discount promissory notes of the I. co. to the amount of £200,000; that the I. co. should pay the sum so received back in to the N. bank to the account of the L. co.; that in return for such payment, 40,000 shares in the

L. co. should be allotted to the nominees of the I. co., & that the money so paid in should be retained by the bank, & employed in meeting the promissory notes when arrived at maturity. This scheme was carried out. Subsequently a bill was filed by a shareholder in the L. co., on behalf of himself & all other shareholders in the company for a declaration that the application of these moneys to meet the debts of the I. co. had been a breach of trust, and for the recovery of the amount from the directors of the L. co. & the N. bank :—Held : (1) such a suit came within the above-stated rule, & was not sustainable; (2) the whole scheme was a sham, with regard to which no liability could arise, either at law or in equity, between the three cos. who were parties to it.—*GRAY v. operations or business in any part of the world; (g) to promote co.'s having objects wholly or in part similar to those of the co., & in particular to provide the whole or any part of the capital thereof, or by taking shares therein; (n) to subscribe for, acquire, hold, sell, & give guarantees in relation to the shares & securities of any co. The co. had undertaken & carried on the business of N. co., but, having money unemployed, the directors proposed to acquire a large interest in a mine over which they had bought an option. If the option should be exercised, a new co. promoted by deft. co. was to be formed to take over the mine from the co., & it was proposed that the deft. co. should subscribe for 64,000 shares in such new co., applying £32,000 of its cash in hand in paying for such shares. On a motion by a shareholder for an injunction to restrain the co. from carrying into effect the purchase of the mine on the ground that the proposed agreement was ultra vires:—Held: although if clauses (a) & (b) had stood alone it might have been possible to find in the memorandum of assocn. such a main primary object of the co. as was found in Stephens v. Mysore Reefs (Kangundy) Mining Co., Ltd., No. 325, ante, yet that when read in conjunction with the following clauses, especially (g) & (n) it was shown that the co. contemplated many primary objects, & what was proposed to be done was not ultra vires.—*BUTLER v. 4070. Underwriting—By rubber company—Authorised by memorandum.]—The memorandum of assocn. of E. co. contained an objects clause with thirty sub-clauses enabling the co. to carry on almost every conceivable kind of business which a co. could adopt. Sub-clause (1) authorised the co. to acquire, take over, work, & develop any licences, concessions, etc., & in particular four specified licences to collect rubber, etc.; & sub-clause (12) authorised the co. to buy or otherwise acquire in any way, or deal with or in any stocks or shares of any co.; & the objects clause concluded with a declaration that every sub-clause should be construed as a substantive clause & not limited or restricted by reference to any other sub-clause or by the name of the co., & that none of such sub-clauses or the objects specified therein should be deemed subsidiary or auxiliary merely to the objects mentioned in the first sub-clause. E. co. underwrote & had allotted to it shares in A. co., & these shares were transferred to L. co. All three cos. being in liquidation, the liquidator of A. co. settled L. co. on the A. list of contributories & E. co. on the B. list in respect of these shares. On an application by the liquidator of E. to vary the B. list by striking out that co.'s name, on the ground that the underwriting was ultra vires of the co.:—Held: (1) the memorandum must be construed according to its literal meaning, & the underwriting was intra vires; (2) function of the memorandum of assocn. discussed (No. 286, ante).—*COTMAN v. The co. passed a resolution authorising the directors "to distribute to universities, or other scientific institutions in the United Kingdom, for the furtherance of scientific education & research the sum of £100,000 out of invested surplus reserve account." A shareholder of the co., suing on behalf of himself & the other shareholders, claimed a declaration that this resolution was ultra vires the objects & powers of the co., & moved for an injunction to restrain the co. from acting upon it. There was uncontradicted evidence by the chairman & directors of the co. to the effect that they desired to encourage a class of men prepared to devote their abilities to scientific education & research, & that from these trained experts the co. could select men to instruct in the scientific investigation necessary for its purposes; & that this was probably the most advantageous & profitable way in which this sum could be expended:—Held: the advantage to accrue to the co. by the expenditure of this sum was direct & substantial, & not speculative or too remote; & the co. had discharged the burden of proving that the proposed expenditure was also conducive to & indeed necessary for its continued progress as chemical manufacturers.—*EVANS v. 4077. Power of majority to bind minority—After minority heard.]—Certain of the directors of a railway co. acting on the nomination of another railway co. which was interested in certain shares in it, & which nominated those directors by virtue of the Act constituting the co., were excluded by a resolution of the board of directors, from the meetings of the directors, & the majority delegated all the powers of the board to a managing committee:—Held: that although in such a body the majority binds the minority, yet, that it is essential to the validity of their acts, that the voice of the minority should have been heard, & such exclusion of directors was restrained.—GREAT WESTERN

Ry. Co. v. RUSHOUT (1852), 5 De G. & Sm. 290; 7 Ry. & Can. Cas. 991; 19 L. T. O. S. 281; 16 Jur. 238; 64 E. R. 1121.

4078. — Compliance with regulations.]—(1) Where a deed enables the majority of a body to bind the minority by a resolution passed in a certain manner, the provisions of the deed in that respect must be strictly complied with, otherwise the minority are not bound.

(2) The subscribers' agreement of a provisionally registered co. authorised the directors, with the consent of a majority at a meeting of subscribers, summoned as therein mentioned, to amalgamate the undertaking with any other similar undertaking. The directors agreed to an amalgamation with D. co., & sent a circular to the subscribers, stating the terms agreed upon. A majority of the subscribers assented to the amalgamation, & took the benefit of it, but no meeting ever was called to sanction it:—Held: the amalgamation was not binding on any shareholders, who had not assented to it.

(3) The subscribers' agreement authorised the directors to adopt all such measures as they should in their judgment consider necessary or expedient for the promotion of the undertaking:—Held: a resolution of the directors, enabling any three of them to draw cheques on the funds of the co. was within this power, & when three directors drew a cheque under the authority given by that resolution, & applied the money improperly, those directors who were not privy to such drawing or application, were not liable.

(4) At the meeting at which amalgamation with D. co. was resolved, one of the directors opposed the amalgamation, but, finding that he was in a minority, insisted on the insertion of certain terms, which, as he believed, would prevent its taking place, & a resolution was then passed for an amalgamation subject to those terms:—Held: he was not responsible in respect of the amalgamation.—*Re DIRECT EAST & WEST JUNCTION RY. 4079. — Act intra vires.]—A shareholder in a trading co., who possessed both original & preferential shares filed a bill on behalf of himself & all the other shareholders, except debts., complaining of acts done by the directors & other debts. injurious to the interests of the co. The suit had not been authorised by any general meeting of the shareholders; but pltf. alleged that it was not practicable for any parties but the directors to call such a meeting. The acts complained of consisted of improperly increasing the liabilities of the co., by contracting debts & otherwise, & of giving to some of the holders of preferential shares an advantage over others, by changing their shares for debentures. These acts were held to be within the general powers of the co., & were done in consequence of, & as the directors insisted, in accordance with, a resolution passed at a general meeting. A demurrer, on the part of the co., for want of equity, was allowed, upon the ground that an individual shareholder was not entitled to be pltf. in a suit of such a nature; & that the interests

(2) The test whether a majority can bind the minority in voting the co.'s money must be whether the proposed payment is reasonably incidental to & within the scope of carrying on the business of the co. for the co.'s benefit.

Remuneration of directors for past services, & compensation to meritorious officials on dismissal, are justifiable, provided that they are likely to conduce to the advantage of a co. in the future. Therefore, to justify any such payments, the co. must be a going concern. Where, therefore, a co. had ceased to exist as a profit-making co., & only continued for the purpose of regulating their internal affairs, of winding up the same, & distributing when received the sums which had been fixed by arbn. as the purchase-money for their undertaking:—Held: (3) it was not within the power of the directors themselves, or of a general meeting of the co., to pass a resolution voting remuneration to the directors for their past services prior to the transfer of the undertaking, & compensation to officials who had been discharged in consequence of such transfer; (4) the co. could in general meeting vote a reasonable sum for remuneration for services during the winding up. (5) Semble: a resolution voting the distribution of a sum of money, first in paying certain expenses properly payable thereout, the amount of which can only be estimated, & the balance among the directors by way of remuneration, even though remuneration is properly payable, is bad.

Before the resolution was confirmed, a proposition was made, & finally accepted by a majority of more than two-thirds of the shareholders for leasing their works upon terms apparently advantageous. The deed of settlement empowered the directors, with the sanction of two-thirds of the votes recorded at an extraordinary general meeting, to do any act which the whole body of shareholders, all consenting, could do. Upon a bill filed to set aside the lease as being inconsistent with the purpose for which the co. had been incorporated, & as having been granted ultra vires:—Held: the lease was good, as being a lawful means of making the most of the assets of the co., & the granting of it was not ultra vires.—FEATHERSTONHAUGH v. A majority of the shareholders refused to take steps to get the contract set aside, but such majority was due to the votes of M. in respect of shares allotted to him as consideration for the purchase:—Held: a bill would lie by one of the shareholders, on behalf of himself & the other shareholders, except debts.; & a decree was made cancelling the agreement, with a declaration that the co. ought to be wound up.—ATWOOL v. Presumption that powers properly exercised.]—By the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co., the directors were authorised to borrow under the common seal of the co., such sums as should from time to time, by a resolution passed at a general meeting of the co., be authorised to be borrowed, not to exceed a certain sum. At a general meeting, the directors were authorised to borrow such sums & at such interest & for such periods as they might deem expedient, in accordance with the provisions of the deed of settlement & the Act of Parliament. 4083 i. Right of minority to restrain majority—Act of majority fraudulent.]—Two cos. existed in Y., a gas co., & an electric light co. Attempts were unsuccessfully made to consolidate them. Certain members of the electric light co. promoted a new co. called the M. Co., which acquired the property & assets of the electric light co. The promoters of the new co. afterwards acquired a controlling interest in the gas co. & proceeded to sell out all the property & assets of the M. Co. to the gas co., issuing bonds of the gas co. secured by mtge. of all their property to pay for it. An action was brought by certain of the minority shareholders of the gas co. to set aside the mtge. & the bond issue. On the trial, an amendment of the statement of claim was granted, allowing plffs. to amend by inserting a paragraph alleging the action to be brought on behalf of themselves & the other shareholders, not being defts., & also to make necessary amendments of the statement of claim in conformity with the evidence. The judge found that the scheme of the promoters of the M. Co., who also constituted a majority of the shareholders of the gas co., was a fraud upon the minority shareholders of the gas co. & an attempt to benefit themselves at the expense of such shareholders:—Held: plffs. were entitled to relief.—CANN v. Therefore, where shareholders complained of acts ultra vires, which they had acquiesced in for six years, relief was refused.

(2) In matters strictly relating to the internal management of a co. the ct., though it should come to the conclusion that the course adopted is not warranted by the terms of the instrument, will not interfere, even though the minority should have summoned a meeting of all the shareholders, & the majority should have persisted in the course complained of.

(3) But if the measures adopted are plainly beyond the powers of the co., & are inconsistent with the objects for which the co. was constituted, then the ct. will, at the instance of the minority, interpose to prevent the performance of the act complained of, & it will do so whether an appeal has or has not been made by the minority to the shareholders generally.

(4) The ct. will not interfere to prevent a call not required, or stop a dividend not justified by the pecuniary condition of the co., though it will prevent the illegal apportionment of the dividends amongst the shareholders.

(5) Where the ct. interferes by injunction to prevent the performance, by the directors of a co., of an act ultra vires, it will also, to the extent of its power, redress the act performed & give relief to the persons injured thereby, although it is not called upon to dissolve the co. or wind up its affairs.

The only available property of a co. was transferred to two shareholders in lieu of their shares, & the co. was thereby practically put an end to, & the debts were thrown on the remaining shareholders. This was sanctioned by a majority of the shareholders at a general meeting:—Held: (6) the majority could not bind the minority in such a transaction, & it must be set aside; (7) under the circumstances, the co. was not a necessary party to the suit to impeach acts of its directors.—GREGORY v. PATCHETT (1864), 33 Beav. 595; 11 L. T. 357; 10 Jur. N. S. 1118; 13 W. R. 34; 55 E. R. 499.

The directors passed resolutions with the object of acquiring & letting premises, from which B. duly dissented, & resolutions to the same effect were passed at an extraordinary general meeting of the co. by a simple majority of the shareholders:—Held: upon the true construction of the arts. the resolutions of the co. were inconsistent with the provisions of the arts., & the co. must be restrained from acting upon them.—*QUIN & AXTENS, LTD. v. The directors afterwards resolved to issue debentures to themselves & the staff in respect of the arrears, & some of the shareholders brought an action against the co., the directors, & the other shareholders, & asked for an interlocutory injunction restraining the resolution from being acted on:—Held: as the matter was carried through by the votes of two of the directors who would themselves benefit but whose claims were not admitted by the co., *pltf.*s. were entitled to an order granting an injunction till the trial, but defts. should have leave to move to dissolve the injunction in the event of the scheme proposed by the directors being confirmed by the co.—*LAWSON v. 4108. — Business carried on illegally.—Adjacent to a racecourse & forming part of it was an open inclosure surrounded by rails to which the public were admitted at race meetings on payment of an entrance fee. The greater number of the people who entered the inclosure went there for the purpose of betting with the professional bookmakers whom they found there. The bookmakers were admitted on the same terms as the general public, & had no special rights in the inclosure, & did not confine themselves to any particular part of it. They acted independently & in competition with each other, & independently of the proprietors of the racecourse, & any one might act as a bookmaker. The betting was for the most part ready-money betting, & no betting lists were exhibited, but the bookmakers called out the odds.

Pltf. alleged that deft. co., in addition to its business as keeper of a racecourse, was carrying on a business which was illegal under Betting Act, 1853 (c. 119), & outside the scope of its memorandum of assocn., & was liable to be indicted & fined & to have its property confiscated; & claimed an injunction to restrain the co. from opening or keeping the inclosure for the said purposes:—Held: the inclosure was not a "place kept or used for the purpose of betting with persons resorting thereto," within the meaning of the Betting Act, 1853.

No point has been made that an injunction will not lie to restrain the commission of a criminal offence. I believe that it will lie, when its object is to protect the shareholders of a co. from any misapplication of its property, although such application may lie punishable as a criminal offence (LOPES, L.J.).—*POWELL v. 4109. — Acts likely to incapacitate company from performing another act—Both acts intra vires.—The ct. will not restrain a co. from doing a thing within the scope of its objects, on the ground that, if the co. does that thing, the doing of it may incapacitate the co. from performing something else, which is also within the scope of its objects.

h. — Petition to prevent performance of agreement—Purchase of shares by petitioners after agreement.—The ct. will not consider the quantum of interest of shareholders in a co. who seek for an injunction to restrain a co. from carrying into effect a particular agreement nor whether their interest would entitle them to vote at a meeting of the co.; but when the petitioners had purchased two shares for a nominal consideration, after the agreement which they complained of had been entered into, & with full notice of it, & for the purpose of preventing its completion, the ct. refused an injunction.—*M'DONNELL v. 4111. What constitutes acquiescence.]—It was said, "But this transaction was acquiesced in by the shareholders;" & I was referred to a case in the House of Lords, or rather two cases, Spackman v. Evans, No. 2779, ante, & Evans v. Smallcombe, No. 2778, ante. In Smallcombe's case it was held that a transaction which in itself was ultra vires, was binding on the shareholders, because they had acquiesced in it for a great number of years. That distinguishes it from Spackman's case upon a ground which would apply to this case, that is to say, in the one case all the facts & circumstances had been distinctly disclosed to the shareholders, & the shareholders with that knowledge had gone on allowing the co. to deal upon the footing of the arrangement which had been made with the shareholders. In that case the noble lords who constituted the majority came to the conclusion that all the shareholders had acquiesced, which I understand to mean they had been acquiescent under such circumstances as to amount to an assent. In Spackman's case there had been an interval of time, twenty years or nearly so, after the time the arrangements had been made, & the shareholders did not know, although it is said they might have known it, & then it was held that there was nothing which amounted to acquiescence (JAMES, V.-O.)—BRITISH & FOREIGN RAILWAY PLANT CO., LTD. v. ASHBURY CARRIAGE & IRON CO., LTD., SMITH v. ASHBURY CARRIAGE & IRON CO., LTD., No. 4064, ante.

4112. —.]—Defts., the promoters of a co., were entitled to receive a sum of money on the conclusion of a transaction with the co. & D. The directors of the co. advanced defts. a sum of £6,500 & some debenture-stock in the co. on the security of the money which would be due to defts. On the conclusion of the transaction with D. The transaction went off, & the directors called upon defts. to repay the money. Defts. being unable to pay, proposed a compromise, which the directors accepted, that they should deliver up 400 shares, which they held in the co., to be cancelled in satisfaction & discharge of their debt. At a general meeting of the co., the fact that the 400 shares had been forfeited was mentioned to the shareholders & published in a circular, & the books of the co. were open for inspection, so that every shareholder had the means of inquiring into the transaction. The arts. of assocn. provided that the co. should not buy or sell its own shares:—Held: although the directors, in entering into a compromise with defts., had exceeded the authority given to them by the arts. of assocn., yet that the shareholders had ratified the directors' acts by not objecting at the right time, & that they could not, after profiting by an increased dividend arising from the forfeiture of the shares, open anew transactions to which they had tacitly assented.

4113. Period of acquiescence.]—The capital of a joint-stock co. was fixed at £10,000 but with power for a general meeting of the shareholders, duly convened according to certain forms, & by a majority of two-thirds of the then shareholders, to increase that amount to £100,000. No such meeting was held, but a false entry was made by the chairman in the minute book of the co., stating that at an extraordinary general meeting of the co. it had been resolved to increase the capital from £10,000 to £100,000. The capital having been de facto increased, new shares having been issued & taken, profits having been made upon the increased capital, & dividends paid on such profits among all the shareholders for four years:—Held: the shareholders must be taken to have acquiesced, & could not now object to the irregular manner in which the shares had been increased.—Re ATHENAEUM LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, RICHMOND'S CASE & PAINTER'S CASE (1858), 4 K. & J. 305; 32 L. The directors accordingly borrowed on debentures divers sums of money, which were applied in discharging the debts & liabilities of the co. The debenture debts regularly appeared in the reports of the directors, which were confirmed at the annual general meetings of the shareholders, & interest was regularly paid with the consent of the shareholders until the winding up of the co., a period of two years:—Held: though the debentures were clearly improperly issued, yet, as the money had been raised & applied for the benefit of the co., & the shareholders had acquiesced for two years, it was too late now to dispute their validity.—Re MAGDALENA STEAM NAVIGATION CO. (1860), John. 690; 29 L. The arts. further provided that one half of the votes of the shareholders called for the purpose should be necessary to enlarge, extend, rescind, or alter all or any of the provisions contained therein. The directors exceeded their borrowing powers:—Held: the limitation of the power of borrowing was merely a limitation of the authority of the directors, & was not part of the constitution of the co.; the act of the directors might be ratified by the co. at a half-yearly meeting, but such ratification would not enlarge the borrowing powers of the directors for the future.—IRVINE v. SUB-SECT. 4.—EMPLOYMENT OF AGENTS AND SERVANTS.

A. In General.

4124. Appointment—Whether valid.]—By the deed of settlement of a joint-stock co. established under 1844 Act, the directors were empowered against a firm of manufacturing engineers at the instance of a limited co., registered on July 29, 1890, pursuers averred that, on July 11, 1890, D., as agent for the co., entered to issue bills of exchange & promissory notes, but such bills & notes were only to bind the shareholders to the extent of their interests in the co. The directors, by deed-poll under the common seal of the co., & signed by three directors, appointed an agent in Canada, & empowered him to draw bills of exchange upon the co. To discharge claims against the co. in Canada, the agent drew & gave there two bills of exchange, such bills containing no notice of any restricted liability. Upon the co. being wound up, the holders of these bills put in claims for the amount, together with interest & damages calculated according to certain statutes of Canada:—Held: the appointment of the agent was valid, & the bills in question were well drawn by him so as to bind the co., notwithstanding sect. 45 of above Act, & notwithstanding also the provisions in the deed of settlement for limiting the liability of the shareholders; & accordingly the holders of the bills were entitled to prove against the co.—*Re STATE FIRE INSURANCE CO., Ex p. 4125. Employment—Agent personally interested in transaction—Whether acting as agent or on own behalf.—Pltfs. were holders of a bill of exchange drawn by deft. on D. The bill was drawn by deft. as surety for D. in respect of a debt due by D. to pltfs., & was to be met by the proceeds of claims of D. on S., which would accrue due before maturity of the bill. Pltfs. took the bill with notice of these facts to their managing director C. D., in addition to his debt to pltfs., was indebted to C., their managing director. Subsequently, but before maturity of the bill, C. obtained an order from D. upon S. for the amount of the above claims & received the money from S. This money he applied towards payment of his own demand on D. instead of towards pltfs.' bill:—Held: the receipt by C. of this money & his application of it to his own purposes did not afford any defence to pltfs.' action, as C. could not be said to have been acting within his authority as managing director when he so received & applied the money.—*McGOWAN & Co. v. 4133. — Effect of holding out by company.]—(1) Where a co., through their directors, hold out an officer of the co. as their agent for a particular purpose & ratify his acts, they cannot afterwards dispute acts done by him within the scope of such agency.

An officer of a co. had been publicly accustomed to enter into contracts on their behalf, though not authorised under the corporate seal, & his acts had always been sanctioned:—Held: a written contract of such a character entered into by him was binding on the co.

(2) A contract for the sale to pltf. of lands of a co. was entered into, without any specific authority, by their manager, & it was afterwards part performed by acts of the co. & its officers:—Held: it was binding on the co., & pltf. was entitled to enforce its specific performance.—*WILSON v. q. — Contract not under corporate seal of company.]—Declaration, that a certain vessel insured in the P. Co. was sunk, & that deft., who was the agent of the co., in effecting settlements on account of vessels lost or damaged, in consideration that pltf's. would contract with deft. as, & assuming to be, the agent of the co., to raise the vessel for $3,100, the question of liability to pay the sum to be referred to arbitration, promised pltf's. that he was authorised by the co. to enter into the contract as their agent; that pltf's. entered into such contract with deft. as & assuming to be the agent of the co., & raised the vessel; yet deft. was not authorised by the co. to make such contract, & refused to pay pltf's. the $3,100, or to refer the question of liability to pay the same to arbitration, by reason whereof pltf's. could not enforce the contract against the co., & were put to expense, etc. Plea, pltf's. were unable to enforce the contract, not because deft. was not authorised to contract, but because the contract was by parol, & as pltf's. well knew, not under the corporate seal of the co.:—Held: on demurrer, there was no assertion in the declaration of deft. being the agent inconsistent with the allegation of his want of authority;

the plea showed no defence, for if deft. had been authorised as he represented, the co. could have been compelled in equity to affix their seal to the contract.—CALVIN v. DAVIDSON (1871), 31 U. C. R. 396.—CAN.

r. — —.]—Pltf., acting under a written contract, for the delivery of twelve tons of stone for the piers of a bridge which defts. were building over a river on their line of railway, delivered the amount, & was paid by defts. therefor, as well as for an additional ton & a half, & some sand subsequently ordered by the inspector. The inspector then ordered pltf. to deliver some more stone & sand, stating that he did not know what quantity of stone was required, but telling pltf. to go on drawing until told to stop, & pltf. then delivered some 26½ tons of stone & a quantity of sand, defts. having furnished the men & teams to assist pltf. in doing so. On observing about May 8, that defts. had stopped work on the bridge, pltf. ceased delivering. About May 12, he was paid for what had been delivered up to that time. On the work being renewed, & on being ordered by the inspector to continue delivering, he delivered 26 further tons & some more sand. Defts., however, refused to pay for the latter delivery, contending that they were not liable:—Held: there was sufficient evidence of authority on the part of the inspector to bind defts., & of their having adopted his acts; the contract was not required to be in writing to satisfy the Stat. Frauds, because the stone & sand now in question had been delivered under the order to go on drawing until told to stop, & part of the stone delivered under that order had been accepted & paid for; the contract did not require to be under the corporate seal, it being one directly connected in its nature with the purposes of deft. co.—O'BRIEN v. CREDIT VALLEY RY. CO. (1875), 25 C. P. 275.—CAN.

s. — —.]—An agreement for fencing of a railway was signed by pltf's. & by F., on behalf of R. Co. F. controlled nine-tenths of the stock, & publicly appeared & acted as manager of R. Co. Pltf's. built the fence, & R. Co. supplied cars as agreed & had the benefit of the work. The jury found that pltf's., when they contracted, considered they were contracting with the co. through F.; that there was no evidence that the co. repudiated the contract till the action was brought; that payments were made as of money which the co. owed, which they were not paying to be charged to F.; & a general verdict was found for pltf's. On appeal:—Held: it was properly left to the jury to decide whether the work performed, of which the co. received the benefit, was contracted for by the co. through the instrumentality of F., or whether they adopted & ratified the contract; the verdict could not be set aside on the ground of being against the weight of evidence; although the contract entered into by F. for the co. was not under seal, the action was maintainable.—*CANADA CENTRAL RY. c. — Chartered accountant.]—A co. employed a chartered accountant to carry through an amalgamation of their co. with another, & subsequently paid him £200 to cover his charges, expenses & outlays. Without special instructions from the principals & without their knowledge, he employed a firm of law-agents to prepare a certain deed, & informed them that it was on his principals' behalf. On his failing to pay the law-agents' account, they brought an action against the principals for the amount of that account. e. After transfer of company to syndicate.]—A manufacturing co. transferred to a syndicate, which had lent it money, its works, plant, & material, & in effect its whole business, which the syndicate proceeded to carry on, on the co.'s premises, for its own benefit, & at its own risk. The managing director of the co., who had become the manager of the syndicate, after the above transfer, but pursuant to a correspondence commenced a few days before it, ordered, as in his former capacity, certain goods from pltf., who, subsequent to the transfer, supplied the goods ordered, which were used by the syndicate, & he afterwards took a note of the co. for their price, on which, when dishonoured, he sued & obtained judgment against the co., being, however, all the time, ignorant of the circumstances above mentioned. About a week prior to the judgment a winding-up order was obtained against the co., hearing of which, pltf. at once commenced this action against the syndicate for the price of the goods, & afterwards, before trial, obtained ex p. an order vacating the judgment against the co.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover from the syndicate the price of the goods.—

At a meeting between the directors of the co. & the shipbuilders on the day that the above contract was signed, the latter having raised an objection to receiving any part of the purchase-money in shares, the chairman & the managing director of the co., who together formed a firm carrying on a separate business as cotton brokers under the title of C. G. & Co., gave them the following letter, dated the same day: "We hereby beg to say that we shall do our best to dispose of the stock we propose that you shall take in payment of the last instalment of the steamer, this day contracted for with you. It is not our expectation that we shall have to call upon you to take up these shares." This was signed "C. G. & Co." Before the delivery of the ship, an individual member of the firm of shipbuilders applied for some shares in the co. on his own account, & the co. declined to allot any to new appcts. except at 5 per cent. premium. No shares were allotted to the shipbuilders until three years after the delivery of the ship, when the co. was about to wind up:—Held: in the absence of

—Cos. no less than individuals must be answerable to the ct.'s jurisdiction in cases of fraud; & although the co.'s officer might, in directing certain works, have originally exceeded his powers & authority, the co. permitting them to be proceeded with, & afterwards taking the benefit of them, is precluded from raising a question as to the propriety of the works & the powers of their officer to order them to be done.—HILL v. SOUTH STAFFORDSHIRE RY. CO. (1865), 12 L. T. 63; 11 Jur. N. S. 192, L. JJ.

4138. —Representation to shareholders—Acted on by stranger.]—A fraudulent report of the state of the affairs of a bank was made by the directors to a general meeting of the co., & by them adopted. The accounts had been audited by auditors appointed by the shareholders. In pursuance of the desire to have new shares taken, the directors issued a circular, which also contained false & fraudulent representations. N. upon the faith of the report & the circular, & also upon the representation of one of the directors, took shares, & received a dividend upon them. He afterwards employed his broker to dispose of the shares. According to the constitution of the co., the assent of the directors to a transfer of shares was necessary, the evidence of which assent was to be an indorsement on the deed of transfer. The broker employed by the bank purchased these shares, giving the name of E. as the purchaser. The transfer to E. was executed in the form which had been furnished at the bank, with E.'s name inserted as purchaser. E. was not aware of this transfer, but he had given authority to the principal manager to use his name in transfers, & he had accepted some transfers in which his name had been so used. The purchase-money for N.'s shares was paid by the bank. The next dividend was treated as part of the assets of the bank, & the shares were subsequently found in the principal manager's possession, & given up by him to the solr. of the bank as part of their property. The bank having stopped payment, N.'s name was sought to be placed on the list of contributories:—Held: N. was not exempted from liability by reason of the false representation in the report & circular, as the directors were not agents of the co. for the purpose of making fraudulent representations, or beyond the scope of their authority as limited by the charter; but the assent of the directors to the transfer of the shares by N. had been sufficiently shown, & therefore his name must be removed from the list of contributories.

lender that it was for the use of his principal's business, & granted the lender a bill of exchange, blank in the drawer's name, but signed by him per procuration of his principals, for the amount. He used the money ultimately in reducing a deficit in his principal's bank account caused by his malversations. The agent absconded leaving heavy defalcations. The holder of the bill having charged the principals upon it, in a suspension of the charge:—Held: in the absence of express power to borrow, the agent was not entitled to do so, & even assuming the money to have been applied for the benefit of the principals that did not make them liable.—*SINCLAIR, MOORHEAD & CO. v. 4139. Misrepresentation at offices.]—A false representation made by an officer of a co., even though it be made at the office, is not the representation of the co.

A false representation, to be the representation of the co., must be made by a report adopted at a general meeting, & put forth to the public, either intentionally or becoming circulated in the ordinary course of business.

If a person is misled by false representations made by a co., he is not bound to perform a contract entered into upon the faith of the truth of such representations.—Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, Ex p. FROWD (1861), 30 L. J. Ch. 322; 3 L. T. 843; 9 W. R. 328.

4140. Misrepresentation for company's benefit—Benefit taken.]—A ct. of equity will not relieve on a general charge of fraud, but it must be alleged in what the fraud consists, & how it has been effected.

If reports are made to the shareholders of a joint-stock co. by the directors, and adopted at one of the meetings of the co., & afterwards industriously circulated, the representations in those reports become after this adoption those of the co., & therefore binding on the co., & if those reports, so circulated can be shown to be the proximate & immediate cause of shares being bought by individuals, the co. cannot retain the benefit of the contract & keep the purchase-money which has been paid.

If an incorporated co., acting by its agent, induces a person to enter into a contract for the benefit of the co., that co. can no more repudiate the fraudulent agent than an individual could repudiate him, & the co. are bound by the misrepresentations of their agent. But the principle cannot be carried so far that an action can be brought against the co. on the ground of deceit, because the directors have done an act which might render them liable to such an action.—

4141. Representation within scope of authority—Representation as to credit of another—Effect of Statute of Frauds Amendment Act, 1828 (c. 14), s. 6.—A co. incorporated under the Cos. Acts is a "person" within the meaning of sect. 6 of above Act, & entitled to the benefit of the enactment. Sec, generally, AGENCY, Vol. I., pp. 587 et seq., 685, 686; CORPORATIONS, Vol. XIII., pp. 403 et seq.; MISREPRESENTATION & FRAUD.

4137. Misrepresentation & fraud—General rule.]

—Cos. no less than individuals must be answerable to the ct.'s jurisdiction in cases of fraud; & although the co.'s officer might, in directing certain works, have originally exceeded his powers & authority, the co. permitting them to be proceeded with, & afterwards taking the benefit of them, is precluded from raising a question as to the propriety of the works & the powers of their officer to order them to be done.—HILL v. SOUTH STAFFORDSHIRE RY. Co. (1865), 12 L. T. 63; 11 Jur. N. S. 192, L. J.J.

4138. —Representation to shareholders—Acted on by stranger.]—A fraudulent report of the state of the affairs of a bank was made by the directors to a general meeting of the co., & by them adopted. The accounts had been audited by auditors appointed by the shareholders. In pursuance of the desire to have new shares taken, the directors issued a circular, which also contained false & fraudulent representations. N. upon the faith of the report & the circular, & also upon the representation of one of the directors, took shares, & received a dividend upon them. He afterwards employed his broker to dispose of the shares. According to the constitution of the co., the assent of the directors to a transfer of shares was necessary, the evidence of which assent was to be an indorsement on the deed of transfer. The broker employed by the bank purchased these shares, giving the name of E. as the purchaser. The transfer to E. was executed in the form which had been furnished at the bank, with E.'s name inserted as purchaser. E. was not aware of this transfer, but he had given authority to the principal manager to use his name in transfers, & he had accepted some transfers in which his name had been so used. The purchase-money for N.'s shares was paid by the bank. The next dividend was treated as part of the assets of the bank, & the shares were subsequently found in the principal manager's possession, & given up by him to the solr. of the bank as part of their property. The bank having stopped payment, N.'s name was sought to be placed on the list of contributories:—Held: N. was not exempted from liability by reason of the false representation in the report & circular, as the directors were not agents of the co. for the purpose of making fraudulent representations, or beyond the scope of their authority as limited by the charter; but the assent of the directors to the transfer of the shares by N. had been sufficiently shown, & therefore his name must be removed from the list of contributories.

If directors of a co., acting as such, make fraudulent representations to the shareholders, & afterwards give them unauthorised circulation beyond the limits of the co., a stranger acting on such representations, & suffering loss thereby, has no remedy against the co., unless the co. is party to the fraud (LORD CHELMSFORD, C.).—Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, ETC., NICOL'S CASE (1859), 3 De G. & J. 387; 28 L. 4139. Misrepresentation at offices.]—A false representation made by an officer of a co., even though it be made at the office, is not the representation of the co.

A false representation, to be the representation of the co., must be made by a report adopted at a general meeting, & put forth to the public, either intentionally or becoming circulated in the ordinary course of business.

If a person is misled by false representations made by a co., he is not bound to perform a contract entered into upon the faith of the truth of such representations.—Re ROYAL BRITISH BANK, Ex p. Frowd (1861), 30 L. J. Ch. 322; 3 L. T. 843; 9 W. R. 328.

4140. Misrepresentation for company's benefit—Benefit taken.]—A ct. of equity will not relieve on a general charge of fraud, but it must be alleged in what the fraud consists, & how it has been effected.

If reports are made to the shareholders of a joint-stock co. by the directors, and adopted at one of the meetings of the co., & afterwards industriously circulated, the representations in those reports become after this adoption those of the co., & therefore binding on the co., & if those reports, so circulated can be shown to be the proximate & immediate cause of shares being bought by individuals, the co. cannot retain the benefit of the contract & keep the purchase-money which has been paid.

If an incorporated co., acting by its agent, induces a person to enter into a contract for the benefit of the co., that co. can no more repudiate the fraudulent agent than an individual could repudiate him, & the co. are bound by the misrepresentations of their agent. But the principle cannot be carried so far that an action can be brought against the co. on the ground of deceit, because the directors have done an act which might render them liable to such an action.—

of the bill having charged the principals upon it, in a suspension of the charge:—Held: in the absence of express power to borrow, the agent was not entitled to do so, & even assuming the money to have been applied for the benefit of the principals that did not make them liable.—*SINCLAIR, MOORHEAD & Co. v. 4146. Fraudulent measure in possession of servants—Possession of servant distinguished from possession of company.—On Mar. 15, 1907, two measures were supplied to one of applts.' drivers for use during that day. Each measure was examined by applts.' engineer & found to be absolutely correct. Resp. found the driver in Bermondsey on that day in charge of a tank-waggon belonging to applts. containing oil, & having in his possession two five-gallon measures, one of which was correct, but the other was found to have in the angle formed by the side & bottom thereof, & at the bottom of the measure itself, a quantity of soap, the effect of which was to render to make investigations with regard to railway tickets used by him, & in the course of the interview made statements with regard to pursuer's use of the tickets which, pursuer averred, implied fraudulent conduct on his part:—Held: as it did not appear that it was any part of the inspector's business to express an opinion as to pursuer's character or conduct, etc., defenders were not responsible for such statements made by him; & defenders absolved.—MANDELSTON v. NORTH BRITISH RY. CO., [1917] S. C. 442.—SCOT.

t. False imprisonment—Within scope of authority.—A corpn. may be liable for false imprisonment under an order of its agent acting within the scope of his authority.—LYDEN v. MCGEE (1888), 16 O. R. 105.—CAN.

a. Trespass—While doing act ultra vires the company.—A corpn. is liable for a trespass committed by its servant while conducting its business, although committed in the doing of an act ultra vires of the corpn. itself. Where the servant of a corpn. forms an erroneous judgment, & in the supposed scope & discharge of the duty delegated to him commits a trespass, the corpn. is liable for it.—ADAMS v. NATIONAL ELECTRIC TRAMWAY & LIGHTING CO. (1893), 3 B. C. R. 199.—CAN.

b. — Company having full control of business.—A servant of deft. corpn., employed to cut timber on its lands, knowingly trespassed & cut timber off pltf.'s lands, which adjoined, & defts.' manager, general foreman, & other servants, knowingly took & included it in defts.' boom, & hauled it away. It was afterwards cut up & sold along with defts.' lumber. Evidence was given for pltf. & denied by defts., that the trespass was committed by instructions of the manager. The jury found a verdict for pltf.:—Held: defts. were liable for tortious acts of their manager & foreman on the ground that they had the entire control of their business.—HARRIS v. BRUNETTE SAW MILL CO. (1894), 3 B. C. R. 172.—CAN.

c. Investment of trust-money—In course of authorised employment.—A co. was, upon the evidence, held liable for moneys intrusted to its officers for investment; the acts of the officers, in regard to pltf.'s affairs, being within the scope of the co.'s corporate powers, & within the scope of the officers' duties, the co. was estopped from denying its liability to pltf.—MCARTHUR v. IMPERIAL TRUST CO. (1911), 17 W. L. R. 415.—CAN.

d. — — — — ——In Sept. 1913, two persons who formed the local advisory board of deft. co. purchased on deft.'s behalf for $7,000 the balance unpaid under an agreement for sale of sub-divided property, which amounted to about $7,000, taking, for convenience of transferring of lots, the assignment in their own names "as trustees." One of these persons, the local manager of deft. co., had an individual private client, pltf., for whom he had invested moneys. Having $5,000 of pltf.'s money on hand he invested them by buying a part interest in the assignment of agreement for sale, & a declaration of trust was made by the trustees in pltf.'s favour dated Aug. 31, 1914, to the extent of $5,000 & interest. The investment turned out badly & pltf. sued deft. co. for recovery of his money:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover.—MCGRINDLE v. LONDON SCOTTISH CANADIAN INVESTMENT SYNDICATE, LTD., [1922] 3 W. W. R. 977; 70 D. L. R. 612.—CAN.

f. Fraud.—The rule that directors are not a co.'s agents to commit a fraud cannot apply to a case in which the fraud relates to a matter which is of the essence of the contract, & a part of it.—Re TIPPERARY JOINT STOCK BANK & WINDING UP ACTS, Ex p. GINGER (1857), 2 Jur. N. S. 221.—IR.

g. — — — — ——The trustees of a shareholder of a co., the contract of which gave the right of pre-emption of any shares to the co., being desirous of selling his shares, offered them in virtue of this provision to the co., which accepted them, & the purchase was completed. The trustees having brought a reduction of the sale on the ground that the price was inadequate, & that the true value of the shares had been fraudulently concealed by the office-bearers of the co.:—Held: the fraud of the office-bearers was the fraud of the co., & the action was therefore relevantly directed against the co.—JARDINE'S TRUSTEES v. CARRON CO. (1864), 2 Macph. (Ct. of Sess.) 1101; 36 Sc. Jur. 316.—SCOT.

h. Misrepresentation—To induce a discounting of bills.—In an action against a bank for payment of the loss sustained by discounting bills for £2,000 accepted by a customer of the bank, pursuer averred that he had discounted the bills on the faith of a letter written, in answer to pursuer, by the agent of the bank at which the customer banked, stating that he considered the customer "perfectly good for £2,000"; that these representations were to the knowledge of the bank agent false, & that "it is the custom of the said bank to furnish information as to the credit of individuals with whom they are doing business." It was within the scope of the agent's duty as agent of the bank to supply the information & to sign the letter. Pursuer averred that the bank was advancing large sums of money to the customer, & it was to the interest of the bank to keep his credit good & to assist him to get advances from third parties; & that the bank had derived benefit from pursuer having been induced to discount the bills:—Held: pursuer had not stated a relevant case against the bank either that the agent's letter had been written with the authority of the bank or that the bank had taken benefit through discounting the bills: the local agent has no implied authority to bind the bank by making representations as to the credits of its customers.—HOCKEY v. CLYDESDALE BANK, LTD. (1898), 1 F. (Ct. of Sess.) 119.—SCOT.

it false & unjust to the extent of three & a half pints. The unjust measure belonged to applts.

The quantity of oil contained in the tank-waggon was measured & booked out against the driver every morning, & similarly checked on his return in the evening of the same day; & the driver did not on Mar. 15, 1907, bring back in his tank-waggon more oil than his deliveries during the day accounted for. It was not proved that applts. were cognisant of the driver's conduct, or that they gave their sanction or approval to the use by him of the unjust measure.

On an information preferred by resp. against applts.:—Held: the ct. was at liberty so far to apply the principle which is well settled in reference to civil liability for torts (that an employer is not liable for fraudulent acts of his servant when committed not in the interests of the employer, but for the individual purposes of profit of the fraudulent servant) as to say that, as the fraudulent driver had the fraudulent measure in his own physical possession for his own fraudulent purposes as distinguished from the interests of his employers, his possession must be deemed to be his own possession, & not the possession of his employers, & that, therefore, the offence with which applts. were charged had not been made out.—*ANGLO-AMERICAN OIL CO., LTD. v. k. Liabilities—Agent acting on behalf of unincorporated company.—Deft. was one of the projectors & secretary of a proposed co., & as such before the issue of the letters-patent applied to pltf. to take a share, which pltf. agreed to do on the terms of a receipt then given by him to deft.:—Held: deft. was prima facie personally liable, there being at the time when he signed the receipt no co., & therefore no principals whom he could bind.—THOMSON v. FEELEY (1877), 41 U. C. R. 229.—CAN.

l. — Unauthorised agreement — For commission on sale of land.—M., a director of deft. co., in a conversation with pltf., assured him that if he, pltf., would procure a purchaser for the property in question, owned by the co., he felt sure the co. would quote the price at $550,000, & in the event of a sale, would pay pltf. a commission of $50,000, but any abatement of the price down to $500,000 was to be borne by pltf. There was no evidence that M. had any authority to sell the property or employ an agent to find a purchaser. After M. became president of the co., the property was sold for exactly $500,000 by the co. to a purchaser to whom the co. had been introduced by pltf., to the knowledge of M.:—Held: the co. were not liable to pltf. either for a commission on the sale or for the value of his services as on a quantum meruit; M. was not liable to pltf. for any misrepresentation of authority from the co. to enter into the alleged contract with pltf., or for failing to prevent the co. from selling the property for $500,000 or less.—BENT v. ARROWHEAD (1909), 18 Man. L. R. 632; 8 W. L. R. 594; 10 W. L. R. 339.—CAN.

m. — Unauthorised offer of option of purchase.—Deft., L., representing himself as managing director of one of deft. cos., gave an exclusive option to pltf. to purchase the two deft. cos.' properties, the option to remain in force unless vendor gave written notice of cancellation within a reasonable time. The purchaser was to receive a 9 per cent commission in the event of a sale going through. L. in fact was not the managing director of one of the deft. cos. He was, however, president of one of the

cos. & a shareholder in the other. Upon obtaining the option pltf. arranged with brokers, who then communicated with W. W. then entered into an arrangement with two men in Apr. 1910, who eventually brought about a sale of the two properties. L. wrote pltf. on May 27, 1910, cancelling the option:—Held: L. had no authority to bind either co.; pltf. brought about the sale; he undertook the work of procuring a purchaser on the strength of the option under which he was to obtain a commission; L. was liable on the implied contract that he had the authority to bind the co., & was not relieved by his notice of cancellation of the option.—*PICARD v. special meeting. Pltf. sued the co. on an agreement above the prescribed value. It was within the scope of the co.'s business, & was made by parol with the chairman, who, with his own hand, entered a memorandum of it in the minute book of the co. It was recognised in correspondence with the secretary; pltf. did work under it, & received payments by cheques for it. These payments passed into the accounts of the co., & were audited & allowed; but there never was any contract signed by three directors, or under the seal of the co.:—Held: the contract was ratified, if not authorised, by the co., & binding.—*REUTER v. 4157. When presumed—From conduct of company.]—L., a shareholder in the B. co., sold his shares to the co., & the transfer was duly returned to the public registry of joint-stock cos. Some months after the transfer & return, a general meeting was held, & a balance-sheet submitted, containing items relating to this transaction. It was proved that this balance-sheet was adopted, although, through the default of the chairman, there was no legal record of the proceedings of the meeting. The transfer was afterwards, in various ways, acknowledged & acted upon by the co., & remained unquestioned for five years:—Held: it was to be presumed, that the assent of a general meeting had been obtained to the transfer.

It was the duty of the co. to keep exact minutes of the proceedings of general meetings, & if no minutes or no complete minutes were forthcoming, it was to be presumed as against the co. that whatever ought to have been submitted at any general meeting, was so submitted in fact (LORD WESTBURY, C.).—Re BRITISH PROVIDENT LIFE & FIRE ASSURANCE SOCIETY, LANE'S CASE (1863), 1 De G. general manager:—Held: defts., an incorporated co., through their directors, must be considered, by their course of conduct, to have acquiesced in the agreement in question, & were debarred from setting up misrepresentation or breach of trust. 4159. When ratification takes effect—Unauthorised contract by director—Ratification by company after repudiation by other party.]—Subsequently to some negotiations between A., a director of a co., & L., an offer by letter was made by L. to the co. to take from it a lease of its property. On Dec. 9, 1886, A. wrote to L. saying that his offer should be laid before the directors, & on Dec. 13, 1886, A. again wrote to L. to inform him that the directors accepted his offer, & that the co.'s solrs. had been instructed to prepare the necessary documents. On Jan. 13, 1887, L. wrote to the co. alleging that he had discovered that he had been misled as to certain facts, & stating that he therefore withdrew all offers made to the co. An action was thereupon brought by the co. against L. claiming specific performance of the contract, & damages. It appeared that at the time when A. wrote accepting L.'s offer, he, although acting perfectly bonâ fide, had not in fact obtained the formal authority of the co. to enter into the contract; & that the contract was not ratified by the co. until after L.'s repudiation thereof:—Held: the ratification by the co. related back to the date of the contract, & the repudiation by L. was of no avail, notwithstanding that the co. itself was not bound by the contract until the ratification thereof took place.—*BOLTON PARTNERS v. 4180. —.]—In an action ex contractu against a joint-stock co., completely registered under 1844 Act, pltf. must prove that the contract was made by persons having authority from all the shareholders to bind them by such a contract; & this may be done by proving that the contract was sanctioned by the persons authorised by the deed of the co. to conduct the affairs of the co. Pltf. is not confined to proof of authority conferred by the deed, if he can in any other way show that the whole of the shareholders have mediately or directly given authority to those making the contract to bind them; but it is not enough to show that the contract was made or sanctioned by some of the directors, without proving that by the deed or otherwise the shareholders had authorised that number to act for them.

Therefore, where the deed of a co. appointed eleven directors & declared that five should be a quorum:—Held: the co. were not bound by contracts made at a board meeting by three only of the directors.

Semble: acts & admissions by a competent number of the governing body of the co. are admissible as evidence against the co., & have the same legal effect as if made by the co. itself, & consequently, a verbal statement made by the chairman, at a board meeting of the directors, to pltf., that a distress made on his goods had been rightfully made by the landlord of the co., & that the co. were bound by a contract made with pltf. in their name, to indemnify him against it, would have operated as a ratification of the contract with pltf., & have been original evidence of the rightfulness of the distress (without producing or accounting for the absence of the lease to the co., under which the rent distrained for became due though shown to be in writing), if there had been a competent number of the directors present at the board meeting, when the statement was made.

A. at the time of this arrangement did not know who the purchaser was likely to be, & had no reason

4191. Lack of independent advice.]—A syndicate formed a co. to buy certain property of the syndicate. The directors of the co. were the directors of the syndicate, & before a prospectus was issued, they entered into an agreement with the syndicate to buy the property. A prospectus was subsequently issued, which disclosed the fact that the directors were vendors, but contained misrepresentations of fact. The co. bought & worked the property. Subsequently fresh directors were appointed, & they commenced an action against the syndicate for misrepresentation. The co. continued to work the property after the action had commenced:—Held: the co. were not entitled to rescission merely on the ground that the contract had been entered into without independent advice, & the working of the property by the co. had so altered the position of the parties as to deprive the co. of its right to rescission on the ground of misrepresentations contained in

into which its members had entered, & for the purpose of acquiring certain inventions & patents which they had thereby agreed to purchase. It was provided by the agreement that its provisions should apply between & for the benefit of the parties as shareholders of the intended co., that Table A. of the Cos. Act, 1908, should be adopted as the co.'s arts. of assocn. subject to certain modifications, of which one was that the inventions & patent rights should not be sold until a special general meeting had been called to determine the price. The memorandum of assocn. referred to the agreement & stated where it was deposited. Pltf. wrote to the co. asking for "an option of the whole of the foreign patent rights" of the co., & two days later the co.'s secretary replied that the directors accepted the offer. The co. afterwards repudiated the contract on the ground that some of those who had dealt with pltf.'s offer were not directors. In an action for specific performance:—Held: pltf. must be taken to have had notice of the contents of the memorandum & arts. of assocn., including the requisites of a special general meeting of the co., & also of the fact that in accepting pltf.'s offer two days after he had made it the directors had acted without the necessary authority; pltf. must be non-suited.—*NICHOLSON v. 4194. Where company not incorporated—Advances by bank for purchase of property—Lien of bank.]—A co. was formed by provisional agreement under six directors, for the purchase of certain salt-works, & for manufacturing & selling salt & other minerals. No deed of settlement was ever executed. The deed of purchase recited that £13,000, part of the amount arising from the paid-up shares of the co., had been paid as the purchase-money. That sum was applied to other purposes, & £11,000 was advanced by M. & Co., bankers, in respect of the purchase. They also made other advances. By a memorandum signed by five out of six of the directors, it was agreed on behalf of the co. that the advances should be repaid, & the title-deeds deposited with M. & Co., as an additional security:—Held: (1) M. & Co. had a lien upon the estate of the co., & the shareholders could not claim the benefit of the purchased property without discharging its burdens; (2) under the circumstances the memorandum, though signed by five directors only, was binding upon the co.—*Re IMPERIAL SALT & ALKALI Co., Ex p. Pltf. was the principal promoter of the co., & his salary had been settled by himself & two others, before the co. was provisionally registered, at £500 per annum, & the dispute was, whether the co., after complete registration, was bound to pay that sum. prepared. The parties to it were pltf., of the one part, & B. & D., who were shareholders in the co., of the other part. It was signed, "D. C. B. Co., A. S., manager," but the co.'s name appeared in no other part of the document:—Held: the co. was not bound by the verbal agreement, because made previous to its charter, & therefore incapable of ratification: the co. was no party to, & was not liable under, the written agreement.—WADDELL v. DOMINION CITY BRICK CO. (1888), 5 Man. L. R. 119.—CAN.

s. — Contract of employment—By provisional director—Acting within authority.]—Pltf. was employed by one of the provisional directors of deft. co. to do certain work on behalf of the co. in advertising & promoting its undertaking. The evidence established that this director was entrusted by the co. with the performance of the various duties necessary for the purpose of promoting & furthering the undertaking, & that he did this, from time to time, without any specific instructions from his co-directors at formal meetings of the board, everything being done in the most informal manner; but that they were fully cognizant of what he did, & of his manner of doing it, & vested in him, either tacitly or by direct authorisation, the right & authority to transact the business of the co.:—Held: pltf. was entitled to recover from the co. the value of his work.—ALLEN v. t. — Loan to promoter.]—A promoter of a joint-stock co. borrowed pletely registered; that during the provisional registration of the co., the first steam-vessel was despatched by the directors to Australia; that pl'ts. were willing to have gone by it, but that the co. & their directors refused to permit pl'ts. to go by that vessel:—Held: on demurrer, the completely registered co. was not liable on such a contract made by the provisionally registered co.—*PAYNE v. 4198. — Contract part performed.]—A written agreement was entered into between W. of the one part & D., as trustee for an intended co., to be called the N. Co., of the other part, that W., who was entitled to an agreement for a building lease from the Metropolitan Board of Works, should grant an underlease to the co., & that the co. should erect the buildings. The co. was registered on the following day. The memorandum did not mention the agreement, but the arts. adopted it & provided that the co. should carry it into effect. No fresh agreement with W. was signed or sealed on behalf of the co., but the co. took possession of the land, expended money in building, & acted on the agreement, which they considered to be binding on them. The co. failed to complete the buildings, & the Metropolitan Board re-entered. The co. being in course of winding up, the trustee in bk'p'cy of W. took out a summons to be allowed to prove for damages against the co. for their breach of the agreement:—Held: the agreement having been entered into before the co. was in existence, was incapable of confirmation, & the acts of the co., having evidently been done under the erroneous belief that the agreement between W. & D. was binding on the co., were not evidence of a fresh agreement having been entered into between W. & the co.

money for the purposes of the co., giving his own note as security. The lender was informed at the time of the manner in which the loan was to be, & was applied:—Held: as the co. did not exist at the time of the loan, it could not be the principal debtor, nor the borrower a mere guarantor; the latter was, therefore, primarily liable for repayment of the loan.—*CLERGUE v. there was no such co. as "The F. Co., Ltd." Afterwards, a co. was incorporated under that name. Deft., F., & another man had been in business as partners, & became indebted to pl'ts. Shortly before the above-mentioned notes were given, F. approached the accountant of pl'ts., & intimated, as the fact was, that he, F., & others, including L., were about to form the F. Co., & desired that pl'ts. should accept the obligations of that co. to meet the account against the partnership. Pl'ts. agreed to that course; & shortly afterwards, before the incorporation, pl'ts. received the notes:—Held: the co. could not, after incorporation, ratify the notes or become liable for the indebtedness in

The co. was formed, but proved abortive, & the purchase was never carried out, nor the £1,500 paid. The agreement had not been disclosed to the subscribers of the memorandum, who were the only contributories. In the winding up:—Held: (1) though a co. is generally bound in equity to pay the expenses of its formation, & though, if the co. had adopted & carried out the purchase, they might, notwithstanding the fraud, have been bound to discharge such expenses, & their only remedy might have been to recover the £1,500, yet the co. having proved abortive, the fraud absolved them from any liability to pay the preliminary expenses, & also was a defence in equity to their legal liability for professional services rendered by the promoters after the co.'s formation; (2) the claim of the valuer, against whom there was no imputation, for the valuation made by him by direction of the promoters, was legally only a claim against them, & as a claim against the co. it failed with theirs.—Re HEREFORD & SOUTH WALES WAGGON & ENGINEERING CO. (1876), 2 Ch. The co. was formed, & the arts. provided that all expenses incurred about the formation of the co. should be paid by the co. After the co. was formed P. acted as its solr., & M. was one of the directors. At a meeting of the directors, at which M. was present, P. asked for payment of his costs incurred about the formation of the co., & a conversation took place tending to show that the co. would undertake to pay them, but nothing appeared on the minutes. At a subsequent meeting a resolution was passed on the proposal of M. that a cheque for £39 should be given to P. in discharge of a certain part of these costs. The co. having been ordered to be wound up, P. carried in a claim for his bill of costs:—Held: (1) P. could not maintain his claim on the ground that the co. having had the benefit of his services was bound to pay for them, as his services had been rendered on the retainer of M.; (2) P. could not maintain his claim on the ground of novation, the conversation at the first meeting not being supported by anything in the minutes, & the subsequent giving of the cheque being capable of being referred to the obligation of the co. to indemnify M. against the costs incurred in its formation, & so not being sufficient evidence of an agreement by the co. with P. to pay him.—Re ROTHERHAM ALUM & CHEMICAL CO. (1883), 25 Ch. A. & B. had taken the assignment with a view to forming a co. to work the patent. The co. was formed & the patent made over to them. The patentee sued the co. for an account of profits. The co. demurred, on the ground that there was no privity between them & pltf., & that pltf.'s right, if any, was against A. & B. only:—Held: pltf. could sue the co. for an account of profits, for that the stipulations of the assignment to A. & B. amounted to a contract that the owners for the time being of the patent should account for & pay to pltf. a share of profits unless a sale within the meaning of the deed was effected, & no person taking the patent with notice of this contract could refuse to give effect to it.—*WERDERMAN v. d. Contract by incorporated co. — "Acting for itself & on behalf of" unincorporated subsidiary companies—Right of subsidiary company on incorporation to enforce contract.—In 1908 an agreement was made between pltf. & C. co., "acting for itself & on behalf of any cos. which are, or may, during the period of this agreement come, under their control or management," whereby C. co. undertook to purchase the total quantity of explosives required by them from pltf.

at certain prices. This agreement was renewed from time to time & was in force at the date of the action. At the time when the agreement was made, there were several subsidiary cos. which entered into agreements with pltf. in identical terms. Deft. co. was incorporated in Nov. 1919, & was the only new venture coming under the control of the C. co. since 1908. In Jan. 1921, the C. co. sent an order to pltf. on deft.'s behalf for certain explosives at the fixed price. In Apr. 1921, deft. co. passed a resolution adopting the above agreement. Pltf.

It was agreed that no expense should be incurred until 10,000 shares had been subscribed, & at least £2 a share paid thereon, & that if the co. was not in a position to carry on the undertaking before a certain day, then neither the promoters nor the officers of the co. should have any claim upon the funds of the co. & it was provided that when the shares were subscribed for & paid upon to the amount aforesaid, the directors should pay the above-mentioned promoter the sum of £2,000. At meetings of the directors at which J. was present, resolutions were passed adopting the agreement, accepting an offer of J. to take payment of part of the purchase-money in debentures instead of in cash, & directing that the seal of the co. should be affixed to an assignment by J. to the co. of leasehold property comprised in the agreement, & to debentures to be issued to J. In Jan. 1912, defts. entered into negotiations for the acquisition of a lease of certain premises, with a view to selling them to a co. which they were promoting, & which was registered as a private co. in Mar. 1912. The arts. of assocn., which were prepared on the instructions of defts., provided that the co. should forthwith enter into the agreement for purchase; & this it did. The board of directors at the time was not an independent one, & defts. had not a legally binding agreement for the lease. The lease was, however, subsequently executed & assigned to the co. Outside cash shareholders were brought in, & ultimately an independent board was constituted. On Oct. 30, 1912, the co. commenced an action against defts. for a declaration that they were liable as promoters to make good to the co. such part of the purchase-money of the property as was attributable to the benefit of the lease agreed to be granted to them, with consequential relief:—Held: the provisions of the arts. & the registration of the co. as a private co. did not protect defts. against claims by it.—*OMNIUM ELECTRIC PALACES, LTD. v. an advance of £500 from a bank, upon terms expressed in a letter, by which the bank were requested to allow the directors of the railway co. to draw to the extent of £1,000, to be repaid out of the calls on shares. At that time the Act constituting the railway co. had not been passed, & the £500 was borrowed to pay the fees necessary to its passing. The Act contained a clause providing for the payment by the co. of its expenses. After the Act was passed there was a resolution of the directors confirming the loan of £500, & the bank debited the railway co. in their accounts with the loan, & brought an action for it against the co., in which judgment was obtained; but there being no property of the co. to satisfy such judgment, the bank sued defts. for the repayment of the loan. No shares in the co. had ever been allotted, nor any call made, though more than three years had elapsed since the passing of the Act:—

The arts. gave the directors power to do all things, & make all contracts which in their judgment were necessary & proper for the purpose of carrying into effect the object mentioned in the memorandum:—Held: the 1862 Act does not confer on all cos. registered under it a power of issuing negotiable instruments; such a power exists only where, upon a fair construction of the memorandum & arts. of assocn. it appears that it was intended to be conferred. 4229a. — Debenture notes.]—By the deed of settlement of a co., unregistered, it was provided that the trade or business of the co. should be that of bankers or of banking, including the making & issuing of bank notes & bills payable on demand, after sight, after date, or otherwise; & the making of loans & advances on real & personal estate in very full terms; & the discounting of bills of exchange, etc.; & the borrowing or taking up money at interest on receipts on inland or foreign bills of exchange or promissory notes, bonds, debentures, deposit receipts, or other obligations as should from time to time be deemed expedient; with very large powers to the directors of conversion, reinvestment, & varying of securities, in acting as agents for other companies, & private individuals, at home or abroad, & in doing & performing any other business or acts of agency which the directors might direct or approve. The capital of the co. was to consist of 20,000 shares of £50 each. After the execution of the deed of settlement, one of the directors, having obtained powers of attorney & commission from the others, went to Australia, & entered into very large speculations with moneys raised by means of debenture notes of the bank. These notes were in this form: “We, the directors of the R. Bank, etc., for ourselves, & the other shareholders, jointly & severally promise to pay to W. or bearer the sum of £—, for value received on account of the co.” The notes were signed by the secretary, by one of the directors, who was chairman, & by two other directors. large creditor, & upon whose effects it held a blanket mtge. The memorandum of assocn. of the first co. did not specifically include power to guarantee the payment of the obligations of others, or to undertake primary liability therefor. In an action against the first co. for the balance due on the paid up, & those only on a small portion of the shares. In their statement to the shareholders the directors stated that large sums had been remitted to Australia, & that large sums were outstanding on the security of sheep, cattle, horses, & agricultural produce in the colony. The co. being in a course of winding up, & the claims of holders of the above debenture notes to the amount of nearly £300,000 having been allowed by the master, his decision was appealed from:—Held: (1) the directors had power under the deed to bind the co. by the issue of the notes; (2) the notes were so framed as to form a contract binding on the co.; (3) there was no proof of misstatement to or fraud upon the shareholders.—*Re ROYAL BANK OF AUSTRALIA, Ex p. 4230. Whether company bound—Acceptance of bill by directors—Authority of directors.—A bill was drawn by one of the directors of a co., upon himself & the other directors, payable to his order, & accepted by another director as chairman to the co.:—Held: the body of directors were not liable to be sued on the bill; the right of one director to draw a bill upon the rest, & the power of one director to accept a bill for himself & the others, is not a right or power implied by law, like that which belongs to a member of an ordinary partnership; but the right must depend upon the powers given by the charter or deed or agreement, under which the co. is established, or some other agreement between the parties; & further, the pltf. who seeks to enforce payment of the bill must show the existence of such a power.—BRAMAH v. ROBERTS (1837), 3 Bing. N. C. 963; 3 Hodg. 191; 5 Scott, 172; 6 L. J. C. P. 346; 132 E. R. 682.

P., who were directors, & signed; & Richard Parker. J. R., J. P., & Richard Parker, suffered judgment to go by default. Richard Parker was a shareholder & officer of the co. The jury found that Richard Parker did not sign as acceptor, but only as "manager":—Held: (1) the action could not be maintained against defts. individually; (2) nor against the five defts. who were directors, & Richard Parker as shareholder; there being no implied authority in the directors to bind the co.—*BULT v. The chairman accordingly accepted the bills, & L. deposited some securities, but not nearly to the specified amount. The directors by resolution affirmed the transaction, but it did not appear that they knew that the requisite amount of securities had not been deposited. The bills were entered in the books of the co., & treated as binding on them. On the co. being wound up, a bonâ fide holder of some of the bills claimed to prove:—Held: the proof ought to be admitted, for that the bills were binding on the co., as they had been accepted modo et formâ by the authority of the board of directors, & the provision as to the deposit of securities was a collateral matter, into the observance of which a holder of the bills was not bound to inquire.—*Re LAND CREDIT CO. 4236. — Person acting under authority—Director without authority.]—Certain bills of exchange drawn on a limited co. were accepted by one of its directors in the co.'s name, the bills being signed by the director. The co. received no part of the proceeds of the bills nor any consideration for the acceptances, which, although the director had no fraudulent intention, were in fact in fraud of the co. Pltfs. were holders in due course of the bills. Among the objects of the co. as defined by its memorandum were the drawing, making, accepting, indorsing, & discounting of bills & promissory notes, & the directors were authorised to delegate any of their powers to committees consisting of such members of their body as they thought fit. Before the date of the acceptances a resolution had been passed by the directors requiring all bills of exchange to be signed by one director & countersigned by the secretary. In an action against the co. as acceptors to recover the amount of the bills:—Held: as the director had no authority in fact to accept the bills of exchange, he was not, in accepting them, "acting under the authority of the co." within 1862 Act, s. 47, & therefore the co. was not liable upon the bills.—PREMIER INDUSTRIAL BANK, LTD. v. The managing director drew a bill on behalf of the co. without having in fact received any authority from the directors to draw bills. In an action on the bill against the co. as drawers:—Held: the managing director, in drawing the bill on behalf of the co., was a "person acting under its authority" within 1908 Act, s. 77, & the co. was liable. As by the constitution of the co. the managing director might have been authorised to draw the bill, a person taking the bill in due course was entitled to assume that he had authority in fact.—DEY v. 4239. — Authority—Whether bank bound to inquire.]—Bankers who have funds of a co., formed under 1862 Act, in their hands may, acting bonâ fide, lawfully honour the cheques of the directors of the co., signed according to a form previously sent into the bank, without being bound, previously, to inquire whether the persons pretending to sign as directors have been duly appointed to office, in conformity with the provisions of the memorandum & arts. of assocn.—W., in concert with some friends & dependents of his, started a co. called a mining co. The memorandum & arts. of assocn. were registered. Subscriptions were obtained from persons becoming shareholders, & these subscriptions were paid into a bank, which had been described in the prospectuses of the co. as the bank for the co. The bankers received a formal notice, signed by a person who described himself as the secretary of the co., that they were to pay the cheques signed by "either two of the following three directors," & countersigned by himself, in accordance with a "Resolution passed this day;" & the names of the three persons described as directors, & their signatures, were enclosed with the "Resolution." The bankers from time to time, while the business of the co. appeared to be going on, received cheques signed & countersigned as described, & duly honoured them. When the fund had been almost entirely drawn out, the co. was ordered to be wound up. It then appeared that there never had been a meeting of shareholders, nor any appointment of directors, or of a secretary, but that the persons who had got up the co. had treated themselves as directors & secretary, & appropriated the money obtained from the subscriptions:—Held: the official liquidator could not recover from the bankers the amount of the cheques which, under the circumstances disclosed in the case, they had thus bonâ fide paid.—MAHONY v. 4245. Power to give.]—Deft., the execution creditor, with a judgment against the Glucose Sugar & Colouring Co., seized property of the co. of which a bill of sale had been given to pltf. in payment of machinery supplied by him to them. There was no special clause in the arts. of assocn. empowering them to give bills of sale. The affidavit filed with the bill of sale gave the full registered title of the co. without further specifying the objects of formation. To the bill of sale was affixed the seal of the co. & the names of two directors opposite, & there was evidence that it was the practice for two directors to attest the sealing of any instrument by the co.:—Held: (1) the co., as a trading co., had power to give a bill of sale; (2) the title of the co., as registered, contained a sufficient description of the objects of formation; (3) the directors signed, not as attesting witnesses, but in their ordinary way of business.

(4) If a co. give a bill of sale it is unnecessary to mention in the affidavit filed pursuant to 17 & 18 Vict., c. 36, its residence & occupation, & it is not requisite that the directors, who executed it as directors, & not as attesting witnesses, should add descriptions of their residences & occupations.

Countersigned—D., Secretary pro tem." There was no other attesting witness. The bill of sale was duly registered, but the affidavit filed with it contained only the address of D., & not that of O. or of C.:—Held: the latter were not attesting witnesses, because they did not attest an execution of the deed already completed, their signatures forming part of such execution; & the affidavit was therefore sufficient, & the bill of sale good.—DEFFELL v. WHITE (1866), L. 4257. Knowledge of director-promoter—Contract adopted by company—Statement in prospectus.]—A co. was formed to carry out an agreement for the purchase of certain property made by the vendors, the promoters of the co., with a trustee for the co. The arts. provided that the agreement was ratified & binding, & the directors were required to carry it into effect. The directors adopted the contract. The agreement contained a clause providing that it was not to be impeached, on the ground that the vendors as promoters or otherwise were in a fiduciary relation to the co.; & that the vendors were not to be required to account for any profit made by them in buying up certain charges on the property to be bought by the co., & which were to be satisfied out of the purchase-money to be paid by the co. The prospectus, which was issued to the public, referred to the agreement, but not specifically to the subject-matter of the above clause, though it referred to the fact that the vendors were selling at an advanced price on what they gave, & stated that any other profits made from interim investments were excluded from the sale. The four directors of the co. were all promoters & trustees of the syndicate, who were the vendors to the co. :—

Held: knowledge of the subject-matter of the above clause could not be imputed to the co.; & the adoption of the contract by the directors did not, under the circumstances, make it binding on the co., who could recover from the directors & promoters the profit they had made in buying up the charges on the property sold to the co.—*Re OLYMPIA, LTD., [1898] 2 Ch. 153; 67 L. 4260. Director personally guilty of misfeasance—Presumption of concealment.—An application was made in the winding up of a co. seeking to recover from a director the value of shares allotted to him under circumstances which amounted to a misfeasance. It appeared that the transaction in question had been disclosed at a board meeting of the directors in 1873, but that two of the three directors then present had taken part in the transaction in question, & the third had received shares under a similar arrangement:—Held: disclosure to the directors could not, under these circumstances, be considered disclosure to the co., as it was certain that the directors in question would not inform the shareholders of the transaction, & therefore, the claim was not barred by Stat. In 1858, W., who was G.'s attorney, went to the office to pay a premium & to confer with the secretary upon other business connected with the office, & then informed him of the assignment. In 1862 R. became a bkpt., & he died in 1871. After the death of R. the office for the first time had notice of his bkpcy. Upon a special case, the ct. to draw inferences of fact:—Held: the conversation between W. & the secretary in 1858 was a sufficient notice to the office that the policy had been assigned & was not in the order & disposition of R., the statute requiring such notices to be in writing not being at that time in existence.—*ALLETSON v. L. was authorised by the co. to receive notices of assignments of policies on their behalf. W. became bankrupt:—Held: there was sufficient notice to take the policy out of the order & disposition of W., & to give the assignment validity as against his assignees, inasmuch as notice to L. was notice to the co., & notice communicated to him in his character of attorney to D., for the purpose of being transmitted to the co., was effectual as a notice to him in his capacity as agent to the co.—*GALE v. 4268. Director—Loan by company without power to lend—By company without power to borrow.]—Two railway cos. had the same boards of directors, except that one had two additional; but the finance committee of each was composed of the same persons. Both cos. were, in 1849, ordered to be wound up, E. being appointed official manager of one, & C. official manager of the other co. In 1845 the E. co., though it had no power to lend, transferred from its funds to the C. co., which had no power to borrow, a large sum of money, to enable the latter co. to purchase a canal. £10,000, part of this money, was handed over to the Canal Co. A shareholder in the C. co. filed a bill in 1850, & in that suit the decree made in 1853 directed the £10,000 to be repaid to the C. co., & the greater part was repaid accordingly. E. now instituted a suit against C. for the recovery of the balance of the money so lent in 1845:—Held: the loan of the money was a breach of trust, of which the borrowing co. was cognisant, & the money paid back by the Canal Co. was still affected with the original trust, & the balance still due must be refunded, with interest at £4 per cent. from the time when the advance to the Canal Co. was recovered.—*ERNEST v. The object for which the loan was required by the M. co. was not fully disclosed by the negotiating director to the board of the C. co. It was alleged that this object was an illegal one:—Held: even if the object of the loan was an improper one, still the C. co. were not affected by notice of the impropriety, & a claim by the C. co. in the winding-up of the M. co. founded upon the loan, was allowed.—*Re MARSEILLES EXTENSION RY. 4280. Reports by auditors—Circulated to shareholders.]—Pltf. was employed as manager of the factories of a joint-stock co. & the auditors of the co. in auditing pltf.'s accounts appended to their report the following statement: "The shareholders will observe that there is a charge of £1,306 for deficiency of stock, which the manager is responsible for. His accounts have been badly kept & have been rendered to us very irregularly." The directors submitted their own report, together with that of the auditors to the ordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the co., according to the usual practice, & it was resolved by the meeting that the reports should be printed & sent to the shareholders. The reports, including the above statement, were accordingly sent to a printer, printed & circulated among the shareholders & used at an adjourned meeting of the shareholders. Pltf. having brought an action for libel against the co.:—Held: as it was the duty of the directors to communicate the report of the auditors to the shareholders & it was for the interest of all the shareholders to be informed of the report, the printing & publication of the reports were prima facie privileged.—LAWLESS v. 4293. Carrying on business more economically or more efficiently—Investment & loan company—Guarantee & finance.]—A petition was presented by a co., under Cos. Acts, 1862 to 1890, asking for the sanction of the ct. to certain proposed alterations in, & additions to, the memorandum of assocn. of the co. resolved on by special resolutions. The co. was registered in May, 1888, with a nominal capital of £2,000,000, but it had not been brought out, nor had it carried on business. It had no creditors nor debenture-holders, & only seven shareholders, viz. the seven subscribers to the original memorandum of assocn., all of whom joined the co. as co-petitioners. The co. had no arts. of assocn. The objects of the co. as contained in its memorandum of assocn. were those of an investment & loan co. It was proposed to add to these the objects of a guarantee & finance co. with increased borrowing powers. The evidence showed that the business of the co. could be more conveniently carried on with less restricted borrowing powers; & that the proposal to give to the co. the additional powers of a guarantee & finance co. would enable the co. to carry on business more efficiently, & attain its purpose by improved means, & also conveniently & advantageously combine other business with its original business:—Held: (1) the ct. ought to sanction the proposed alterations; (2) although there had been no advertisements of the petition or application in chambers relating thereto, advertisements would, under the circumstances, be dispensed with, as every one who was properly

A co. whose objects were stated by its memorandum of assocn. to be to invest in the stocks of British, foreign, or colonial govts., & public undertakings guaranteed by such govts., presented a petition under 1890 (Memorandum of Assocn.) Act, for confirmation of a special resolution extending the objects of the co. by giving it power to also invest in stocks of any trust or investment co. The main purpose of the co. was stated to be to make investments in such a way as to spread the same over a number of different securities, & thereby obtain a fairly uniform average of interest; & it was submitted that unless the proposed alteration was confirmed, the co. would be at a disadvantage in competing with other similar cos. The only creditors of the co. were holders of £438,879 debenture-stock of the co., & also depositors to the amount of £78,000. The judge having directed a circular to be sent to ascertain their wishes, £150,000 debenture-holders assented, & £22,690 dissented; £51,000 stated that they were neutral, & the remainder exceeding £215,000 sent no reply. Of the depositors, some £30,000 signified their assent, some £8,000 their dissent, & the remaining £40,000 sent no reply. A debenture-holder for a small amount appeared & opposed the petition:—Held: (1) the main purpose of the co. was to invest in govt. stocks, & the proposed extension of its range of investments was not, within sect. 1, sub-sect. 5, "an alteration required to carry on its business more economically or more efficiently, or to attain its main purpose by new or improved means," & the ct. must refuse to confirm the proposed alteration, as not being within the scope of the Act; (2) even assuming that the proposed alteration was within the Act, it was not one which the ct., having the duty imposed on it by the Act of regarding each particular case with care, could do otherwise than refuse to confirm, having regard to the interests of the creditors who dissented & of the minority of the shareholders.—Re GOVERNMENTS STOCK INVESTMENT CO., [1891] 1 Ch. 649; 60 L. 4295. — Power to give security to debenture-stock holders.—The objects of the Governments Stock Investment co. were stated by its memorandum of assocn. to be to invest in the stocks of British, foreign or colonial govts. & public undertakings guaranteed by such govts. The co. had created a large issue of debenture-stock by means of certificates entitling the holders to be paid a perpetual interest out of the assets of the co. A petition was presented by the co. for confirmation of a special resolution altering the memorandum of assocn. first, by enabling it to give security to the debenture-stock holders; & secondly, to enlarge the scope of its investments by enabling it to invest in the bonds or securities of any co. The petition was supported by eight-ninths of the debenture-stock holders, & there were, for all practical purposes, no other creditors of the co.:—Held: the first alteration fell within sect. 1, sub-sect. 5 (a) of the 1890 (Memorandum of Assocn.) Act, as it would enable the co. "to carry on its business more efficiently"; the second alteration fell within sect. 1, sub-sect. 5 (d) of the Act, as it would enable the co. "to carry on some business or businesses which under existing circumstances might conveniently or advantageously be combined with the business of the co." The ct., therefore, made an order confirming the resolution, on an undertaking by the co. to alter its name within three months by adding the words "and other securities," and to give, within four months, the debenture-stock holders a floating security by way of first charge on the co.'s assets.—Re GOVERNMENTS STOCK INVESTMENT CO. (No. 2), [1892] 1 Ch. 597; 61 L. 4296. — Borrowing powers.—A reversionary interest society was constituted in 1823 by a deed of settlement, which provided that the object & business of the society should be to purchase reversionary interests of every description in real & personal property except advowsons & next presentations, & also to purchase life or other partial interests the reversions expectant on which might have been previously purchased by the society, & to purchase life policies of insurance. In 1845 a private Act was passed, which empowered the society to increase its capital, & this was done in 1846. In 1857 another private Act was passed, which provided that the society might purchase life & other partial interests of every description in real & personal property, whether vested or contingent, so as the interests to be so purchased should be either to determine or to take effect upon the decease of a person or persons, except interests in advowsons & next presentations to ecclesiastical benefices, but including rents & annuities of every description given or granted for a life or lives or for a term or terms of years determinable upon the dropping of a life or lives; & that the society might lend money as well upon real security as upon the security of any interest in real or personal property which the society was authorised to purchase by the deed of settlement or by this Act. In 1880 the society was registered as a co. with limited liability, under the 1862 Act. In 1891 the society, by a special resolution, resolved to add the following clause to the deed of settlement; "That the society may from time to time borrow & raise money for the purposes of the society's business, & secure the repayment thereof by bonds, debentures, debenture-stock, or mtge. debentures, perpetual or determinable payable to bearer or otherwise, & with or without a trust deed, & for this purpose may mortgage or charge the undertaking & all or any of the property of the society, including its capital for the time

tion of assets, for a reserve fund, & for payment of a dividend of not more than 4 per cent per annum, should be applied to purposes of public utility. The ct. doubted the competency of a proposed alteration of the memorandum which consisted in deleting the clause dealing with the application of the profits; but confirmed an amended alteration increasing the maximum dividend to 6 per cent, as being, in view of the changed financial situation, an "unproved means" of attaining the "main purpose" of the

The proposed alteration did not affect any of the provisions of the private Acts:—Held: (1) notwithstanding the private Acts, the constitution of the society was such that the provisions of the deed of settlement could be altered under 1890 (Memorandum of Assocn.) Act; (2) the proposed addition came within sub-sect. 5 (a) of sect. 1 of the Act.—Re REVERSIONARY INTEREST SOCIETY, LTD., [1892] 1 Ch. 615; 61 L. J. Ch. 379; 66 L. T. 460; 40 W. R. 389; 36 Sol. 4346 i. Effect on interests of persons

The North of England Iron Steamship Insurance Assocn. was registered in Feb., 1876, as an unlimited co., its object being the mutual insurance of iron steamships insured with the co. by members of the co. Upon an application under 1890 (Memorandum of Assocn.) Act for an alteration in its memorandum enlarging the scope of its operations, the question arose whether there was any ct. competent to wind up such a co. as this, which had no capital paid up or credited as paid-up:—Held: the ct. had jurisdiction to wind up this assocn., & to sanction an alteration of the memorandum of assocn.—Re NORTH OF ENGLAND IRON STEAMSHIP INSURANCE ASSOCN., [1900] 1 Ch. 481; 69 L. 4346. Effect on interests of persons outside company.]—1908 Act, s. 9, sub-sect. 3, provides that before confirming an alteration of the memorandum of assocn. of a co. with regard to its objects, "the ct. must be satisfied that sufficient notice has been given . . . to any persons or class of persons whose interests will, in the opinion of the ct., be affected by the alteration . . .":—Held: (1) the sub-section only applied to persons, such as creditors & members of the co., whose interests in the co. itself would be affected by the alteration; (2) the ct. would not on a petition for confirmation of an alteration of the objects hear a person having an interest outside the co. that would be injuriously affected by the alteration.

In dealing with a petition for confirmation of an alteration of the objects of a company, the ct. will assume, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that the co. will carry on its business properly, & will not therefore have regard to the fact that the alteration in its objects will enable the co. to carry on a business competing with that of a body with a very similar name & so facilitate passing off.—Re HEARTS OF OAK LIFE & GENERAL ASSUR- outside company.]—A co., carrying on the ordinary business of bankers, petitioned the ct. to confirm a resolution, passed unanimously to alter its memorandum of assocn. by empowering it to undertake the execution of trusts, & to act as exor. or administrator, or as trustee or treasurer. The application was opposed by seven shareholders, who were solrs., on the ground that the alteration would not be beneficial to the shareholders, & would be injurious to the solrs.' profession. The ct. confirmed the alteration, with the modification that the powers were not to be exercised unless some part of the trust property was situate within the jurisdiction of the ct.—Re MUNSTER & LEINSTER BANK, LTD., [1907] 1 I. As the capital could no longer be advantageously invested in the securities mentioned in the memorandum, the ct. was asked to confirm a proposed alteration therein, extending the class of investments to securities, bonds, debentures, & debenture-stock, obligations, & mtges. of cos. & corpns. formed or incorporated under British, foreign, or colonial law:—Held: (1) within 1890 (Memorandum of Assocn.) Act, sect. 1 (5) (d), "the business of the co." was the investment of money in the limited class of securities mentioned in the memorandum; (2) investment in the class specified in the proposed alteration was also a business which might be "combined with the business of the co."; (3) the proposed alteration ought to be sanctioned, subject to the condition that the name of the co. should be so altered that persons dealing with it might not be misled into supposing that its investments were limited to govt. securities.—*Re FOREIGN & COLONIAL GOVERNMENT TRUST Co., [1891] 2 Ch. 395; 65 L. There was evidence that such businesses were commonly transacted by marine insurance cos. at the present time, & that they could conveniently or advantageously be combined with the existing business of the co.:—Held: the proposed alteration ought to be sanctioned only on the condition that the name of the co. should be altered in such manner as should be approved of by the judge in chambers, so as to indicate to persons dealing with the co. the extended nature of the co.'s business.—Re ALLIANCE MARINE ASSURANCE Co.,

The scheme involved that each of the petitioning co.'s shareholders should contribute a portion of his holding in the co. to be transferred to the marine insurance co. & its shareholders, & it had been approved by the requisite majority of the shareholders in general meeting:—Held: the scheme, though not a "compromise," was an "arrangement" within the above sect., & there was no ground for limiting the meaning of the word "arrangement" to something analogous to a compromise.—Re GUARDIAN ASSURANCE CO., [1917] 1 Ch. 431; 86 L. The Directions of the Ch. Div. judges of May, 1896, do not prescribe merely a new mode of "service" of a judgment in an ordinary debenture-holders' action, but substitute the sending of notices of the judgment for service thereof.

In the case of the notices of judgment & of meetings aforesaid the taxing Master may, under Ord. 65, r. 27 (38A), assess the costs thereof at gross sums & in that sub-rule the words "other cause" are not to be read as ejusdem generis with those matters which are expressly mentioned in the sub-rule, but the taxing Master may act on the sub-rule in cases where no misconduct or negligence on the part of the solrs. whose costs are being taxed is imputed.—*Re COMMONWEALTH OIL CORPN., LTD., PEARSON v. A. In General.

4379. What may be purchased—Governed by memorandum—Primary object.]—Where a co. puts in the forefront of its memorandum of assocn. a special object, as to which definite information can be obtained by intending subscribers for shares, & the subsequent clauses of the memorandum contain a list of general objects, the reasonable mode of construing the memorandum in ordinary cases is to say that the object first stated is the paramount object of the co., & that the other objects are ancillary & subservient to that object.

Where, therefore, the paramount object of a co. was to work gold mines in the colony of West Australia, the promoters of the co. having in view one particular mine near Coolgardie in that colony, although the memorandum of assocn. specified as one of the objects of the co. to acquire & work mines "in West Australia or elsewhere":—Held: acquiring & working a mine in the colony of Victoria was not a carrying out of the objects of the co.—Re COOLGARDIE CONSOLIDATED GOLD MINES, LTD. (1897), 76 L. The property acquired under the first object was not workable at a profit, & the directors now sought to purchase other mining properties in Bombay. A general meeting of the co. was called, & a resolution was passed approving of the draft agreement, & authorising the directors to enter into it & carry it into effect. Underwriting commission paid in form of profit on resale.]—A transaction by which a purchasing co. pays part of its capital in substance as underwriting commission to an intermediary co. is illegal under the Cos. Act, 1900 (c. 48), s. 8 (2), notwithstanding that the payment takes the form of a profit on a re-sale by the intermediary co. to the purchasing co.

A co., having an issued capital of 205,014 fully paid shares of £1 each, under the powers contained in its memorandum of assocn. agreed to sell its undertaking to an intermediary co. which undertook to form a new co. to take over the undertaking according to the terms of a second scheduled agreement intended to be made between the intermediary co. & the new co. Under this second agreement, as consideration for the purchase of the undertaking of the old co., the new co. was to offer 205,014 shares of £1 each, with 12s. paid up, to the shareholders of the old co. in proportion to their holding in the old co., & the intermediary co. was to take up such shares as should not be subscribed for by the shareholders in the old co., & was to receive in addition as further part of the consideration the sum of £12,300. The new co. had power under its arts. to pay underwriting commission "at a rate" not exceeding 50 per cent.:—Held: (1) the proposed payment of £12,300 was in substance an underwriting commission paid by the new co. to the intermediary co.; (2) it was not within the saving clause contained in above sub-sect., as there had been no offer of shares to the public by the new co., & the payment was of a lump sum & not "at a rate," as provided by the arts., & it was therefore illegal.—*BOOTH v. The co. by a resolution of the board of directors agreed to assist a joint-stock banking co. by taking 3,000 shares in such banking co., & as a consideration for a transfer & registration of those shares to nominees of the directors of the discount co., they drew cheques amounting to £30,000, on the bankers of the co., which were duly paid. This transaction the directors alleged was entered into with a view of promoting & increasing the business of their co., but the true character of the transaction was not entered in their cash book, but was described as “loans” to the banking co.:—Held: (1) such a transaction was ultra vires of the directors of the discount co.; (2) it was a breach of trust, & the £30,000 ordered to be paid into ct. by defts., the directors, forthwith.—*JOINT STOCK DISCOUNT CO. v. The co. & its board of directors determined that the co.'s interests would be best served by making the purchase. The surface was agricultural land which it was proposed to let out on agricultural tenancies which would bring in about £4,000 per annum, but there was evidence that even if the land was allowed to lie fallow, still the purchase would be beneficial to the co. There was no express power in the memorandum to purchase land, but there was the usual clause enabling the co. to do all things "incidental & conducive to the attainment" of its objects. Its arts. of assocn. empowered the liquidators in its winding up, with the sanction of an extraordinary resolution, to distribute in specie amongst the contributories any part of its assets. The co. while a going concern agreed to sell its undertaking & all its property to another co., the consideration being—(a) that the purchaser co. should pay the vendor co.'s debts & perform its obligations, & keep the vendor co. & its liquidators & contributories indemnified; (b) that the vendor co. should retain a sum to pay the costs of & incidental to its winding up; (c) the allotment to the vendor co. or its nominees of fully-paid shares in the purchaser co. The agreement was conditional on its being sanctioned by an extraordinary resolution of the vendor co. before Jan. 31, 1902. On Dec. 30, 1901, the vendor co. passed by a three-fourths majority resolutions—(a) that the agreement should be adopted & carried into effect; (b) for voluntary winding up & the appointment of a liquidator, who was authorised to distribute any of the assets amongst the members in specie. There was a dispute as to who was the purchaser; but it appeared that the same persons, D., H. & P., represented the purchaser in the making of any contract that was made. There was also a dispute as to what was actually authorised by the resolution referred to:—Held: a syndicate, which included among its members pltf. co.'s agents & officers, was the purchaser; & D. & H. were not authorised by the resolution to sell the whole of pltf. co.'s lands at the price & upon the terms as to commission & other matters upon which they purported to sell; & the agents of pltf. co. were the agents, officers, & shareholders of deft. co., &

the same men negotiated for both the buyers and the sellers; deft. co., through its officers, agents, & solrs., had full notice & knowledge of all the facts; & such knowledge rendered the transaction & conveyance subject to the equities between pltf. co. & the individual defts. & deft. co., to which the conveyance was made, & which had been incorporated for that very purpose, could not retain the property conveyed. The parties could & should be restored to their original positions, pltf. co. being ready & willing to pay to defts. the moneys which they had expended, & to take a reconveyance of the lands subject to such agreements of sale as defts. had entered into. — ROXBOROUGH GARDENS OF HAMILTON, LTD. v. 4404 i. Part of undertaking.]—A co. was formed having for its main object the carrying on of the business of manufacturing & selling butter or cheese. In order to effect its object it was expressly empowered by its memorandum of assocn. to acquire land by purchase or lease, & to erect creameries thereon. In the course of carrying on its business the co. found that certain of its creameries were no longer required. There was no express power in its memorandum to dispose of such of its freehold or leasehold lands as were not required for the purpose of its business:—Held: the co. had power to sell the creameries in question, such power being incidental

The directors of the old co. then transferred all its assets to the new co. & the new co. sold & conveyed a part of the fifty acres to deft. W. Pltfs. contended that the new co. had no power so to convey:—Held: it was the old co.'s duty to hold the land upon the trusts declared by the statute, this duty attached to the new co. & might be enforced against it as though it had been subject to it at origin. to sell or dispose of all or any part of its business or property for cash, shares, or obligations of another co. The S. co. agreed to sell to the D. co. all its property & assets, except the amounts unpaid upon certain shares, in consideration partly of a sum of money & partly of the procuring by the D. co. of a waiver by holders of shares in the S. co. of their rights to participate in the sum of money aforesaid:—Held: the proposed sale was not within the powers conferred on the S. co. by its memorandum of assocn.—*HOLST v. In 1891 the co. took on lease the M. Hotel & increased their capital by creating 5,000 new shares of £5 each. Debentures to the amount of £75,000 were issued, all of which were outstanding, & there were very few other creditors. Upwards of £23,000 was expended on the M. Hotel, & it was worked at a loss. The co. agreed with B., who was one of the lessors of the M. Hotel, to hand over the possession of the M. Hotel to B., who should pay the rent & carry on the hotel. The directors undertook to obtain, & obtained, from the shareholders the necessary resolutions for reducing the capital of the co. by writing off £23,710 of fully-paid ordinary shares held by B., & his associates, & undertook to obtain the sanction of the High Court of Justice in England to such reduction, whereupon such shares should be extinguished. B. was to pay to the co. for stores & goodwill, 15,000 dols. The co. had power, under its arts. of assocn., to reduce its capital by cancelling capital:—Held: (1) this transaction was not a purchase by the co. of its own shares, but was a sale by the co. of some of its assets for less than their cash value, in consideration of a release from heavy burdens & of a surrender of shares; (2) the sanction of the ct. to the transaction was only necessary for the permanent extinguishment of the shares, & the ct. had jurisdiction to, & would sanction, the transaction.—Re DENVER HOTEL CO., [1893] 1 Ch. 495; 62 L. An agreement having been entered into for the sale of its property, a shareholder presented a petition for winding up the co. with a view to the property being sold under the direction of the ct., other shareholders, however, opposing the petition on the ground that the sale could be better effected without the intervention of the ct., & that there being no creditors or contributories a winding-up order would be useless:—Held: (1) the co. being registered under 1862 Act, the liability to a winding-up order existed, independently of the question whether any advantage might result from such an order; (2) as the property appeared to be of some value, & the shareholders were unable to agree as to the mode of sale, the sale could be more advantageously effected under the direction of the ct.—Re TUMACACORI MINING CO. (1874), L. trustee for an intended new co., the B. co. agreed to sell its assets to the new co. for £320,000 paid as to £100,000 either in cash or shares at the option of the purchaser, as to £150,000 either in cash or cumulative preference shares at the option of the purchaser, & as to £70,000 in ordinary shares. Pltf., the holder of certain debentures in the B. co. alleged that the rights of debenture-holders would be destroyed if the arrangement were carried out; that the words of the memorandum of assocn. could not interfere with the rights of secured creditors; & that the right to enforce his security arose when the whole or substantially the whole of the assets were parted with & the B. co. ceased to be a going concern. He accordingly moved for an interlocutory injunction to restrain the carrying out of the arrangement:—Held: the B. co. was destroying the substratum of its existence, & therefore the floating charge which the debenture-holders held upon the whole assets attached.—*Re BORAX Co., FOSTER v. 4422. — Floating charge.—The memorandum of assocn. of a limited co. included, among its objects, the carrying on of a business of a specified nature, & also the carrying into effect of arrangements for amalgamation or union of, or sharing in interests whether in whole or in part with, any other co. carrying on any business similar or analogous to any business authorised by the memorandum; & also the sale of all or any part of the co.'s business or property & the holding of any debenture, shares, stocks, or securities of any other co.

The co. sold the whole of its property & assets, including the goodwill, with the exception of certain securities, which it retained as its own property, to a new co. formed for the purpose of acquiring & working the old co.'s business & similar undertakings, the sale being in consideration of debenture-stock & shares in the new co., & the old co. agreeing not to carry on any similar business otherwise than in conjunction with & for the benefit of the new co. The old co. had, before the sale, issued debentures charging, "by way of floating security, all its property, undertaking, & assets for the time being, whether present or future," & becoming immediately payable upon an order or effective resolution to wind up. In a debenture-holders' action against the old co. claiming that by the sale it had ceased to carry on its objects as defined by the memorandum, & that therefore the debenture charge immediately attached:—Held: pltf.'s claim failed, because (1) the sale was not ultra vires of the memorandum of assocn.; (2) the old co.'s undertaking had not ceased to be a going concern, so that the debentures were still nothing more than a "floating security"; & (3) the debentures, being a floating security, did not give the holders any right to interfere with what the co. had done in the ordinary course of its business as defined in the memorandum of assocn.

(4) Qu.: whether on the sale the old co. could preclude itself from exercising its powers in respect of what was in fact the principal object included in the memorandum, & whether so to do would not endanger the security of the debenture-holders by limiting & altering it.—*Re BORAX Co., FOSTER v. The funds of a joint-stock co. established for the purposes of one undertaking cannot be applied to another, & the attempt so to apply them, though sanctioned by all the directors, & by a large majority of the shareholders, is illegal. But where a co. was established "for the erection, furnishing, & maintenance of an hotel, the carrying on the usual business of an hotel & tavern therein, & the doing all such things as are incidental or otherwise conducive to the attainment of the above objects"; & the directors, while the hotel was in the course of being built, agreed to let off, for a stipulated period of short duration, a large portion of it to the head of a Government department for the business of his office, & evidence was given that such a letting was calculated to be productive of advantage to the co. in its intended business, & that a majority of shareholders had sanctioned the act:—Held: the arrangement was

There was ground for inferring collusion, & a question as to whether pltf. was entitled to recover anything in his action against the co.:—Held: the judgment entered against the co. was properly set aside, & the secretary of the co. was properly permitted to defend & plead a counterclaim on behalf of the co.—*DIMOCK v. Legal proceedings—What are—Construction of articles.—See No. 4459, post.

4426. Position of shareholder—Where company party to action.—Semble: an ordinary member of a co. ought not to be examined on interrogatories unless the judge is satisfied that there is no officer of the co. capable of making the discovery, & that the member proposed to be examined has the required information.

When a co. is a party to an action, a member is in the position, not of a witness, but of a party. The usual practice is for the co.'s solr. to act for the member who is directed to answer, & charge the costs against the co.—BERKELEY v. STANDARD DISCOUNT CO. (1879), 13 Ch. D. 97; 49 L. J. Ch. 1; 41 L. T. 374; 28 W. R. 125, C. A.

4427. To enforce company's regulations.—It seems clear that a co. is entitled as against its members to enforce & restrain of its regulations.

It is also clear that shareholders as against their 4428. —In respect of ultra vires acts of directors.]—The notice of an extraordinary general meeting of a limited co. stated the purpose of the meeting to be to consider & if thought fit, approve the draft new regulations to be submitted to the meeting, & to pass a resolution approving & adopting the same. It also stated that copies of the proposed new regulations might be seen at the offices of the co., or would be forwarded to shareholders on application. The new regulations contained an art. enabling the board to grant a retiring pension to any managing director, & confirming an agreement of Jan. 17, 1902, by which the directors, acting on behalf of the co., agreed to pay to one of the retiring managing directors, for consideration, an annual sum of £1,000 for ten years, & £500 a year thereafter for the remainder of his life. There were also other new arts. (inter alia): (a) enabling the board to increase the remuneration of the directors from £3,000 to £4,500 per annum, & allowing them travelling, hotel, & other expenses; (b) providing for the appointment of three directors for life; (c) relieving directors from liability for loss; & (d) enabling the directors to borrow a further sum of £150,000. The resolution adopting the new regulations was passed at the meeting & confirmed at a second extraordinary general meeting. In an action by the shareholders against the co. & the directors to test the validity of the resolutions:—Held: (1) the shareholders were not entitled to maintain the action at all, & must appeal to the co. in general meeting in respect of the irregularity committed by the directors.

(2) One or more shareholders of a co. cannot sue in respect of irregular or unauthorised acts of the directors which would be valid if done with the approval of the majority of the shareholders or are capable of being confirmed by the majority.—NORMANDY v. IND, COOPE & CO., LTD., [1908] 1 Ch. 84; 77 L. J. Ch. 82; 97 L. T. 872; 24 T. L. R. 57; 15 Mans. 65.

4429. Institution of proceedings—In county court.—A co., incorporated under 1908 Act, may lawfully employ an agent, who is not a solr., to institute proceedings in the county ct. & file the necessary præcipe on its behalf & with the leave of the judge, to represent it in ct.

The ancient rule that a corpn. can only act by attorney, which involved an appointment under the seal of the corpn., does not extend to prevent joint-stock cos. from issuing process in the county ct. as ordinary individuals can do, seeing that they are able to comply with all the provisions of the C. C. R., & without appointing any attorney under their common seal to do these acts for them (SWINFEN EADY, L.J.).—KINNELL (CHARLES P.) & CO. v. HARDING, WACE & CO., [1918] 1 K. B. 405; 87 L. 4431. —.]—On a motion to strike out the name of a co. which had been added by amendment as co-pltf., on the ground that the co. had not authorised the use of its name:—Held: (1) the motion was wrong, as such a motion could only be made by the co. itself; (2) the consent of the co. must be obtained as necessary to sustaining the action, under the rule in Foss v. Harbottle, No. 4100, ante.

(3) There must be an absolute necessity for justice to allow a departure from the rule that the co. must sue in its own name for redress for injuries done to the co. In certain peculiar cases the minority of the shareholders must be allowed to sue on behalf of themselves; for instance, where an injunction is required to prevent a co. acting ultra vires before a general meeting can be called, or where there is something illegal or fraudulent on the part of the co., or the majority thereof (JESSEL, M.R.).—DUCKETT v. GOVER (1877), 25 W. PART III, SECT. 33, SUB-SECT. 3.—A.

e. General rule—Redress of wrong done to company.]—A shareholder cannot maintain an action to redress a wrong done to a co., except where the acts complained of are of a fraudulent character or beyond the powers of the co., though he may have a cause of action to enforce his own individual right, which has been invaded by the directors or others.—BROWN v. MENZIES BAY TIMBER CO., [1917] 2 W. W. R. 658; 24 B. C. R. 27; 34 D. L. R. 452.—CAN.

f. — Company defrauded by contract of purchase—Minority of shareholders defrauded by majority.]—The general proposition is perfectly clear that when a co. has been defrauded by the execution of a contract of purchase & sale, it is the co. alone that has any title to complain because they alone have a right to decide whether they are to give up the property they have bought & to recover the price or whether the contract should be affirmed because the properties are too valuable to be given up. There is an exception to that rule, of which the pursuer decides to avail himself in this case. The exception is where the majority of the shareholders are using their voting power to defraud the minority, then the minority may sue an action in name of the co. which the majority decline to raise.—SMYTH v. MUIR (1891), 19 R. (Ct. of Sess.) 81.—SCOT.

g. — Acts ultra vires or mala fide.]—As a general rule the co. must sue to redress a wrong done to it, but if a majority of its shares are controlled by those against whom relief is sought & who will not permit an action to be brought in the co.'s name the complaining shareholders may sue in their own names but must show that the acts complained of are either mala fide or beyond the powers of the co.—ROBINSON v. IMROTH, [1917] W. L. D. 159.—S. AF.

k. — Misconduct of directors—Use by plaintiffs of company's name.]—Where the directors of an incorporated co. misappropriate the funds of the corp., a bill against them & the co., in respect of such misappropriation, cannot be sustained by some of the stockholders on behalf of all except the directors; the co. must be made ptfs. whether the acts of the directors are void or only voidable, & the stockholders have a right to make use of the name of the co. as ptfs. in such proceedings.—HAMILTON v. DESJARDIN CANAL CO. (1849), 1 Gr. 1.—CAN.

l. — — —.]—Pltf. brought an action on behalf of himself & the other shareholders in a co. against the co. & two directors, claiming that the property standing in the name of directors should be declared to be the property of the co., & that the directors had improperly paid out money from the co.'s treasury on account of the debts of another co. when the debt. co. was not responsible for the liabilities of the other co.:—Held: ptlf. must first apply to the co. to proceed to recover the moneys alleged to be lost before he could bring this action in his own name.—JOHNSTON v. CARLIN

4432. —.]—The action is brought by a shareholder on behalf of himself & other the shareholders in the co. It is founded on an alleged wrong done to the co. For such a wrong the co. alone can sue at law, & the general rule is the same in equity (see MacDougall v. Gardiner, No. 3880, ante). But equity has admitted certain exceptions to the general rule, one of which is that where a fraud is committed by persons commanding a majority of votes, the minority can sue by a shareholder (CHITTY, L.J.).—SPOKES v. GROSVENOR HOTEL CO., [1897] 2 Q. B. 124; 66 L. J. Q. B. 572; 76 L. T. 679; 45 W. R. 546; 13 T. L. R. 431, C. A.

4436. Shareholder able to procure action by company.]—The rule that a suit by individual shareholders in an incorporated co., complaining of an injury to the corp., cannot be maintained, if it appears that ptfs. have the means of procuring a suit to be instituted in the name of the corp. itself, applies equally whether the subject-matter of complaint be an act or transaction which is merely voidable at the discretion of a majority of shareholders, or an act or transaction absolutely illegal, & incapable of being confirmed by such majority.

The work was done by the co., & the director received the amounts due under the contracts, & paid over a portion to the co., but did not account for the amounts received by him. This was in consequence of an alleged arrangement with his co-directors that he was not to account for profits. The co. declined to call upon the director for an account, whereupon two shareholders brought an action against the co. & the director, claiming that the director was a trustee for the co. of all money received under the contracts, & asking for an account. The co. pleaded that the complaint was conversant with a matter of internal management over which the ct. had no jurisdiction. The defence of the director was that if there was any cause of complaint against him, which he did not admit, it was only enforceable at the suit of the co.:—Held: the transaction was illegal & ultra vires, & ptfs. were entitled to the relief sought.—COCKBURN v. NEWBRIDGE SANITARY STEAM LAUNDRY CO., LTD., & LLEWELLYN, [1915] 1 I. It was alleged that there was an agreement between M. & the co.'s directors, that in consideration of his services in promoting the co. he was to receive a bonus of 25,000 shares. It was arranged that this bonus was to be given to M. through the transaction entered into with K.; that is to say: the agreement with K. should show the consideration for the acquirement of his business as 50,000 shares, & it should be understood that 25,000 should go to M. instead of there being a transfer direct to him from the co. The prospectus of the co. stated that there were no promoters' profits, & it was, as alleged, to get over this representation that the bonus to M. was carried out through the K. transaction:—Held: plffs., not having shown that the co. had declined to bring the action, or that any proper effort had been made by them to get the co. to do so, had no status to bring the action themselves.—ROSE v. Defts. demurred for want of equity, which was allowed, but without costs as defts. had raised grounds of demurrer which had been overruled on the argument of the demurrer to the original bill.—McMURRAY v. Deft. directors demurred on the ground that the action ought to have been brought in the name of the co., & the co. by its statement of defence pleaded to the same effect:—Held: the allegations were sufficient to bring the case within the principle of *Atwool v. If, however, it considers that the justice of the case requires it, it has a discretion to adjourn the motion to give an opportunity to pltf. to call a meeting of the co. in order to obtain, if possible, its sanction to its name being used; but it may refuse to exercise that discretion unless on the condition that all the proceedings in the action, including such proceedings as the pltf. suing alone could have brought, should in the meanwhile be stayed, or on such other conditions as it thinks will do justice between the parties.—*WHITE v. 4456. — Person holding controlling number of shares—No meeting of company held.]—A co. which was governed by 1862 Act, Table A, including art. 55 thereof, was formed with the object of acquiring & working a patent, which was subsequently sold to & was vested in pltf. co. M. & three others were the directors of the co., & M.'s holding gave him the majority of votes at a general meeting of the co. The directors other than M. having become interested in a patent vested in deft. co. which was alleged to be an infringement of pltf. co.'s patent, & was admittedly a competing patent with that, & as those three directors refused to sanction proceedings on behalf of pltf. co. against deft. co., M. commenced an action in the name of pltf. co. against deft. co. to restrain them from infringing pltf. co.'s patent. No meeting had been held to ascertain the wishes of the co., but it was admitted that no object would be gained by calling such meeting, seeing that M. could command the majority of votes. The three opposing directors having applied on behalf of pltf. co. that the name of the co. might be struck out as pltf. on the ground that the name had been inserted without the co.'s authority:—Held: the application must be dismissed as the majority of the shareholders had the right to control the action of the directors in the matter.—*MARSHALL'S VALVE GEAR CO., LTD. v. 4457. — One of two directors.]—Deft. & O. were the sole directors of & holders of an equal number of shares in pltf. co. O. alleged that deft. as a director was doing something which was injurious to the co., & thereupon an action was brought against him in the name of the co., at the instance of O., asking for his removal from the office of director, & in the alternative for an injunction restraining him from dealing with or so conducting the co.'s business as to injure or jeopardise its goodwill. There had been no resolution of the co. or directors authorising the bringing of the action, & from the constitution of the board it was known that no authority could be obtained:—Held: on motion by deft., the name of the co. should be struck out as pltf., & the action should be stayed, & further, pltf.' solrs. should be ordered to pay the costs of the

4458. — Secretary—Authority.]—A co. was incorporated in England with a capital of £25,000 in £1 shares for the purpose of selling in England tyres made in Germany by a German co., who held the bulk of the shares in the English co. The holders of the remaining shares, save one, & all the directors were Germans resident in Germany. The one share was registered in the name of the secretary, who was born in Germany, but resident in England & had become a naturalised British subject. After the outbreak of the war between England & Germany an action was commenced in the name of the English co. by specially indorsed writ, issued by the co.'s solrs. on the instructions of the secretary, for payment of a trade debt. In answer to a summons for judgment under R. S. C. Ord. 14, defts. alleged, inter alia, that the action was commenced without the authority of the co. The master gave leave to pltf. co. to sign final judgment, & his order was affirmed by the judge in chambers & by the Ct. of Appeal:—Held: the action was commenced without authority & ought to be struck out as irregular.—*DAIMLER CO., LTD. v. What proceedings—Winding-up petition—Construction of articles.]—A committee of directors, in pursuance of a resolution at a board meeting, presented a petition to wind up the co., which was dismissed with costs. They then passed a resolution to pay the costs of the petition out of the assets of the co. The arts. of assocn. empowered the directors to direct legal proceedings to be prosecuted on behalf of the co., & directed a co. provided that the officers should be a president & a general manager, a vice-president, & a secretary-treasurer; that the affairs of the co. should be conducted by a board of directors, a majority of directors to constitute a quorum. At a shareholders' meeting, a managing director was appointed:—Held: (1) the appointment did not confer upon the managing director any implied authority to bring an action in the name of the co., the office of managing-director not being recognised by the arts. of assocn.; (2) the managing director could not bring an action in the name of the co., since there was neither special power conferred upon him by the arts. of assocn., nor delegation by the board of directors, nor acquiescence by the board or shareholders in the exercise by him of authority to initiate actions in the co.'s name.—STANDARD CONSTRUCTION

& an injunction to stay proceedings at law The common injunction for want of answer was obtained to restrain proceedings at law against "pltf.s.," touching any matters in question in the bill, etc. Defts. acquiesced in the injunction for a year, & then commenced proceedings by sci. fa. against some members of the Y. Co., who were not named as pltf.s. On motion that defts. might stand committed for contempt, or that they might be restrained from proceeding at law against any member of the Y. Co.:—Held: (1) the proceedings at law against the members of the Y. Co., who were not named as pltf.s. on the record, was no breach of the injunction; (2) pltf.s. showing that the members of the Y. Co. so proceeded against stood in precisely the same situation as themselves with respect to defts., were entitled, upon special application, to have the common injunction extended to such members.

4474. ——— Attendance at subsequent proceedings.]—Two actions were brought raising the question of the amount of remuneration payable to the trustees of a railway co. reorganisation scheme, in each of which actions pltf. sued on behalf of himself & all holders of certificates for bonds & shares under such reorganisation scheme. By an order made on July 15, 1881, in one of the actions, an inquiry was directed as to what sum, in addition to £6,000 in the statement of claim mentioned, was fit & proper to be allowed to defts. as a quantum meruit for their services in connection with the reconstruction of the railway co. Pltf. in the other action applied that he might be at liberty to attend such inquiry, & to contend that no further sum beyond the £6,000 ought to be allowed, & that he might, if necessary, be added as a deft. in the action. The evidence on the inquiry was closed, & everything was complete for decision:—Held: (1) it was not usual in a representative action to allow a person fairly represented to attend subsequent proceedings, unless such person was joined as a party to the action, & or more shareholders, on behalf of themselves & all others, except defts. against the co. & the majority of the shareholders.—INTERNATIONAL WRECKING CO. v. MURPHY (1888), 12 P. R. 423.—CAN.

o. ——— Action against directors for account.]—In this action pltf., a shareholder, claimed a refund to deft. co., by the individual defts., directors of deft. co., of money received by them as salaries, a declaration that these defts. were disqualified, the appointment of a receiver to carry on the business of the co., & an account of the money improperly received by the directors while dealing with themselves as members of a partnership. The trial judge directed these defts. to account for the money they received as salaries; but dismissed pltf.'s other claim. The pltf. appealed from the dismissal of this claim:—Held: the conduct of defts. was not merely a matter of internal management, which the majority of the shareholders could rightly decide upon, but was a fraud upon the minority, i.e., pltf., & the action was properly constituted to entitle pltf., on the evidence as it stood, to an account of the profits in connection with the co.'s dealings with the partnership, but, as evidence had not been heard at the trial on defts.' behalf, they were entitled to a new trial on this branch of the case.—*STONE v. p. Action to restrain ultra vires acts—Approved by majority of shareholders.]—Pltf. suing on behalf of himself & all other shareholders of the co., brought an action for a declaration that certain payments were ultra vires, & claimed against the persons receiving the payments a return of the money so paid. The majority of the shareholders approved of these payments & objected to the litigation:—Held: the pltf. was entitled to maintain the action.—*ATHERTON v. q. Action for declaration of right to dividend—Plaintiff suing on behalf of himself & all other members of one class—Representative members of other classes made defendants.]—Pltf.s. were the exors. of a deceased shareholder in deft. co. The capital of the co. was divided into preference & ordinary shares of £25 each, of the latter class of which pltf.s. were owners of 181 shares. The arts. of assocn. of the co. provided that the holders of preference shares should be paid eight per cent per annum, that the holders of ordinary shares should, subject to the payment of dividends on the preference shares, be paid eight per cent per annum on the capital value of such shares, & that the balance of the profits after paying these dividends should be distributed among all the shareholders. Pltf.s. alleged that during the financial year ending Oct. 31, 1905, deft. co. made large surplus profits, & they claimed that, after paying dividends on the preference shares, such profits should have been distributed as dividends on the ordinary shares instead of being applied to purchasing machinery & writing down goodwill. This deft. company refused to do. In the early part of the pltf.'s argument the ct. raised the question as to whether the action should not have been brought thereby made liable for costs; (2) the ct. would not be justified in adding the appct. as a deft. in the action, because, not only had he supported the motion upon which the order directing the inquiry was made, but it was too late for him to come forward & thrust himself into the litigation, especially when it was considered that the inquiry which he desired to attend was directed by an interlocutory order made so long ago as to be incapable of being disturbed by appeal.—*CONY-BEARE v. 4477. As plaintiff—Former shareholder.]—A bill against the directors of a co., provisionally registered but not incorporated, was brought by A. & B., alleging themselves to be holders of scrip of certain shares on which they had paid the deposits, on behalf of themselves & all other the shareholders of the co., except defts., stating that the objects of the undertaking had been improperly diverted by defts., & seeking to charge them with the amount of losses occasioned by their alleged misconduct, & also to have the deposits returned, or the assets administered & the surplus divided. Plea by one of defts., that before the bill was filed, B. had sold & assigned to C. the shares mentioned in the bill to have been allotted to B., & that at the time the bill was filed all right, title & interest in the said shares were vested in C., & that B. had at such time no interest therein:—Held: (1) the plea must be allowed; (2) the bill could not be sustained on the suggestion that B., although he had parted with his interest in the shares, was still liable to third persons, & therefore entitled to call upon the directors to administer the assets of the co. in discharge of its liabilities; (3) the bill could not be maintained on the suggestion that C. was a party to the suit, as being one of the "other shareholders" for whose benefit it was brought, for such "other shareholders" must be not merely other persons, but persons owning other shares than those held, or claimed to be held, by pltf.s. named on the record; (4) B. was not in such a case suing as a trustee for C., he was not entitled to sue in that character, & parties allowed in such cases to represent absent shareholders must be parties having the beneficial interest in the shares in respect of which they seek relief.—DOYLE v. MUNTZ (1846), 5 Hare, 509; 4 Ry. & Can. Cas. 422; 16 L. J. Ch. 51; 7 L. T. O. S. 386; 10 Jur. 914; 67 E. R. 1013.

4480. — Shareholder party to act impeached.]—Deft. co. was incorporated in 1839 under arts. of assocn. which provided—art. 53—that "the co. in general meeting" might increase its capital by the creation of new shares. By a special resolution passed & confirmed in 1895, art. 53 was altered so that the power of increasing the capital should no longer be exercised by the co. in general meeting, but by "resolution of the directors." By art. 59 any new shares from time to time to be created might from time to time be issued with such right of preference & generally on such terms as the co. might from time to time by resolution of a general meeting declare. In 1903 the directors passed a resolution increasing the capital of the co. Pltf., a shareholder & former director of the co., was a party to the resolutions altering the arts. & authorising the issue of new capital. Having ceased to be a director, he brought an action, on behalf of himself & all other shareholders, to have it declared that the resolutions altering art. 53 & increasing the capital were ultra vires, & that the directors had no power to issue new shares.

Resps. objected that pltf., having been a party to the resolutions in question, was not entitled to maintain the action:—Held: inasmuch as pltf. was seeking to restrain proposed future illegal proceedings by the co., he was entitled to maintain the action.—*MOSELY v. as a representative action on behalf of pltf.s. & all the other ordinary shareholders, & whether some at least of the preference shareholders should not have been joined as defts.:—Held: pltf.s. were entitled to amend their claim by making it a representative action, & adding parties as they might be advised.—*COWLISHAW v. 4477 i. As plaintiff—Former shareholder.]—A pltf. who has ceased to be a shareholder cannot maintain an action on behalf of himself & all other shareholders. Neither can he claim on behalf of himself & all shareholders of a selling co. prior to the date of the selling agreement & who transferred their shares pursuant to the agreement, as the directors of the selling co. were the agents of the co. & not of the shareholders, & there was no privity between the shareholders as such & the directors. The fiduciary relation of the directors was to the co. No action could be maintained unless that co. was a party.—CLARKSON v. DAVIES, [1922] 3 W. W. R. 913; [1923] 1 D. L. R. 113.—CAN.

r. — Identity of interest — Policy holders—Different branches of insurance.]—Where a right of suit exists in a body of persons too numerous to be all made parties, the ct. will permit one or more of them to sue on behalf of all, subject to the restriction that the relief prayed is one in which the parties whom pltf. professes to represent have all of them an interest identical with that of pltf. But where a mutual insurance co. had established three distinct branches, in one of which, the waterworks branch, pltf. insured, giving his promissory note or undertaking to pay $168, & the co. made an assessment on all notes & threatened suit in the division ct. for payment of such assessment, whereupon pltf. filed a bill "on behalf of himself & the other policy holders associated with him as hereinafter mentioned," alleging the co. was about to sue him & the other policy holders in that branch, that large losses had occurred in the co. prior to the time of his effecting his insurance, & insisting that he & the other policy holders could be properly assessed only in respect of such losses as had arisen since they entered the co., & praying that the necessary inquiries might be made & accounts taken, alleging that the division cts. had not the machinery necessary for that purpose:—Held: according to the statements of the bill the policy-holders in the waterworks branch were not represented in the suit, & a demurrer on that ground filed by the co. was allowed with costs.—

Pltfs. applied for shares, & paid the deposits thereon to the co.'s bankers, to the account of the co. No allotment of shares was ever made. Creditors of the co. brought actions against it, in which they threatened to attach the moneys in the co.'s account at the bankers. Pltfs. filed their bill, on behalf of themselves & all other the persons who had paid deposits on application for shares, against seven persons who alone had executed the memorandum & arts. of assocn., the creditors, & the bankers, alleging that the deposits had been paid upon a specific trust, viz. to be returned to the depositors if no allotment was made, & praying that the bankers might be restrained from paying the deposits to any person other than the depositors:—Held: (1) upon demurrer, no such specific trust had been constituted; (2) pltfs. had such a common interest with the other depositors as to entitle them to maintain a suit on behalf of themselves & those other depositors.—MOSELEY v. CRESSEY'S CO. (1865), L. R. 1 Eq. 405; 35 L. J. Ch. 360; 14 L. T. 99; 12 Jur. N. S. 46; 14 W. R. 246.

The bill also impeached certain preliminary proceedings which had been taken for the purpose of winding up & reconstituting the co. After the bill was filed, the co. was wound up & reconstituted. Defts. put in answers which were excepted to for insufficiency, & while the exceptions were pending, they moved to take the bill off the file, or to stay proceedings:—Held: the small interest of pltf. was no objection to the bill, as it was filed on behalf of himself & other shareholders.—SEATON v. By art. 66 "the instrument appointing a proxy shall be in writing under the hand of the appointer . . . & shall be attested by one or more witnesses." By art. 68 any instrument appointing a proxy was to be in a form there given, at the end of which were the words, "Signed by the said —, in the presence of —." By a special resolution art. 68 was amended, proxies being allowed to be in a form set out which omitted the words "signed, etc." Art. 66 was never expressly repealed:—Held: unattested proxy papers were invalid.

4481 i. — — — Ordinary & preference shareholders.]—Where a numerous class of persons have a community of interest, it is sufficient, as a matter of pleading to name one of the class as party to represent the common interest. A railway co. having a fund in their hands which they were entitled to treat as revenue, declared a dividend out of it in favour of the ordinary shareholders, without providing for the payment of an arrear of dividend due on preference shares of the co. A bill was filed by one of the preference shareholders, on his own behalf, as well as on that of the other preference shareholders, to restrain the co. from paying over the dividend so declared, without having regard to the right of such shareholders to be paid, in priority, the arrear due on their shares: & to that bill he named one of the ordinary shareholders, as deft., to represent the class. Some of the preference shareholders had acquired their shares, by transfer, after the arrear had accrued. 4488. ——— Impeaching resolutions for informality.]—The directors of the O. Co. were also directors of a subsidiary co. in which the O. Co. held practically the whole of the shares. In 1907 the directors, in exercise of the voting powers of the O. Co. in the subsidiary co., obtained the passing of resolutions whereby the arts. of assocn. of the subsidiary co. were altered so as to increase the fixed remuneration of the directors & also to give them a percentage of the net profits. In 1913 the auditors of the O. Co. drew attention to the fact that the receipt by the directors of remuneration in the capacity of directors of the subsidiary co. ought to be sanctioned by the shareholders. An extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the O. Co. was then convened by the directors with the object of passing special resolutions ratifying what had been done by the directors in 1907, authorising them to retain all remuneration received & to be received by them as directors of the subsidiary co. under its arts. as modified in 1907, & altering the arts. of the O. Co. by allowing its directors to receive remuneration as directors of subsidiary cos. without being accountable for the same, & to exercise the voting powers conferred by them in such cos. as they thought fit. The notice convening the meeting was accompanied by a circular. The notice set out the proposed resolutions, but neither the notice nor the circular gave particulars as to the amount, which was very large, of the remuneration which had been received by the directors in respect of the subsidiary co. The resolutions were passed by the requisite majority & subsequently confirmed. In an action by a shareholder, on behalf of himself & all the other shareholders of the O. Co., for a declaration that the resolutions were not binding on the ground of insufficient notice of the meeting at which they were passed, & for an injunction to restrain the co. & the directors from acting upon them, pltf. moved for an interim order. The motion was dismissed on the ground that pltf. had no right to sue on behalf of himself & the other shareholders without joining the co. as pltf. :—Held: (1) the action was maintainable by pltf.; (2) the notice did not give a sufficiently full & frank disclosure to the shareholders of the facts upon which they were asked to vote; & the resolutions were invalid & not binding upon the 4495. Shareholders—Matter affecting rights of all.]—MOCATTA v. INGILBY, No. 4461, ante.

4496. ——— Action to restrain calls—Transfer of shares before due date.]—An Act of Parliament, incorporating a co., enacted that no directors should be chosen, or other business transacted, at a meeting of proprietors of less than 1,000 shares; & that the compulsory powers to take lands for their undertaking should not be exercised until the whole capital was subscribed. Directors of the co. were chosen at a meeting of proprietors holding not more than about 300 shares for their own benefit, but holding also several thousand other shares, which they had subscribed for in order to procure the passing of the Act, signing a declaration that they held them in trust for the co. At a subsequent meeting of proprietors of less than 400 shares for their own benefit, but of several thousand of the shares held in trust, it was resolved that the trust shares should be transferred to the secretary, to be issued for the use of the co. The whole subscriptions, exclusive of the subscriptions in trust, amounted to much less than 1,000 shares. The directors subsequently made a call of £5 per share. After the call was made, but before the last day appointed for payment, pltf., who was a subscriber for fifty shares, transferred those shares to a purchaser. The co. brought an action against pltf. for the recovery of the amount of the call in respect of the fifty shares;

to add the Dominion co. as a party & to amend the statement of claim by alleging that the incorporation of the Dominion co. was obtained with the intention & for the purpose of having it take over the undertaking & all the assets & assume all the liabilities of the provincial co., & such incorporation was granted subject to these conditions; that subsequently the Dominion co. did agree to assume & pay all the liabilities of the provincial co. including the liabilities arising under the agreement; that the Dominion co.

did take over the business, assets, etc., of the provincial co., & did actually assume the liabilities & did become & remained liable for all matters & things in the agreement. The provincial co. objected to the order on the grounds that there was no privity of

& the bill averred that pltf. could not, owing to the provisions of the Act, give the foregoing facts in evidence in support of his defence to the action :—Held : these circumstances gave pltf. no equity to sustain a bill for an injunction to restrain such action ; & the purchaser of the shares would have been a necessary party to such a bill, if it could have been sustained.

Semble : a person subscribing for shares in such a co., as a trustee for the co., is subject to the same liabilities in respect of such shares, as if he held the same for his own benefit.—MANGLES v. GRAND COLLIER DOCK CO. (1840), 10 Sim. 519 ; 2 Ry. & Can. Cas. 359 ; 9 L. J. Ch. 177 ; 4 Jur. 333 ; 59 E. R. 716.

4497. — Shareholders not in same position as representative parties—Whether as plaintiffs or defendants.]—A bill by some of the shareholders of a joint-stock bank, on behalf of themselves & all the other shareholders, except defts., charged the directors of the bank & others of defts. with fraudulent misapplication of the funds of the bank ; with having borrowed from third parties, who were also defts., moneys in the name of the bank, for private & improper purposes ; & with having, by their public officer, suffered judgment to be recovered against the bank, by such third parties for the amount of such advances, in order that the same might be recovered from the shareholders of the bank ; & that defts. made use of the proceedings under the judgment to enforce payment from the shareholders of a call of £3 per share, not warranted by the deed of assocn., & prayed that the debts & liabilities of the bank might be ascertained, & the assets applied in satisfying them, & an injunction issued to restrain process by defts., the third parties, against pltf. under the judgment. On demurrer :—Held : (1) certain shareholders of the bank, who had paid the call of £3 per share, & who were thereupon by express engagement with the bank relieved from proceedings under the judgment, were necessary parties to the suit ; & inasmuch as such parties, not being named as defts., must be regarded as pltf. under the general description of other shareholders, the suit was improperly framed on the ground of misjoinder.

(2) Where defts., the third parties, had aided in the misapplication of the funds in the manner stated, they might be properly made defts. to a suit by the cestui que trust, & a bill seeking relief both against such third parties & the directors of the bank was not multifarious.—LUND v. BLANSHARD (1844), 4 Hare, 9 ; 67 E. R. 540 ; subsequent proceedings (1845), 4 Hare, 290.

4498. — As defendants—Setting up title adverse to company.]—To a suit by the directors of a joint-stock co., on behalf of themselves & all other the shareholders, seeking to have the benefit of an agreement entered into by an agent of the co., it is not necessary that all the shareholders should be made parties. A person who sets up a title adverse to the co. may be properly made a deft. in such a suit, although he also sustains the character of a shareholder.—TAYLOR v. SALMON (1838), 4 My. & Cr. 134 ; 41 E. R. 53, L. C.

4499. — Member of represented class—Dissatisfied with order—Order in favour of class.]—In an action commenced by a bondholder on behalf of himself & all other bondholders, pltf. obtained an order for a receiver. One of the bondholders represented by pltf., being dissatisfied with the order, applied for leave to appeal :—Held : the order having been made in favour of the class to which appct. belonged, & having been obtained by pltf., who represented him in the action, he could not appeal against it.

Semble : the proper course for the dissentient shareholder to pursue was to apply to the ct. below to be made a deft. in the action.—WATSON v. CAVE (No. 1) (1881), 17 Ch. D. 19 ; 44 L. T. 40 ; 29 W. R. 433, C. A.

4501. Bondholder—To represent dissentient class—Dissentient member of class already a defendant—Not in representative capacity.]—Pltf., a bondholder of a railway co., sued on behalf of himself & all the other bondholders of the co. except B., who dissented from the course taken by pltf. in commencing the action. B. afterwards, upon his own application, was added as a deft. Then T., one of the bondholders, applied to be made a deft. in order that his interests & the interests of other dissenting bondholders might be represented :—Held : since B. was not added as a deft. in a representative capacity, & his consent to act in such capacity had not been obtained by pltf., T. was entitled to be added as a deft. for the purpose of representing the dissenting bondholders.—FRASER v. COOPER, HALL & CO. (1882), 21 Ch. D. 718 ; 51 L. J. Ch. 575 ; 46 L. T. 371 ; 30 W. R. 654.

4502. Description of company—Residence.]—A writ of summons described deft. co. as “now or late carrying on business in K. W. Street, in the City of London.” The co. had been completely registered, & No. 6, K. W. Street, London, was registered as its place of business. It afterwards discharged its secretary & clerks, & gave up its place of business, but no other place of business was taken or registered by it, & there was no means of serving the writ upon a director :—Held : the description of the residence of deft. was uncertain & insufficient under the Statute 2 Will. 4, c. 39.—PILBROW v. PILBROW'S ATMOSPHERIC RY. CO.

contract between pltf. & the Dominion co., & that there was no novation whereby pltf. could maintain the action against it, & contended that the amendments did not disclose a cause of action :—Held : the order, which was allowed in the exercise of a judicial discretion, should not be reversed. Questions between the different parties should be heard & decided in one suit & at one trial, & pltf. should be allowed to further amend to make clear their causes of action against the Dominion co.—WINNIPEG TRUSTEE CO. v. MANITOBA BRIDGE & IRON WORKS, LTD., [1922] 1 W. W. R. 178 ; 70 D. L. R. 178 ; 31 Man. L. R. 398.—CAN.

a. *Description of company—Misnomer.]—*Defts., a co., were styled in the bill “The O. Co.” Certain other defts., alleged to be directors of this co., when brought up to be examined for discovery, denied all connection with it & refused to answer any questions relating to “The O. Co. of Toronto.” This latter name pltf.'s solr. stated to be the true corporate name of the co., intended to be described by the bill ; but there being no further evidence of this fact, an application to compel defts. to answer the questions put to them was refused.—*DICKEY v. 4504. — Change of name while action pending.]—Where pending an action against a co., the name of the co. is changed by Act of Parliament, & a motion is afterwards made in such action, a suggestion should be entered of the change of name & the affidavits entitled in the new name.—HEBBLETHWAITE v. LEEDS & THIRSK RY. Co. (1851), 21 L. J. Ex. 37; 18 L. T. O. S. 78.

SUB-SECT 6.—SERVICE OF PROCESS.

4505. General rule.]—The only way in which a writ can be served on a co. is by leaving it at, or sending it by post to, the registered office of the co. It is not sufficient to serve it at an office which, though an office of the co., is not its registered office.—VIGNES v. SMITH (STEPHEN) & Co., LTD. (1909), 53 Sol. Jo. 716.

4506. On former officers—Company no longer existing—Though not formally dissolved.]—A co., though not formally dissolved, had practically ceased to exist, & had no office or officers. The co., being made defts. in a suit, the ct. ordered that service of the bill on the late chairman & the secretary should be good service on the co.—GASKELL v. CHAMBERS (No. 1) (1858), 26 Beav. 252; 28 L. J. Ch. 385; 32 L. T. O. S. 188; 5 Jur. N. S. 52; 53 E. R. 895.

4507. On director—At head office.]—A clerk to pltf.'s solr. handed a writ to a director of deft. co. whom he happened to find at their head office:—Held: the writ had been properly served.—WATSON v. SHEATHER SONS & Co., LTD. (1886), 2 T. L. R. 473.

Annotation:—Expld. Wood v. Anderston Foundry Co. (1888), 36 W. R. 918.

4508. On solicitors — Service accepted.]—A motion was made under 1862 Act, s. 35, to rectify the register of members of a co. by the insertion therein of the name of appct. as the holder of certain shares. Correspondence had passed between the solrs. of the co. & the solrs. of appct. with reference to appct.'s claim to be a shareholder of the co., & the notice of motion had been served on the co.'s solrs., they accepting service on behalf of the co. in the usual manner. b. Allegation of incorporation of plaintiff company—When necessary.]—In an action brought by a co., incorporated by letters patent under Canada Joint Stock Companies Act, 1877:—Held: the declaration was bad, for not alleging the incorporation of pltf's. by letters patent under the Act.—*WATERLOO ENGINE WORKS Co. v. c. — County court action.]—In an action in a county ct. by a co., it is sufficient to describe pltf's. as an incorporated co., & the mode of incorporation need not be stated.—MCLAUGHLIN CARRIAGE Co. v. QUINN (1905), 37 N. B. R. 86.—CAN.

d. Statement of cause of action.]—The summons issued against a corp'n. under 12 Vict., c. 39, s. 16, should state the cause of action truly: where the summons was to answer in a plea of "debt," & the declaration was in covenant, an interlocutory judgment was set aside.—*GILMORE v. e. On director — Officer within statute.]—The affidavit of service showed that the deputy sheriff had served R. a director of deft. co., the co. having no manager or agent, appointed pursuant to the statute, in that behalf:—Held: the expression "officer" covered a director, & the service was good.—MCDONALD v. CONSOLIDATED GOLD LAKE Co. (1902), 40 N. S. R. 623.—CAN.

f. On solicitor—Insurance company — Objection to service after acknowledgment of receipt.]—A fire insurance co.'s Dominion charter provided a method of legal service upon it, & the co. had also complied with the provisions of the British Columbia Fire Insurance Act for the appointment of an attorney on whom service might be effected:—Held: an execution could not be carried out against shares held by a judgment debtor in the co. without the service required by the Execution Act being made on the co. in either of the said methods, notwithstanding the proviso in the British Columbia Fire Insurance Act, s. 48. The admission by letter by the co. of receipt of the documents did not prevent its subsequently objecting to the invalidity of the service, having regard to the necessity of protection of the shareholder.—ROYAL BANK OF CANADA v. CANADA NATIONAL FIRE INSURANCE Co. (1920), 3 W. W. R. 517.—CAN.

g. On officer — When plaintiff in action against company—President.]—The writ of summons in an action brought by pltf. against deft. co. was served upon pltf. as president of the co. No other service was made & no notice of the pendency of the action was given to any one connected with the co. or concerned in its affairs. No appearance was entered to the action & judgment was entered for pltf. for default of appearance. Resps. who were trustees for the bondholders, & had recovered judgment against the co., for a large amount, applied to pltf. for permission to use the name of the co. in an application to set aside the judgment recovered by him, & being refused obtained a summons for an order to set the judgment aside & for a stay of proceedings, & for leave to intervene & defend the action in the name of the co.:—Held: the judgment entered for pltf. was an abuse of the process of the ct., & it was properly set aside under Ord. 27, r. 14.—HOLMES v. STEWART RY. Co. (1899), 32 N. S. R. 395.—CAN.

h. — Secretary-treasurer.]—A judgment entered by pltf's. against deft. co., upon default, after service of the writ of summons upon one of pltf's., who was secretary-treasurer of the co., was set aside, upon the application of the holder of a majority of the shares of the co.:—Held: there was, in law, no service.—CRAWFORD v. COLVILLE RANCHING Co. (1912), 22 W. L. R. 50.—CAN.

k. — Outside jurisdiction — No representative competent to accept service in jurisdiction.]—Where a limited co. deft. has no representative, other than pltf., resident within the jurisdiction & competent for service, but has an officer resident outside the jurisdiction, service should be directed to that officer.—SUTHERLAND v. STRAWBERRY VALLEY STOCK & FARM PRODUCE Co., LTD., [1922] 3 W. W. R. 241; 69 D. L. R. 269.—CAN.

m. On person in employ of foreign company—Commercial agent.]—A person employed by a foreign railway co., which has no line of railway in the Province, such person acting merely as commercial agent to solicit orders for freight to be forwarded over the co.'s lines, is a person in the employ of the co., proper to be served with any process under marginal rule 100.—GILLIS SUPPLY Co., LTD. v. CHICAGO, MILWAUKEE & PUGET SOUND RY. Co. (No. 1) (1910), 16 B. C. R. 241.—CAN.

n. On agent — Attachment.]—Service on the agent of process to appear, in c. 97, R. S. (4th series), s. 26, means service on the co.'s agent of process requiring the co. to appear. Levy under the attachment under that chapter may be made before service on the agent.—MERCHANTS' BANK v. STEEL Co. OF CANADA, LTD. (1884), 5 R. & G. 258.—CAN.

o. — Collusion by agent with plaintiffs—Ignorance of proceedings.]—Pltf., obtained judgment by default against deft. co., the writ of summons having been served upon S. as agent of the co. Deft. co. applied on affidavit to set aside the judgment, & for leave to appear & plead, on the ground that S. had acted in collusion with pltf. & had never informed the co. that the writ of summons had been issued, or that he had been served with any process in the suit. An order having been made setting aside the default & allowing deft. co. to appear & plead:—Held: the affidavits being lengthy & contradictory, & the ct. being of opinion that justice could be more effectually done between the two parties after a trial, the order must be affirmed & the appeal therefrom dismissed.—REYNOLDS v. GALLIHER GOLD hearing the co. did not appear:—Held: service on the solrs. of the co. was not sufficient; & no order could be made until the co. had itself been served at its registered office, or until it appeared.—Re DENVER UNITED BREWERIES, LTD. (1890), 63 L. T. 96.

4509. On local manager.—Applt. was a limited co. incorporated under the Cos. Acts & having a registered office in London. It carried on business in various parts of the country as grocer & provision merchant. A summons was issued against it for an offence under the Sale of Food & Drugs Acts, in a provincial town & served on the manager of its shop in that town. A solr. appeared on behalf of the co. before the justices to argue that the service was bad & then withdrew from the case:—Held: (1) the service was bad; every summons on a registered co. must be served in accordance with 1862 Act, s. 62; (2) applt. co. had not waived any irregularity in the service of the summons by instructing a solr. to appear in its behalf to argue solely such irregularity.—*PEARKS, GUNSTON & TEE, LTD. v. 4528. Injunction—Whether court will grant—Company resident out of jurisdiction—Effects within jurisdiction.]—An application was made for leave to serve in G., the writ in an action to restrain deft. from infringing pltf.'s registered trade mark. Deft. was a joint-stock co., having its registered office in G. & branches in L., M. & H., which last place was within a short distance of pltf.'s place of business. Pltf. deposed that deft. co. was supplying the goods of which he complained as infringing his trade mark from its places of business at M. & H., & proved the execution from M.

of an order given by one of pltf.'s own customers. He further deposed that it would be necessary to call in support of his case a considerable number of witnesses, all of whom were resident in England:—Held: (1) an injunction against the co. could be effectually enforced by sequestration of its business & effects; & therefore, in the event of an injunction being granted, there would be an efficient remedy; (2) in exercise of the ct.'s discretion, pltf. was entitled to an order for leave to serve the writ out of the jurisdiction.—*Re BURLAND'S TRADE MARK, BURLAND v. 4536. Liability of solicitors—Dissolution of defendant company—After setting down & before hearing.]—A solr. had originally authority to defend an action in the name of a co., but his authority was revoked by the dissolution of the co. shortly before the trial. The trial of the action was delayed owing partly to the state of the business of the ct. & partly to the pleadings being amended. The action was tried on the assumption that the co. was in existence, & judgment was given for pltf. Neither the solr. nor pltf. knew till after the trial that the co. had been dissolved; but on the day of the trial the solr. was informed that the co. had held its final meeting, & he took no steps to ascertain whether or not it had been dissolved. Upon motion by pltf. that the solr. might be ordered to pay his costs of the action as from the date of the dissolution of the co.:—Held: (1) the judgment was invalid against the co. for want of jurisdiction; (2) the solr. having originally authority to represent the co., was not liable for acting on that authority after it had been revoked by the dissolution of the co. until he knew or, by the exercise of due diligence, might have known of the dissolution; (3) on the day of the trial the solr. did not use due diligence in ascertaining whether or not the co. had been dissolved, & he ought to pay pltf.'s costs of the action after that date as between solr. & client.—*SALTON v. 4537. Taxation—Ord. 65, r. 27 (38B)—Application of rule.]—The above rule, which provides that if, on the taxation of a bill of costs payable out of a fund or estate, real or personal, or out of the assets of a co. in liquidation, the amount of the bill is reduced by one-sixth, no costs shall be allowed to the solr. leaving the bill for taxation for drawing & copying it, nor for attending the taxation, refers to something in the nature of administration for the benefit of a class of persons. The reference to the assets of a co. in liquidation does not apply to orders made in hostile litigation, but has come down from the period when cos. were wound up in the Ch. cts. & the reference to a fund or estate does not apply to a case where, as the result of an individual contract, a party has become entitled to be paid, if necessary, by means of the realisation of or enforcement of a charge against particular property. Where, therefore, a trustee of certain leases obtained a declaration that he was entitled to be indemnified out of the property in respect of his personal liability & his costs, charges, & expenses, with liberty to apply for the purpose of giving effect to the indemnity:—Held: the rule had no application to the case, the costs not being payable out of a "fund or estate" within its meaning.—*BUCHAN v. SUB-SECT. 13.—SECURITY FOR COSTS.

A. By Company as Plaintiff.

(a) In General.

4538. Time for application—After reply & notice of trial—At such times as court may direct—Ord. 65, r. 6.]—The old rule of the Ct. of Ch. that an application for security for the costs of an action must be made promptly is inconsistent with the above rule, that security for costs may be given "at such time or times as the ct. may direct," & must be taken to have been abrogated; & therefore, an application by deft. for security for the costs of an action brought against him by a limited co. may be made after reply & notice of trial.—*LYDNEY & WIGPOOL IRON ORE CO. v. Loss of right to—By waiver—Putting in answer—Knowledge of company's financial position.]—Deft., sued by a limited co., which had called up & expended all its capital, received notice in Apr., by a report of the directors, that it had no funds to meet a bill which had been drawn on the co. by its manager, & that they recommended an issue of new shares with a preferential dividend. On May 4, notice of an extraordinary general meeting for May 12, was given, at which meeting resolutions were passed enabling directors to borrow a large sum of money. Deft.'s extended time for answering expired on May 7, & on May 4 he took out a summons, whereupon he obtained on May 8 a week's further time; & on May 15 he filed his answer. On the same day, though at what hour of the day did not appear, he received notice from the directors that the attempt to raise the money had failed:—Held: deft. had not, by putting in his answer, waived his right of calling upon pltf. co. to give security for costs, under 1862 Act, s. 69.

k. — After ascertaining state of company's assets—Waiver of right to security—Delay.]—In an action where

l. Company having ceased to exist

—Improper use of company's name.]—An application for an order for security for costs was made on the ground that pltf. had no corporate existence, & that their name was being used by one C., who was insolvent:—Held: (1) there was nothing to warrant the conclusion that this action was really brought for the benefit of any other than pltf.; (2) the question, whether pltf. had or had not ceased to be an existing corp., having been raised upon the pleadings, could not be raised of 1,000 shares in a co., & against the co. & their secretary, for specific performance of an alleged contract by B. to transfer the shares to A., & for an injunction to restrain the co. from transferring the shares to any one other than to A. The co. thereupon filed a bill against A. & B., praying for declarations that the alleged contract was fraudulent & void, & that A. & B. were trustees of the shares for the co.:—Held: the second suit was not so strictly in the nature of a cross suit to the first, that A. was deprived of the right of calling upon the co. to give security for costs.—*WASHOE MINING CO. v. Resps. applied for security for the costs of the appeal, upon the ground that applt. co. was resident out of the jurisdiction, & that the nature of the English assets was moveable and fluctuating:—Held: there could be no reasonable doubt that the available assets in this country of applt. co. would be found amply sufficient to satisfy any possible costs of the appeal, &, therefore, an order for security for the costs ought not to be made.—Re APOLLINARIS CO.'S TRADE MARKS, [1891] 1 Ch. 1; 63 L. 4542. — Compulsory winding-up petition—Petitioner's debt admitted.]—A foreign co. presented a petition for the compulsory winding up of an English co., which was in voluntary liquidation, & the whole of whose assets had been taken possession of by debenture-holders:—Held: although the debt to petitioning co. was admitted, it must give security for costs.—Re ALABAMA PORTLAND CEMENT CO., LTD. (1909), 25 T. 4543. Company resident & carrying on business outside—Cross action—Claim not arising out of same transaction.]—An agreement had been entered into in 1904 between an insurance co. carrying on business within the jurisdiction & another insurance co. which was a foreign co. carrying on business & residing out of the jurisdiction whereby the latter agreed to reinsure a certain proportion of fire risks undertaken by the former in certain specified parts of the world. The agreement provided that quarterly accounts were to be rendered by the parties. Such accounts had been delivered & balances paid down to the first quarter of 1908. The balance found due to the first-named co. in respect of the second quarter of 1908 not having been paid by the foreign co., an action was instituted against it by the first-named co., claiming payment of the said balance & subsequent balances shown to be due on the quarterly accounts, & claiming further that, if necessary, an account might be taken & that judgment might be entered for pltf. for the amount found due on such accounts. The foreign co. then brought a cross action against the first named co. asking for inspection of all original documents & vouchers connected with all transactions in which pltf. were interested under the agreement of 1904; that all accounts between the two cos. might be reopened on the ground of errors having occurred; for an account, & for an order of payment to it of any moneys found due after the said accounts had been reopened & taken:—Held: present pltf., the foreign co., ought to be treated not as deft. setting up a claim arising out of the same transaction as that out of which an action against it arose, by way of defence to that action, but as pltf. bringing an independent action to reopen settled accounts on the ground of mistake, & an order for security for the costs of the cross action should be made against them.—*NEW FENIX COMPAGNIE ANONYME D'ASSURANCES DE MADRID v. 4550. — Cross suit.]—A limited co. which was in liquidation, having been made deft. to a bill for foreclosure, subsequently filed a bill against the mtgee., seeking to impeach the validity of the mtge., & also praying that, if the mtge. should be held valid, it might be declared to be a security for only a part of the amount claimed by the mtgee., that the co. might be at liberty to redeem on paying what should be found due, that the mtgee. might be restrained from selling, & that a receiver might be appointed:—Held: this was not so strictly a cross suit to the foreclosure suit as to exempt the co. from giving security for costs.

Semble: even if it had been strictly a cross bill, the co., being a limited co. in liquidation, would have been required to give security for costs.—CITY OF MOSCOW GAS CO. v. INTERNATIONAL FINANCIAL SOCIETY, LTD. (1872), 7 Ch. App. 225; 41 L. J. Ch. 350; 26 L. T. 377; 20 W. R. 394, L. J.

Defts. put in a defence counterclaim & demurrer & subsequently obtained an order for inquiries. After this, & about ten months after the original statement of claim had been delivered, pltf. obtained an order to amend, & made amendments raising a fresh case likely to require a great mass of additional evidence. Winding-up petition presented.]—Where a co. registered under 1862 Act, was pltf. in a suit to set aside a policy on which deft. in the suit had already sued the co. in an action at law, which was still pending, the ct. refused to order the co. to give security, although at the time of the application there was a petition to wind an action at law for calls, & the Ct. of Ch. appointed a receiver to wind up their affairs, & authorised him to continue the action. An application was made to a judge in chambers to compel pltf. or the receiver to give security for costs:—Held: the application should have been made to the Ct. of Ch., but that in any event neither pltf. nor the receiver could be ordered to give security.—PROVINCIAL INSURANCE CO. v. GOODERHAM (1878), 7 P. R.
